The move came shortly after Labor Minister Leslie Peterson and representatives of the PGE and the brotherhood's negotiating committee emerged from a meeting to announce a settlement.

The agreement gave road crews an extra two-per-cent pay increase for handling long trains. The PGE won the right to reduce some yard crews from three men to two—as of the original points at issue.

Council Votes 2-1 to Opt Out of LODA in Meeting

Belleville city council by a two to one majority Monday voted against the city holding out membership in the Lake Ontario Development Association, an organization aimed at promoting industry and tourism in the area.

Council voted 10 to five against taking out the membership, but left the way open for the Belleville Industrial Commission if this body sees fit on its own to join the Association.

The city has belonged to LODA since the Association's inception about 10 years ago. This year's membership fee would be $3,500.00.

Acting Industrial Commissioner Ernest Rexted, told council that the Commission did not feel the LODA was "carrying its weight" and said there were three areas in which the association could re-appraise itself to better benefit the city.

Mr. Rexted said he felt the LODA was "over-doing" tourism and suggested it should form an educational program thus re-directing its activities into an area more appropriate for this kind of expenditure.

OBJECTION RAISED

The LODA question was brought before council by the finance and executive committee, which recommended that the city's membership in the Association be referred to the Industrial Commission which, it felt would serve to benefit most and should take out and pay the LODA membership.

The acting industrial commissioner was on hand to address council but felt was objected to by Alderman Donald Ross, who claimed it would not be parliamentary procedure to have outside bodies address council on a question under discussion.

Alderman Frank Murray said he disagreed and put a motion forward to pay his own membership in LODA.

But Alderman Ben Corke, chairman of finance, said his committee's heart was not behind paying for an Industrial Commission with budget of approximately $20,000.

MOTION TO TABLE LOST

He said his committee didn't believe that the city was necessarily getting full value out of the LODA.

Alderman Ellis said he had always been opposed to the city's membership in LODA. "I feel it is like throwing money away," he said.

A motion to table the finance committee's recommendation referring the matter to the Industrial Commission was lost. Then the motion was withdrawn in favor of a recommendation from Mayor Ellis that the city join the LODA.

He said this would leave the matter up to the Industrial Commission to act as it saw fit.

Voting for the city to join LODA were: Mayor Ellis and Aldermen David, Lally and Ross. Opposed were Aldermen Allin, Boyle, Brown, Carruthers, Corke, Joss, Raycraft, Soden, Whalen and Williams.

Ann Landers

Marine Lieutenant Trio Has Some Weird Ideas

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This letter is being written by three Marine Lieutenants stationed in Okinawa.

ANN LANDERS

Ever since we came to this fascinating island we have been impressed by the hard-working women of the Far East. They toil in the fields 12 to 15 hours a day — often until they are 80 years of age.

These women are pleasant and uncomplaining. They do not demand equal rights, recognition, or any such nonsense. They accept the fact that they were put on earth to work and cater to the whims and wishes of men.

The pampered, parasitical American female would do well to take a lesson from her sister of the Far East. — A TRIO OF LEATHERNECKS.

DEAR TRIO — Now that's what I call first-rate husband material! Three hale and hearty males who believe women were put on earth to work in the fields until they are 80 years old!

One question, boys: Do you want your mothers to work in the field until they are 80 — or just your wives?

I have one sentence of advice: Stay right there on Okinawa and make three American girls very happy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been married for five years, and am the father of two children. The problem is my wife's parents. I don't want to call them liars, so I will call them exaggerators.

Shortly after we were married my wife said to me, "Why did you tell my cousin your father was a tailor? My mother told her he was a manufacturer." A few weeks later, my mother-in-law had this to say: "When we go to Bertha's house tonight, remember that you have a master's degree." My father-in-law added, "And don't forget — you are a certified public accountant." I have no master's degree and I'm not a certified public accountant. I'm a bookkeeper).

I hate lying, but my in-laws have put me in the awful position of either backing their lies or making them look bad. Please tell me what to do — ANON.

DEAR ANON — Stick to the truth and let your in-laws know that's precisely what you're going to do.

Looking bad is a do-it-yourself project. People who become tangled in the inevitable web that lies create never look good — to anybody.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I work in a medical office and I love my job. The problem is the doctor's wife. I'm fed up with her snooping and interference. She used to have the job I now have and apparently she can't give it up.

Every day she "drops in" to check the mail, look at the appointment book and get in the way. Friday she told me when to change the typewriter ribbon, when to go to the bank and when to water the plants in the reception room.

Yesterday she announced that she'd relieve me when I went to lunch. When I returned she had rearranged my desk. I almost typed my letter of resignation right then, but decided to write you first.

The two women who preceded me in this job left because of her. If I am being petty, please tell me. Or should I be — THE THIRD ONE TO GO.

DEAR ONE — Don't write a letter of resignation. Tell the doctor you are leaving — and tell him why.

If he has the courage to instruct his wife to stay out of the office he will ask you to stay and that will be that. If he says, "I'll give you fine references" say, "Thank you" —and make way for numero quatro.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-Age Dringing," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COLORFUL WINTER VEGETABLES

To create an illusion of spring when the snow was piled to the window sills and still falling, I served a sunshiny meal.

The table centre was daffodils and tall yellow candles. The m..nu was Roast Duckling with Orenge Glaze; kernel corn, wafer-thin carrot slices, fresh frozen limas, bright Brussels sprouts; wafer-thin cucumber slices in sour cream and velvet smooth custard pie.

It is the vegetables I want to feature today. But do watch for the Roast Duckling with Orange Glaze and the Custard Pie soon — probably no..l week.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

RAINBOW VEGETABLES:

I had five for dinner and wanted to serve 4 colorful vegetables. Creamy-rich corn Bread; silver vegetable dish I arranged parallel uniform rows of 1) hot canned kernel kernel corn, 2) cooked wafer-thin slices of carrots and 3) cooked fresh frozen limas. I did not provide sauces for any of these because I did not want to mask their colors. Besides we had duck gravy. My other vegetable was bright green Brussels sprouts served in a matching vegetable dish alongside.

Tip carry on with vegetables which are available all over Canada in February, I will give some methods for parsnips and turnips.

PARSNIPS:

1) Baked: Pare 4 medium-sized parsnips and cut into halves. Place them in a buttered baking dish. Brush them with 2½ tablespoons butter and sprinkle them with ½ teaspoon salt and add ¾ cup water. Cover and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until the parsnips are tender, about 45 minutes. Serve with parsley butter.

2) Crumbed: Scrape 3 medi- -sized parsnips, rinse in cold water and cut in eighths lengthwise, and then once crosswise. Barely cover with boiling water, cover and cook until just tender or from 4 to 8 minutes. Avoid cooking so long that they get soft and mushy. Drain and dry. Beat 1 egg and add ¾ cup milk. Dip the strips in this mixture and then in fine, sifted bread crumbs. Fry in butter until golden brown, turning once.

CREAMED TURNIP:

1 medium turnip, 2 to 2½ lbs., 4 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup 10% cream, salt to taste, chopped parsley.

Wash turnip, cut into ¼" crosswise slices. Pare and cut in ¼" dice. Put into saucepan with water and salt and boil, covered, until tender. Drain, saving ¾ cup of the cooking water. Melt butter, blend in flour, add cooking water and cream and stir over direct heat until sauce thickens. Add sugar and more salt if needed. Turn turnip into vegetable dish, pour cream sauce over it, and sprinkle finely chopped parsley over top for garnish.

WASHING WOOL

Dear Susanna: Many girls find themselves with a knitted article they need to wash but at a loss to know how to get the kinks out for re-knitting. I method is wind yarn around the end of an ironing board and steam press it, but this isn't as satisfactory as actually washing it. Don't panic, it's quite simple and if you're working with white wool it will probably need what I sing anyway, so let's pretend we are.

First re-wind the wool in skeins — you will know when you have a skein by winding over to a join or splice. The padded back of a small kitchen stool or chair back is ideal winding, or a shoe box used lengthwise will do. Tie each skein with string in 3 places, the middle and the ends. Squeeze gently through warm water to which a nylon liquid has been added — no soap. Rinse well. Roll in a towel and leave to dry. This way all the kinks will be out and your new sweater, or whatever, will knit up evenly. — "Old Hand"

. . . and if you are drying your skeins outdoors, be sure to stay on the shady side of the street — the sun can create some wool it will probably need what I sing anyway, so let's pretend we are.

SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: How about this terrific new use for a suitcase — the kind you have in one place the nut, hold in one hand and squeeze the two arms together. I use it for ironing as it sits on tops on bottles that I cannot twist-off — loosens them almost effortlessly. — Mrs. Doris McQuaig.

Organist Makes Impressive Debut in Church Concert

By EUGENE LANG

The young American organist, John Weaver, made his Canadian debut on Sunday night at Bridge Street United Church before a sizeable congregation of devotees of the kind of entertainment from this city and surrounding area. Sponsored by Bridge St. Church Choir, the concert produced by local organist S. Alec Gordon, Mr. Weaver holds the position of choir director and director of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity in New York City.

At the tender age of six he began his musical studies, when he entered the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, Maryland, progressing under various musical educators till he entered the Curtis Institute in 1935. At a youthful 18 he became organist and choir director of a Baltimore church, also giving his first concert recital at that early age. A remembered time in his career was when he was invited to play the late Vivian Adelaide Skinner organ in Philadelphia at the age of twelve. Since then, he being one of the first to work out on this marvelous instrument. Graduating with honors in some of his energies, with works for voice, organ, chorus and brass being so far added to his credit.

The program chosen by Mr. Weaver was not of a solidarity mixed with charming lightness, in his musical journey from 18th century Handel and Bach through Franz Liszt of the Romantic Era to Louis Vierne and Olivier Messiaen of the present French School, plus an example of Mr. Weaver's own improvisations.

Beginning with Handel's Concerto No. 4 in F. Major Mr. Weaver displayed a style of ordering minds to rest with his impeccable interpretation of the score, a wonderful example of the English Baroque style. As Handel never indicated registrations, clarity in the running passages of the outer movements was the result of registration after the pair of slow sections. Mr. Weaver's own cadenza in the first movement was a varied one, tone, backed up by terrific technique and boiling tenacity to the very end. Mr. Neff's solo echo resounding throughout the building. Applause, encore won't even attempt this behemoth.

John Weaver is perhaps the only contemporary organist to play it and beat it to a pulp. Unforgettable is the experience one has in the performance of the opus. Weaver won us by his integrity as a fine organist that we look forward to hearing again. Opus twelve's Bach encore was textured with velvet.

The artist of the evening was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Davis, at a reception given in his honor following the recital.

The complete treasurer's report as prepared by the treasurer, Mr. Douglas Rector, was included in the annual report in the program folder and it was noted by Mr. Rector that local contributions increased and the year resulted in a deficit of close to $300.

Thanks were expressed to St. Michael's C.W.L. for the tasty ham dinner, by Mr. C. B. Morgan.

INTRODUCES SPEAKER

The speaker of the evening, Miss Jean Lamb was then introduced by Mrs. R. R. Brain, has had a wealth of experience in the long years she has been gaining as a staff nurse and then came all the way up through the various grades of her present position as Director-in-Chief of the V.O.N. for Canada with headquarters in Ottawa.

In opening Miss Lesak stated that a great deal of information regarding plans and activities of other workers in the health field was received at head office. Thus both from within and without the province Miss Lamb receives information "From Where I Sit" there is an opportunity to look at an overall picture that is overwhelming at times but nonetheless an exciting challenge.

The speaker dealt with the origin of the organization, giving detailed information in regards to the first nursing organization formed in 1897 with one small room as an office, located near the centre of Ottawa with the head officer being known as the Chief Lady Superintendent. She compared the workings of this organization at that time with the functions of today and felt that a great many changes had been made. Policies and standards are set at the national level as well as having an administrative function the national office co-ordinates the local branches and provincial association into one organization with common objectives, standards and goals.

Miss Lesak went on to say that improved roads and methods of transportation had made it possible to extend service to more rural populations. Existing branches are encouraged to extend their boundaries rather than create separate units and within recent years a number of branches have done this.

MANY CHANGES

Changes and developments in the care of patients, the increased hospital facilities, hospital insurance and the developments of community public health services were discussed. In recent years with the increasing number of patients in the older age group or those with chronic or long term illness, the emphasis has been on rehabilitation nursing. There is a growing awareness among many groups that there is a definite need for assistance being cared for at home, particularly for the elderly and those chronic illness or those in the older age group. Thus a number of Homemaker Services have organized and several V.O.N. branches have recently undertaken the administration such a plan. She also dealt with the difference of two services, the V.O.N. home and organized home care.

In summarizing, the speaker dealt with the professional status of the nurses employed today and stated that the original and continuing emphasis of the Victorian Order in preventive measures had made the preparation in public health nursing the preferred qualification for nurses employed on the staff employed across Canada have obtained this at university schools of nursing. She also noted that there are now three branches who have male VON nurses with three in Vancouver, one in Victoria and four in Toronto.

Concluding Miss Lesak said that the histor rof the Victorian Order indicated that progress had been made possible of the past and felt that from her position they would seem that they continued in the years sent.

Mr. Frank Follwell expressed sincere appreciation to the speaker for giving an historical review of the V.O.N. as well as the progress of all V.O.N. work. Added personal thanks were given by Mrs. Nellis.

During the new business period Mr. Frank Follwell, honorary solicitor, presented the charter of incorporation to the president, Mrs. Nellis.

Use of Envoid Said Followed By Jaundice

TORONTO (CP) — Jaundice and itching of the skin following the use of envoid, a contraceptive pill, are reported in an article in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Dr. A. J. Elliott and Dr. J. Hendry, both of Brandon, Man., describe the illness of a patient who had shown these symptoms during the last three pregnancies of her pregnancy a year earlier.

Jaundice and marked itching of the skin are known to occur occasionally during pregnancy, but disappear after delivery, in the article's opinion. The cause is unknown.

The authors' said the recurrence of the condition in the patient when she later took envoid may help explain why it sometimes appears spontaneously during pregnancy.

Jaundice refers to a yellowing of the tis the skin because there is too much bile from the liver gets into the bloodstream. The authors said the patient showed no sign of damage to the cells of the liver. After she began taking envoid and was given treatment the jaundice and itchi- hair were lost.

The doctors suggested that in such patients some defect may be present in the liver which can- handle relatively large amounts of the hormones estrogen and progesterone. The liver is unable to plain why the condition occurs during pregnancy, when hormone levels are high, and on taking envoid, which contains both hormones. There was no indication that the patient suffered any harm, the articles said.

B and P Women's Club Hears Talk on British Guiana

The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs held their regular monthly dinner meeting in the Banquet Room of the Belmont Restaurant on Monday evening. This week is designated as "International Week" and the dinner tables were beautifully decorated with many candles, each representing a country, with a centrepiece and place cards bearing flags of every country represented by the Federation.

Mrs. Irene Haig introduced the head table and Mrs. Hoffmaxx introduced the guests of the evening.

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker, Dr. E.R. Arrayadoo, was introduced by Shirley Woodcock.

Dr. Arrayadoo was born in British Guiana of Indian parents. He received his education in British Guiana, Jamaica, Boston and London, England. He spent some time teaching in British Guiana and twelve years on the respected staff there. He is presently associated with Dr. J.M.L. Walcott of this city.

After greeting his audience with the geographical position of his country, and its topographical features, Dr. Arrayadoo outlined the history of its occupation.

British Guiana is about as large as Ontario, with a very flat coastline. As one proceeds inland there is more wood, the jungle, grazing land and mountains.

BRITISH RULE

The country has been under British rule for many years, but was previously governed by the Dutch, Portuguese and the French, all of whom left their mark of these being the dykes built by the Dutch.

Sugar cane is the main crop. The heavy rainfall makes rice of cultivating and processing sugar was at first done by slaves imported from Africa. After the abolition of slavery in England, in 1833, the slaves left the plantations and laborers were then imported from Portugal but these people proved unsatisfactory as they were very vulnerable to malaria. After the Portuguese, Chinese were brought in and they were better, all of whom could not withstand the rigors of the work.

In 1838 Indians were imported. They were given land in lieu of wages with the same sense of purpose as do men, although they have potential for business leadership.

Fire Destroys Barn, Contents At Cherry Valley

PICTON — (STAFF) — All contents in a large barn belonging to Thomas Dobinson were lost in a flash fire early Sunday morning. The barn was located about a mile West of the village of Cherry Valley on the road leading to the outlet. Contents of the barn are said to have consisted of 66 bus. of grain and seed and 300 bales of straw.

A considerable amount of machinery was also lost as well as a drive house which was located nearby. The drivehouse contained a number of articles and a 1957 model car. The fire Department from Camp Picton responded to the call and stood by to protect the house, which was some distance away, in the event the wind should change. No cause for the fire has been determined.

Camp Picton Scene of New Flag-raising

PICTON (Staff) — Canada's new flag was officially raised at Camp Picton, on Monday at 11.45 a.m., in a brief but colorful ceremony.

Troops of the First Canadian Guards; REME; Engineers and H. Q. personnel of Camp Borden were on parade. Present on the dais officiating, were: Capt. F. S. Dowe, acting Camp Commander; Capt. J. C. Kennedy of 22 Works Company; Lt. J. Warmington, of 210 Workshops; Lt. W. L. J. Wingate; Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, who offered prayers for the occasion; His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland representing the town of Picton; B. "Barney" Hepburn, county warden, representing the County of Prince Edward.

While troops stood rigid at attention, the old Ensign was lowered from the camp flagstaff, and the new Maple Leaf flag of Canada was raised in the bright morning sunshine. The flags were lowered and raised by S/Sgt. B. C. Godsoe, while the sounds of the bugle echoed throughout the confines of the camp. As the ceremony was held at the Picton Army Camp there were very few Picton citizens attending.

Scientists Find Way to Double Picture Quality

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists have found a way to double the quality of pictures taken of the moon by Ranger VII, and the same technique will be used to study any photographs made by the coming Ranger VIII moonorait and the Mars-bound Mariner IV.

The method, developed by Dr. Robert Nathan of jet propulsion laboratory, uses a large IBM 7094 computer to find and eliminate distortions picked up during transmission of pictures from the spacecraft to earth.

Raymond Heacock, one of a team of scientists assigned to analyse Ranger photographs, says "the quality and sharpness of several of the pictures has been improved by a factor of two."

Eventually most of the more than 4,300 Ranger VII pictures will be re-studied with this new technique to learn more about elevations and slopes of the lunar terrain and draw better contour maps of the Sea of Nubilum area where the spacecraft crashed last July 31.

At first glance there isn't much difference between the computer-processed picture and the original, but scientists reading precise measurements under microscopes say the technique helps them be more exact in figuring length of shadows and the "roughness" of the lunar surface.

Three of the six cameras aboard Ranger VIII, scheduled for launching on the 65-hour voyage to the moon Wednesday, have been modified slightly to increase amplification of their video signals.

This increase, plus the gain in quality through use of a computer, is expected to give scientists an even better idea of the conditions manned spacecraft will meet when they land on the moon—hopefully by the end of this decade.

Two Papers Report Threat Against Princess

LONDON (Reuters) — Two newspapers report a threat has been made against Princess Margaret.

Scotland Yard declined comment on the stories, which appear in two morning papers, the Daily Mirror and the Sun, in connection with the princess' attendance at the annual Royal film performance here Monday night.

Margaret, her husband Lord Snowdon and Queen Mother Elizabeth went to the Odeon Theatre in Leicester Square for the performance, the premiere of the movie Lord Jim.

The Mirror quotes a police superintendent in charge of security at the Odeon as saying "we are taking special precautions because a threat has been made against Princess Margaret."

The newspaper says later, at Scotland Yard, an officer said "we know of no threat."

The Sun says it was a police force drafted to the royal film performance "after a threat had been made against Princess Margaret."

It quotes a police superintendent as telling reporters: "We've had a bit of trouble. It must have been some crank, but we had to take precautions."

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the tissues inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved ... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Dorion Inquiry Will Resume In Ottawa

The inquiry now is at the stage where it is studying how the RCMP handled its investigation into the charges by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides in the Lucien Rivard affair.

Mr. Lamontagne is acting for the U.S. government which is trying to have Rivard, 40, extradited to Laredo, Tex., to face charges of being involved in a Mafia-run narcotics smuggling conspiracy.

RCMP Inspector Raoul Carriere is scheduled to re-enter the witness box and be followed by Insp. J. P. Drapeau who took charge of the investigation from Ottawa headquarters after RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan received Mr. Lamontagne's complaint under "top secret" cover from Montreal.

RCMP counsel Norman Mathews is expected to put Commissioner McClellan on the stand and at the same time disclose his (McClellan's) recommendations to Justice Minister Favreau Sept. 18 in the presence of Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay.

Mr. Favreau has said that he decided there was insufficient evidence in the case to warrant the laying of charges.

He and Mr. Tremblay likely will be called before the inquiry to give testimony on this point.

Mr. Tremblay was concerned with the case because his then executive assistant, Raymond Denis, is accused by Mr. Lamontagne of offering a $20,000 bribe for him to agree to Rivard's release on bail. Several witnesses have testified that Rivard likely would have skipped the country if granted bail.

Maple Leaf

It is "inconceivable that the heirs to the great western civilization . . . should be unable to find a brotherly way of life based upon an agreement entered into 100 years ago by the two founding races, and adapted to present-day needs and requirements.

'SET ASIDE PETTINESS'

"I appeal to all Canadians to set aside pettiness, selfishness and intolerance where they may exist, and to cultivate a spirit of brotherhood and mutual confidence."

The two men spoke, along with Senate Speaker Maurice Bourget and Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton in a preflag — raising ceremony inside while the thousands of people continued to gather around the temporary, white flagpole at the base of the Peace Tower.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who had led a stiff fight against a new flag and who sought the opinion of his party's national executive on whether he should attend the ceremonies, was on the platform with the speakers, but he did not speak.

The Red Ensign was lowered with dignity before the hushed throng, and over two prayers it was gently folded and placed in the archives. The new flag was raised to the strains of O Canada and the roar of a 21-gun salute. Waves of cheers went up from the crowds, and within minutes every federal flagpole within sight of Parliament Hill was sprouting the new flag.

At Canadian embassies in such scattered places as Moscow, London and Tokyo, simple ceremonies stretched from Alaska to Puerto Rico and the remote southwest Pacific.

By JANE BECKER

EDMONTON (CP)—Once the shadow over Canada's autumn, paralytic poliomyelitis now is nearly in limbo.

No case has been admitted to the polio wing of the University Hospital in Edmonton since 1961. But it is harder to cure the effects of polio than to prevent the disease. For a group of 16 men and women who contracted polio some 10 years ago, the wing will probably be home for the rest of their lives.

Alberta reported only one case of paralytic polio last year. In all Canada there were only 21 cases. But in the epidemic years of 1953 and 1953, the province, which traditionally shows up with 25 to 50 per cent of all the polio in Canada, had a record 2,166 cases and nearly 200 deaths. The disease struck most frequently in late summer and fall.

Many of the victims of those and subsequent years recovered completely or partially. But for a few, who need more care than they can get at home, the hospital is home base.

All 12 men and four women patients in the University Hospital polio wing have the legacy of respiratory polio. Each must use an iron lung, a chest respirator or other equipment at least part of each day, and be close to medical aid if an emergency occurs. Most are quadraplegics (paralyzed in both arms and legs) as well.

COVER WIDE FIELD

Yet their chief complaint is that the days aren't long enough for their activities. The wing contains three licensed ham radio operators, two scholarship artists, a coin-collector, two Christmas card salesmen, a master bridge player (and several pool-cronies), numerous sports addicts and the Edmonton correspondent of the Canadian Cattleman, a publication for stock-raisers.

"Life is really very easy for us," says Bob Johnston, 29, the Cattleman's correspondent. "It's much easier to read, watch TV, or get into a bridge game than to work. Making myself get down to it is the biggest problem I have."

Mr. Johnston had finished high school and was working on his father's farm, planning to go to university and become a veterinary surgeon, when the disease struck him.

With college and his chosen career ruled out, he started looking for other ways to earn money and independence. He said he chose writing and sold his first article to the Cattleman four years ago.

He gets his material by talking to farmers and ranchers, reading agricultural publications and, in the case of a history of Western Canada stockyards he did a year ago, by writing to his sources for information.

EXPERT AT BRIDGE

Mr. Johnston also writes for the Caliper, the Canadian Paraplegic Association journal. His hospital associates provide him with plenty of material for stories.

In addition, Mr. Johnston is a race selector for the Edmonton Journal, a consistent winner at the summer horse race meets and a competitive bridge player with 23 master points.

Henri Baril, 25, and a quadraplegic since he contracted polio in 1954, also is well on the road to independence. He and one of the women patients, a psychiatric nurse in her early 30s and also a quadraplegic, are believed to be the only Canadians now on scholarships from Rehandant, the Canadian branch of an international association of artists who paint with a brush in their teeth or feet.

Both Edmonton artists paint by holding a brush, supported by a copper tube, between their teeth. The scholarship pays them $150 a month in return for submitting work fairly regularly, which is then sold by Rehandant, gilber as a painting or a Christmas card design.

Mr. Baril, not content with painting landscapes from pictures or memory, now wants to travel to obtain more subject matter and hopes to spend next summer in British Columbia.

Most of the patients go home at weekends, accompanied by a portable iron lung or respirator. Volunteer groups take them to hockey and football games.

PURSUE STUDIES

Part of long-term polio therapy is a continuous effort to keep them as active and interested as possible. Olga Wolstad, nursing supervisor in the wing, insists that everyone gets dressed and goes out of the ward, even to the corridor, each day.

At least two of the teen-age patients are working toward their matriculation through daily lessons with a hospital teacher.

Clayton May, 23, has a weak back which makes it impossible for him to get around, even in a wheel chair. But he spends three or four hours daily at his ham radio set and up to an hour on school work. Hospital visitors do his writing for him.

Until the run on coin sets from the Royal Canadian Mint started, he also had a small business ordering mint sets, then telephoning dealers and selling the coins at a profit.

"It's never any drag here," he says.

"You have to be on your toes to stay ahead of them," says a wing nurse, 23-year-old Ila Armfinson. "They all know far more than we do about sports, and most other things too. You just can't feel sorry for them."

party for the time being.

There is New Democrat Leader Douglas, who has just enunciated a policy to take account of Quebec's "quiet revolution." He denies anybody would be so crass as to exploit other parties' troubles, but privately many NDP members express the hope the party can move into a political vacuum left by the Conservatives and Liberals.

Marcel Lessard (SC—Lac St. Jean), admires leader Robert Thompson but, feeling he and other elected caucus members in Quebec under the Socred banner, is thinking of fighting the next election as an independent. He hopes to gather fellow socreds and others to work with him.

Labor Minister MacEachen has some amendments to his controversial labor code to propose that he hopes will end opposition to the bill.

Informed sources say when the bill, first legislative item to go before the commons, is debated an amendment will be proposed to provide for an extended period of exemption for industries crucially affected by the bill.

Successful Living

Trained Social Workers Help People in Trouble

DEAR DORIS — Would you please send me the address of a home for unwed mothers (Protestant preferred!)

Would you be able to find out the name of a doctor who would make a delivery at seven months? This would cut down on the time the girl would have to be away, and this is most important, as she comes from a small town. Her nerves are at the breaking point, and so are those of her parents. — GRATEFUL.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GRATEFUL — Usually applications to such homes are through the social agency which is there to help unmarried parents. The home is chosen according to the special needs of the prospective mother.

Not only that, but a trained social worker talks to the young people involved, helping them to arrive at the right decisions about their future and that of their unborn child. Nowadays we don't jump at marriage as the only respectable solution if we know it may well mean an unhappy home.

I'm thinking the family in this case could profit greatly by the skilled and understanding counsel of a professional worker. And I'm also thinking that no medical man would be a party to the risks involved in a seven-months' delivery.

Phone or write for an appointment to the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS — A boy who works in the saw mill here stays at the hotel and drinks and uses bad language. He is around 16 years old. He has parents but they don't know what he does. No use to talk to them.

We in this town don't like it when this boy drinks heavy and gets other boys drinking when they are under age. Should we report him to the R.C.M.P.? — WHAT TO DO.

DEAR WHAT — Yes. Also his parents, who should be taken to task for this lack of neglect. Also, anyone who supplies liquor to a boy this age is guilty of an offence and may be arrested for it.

Confidential to UNHAPPY WIFE — A greater knowledge of the physical side of marriage would doubtless help you in your misunderstanding with your husband. Send me your correct name and address on a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for my list of recommended books on sex. Enclose ten cents to cover handling.

Competition, Profit-seeking Said Canada's Sacred Cows

TORONTO (CP) — Competition and profit - seeking are "sacred cows" to which Canadians give "obsequious obeisance," Rev. J. Ray Hord said today in his annual report to the United Church of Canada's board of evangelism and social service.

Mr. Hord, board secretary, said the greatest achievements in history "have not been prompted by competition and profit, but by the desire to serve one's fellow man."

"It's high time we presented our young people with a new philosophy based on co-operation rather than competition, on mutual sharing rather than on selfish getting."

Economic and political goals Canadians should aim for, Mr. Hord said, include:

—An adequate standard of living for all citizens.

—Government sponsorship of legislation and programs to protect the weak and improve conditions of the poor.

—Availability of education to all youths at universities and trades training institutes.

—Adequate social security for elderly persons, the unemployed, ill and disabled.

—Representation by workers in the management of industry and a fair share of profits.

Mr. Hord also said the church should give less emphasis to projects aimed at the renewal and redevelopment of depressed agricultural areas in Canada.

Since Prime Minister Pearson has said a free vote on the abolition of the death penalty will be held in the Commons, the church said it "has the opportunity" to acquaint members of Parliament and others with "the hope of the gospel for the reformation of all offenders."

The United Church general council in 1960 recommended to the government that life imprisonment should replace the death penalty.

Mr. Hord said Christians now must learn that evangelism means "hope in action," not merely a relationship between God and individuals for the salvation of souls.

Evangelism "must take into account modern man's legitimate desires for a better life on this earth as well as in the age to come," he said.

"A gospel which does not offer the fulfillment of man's secular hopes will fall on deaf ears in vast sections of our modern world. . . ."

NEW CANADIAN FLAG RAISED IN LONDON — Canada's new Maple Leaf flag is raised for the first time at the entrance to Canada House in London's Trafalgar Square. Unity Is Theme Stressed In Flag-raisings in Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unity was the theme stressed in speeches Monday as the maple leaf flag was raised on flagpoles across Canada and at Canadian missions around the world.

On Parliament Hill Prime Minister Pearson set the tone when he told a cheering crowd in this country who regret the replacement of the Red Ensign by the red maple leaf.

"Their feelings and emotions should be honored and respected. But I am sure, now that the decision has been made by the representatives of the Canadian people in Parliament assembled, that all Canadians, as good patriots, will accept that decision and fly with pride our national flag."

But John Grasscamp of Niagara Falls, Ont., paraded on Parliament Hill with a big Red Ensign draped and bordered in black to protest the replacement of the Ensign by the red maple leaf flag. He told reporters he represented millions of Canadians who "feel bad" about the change, then left the hill before the new flag was hoisted.

In Quebec, Premier Jean Lesage said the new flag "presents itself to our eyes as something immensely simple, like a new born baby who also is full of magnificent promise."

But the country it symbolizes now is full grown, the premier said. "From coast to coast, let this flag be a symbol of the drawing together of all Canadians."

Some 15 senarchists disagreed with him, shouting down with cries with the maple leaf flag.

the maple leaf, long live the Fleur-de-lis." The fleur-de-lis is the provincial flag of Quebec.

Victoria was the first provincial capital to fly the flag to be raised. But only four persons—a custodian, a commissionaire, a reporter and a stenographer—turned up for the raising at the crack of dawn.

Charlottetown was the first provincial centre to hold an official ceremony—at 10 a.m. The flag was raised beside the Union Jack and the Nova Scotia flag atop 147-year-old Province House in Halifax. The Red Ensign has never been flown from Province House.

A 100-man guard of honor from the Canadian Guards presented arms when the new flag was raised at Queen's Park in Toronto. Some 2,000 spectators sang O Canada as the flag inched up the staff.

Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Thompson was injured in a two-car crash as he drove to the ceremonies.

An aide said Mr. Thompson appeared to have suffered a slight back injury. He was treated at home by a doctor.

The Canadian armed forces also marked the occasion with pomp and circumstance.

Canadian armed forces serving with United Nations peace-keeping missions in Cyprus and Egypt and with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in France and Germany raised the flag Monday.

Navy units on both coasts and RCN vessels in The West Indies replaced the blue and white ensign with the maple leaf flag.

Mother of Four Learns Hubby Living Another Life

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—It has been more than a week since Mrs. Mary Lou Bades felt the shock of learning that her husband, declared dead several years ago, has been living another life under another name in Omaha.

"I haven't been able to think clearly since then," the attractive, blonde mother of four said in the only interview she has granted since hearing the news.

"It was a shock to me. . . it was something unreal, sort of like a numbness," said Mrs. Bades.

The copyrighted interview, published Sunday by the Akron Beacon Journal, quoted Mrs. Bader as saying she had never doubted that her husband was dead and knew of no reason why he would voluntarily disappear.

She had to accept the fact that he was dead. . . . That was the only conclusion that I ever reached.

Her first reaction on learning that John F. (Fritz) Johnson, an Omaha sportscaster, was missing Larry Bader: "I was very stunned and frightened at first, then decided it couldn't be true."

It was the fingerprints that convinced her that Johnson and Bader were the same man.

Bader disappeared and was presumed drowned in a boating accident on Lake Erie May 15, 1957. Mrs. Bader, now 38, collected $40,000 in insurance.

Four days after the accident, Bader or Johnson turned up in Omaha and started a new life. He insisted he has no recollection of a life as Larry Bader. He is in hospital now undergoing tests.

Mrs. Bader said she is not "shutting the door to a possible reconciliation," but she is prepared to proceed with legal action against Bader if necessary to protect her children.

Bader or Johnson has said he wants to remain with his Omaha wife, Nancy. He and Nancy have two children.

replace a caretaker government ruling the country since the military overthrow of Buddhist-opposed Premier Tran Van Huong last month.

U.S. APPROVES

The U.S. mission, commenting on the new cabinet, welcomed "the end of the interim period."

The mission spokesman said: "We look forward to very close co-operation with this new government."

The militant Buddhists are strongly represented in the cabinet.

A significant inclusion was Tran Quang Thuan as minister of social welfare. He held the post in Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh's first cabinet after Jan. 30, 1964, but quit after a series of public arguments with Khanh, the country's strongman general.

Since then, Thuan has served as a lay spokesman for the Buddhists who have played a major part in destroying other Saigon governments.

Khanh, who set up the new government, did not attend the inaugural.

SELECTION DELAYED

Selection of Quat as premier had been delayed when the military balked at plans to appoint Tran Van Tuyen as interior minister. Tuyen is originally from North Viet Nam and it was argued he would have difficulty in the post from not having to deal with the touchy Religious groups of South Viet Nam.

Tuyen was named a deputy premier and vice-minister for planning, and Nguyen Hoa Hiep, a southerner, was named interior minister.

In a speech today, Quat said all bases for Communist aggression in South Viet Nam must be destroyed.

All Communist Viet Cong supply routes must also be wiped out, the premier said.

"If we could seal off all the supply routes, including the Ho Chi-Minh trail, the National Liberation Front (the political arm of the Viet Cong) would not be able to carry on the war."

In central Viet Nam, where troops Monday killed 15 civilians in putting down two anti-government demonstrations, a firing squad was scheduled for one of the demonstrators.

Nguyen Thanh Chanh Thi said two of the dead were known Viet Cong agitators, and the prisoner scheduled for execution Wednesday was a Viet Cong section leader.

Thi said the prisoner will be shot in Tam Ky and that the execution will be a message against further demonstrations.

Unofficial reports spoke of 40 dead.

The demonstrators demanded an end to government bombardment of Viet Cong villages and the release of villagers from the army.

A U.S. military spokesman in Da Nang said today government troops killed 35 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas while suffering one killed and one wounded in an operation in coastal swamps 10 miles southeast of North Viet Nam border Monday.

The action took place 35 miles from the big Da Nang U.S. air base, 375 miles northeast of Saigon. Five guerrillas were taken prisoner.

PC's Discuss New Riding Distribution

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford - Seymour Progressive Conservative Association held its annual meeting at George's Restaurant on Friday evening. A satisfactory number of 45 turned out for the meeting, the Seymour Township representative number being the larger.

County president Harry Bradford former M.P. for Northumberland was present and addressed the meeting. Present M.P.P. Russell Rowe was also in attendance as well as Mrs. Bradley and vice-president of the County William Swayne and Mrs. Swayne.

NEW DISTRIBUTION

Harry Bradley spoke particularly of the new riding distribution recently announced from Queen's Park and expressed surprise and concern. As the new distribution shows Campbellford to be included in the Peterborough riding, and as one of the larger towns in the previous set-up in Northumberland County, the loss of Campbellford, voters to Northumberland deserves serious consideration.

Cobourg as the largest urban voting area Mr. Bradley felt will be left greatly alone in an area of strong Liberal opposition.

Formerly Campbellford was considered by the Conservative party as a Mauser. Campbellford always considered a strong Conservative riding now will be added to already strong Conservative district of the Kawartha area. The new riding from Lindsay Kawartha extends from Apsley northr to Lake Ontario on the South.

Northumberland County is split three ways, two townships North and East being added to Peterborough and today governs Northumberland to Durham County riding and the other part including Campbellford to the Kawartha riding as well as other villages and towns south of Campbellford to Lake Ontario.

As it now stands in a new election present M.P.P. Russell Rowe could find himself without a riding. The extremely large area of the Kawartha riding would be a difficult riding for a nominee to cover in an election period.

A motion was recorded sponsored by M.P.P. Russell Rowe and County president Harry Bradley to present to higher officials showing the riding to be unwieldy and awkward and inconsistent.

A newly elected slate of officers was presented as follows: chairman, Douglas Mayhee; 1st vice, Alf Lauson; secretary, Mrs. B. Orrin, treasurer, Ralph Locke; ward chairmen, Roy Ford, Doug Maybee, G. I. Blair, Doug Sharpe.

Seymour township chairman, Ray Fetzer.

Lunch was served and a social evening followed

RCMP Take Documents From Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says it has learned that the RCMP have removed documents relating to American millionaire Harry Stonehill from the office of a Vancouver public relations firm.

The newspaper says police activity has been stepped up in the investigation of a letter sent last year to Hal Dornan, an aide to Prime Minister Pearson's office.

The Province says the documents were taken from the downtown office of Al Williamson, whose name has been linked in the Legislature with the letter. The letter bore the "signature" of Stonehill's lawyer, W. A. C. Bennett and apparently was sent in support of Stonehill's attempts to establish permanent residence in Canada.

RCMP here would not comment on the report and Williamson was not available for comment.

Deer Shooting To Be Probed By Minister

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP) — This Grand River village is burning with talk about the case of the standard deer "put out of its misery" by long-range shooting—just as a $100-an-hour government helicopter was flying to the rescue.

Kelso Roberts, Ontario lands and forests minister said in Toronto Monday he will investigate.

The deer, a fawn about a year old, was spotted last Thursday on a small, brush-covered island in the river off Haldimand County village of 920 miles south of Hamilton.

Dr. Peter Gill, Lagersville conservation officer for 20 years who patrols this area, began a search for the animal last Friday. He noticed the fawn had a "slightly injured" right hip.

"I don't want to shoot it but it needs food and a drink," Mr. Finch said then. He decided to wait for a food drop and except for a blanket, whether the fawn was strong enough to fend for itself.

But Saturday afternoon, Mr. Finch was at the scene waiting for a helicopter when John Tolls of Dunnville, conservation officer in another area, killed the fawn with a shot from a high powered rifle.

Mr. Tolls, former provincial policeman, part - time funeral director in Dunnville, refused to shot the fawn because, from the river bank, it appeared to be healthy.

"There was a chance that if it was left alone it would go after it because of the injury to its hip," he said.

Committed on Theft Charge

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)—David Blake Livingston, 45, of Brockville Monday was committed for trial by judge and jury following a preliminary hearing on a charge of theft.

Livingston was charged with the theft of $1,816 from Upper Canada Village, a nearby tourist attraction. He waf released on $4,000 property bail.

Bruce Allen, an attendant at the village's information centre, told the court she handed over to Livingston $1,816 from the sale of guide books and informative historic pamphlets.

Norman Ellison, chief audit accountant at the provincial auditor's office at Toronto, said that in September the records available at his office showed that the funds were short $1,816. He said this sum matches the amount of 19 receipts signed by Livingston from the information booth.

Livingston faces two more charges in magistrate's court. The first is that from May 16, 1963, to Oct. 15, 1963, he converted to his own use $1,333, property of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission which operates the village.

The second charge is that May 16, 1964, to Aug. 30, 1964, he converted money to his own use to the amount of $4,518.

Last Post for Red Ensign Sounds at Armouries Here, Reveille Greets New Flag

"They didn't let the old flag fall" — it came down slowly, gracefully to the haunting notes of "Last Post" in the armouries last night.

Minutes later Canada's new red and white maple leaf flag rose proudly to the staff top while "Reveille" ushered in the dawn of a new flag era.

In the almost reverent hughs of the darkened armouries, final tribute was paid to the warhonored Red Ensign as the flag was appeared after midnight and the new flag followed.

King led Monday's march at Selma, then went to Camden East and Marlbank, neighboring Wilcox and Ferry counties to assist in registration drives there.

Lieut. Colonel Willcocks briefly addressed the assemblage and later introduced Mrs. B. C. Doonan who unveiled a handsome plaque placed in the armouries to the memory of all ranks who served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

MAYOR PAYS TRIBUTE

Mayor Ellis paid tribute to the Royal Canadian Legion and Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans who earlier in the day had presented the city with the new flag.

"Their sacrifice and ideals exceed by far the money involved" he said. "they have chosen as have other citizens to show their allegiance to the new flag."

"I urge everyone to do this so that when Canada reaches her 100th birthday two years from now we can show a maturity that will be an example to the whole world".

Following the ceremonies, Lieut. Col. Willcocks extended an invitation to the public present to be regimental guests on conducted tours of the armouries.

Many took advantage of the tours and saw the troops in regular training, the messes, orderly rooms and the regimental museum in the officers' mess.

Later in the officers' mess, Col. Willcocks presented Major G. W. Telfer of Trenton, former medical officer of the regiment, with the Efficiency Decoration, symbolic of 20 years service with the armed forces.

Through Major, Percy Gray of Marmora, who has served 20 years with the "Hasty Pees" the regiment presented the Hastings County Historical Society with a copy of "The Regiment", a historical review of the regiment written by Farley Mowat.

It was accepted by the society president, Mr. Gerald Boyce, and turned over to the curator of the Hastings County Museum, Mrs. Jack Sargent.

"THE REGIMENT," Farley Mowat's best-selling history of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is presented Gerry Boyce for Hastings County Museum by Major Percy Gray, of Marmora.

Snail's Pace Registration Annoys King

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. expressed pleasure over a large right-to-vote demonstration here but said the registration procedure was "snail-like" and would be until the s tate of Alabama does something to speed it up.

"It was a magnificent demonstration," King said of Monday's march of more than 2,000 on the county courthouse.

He objected particularly to a state law that sets up only two r e g u l a r registration days a month in most Alabama counties.

In another development at Selma, Negro comedian Dick Gregory and seven other persons were arrested early today after an argument over reservations at the Holiday Inn Motel. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

ROOMS NOT HELD

Gregory, who spoke to a Negro rally Monday night, and one of the others in the group had reserved three rooms, motel manager Harold Sewell said, but the rooms had not been guaranteed. Sewell said the motel held the rooms until 8 p.m., but Gregory never appeared.

Gregory, who has been active in several civil rights campaigns over the South, and his group appeared after midnight and the argument followed.

New Federation Of Society May Be Formed

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault said Monday the Quebec Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies "is suffering from a shrill infiltration by fanatical proponents of Quebec independence."

He said in a statement that, if this situation does not change, a new Federation for St. Jean Baptiste members will have to be formed.

Mr. Arsenault said the present federation is making itself the instrument of a very mean minority urging Quebec independence.

The St. Jean Baptiste Societies make up a French-language patriotic group found mostly in Quebec.

"This monolithic and autocratic organization," said Mr. Arsenault of the Quebec federation, "flouted legislators at Ottawa as well as Quebec City with requests for a distinctive Canadian flag.

"Then, the day one was adopted, the federation denounced it without taking the advice of the individual societies."

The federation had failed to consult the member-groups before it denounced the celebration of the 100th anniversary of Confederation and it sided with creators of disorder at the time of the Queen's visit to Quebec City last October," the secretary said.

Prime Minister Shastri May Be Asked to Resign To Order to End Riots

NEW DELHI (AP) — A demand for Prime Minister Shastri's resignation as a means of ending India's bloody language riots portends trouble for Shastri when Parliament opens its annual budget session Wednesday.

Socialist leader Ram Manohar Lohia, a former member of Shastri's governing Congress party, told a rally in the south India town Secunderabad that India's minority language areas would get "justice and equality" only if a non-Hindi-speaking man is prime minister. Shastri's mother tongue is Hindi.

Lohia has only a small left-wing following in Parliament, but Shastri's support in his own party has been visibly weakened by the weeks of rioting in southern India protesting the proclamation of Hindi as India's only official language.

FIRE ON MOB

The violence spread Monday to Andhra Pradesh state. Two persons were killed and six were injured when police fired on a mob of about 10,000 persons setting fire to the North and Nellore railway station. A curfew was put on the town and all schools were closed.

Andhra Pradesh is north of Madras state, where nearly 60 persons died in rioting earlier. Madras is a Tamil - speaking area. The outbreak of violence in Andhra, where Telugu is spoken, indicated the anti-Hindi trouble might spread to all the minority language areas of India.

Elsewhere in Andhra, police fired tear gas at a mob of 5,000 at Anatapur. girl students in Kurnwool went on a fast, and dents boycotted classes in Cuddapah and trains were halted at Dharmavaram.

The Gandhi disciple Vinoba Bhave went into the country of a fast protesting the language riots.

Moscow Warns Raids Could Touch Off War

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (CP)—Moscow radio warned the United States today that continued strikes against North Viet Nam could ignite a world war.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin also has called for the withdrawal of U.S. troops and military equipment from South Viet Nam, Tass news agency said.

In an English-language broadcast beamed at North America, Moscow radio said:

"The flames of war starting in one place could easily spread to neighboring countries and, in the final count, embrace the whole world.

"This is the situation that is developing in South Viet Nam.

FEARS MORE RAIDS

The broadcast accused the United States of planning new raids against North Viet Nam and said:

"To this end large contingents of the U.S. armed forces are being concentrated off the shores of Indochina, including an extremely powerful strike force from the U.S.7th Fleet.

"But America should know that democratic Viet Nam is a member of the socialist community and will not be left to stand alone."

Kosygin's statements were contained in a message of greetings to Asian Communist nations taking part in the preparatory meeting of the Indochina peoples' conference at Phnom Penh, Cambodia.

Justice Dorion Orders Raymond Denis Recalled To Tell About Stonehill

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Justice Dorion has ordered that Raymond Denis be recalled to the witness stand to testify about his connection with the Harry Stonehill immigration case.

The chief justice gave his ruling at this week's resumption of his inquiry into accusations of influence peddling and bribery attempts against ministerial aides.

He said that after Denis is recalled he will decide whether Stonehill, Prime Minister Pearson's speech writer, and Al Williamson, a Conservative organizer, also should be summoned as witnesses as well.

Denis, former executive assistant to then Immigration Minister Tremblay, is accused of offering a $25,000 bribe to obtain bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges.

EXPELLED FROM CANADA

Recently published reports have also linked Denis with the case of Stonehill, an American millionaire who was expelled from Canada and who faces fraud charges in the U.S.

Chief Justice Dorion said Denis is being recalled to the witness box to test his credibility.

The judge testified that he had testified before the inquiry that he didn't even want to hear about the case after the campaign fund let alone talk about it.

Denis had denied that he had suggested that a person acting for Rivard should get in touch with Senator Louis P. Gelinas, Liberal party treasurer in Quebec.

Chief Justice Dorion noted that the published report on the Stonehill case said that Denis had mentioned Senator Gelinas and a certain $20,000 to $30,000.

INTRODUCED BY DORNAN

Dornan is connected with the case because he introduced Rivard to Stonehill and Williamson.

Mr. Pearson has said Dornan acted with Mr. Tremblay's approval.

The judge re-read earlier testimony in which Denis said again and again that the Liberal campaign fund was none of his business and that he had been ordered by Mr. Tremblay never to have anything to do with it.

Denis had told Liberal organizer Guy Masson, "Don't speak to me about election funds."

Masson has testified that $60,000 was available to the Liberal party if Rivard's extradition to the U.S. were blocked.

Chief Justice Dorion said there were "flagrant contradictions" in the testimony of certain witnesses and one of his most difficult tasks was to decide which witness or witnesses to believe.

Mother Refuses To Believe Son Is Dead

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Thirteen years after her son's plane crashed in Indochina, Mrs. John Griffin refused to believe that he is dead.

Mrs. Griffin the fact a body bearing his identification, Francis McLaughlin, was found in the crash wreckage.

"How can he get so far? Everyone told me he could not have walked so far in the terrible winter weather," she insists, "And where is Jerome Kurtz," his navigator?

McLaughlin and Kurtz, a New Yorker, were ferrying a two-engine civilian plane from New York to Jugoslavia, their plane vanished Oct. 15, 1952, 60 miles from Gonse Bay.

FOUND PLANE

Indians found the plane the next summer. Its radio was on a wing. There was evidence of two campfires and footprints, but no bodies.

Nothing was found until a few weeks ago when an Indian discovered a body bearing McLaughlin's identity and near Natabuguan, Que.

Mrs. Griffin refuses to believe the body is that of her son. She hopes the RCMP can learn more from the meat.

Both McLaughlin's and Kurtz' wives have remarried.

FATHER JUMPS

PARIS (AP)—A 38-year-old father of four children leaped from a beam near the first floor stairway Monday to become the latest suicide victim on the Eiffel Tower, opened in 1890.

The new Maple Leaf flag may not have been the only banner of original Canadian design to fly over Belleville.

Last night Hastings County museum officials marked raising of the new national flag by unveiling a banner believed at least 100 years old—and, possibly, fondly dreamed of by its designer as influencing Canada's sometime official flag.

It never made it, of course, but, as a historic curiosity it may now be seen at the museum on Church Street.

The banner belonged to the Native Canadian Society, a "patriotic" organization that flourished, in mid-nineteenth century Belleville. Membership, naturally, was limited to British subjects of Canadian birth, in other words, United Empire Loyalist descendants.

The Native Canadian Society was the local answer to the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society, the St. Andrew's Society and the St. George's Society. These national associations, made up of immigrants from the British Isles, dedicated themselves to the preservation in Canada of the traditions and culture of their members' respective homelands. Native-born Canadians, generally called "Brave Colonials" by their British-born neighbors, retaliated by forming their own organization.

ONLY SURVIVING RECORD

Native Canadians were a strong factor in the social life of Cobourg in the 1850's. Belleville's society probably started at the same time. Meetings were held on the first Wednesday of every month at Coleman's Hall on Front Street. In addition to the usual officers, the Society had a surgeon - - perhaps to treat casualties of any racial brawl triggered by over-inflamed nationalistic passions.

The Native Canadian's banner is the only surviving record of the Society. Once the property of George Taylor, second sheriff of Hastings County, it was sent to the museum by sheriff Taylor's great-granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Hill, Edmonton.

Too cluttered for modern taste, the white silk banner is hand-worked in petit point stitch with silk floss and crewel wool. It includes every cherished Canadian symbol - - except the Union Jack. A circular medallion in the centre shows a beaver chewing a twig of wood. Around the medallion are the words "Native Canadian Society". Surrounding this is a wreath of maple leafs in full autumn colors. Under the wreath is a red ribbon bearing the Society's motto: "Ubique Patriam Reminisci". Surmounting all is an Imperial Crown. The flag, roughly 32 inches square, is bound with gold braid in a looped design.

The Native Canadians never proposed their flag for national use, say museum officials. They were content to use it as a symbol of their private dreams and aspirations. When their wives designed and worked the banner Canada was not yet a nation and the Society was only a local movement. From such grass-root beginnings came Nationhood. And just yesterday, our own Canadian flag.

Farm Hand Charged With Girl's Murder

STRATFORD (CP)—John Pitman, 21, was brought here by police custody from Barnia Monday after being charged with the capital murder of a girl whose parents employed him as a farm hand.

A warrant for his arrest was issued after Marianne Vandervliet, 21, was found shot to death Sunday in her parents' home near Dublin, about 15 miles northwest of here.

Pitman was arrested in downtown Sarnia and will appear in Stratford magistrate's court Wednesday.

Miss Vandervliet, a school teacher in Kitchener, had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foort Vandervliet, for the weekend.

Her body was found on a kitchen couch when her parents and two younger brothers returned to the farm from visiting friends about 5 p.m. Sunday.

An autopsy showed that she had been shot through the heart with a .22-calibre bullet. There was one bullet wound.

Health Report To Be Tabled

OTTAWA (CP)—The second report of the royal commission on health services now is expected to be tabled in the Commons Thursday by Prime Minister Pearson.

He had admitted forcing Donna into a car Jan. 21, holding her overnight in a garage and then abandoning her on the Ohio Turnpike 13 miles from her home.

Before releasing the girl, Rehart fired blank cartridges near her eyes, he told police. One of he girl's eyes later had to be removed by surgery.

Indonesians Burn Effigies In Streets

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Effigies of Uncle Sam, John Bull and Malaysian Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman went up in flames here today as thousands of Indonesian students demonstrated against the military building in Malaysia.

The demonstration, which was orderly, was the fourth because five days. The crowd kept away from the heavily guarded U.S. and British embassies.

PROTEST SEIZURE

Piles of U.S. Information Service books and magazines also were destined for the bonfire today, but the person detailed to collect the books failed to appear.

The U.S. cultural centre and library was taken over "temporarily" by the Indonesian government Monday on the instructions of President Sukarno.

Self-admitted Kidnapper Takes Own Life

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 22-year-old self-admitted kidnapper of a seven-year-old girl took his own life early today in a cellblock in Summit County jail, the sheriff's office reported.

Lynch said Rehard tied a towel around his neck and apparently climbed onto a radiator and then stepped off.

Rehard left a note in which he said he was sorry for what had happened to Donna Adkins and wished it had not happened, Lynch said.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Fishing widows get the big break this year. The sponsors of that hardy breed which drop everything when the smelting season opens and takes off for the range where the pike and pickerel play, will be able to plan weekend safaris of their own.

It's about time something of this nature come the way of the long-suffering gals who put up with the sponsors' grouses and good-natured moaning on the weekend haul. I've never heard of a trout, pike or pickerel being named the correspondent in a divorce case, but there's been many a time when the gals wish they could.

This year, nonetheless, you can put on your vowel, cut smiles when the question of "open season" comes up; bid the old tackle-tinkerer the best of luck, buss him, bid him godspeed, then call the bridge club and make arrangements for a weekend junket.

For the Department of Lands and Forests has decreed that all opening days this year will fall on a Saturday.

And if the ole breadwinner is a trout fancier you can start laying plans for the weekend of February 27th, unless you live across the bay in Prince Edward County.

In case you're interested he gets some three weeks longer to quest the browns, rainbows and speckles. The season in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington among others in southeastern Ontario starts February 27, through October 4th.

Lands and Forests officials expect as big if not a bigger invasion of trout-opening troops come a week Saturday.

They'll brave whatever the weather man has in store for them, a lot of them hiking northwards on Friday to get bedded down and ready for the Saturday dawn attack.

A FUNNY BREED

"The guys we married are a funny breed," a sports "widow" told me last summer. "My husband won't go to the arena on a wintry night to see a hockey game because it's too cold. He'd rather watch "The Lovelife of an Oyster" on television."

"Yet on February 28 or whenever the early trout season opens, he'll put on his long johns and raccoon coat, wade through snowpacked roads, chop holes in twelve inches of ice on a frozen lake, stay there all day and at night tell his buddies what a helova time he's having."

"Throughout the winter months he'll go to the curling club wear out a half-dozen brooms sweeping, slither up and down the ice, and is as happy as a well-fed clam.

"Ask him to use the vacuum cleaner at home—and he's had too hard a day at the office. He's plumb tuckered out."

"He'll go to the golf course, walk four or five miles chasing a little white ball which is often a pain in the grass, and call it fun.

"Ask him to go to the corner drugstore for cigarettes and he'll say 'have 'em delivered, the car won't start'."

"In the deer-hunting season, he'll pack his gear and go to some isolated cabin in the woods with his buddies. At dawn he's shivering and freezing on a runway, or stalking bucks in the woods. He'll follow a trail for miles, or wait for hours for a bear or a moose to come and lick his hand."

"But at home on a warm summer Sunday just ask to take the family to a nice park for a picnic and what do you get?

"You take the car and go with the kids, honey, I'm going to the baseball game. Besides you know I don't care much for parks. They're too crowded".

"That's the way it goes," she sighed. "All I can say is, if you marry a sport—you have to be a good one."

Mikita Point Behind Injured Hull

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks has stepped up his drive for a repeat win of the National Hockey League scoring title, inadvertently aided by team-mate Bobby Hull's four-game absence because of a knee injury.

Hull led the league by 14 points on Jan. 7 but Mikita narrowed the lead to one point after last week's action.

Official NHL statistics released today give Hull 87 points made up of 38 goals and 29 assists. Mikita picked up four points in Hawks' four games to give him 66 points made up of 30 goals and 46 assists. Mikita is also the league bad man with 138 minutes in penalties.

STAN MIKITA

Hull has 14 more goals than his nearest rival, Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings who is in third place with 52 points. Mikita has 10 more assists than his nearest rival, team-mate Pierre Pilote.

Hull has 16 games left in which to score 13 goals needed to set a season record. Mikita is 12 assists short of the season record held by Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens and Andy Bathgate of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Pilote's 36 assists is 10 short of the season record for defencemen he holds with Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks moved four points ahead of Montreal and Toronto after the week's play although Chicago has picked up its 64 points while playing two more games than Montreal and one more than Toronto.

Montreal, only a point behind Chicago, a week ago, now has won only one of its last eight games, Canadiens' record standard in 13 years. Detroit is fourth with 58 points, 17 more than fifth-place New York. Boston is last with 33.

Detroit leads in team penalties with 817 minutes.

Lightfoots Trounce Cobourg

Belleville Lightfoots set the stage for a key Wednesday-night battle with the RCAF Flyers by whipping Cobourg Kiwanis 84-35 in a Bay of Quinte men's basketball league game here last night.

Lightfoots, close behind the league-leading RCAF squad, meet the Flyers in a home game Wednesday. However, since the Lightfoots' home court is not available, Belleville will play the game at the air station. Game time is eight o'clock.

It was a one-sided affair right from the start last night. Belleville led 25-13 at half time and kept piling in the points.

Key to the winners' big victory margin was in their tight checking of Cobourg's high scorers. Dennis Clarke, top scorer in the league, was held to an unbelievable two points. Jim Coughlan, second-high man among Cobourg shooters, hit for only four points.

Leading the way on the Lightfoot attack were Ian Houchin and Don Smith. Speedy Smith enjoyed another big night by dropping home 25 points. Smith was close behind with 21 and John McKibbon also reached double-figure with a 13-point effort.

Cobourg Kiwanis (35) — D. Clarke 2, B. Stuart 4, Bennett 2, G. Coughlan 13, B. Frost 9, Miller 1, J. Coughlan 4, M. Coughlan.

Belleville Lightfoots (84) — J. McKibbon 13, B. McBride 7, D. Smith 21, B. Langabeer 7, I. Houchin 23, B. Smith 9, G. Duggan, 2.

Savoie Bows To Durelle

MONTREAL (CP)—Joey Durelle successfully defended his Canadian welterweight boxing title by gaining a hard-fought decision Saturday night over Armand Savoie of Montreal in a 12-round championship bout.

Durelle, 26, of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., a cousin of former-Canadian heavyweight champion Yvon Durelle, built an early lead and over-powered the 35-year-old Savoie in the first defence of his title.

Two judges gave Durelle, who fights out of Trois-Rivieres, Que., the win by scores of 56 to 51 and 56 to 55 using the five-point "must" scoring system. The third judge gave each fighter 55 points.

The champion was warned three times by referee Marcel Racine for butting, a tactic which helped open cuts over both Savoie's eyes in the second and third rounds.

Durelle won his crown Sept. 14 from Peter Schmidt of Toronto.

If Ford's Arm Sound

Yankees By 10 Games Says 'Mick'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, settled comfortably into the $100,000 salary groove for the third straight year, predicted Monday the New York Yankees will win the pennant by 10 games if Whitey Ford's arm is sound.

Mantle's signing was announced at the Yankee office with the slugger on the other end of a long distance line in Dallas.

Although Mantle's salary fell short of Willie May's $105,000, tops in all baseball, Mantle said he isn't disturbed.

When somebody asked if he could have held out for more, Mantle said, "I'm too close to the end to start fighting. I took what they offered and I'm happy."

Mantle, 33, played 143 games and hit .303 last year.

Mantle has a lifetime batting average of .306. He is seventh on the all-time home run list with 454, one more than Mays. He is starting his 13th year as a Yankee.

Juniors, Napanee Tie 5-5

Out in front four times during the game, Belleville "B's" were forced to settle for a 5-5 deadlock with Napanee Legion in Napanee last night in one of three OHA Junior League games played.

In one of the other contests, Peterborough beat Kingston 8-5 in Peterborough. The losing clubs, along with Belleville, will battle it out for the group's fifth berth in the playoffs when Kingston was their first of the season.

Belleville jumped into a 2-0 early lead in the first heat in Napanee but the Legion crew tied it before the period's end. The "B's" netted the lone goal of the second period and Napanee made it 3-3 early in the third.

Twice more during the torrid third heat Belleville moved a goal up but the Legion kept battling back and finally made it 5-5 with less than three minutes left to play. There is no overtime play in the league this season during scheduled games.

Then came the see-saw battle in the third. Gerow's first tied it at 2.51 but White shoved the "B's" back in front at 4.31.

Stinson evened it, 4-4, at six minutes even before the clubs took a breather from scoring.

Rutherford put Belleville ahead for the last time at 14.07 but that lead lasted little more than two minutes. Gerow completed the scoring and gave the squads a split in point with his marker at 17.06.

Football Fatalities Up In '64

Dr. Eastwood says deaths rose to 45 in 1964 from 34 in 1963.

Most of the deaths (27) could be traced to traumatic blows while the others came from indirect causes, including heart failure, heat stroke and infection, the professor said.

Victims of the traumatic deaths were suffered in high school games, three in college, two in sandlot play and one by a professional athlete, Eastwood said.

The majority of the victims played in the backfield and died of head injuries, Dr. Eastwood said.

Dr. Eastwood is a professor at Los Angeles State College and has been keeping records of gridiron fatalities for 33 years.

Chuvalo Fight For Toronto?

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Vic Bagnato, a prominent figure in Toronto boxing since the early 1930s, said Monday he is interested in promoting a fight here in April involving George Chuvalo and a world ranked heavyweight contender.

Bagnato, a sales representative for a Toronto distillery, recently secured a licence to promote boxing in Toronto, which included Maple Leaf Gardens. The Gardens seats 14,000.

"We would like to get Floyd Patterson in a rematch," said Bagnato, who fought as an amateur for nine years and later promoted several amateur cards. "We'll try Patterson first and then perhaps concentrate on Henry Cooper or Karl Mildenberger."

Chuvalo, currently ranked third by the world boxing association, lost unanimous decision to former heavyweight champion Patterson at New York Feb. 1.

Bagnato said he discussed the situation with Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, and Ungerman expressed interest.

Cooper, the 30-year-old British Empire champion, was stopped on cuts by Clay two years ago after knocking the latter down. Patterson has been listed among the top 10 for the last few years.

Mildenberger, a German, is current European titleholder.

Campbell Hits 17 Players In Wallet

Roberts Extra

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, announced Monday he has fined Jim Roberts of Montreal Canadiens an extra $100 for his part in last Wednesday's brawl during a Canadiens-Maple Leaf game in Toronto.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

He also fined 10 more Canadiens and six Leafs an extra $25.

Campbell said in a statement Roberts broke off his bench while officials were getting control of a fight between Frank Mahovlich of Toronto and Ted Harris of Montreal.

He said 10 more Canadiens followed leaving along with the Leafs —an exodus which resulted in "the continuance of the fighting which was already in progress and produced many more fights and scuffling to the point where game officials were unable to handle the situation."

Campbell said Roberts left his stick and gloves behind when he left the bench and that while it is "not certain that his action necessarily caused the subsequent exodus from both benches, it is reasonable to assure it did because no one had moved during the four or five minutes of the fighting among the players who were legally on the ice at the time.

"He must, therefore, be held primarily responsible for the subsequent development including the expanded fighting and the intolerable delay of the game."

The game, won 6-2 by Toronto, was held up from 15 to 20 minutes by the brawl.

He said Roberts told him he left the bench of his own free will "without instructions or prompting from anyone and I am satisfied that once he had done so it was not possible for either coach to restrain their other players from doing so."

Campbell also fined in addition to the $25 automatic penalty for leaving the players' bench for Imlach.

The Montreal players fined an extra $25 dollars are Jacques Laperriere, J. C. Tremblay, Ralph Backstrom, Dick Duff, Claude Provost, Bobby Rousseau, Henri Richard, Jean-Guy Talbot, Dee Baloo, and Noel Picard.

Signs For $100,000, Mays Tops

Mantle Hitting Second In Loot Lineup

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For a while, Hank Aaron didn't know where he was going to play. Mickey Mantle still doesn't.

The two homer hammerers-Mantle is seventh on the all-time list and Aaron 14th—signed their 1965 baseball contracts Monday and took their usual places among the highest paid players in the game's history.

Mantle agreed to terms with New York Yankees for an even $100,000. Aaron, who will be playing for the Braves in Milwaukee this year and Atlanta next, stepped up $10,000 to the $70,000 neighborhood.

That left San Francisco's Willie Mays the No. 1 in terms of salary with a $105,000 contract. Mantle in the runner - up spot and Aaron in the No. 3 neighborhood along with Yankee outfielder Roger Maris and pitcher Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers.

MICKEY MANTLE

Mantle, however, doesn't yet know if he is going to earn his salary running in centre field or playing right field.

Aaron, the leading active hitter with a .320 lifetime average, batted .328 last season with 24 homers and 95 runs batted in. During his 11 seasons with the Braves, he has hit 366 homers.

Mantle, who has a lifetime batting average of .306, hit .303 in 1964 with 35 homers and 111 RBI. He has hit 454 homers in his 14 seasons with the Yankees.

Other signings Monday included:

American League

Los Angeles—Pitcher Marcelino Lopez, outfielder Jose Cardenal, catcher Phil Roof.

National League

San Francisco — Infielder Chuck Hiller, outfielder Cap Peterson.

Pastrano, Griffith Defend Crowns

Two Title Bouts For Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Inspired by two straight successful bouts in Madison Square Garden now has come up with a championship doubleheader show for March 30.

The two 15-round title fights will match light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano of Miami and Jose Torres of New York and welterweight king Emile Griffith and Jose Stable both of New York.

The two fights will be shown on closed circuit television to theatres and arenas with New York blacked out.

Pastrano, making the third defence of his 175-pound division crown has been guaranteed $100,000 and Griffith $70,000, Associated Press sources.

The challengers figure to collect about $10,000 each. Stable is the No. 1 welterweight challenger. Torres, who recently knocked out Bob Olsen in the first round, is ranked fifth among the light heavies.

Garden officials hope to gross $150,000 at the arena with a $30 top price and add about as much to the promotional pot with the closed circuit television.

The action - packed heavyweight fight between Floyd Patterson and George Chuvalo, which may have started off a new boxing boom in New York, drew a standing room crowd of 19,100 and a gate of $168,423 at the Garden at a $20 top price. Two years later, a middleweight Luis Rodriguez and Ralph (Hurricane) Carter lured a crowd of 10,806 and a gate of $44,780 at $8 tops.

Junior 'A' Scoring Statistics

TORONTO (CP)—Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes and Ken Hodge of St. Catharines Black Hawks, Runaway scoring leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, managed only one assist between them last week.

Lacroix, who scored seven goals and eight on five others the week before, missed one game through illness and then got one assist, bringing his point-total to 113 on 43 goals and 70 assists. Hodge has 102 points.

Jimmy Peters, workhorse centre for Hamilton Red Wings, moved from sixth place to a tie for third spot with Dan Grant of Peterborough. Each has 98 points.

Bernie Parent of Niagara Falls Flyers, while still leading the league in goals-against-averages, watched his goals-against average rise to 3.53 from 3.47.

Public Utilities gained a berth in the city Interdepartmental Hockey League finals last night.

Utilities doubled the score against the Police Department with a 10-5 victory.

Public Works, first place finishers who had a bye in the semi-final round, will battle with Utilities for the championship.

The length of the titular series has not been announced here but it will start next Monday night, at eight o'clock.

Orders Hockey Probe

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts House of Representatives adopted Monday an order, filed by Representative Gerald J. Morrissey, calling for an investigation of professional hockey in the state in the light of a controversial New York-at-Boston National Hockey League game three years ago.

If the state Senate also passes the order, an investigating committee will be set up.

Representative Morrissey said in a statement that "the particular game in question involved . . . Boston Bruins, and was played March 22, 1962 against New York Rangers in Boston and (was) alleged to have been manipulated in favor of New York. . . .

New York won the game 4-3 and clinched a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

Weston W. Adams, president of the Bruins, Monday issued the following statement:

"The National Hockey League has just completed its own investigation of the incident givin rise to the inquiry for the second time and is satisfied that the charges are wholly unfounded.

"However, if the Massachusetts legislature wishes to investigate any further, we will be very happy to co-operate in any way."

New Novice Setup Keeps Riteways Busy

A new playoff arrangement and a couple of exhibition games point toward a busy week for Belleville Riteways of the OMHA novice group.

The Riteways play an exhibition game against Picton here at Memorial Arena tomorrow (Wednesday) at 3:30 p.m. This game precedes the OMHA midget and juvenile playoffs between Kingston and Belleville. These games are scheduled for 7:00 and 8:30 p.m.

On Thursday, Riteways travel to Cobourg to take part in the special "Young Canada Night" being held there. Riteways will play against Cobourg novices at 7:00 p.m.

And on Saturday, Riteways open a two-game, goals-to-count, OMHA playdown series against Trenton, in Trenton. Napanee and Gananoque will meet in a similar series while the two Peterborough teams, P.M.H.A. and P.C.H.L., also tangle.

Winners of the Belleville-Trenton set meet the Napanee-Gananoque winners. The Peterborough victors will then clash with that winner.

This new novice playoff arrangement was announced here yesterday after most of the clubs involved voiced discontent with the original tournament-type playdowns.

Several of the centres involved in the novice tournaments were unhappy at having to travel to various places four or five Saturdays in a row. A couple of the clubs had failed to show up at some of the tournaments as it was decided to disband the whole plan and revert to home-and-home, goals-to-count series between close-at-hand centres.

Belleville will play host to Trenton in the second game of their series here on Wednesday, February 24. Saturday's game in Trenton is expected to start at 3:00 p.m. No time has been announced for the return game here the following Wednesday.

Petes Jrs. Defeat Chatham 5-3

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Peterborough Petes rallied from a third - period deficit to defeat Chatham Maroons 5-3 in a junior hockey exhibition here Monday night before more than 2,400 fans.

The Maroons, holders of first place in the Western Junior B League, held a 3-2 edge until midway in the final frame over the third - place Junior A team. Scoring for the Petes were George Dodson, Dan Grant, John Vanderberg, Mickey Redmond and Jim Peterson.

Apple Kings, Merchants Play Tie

TRENTON (Special) — Picton Merchants and Trenton Apple Kings failed to settle their battle for the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League's third spot in Picton last night.

The clubs fought to a 4-4 stalemate and remain in a third-place deadlock. However, Trenton has two games in hand in the lost column.

Last night's split in points ended a four-game losing streak for the Merchants. The Apple Kings have another "home" game scheduled in Picton on Thursday night, against the Gananoque Islanders.

Trenton outshot Picton 41-34 as both goalies, Ken Pauls for Trenton and Larry Holmes for Picton, spent busy nights.

The Apple Kings jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first eight-minutes of the game on a goal by Gord Stevens and two by Trenton the stick of Ross Quigley.

Picton begiled back to cut that to 3-2 before the period ended. George Buljagevski and Paul Moore scored the goals.

The Merchants took over in the second with a pair of unanswered goals, both by Herold Haddock. He tied it 3-3 at 12:05 and put his squad in front at 17:37.

In the hard-fought final chapter, Rick O'Donnell earned Trenton the OK. He sank the equalizer shortly after the midway mark in the period, and that's the way it ended.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Most youngsters today have an opportunity to watch the game's best players in action on television, if they can't see them in person. If you're a student of the game you can pick up a great deal by observation.

As a rink rat in Saskatoon, I watched the Saskatoon Quakers every opportunity I had, whether it was in practice, and believe me occasions, at games, when I weren't playing myself.

I already had learned professional before television came along so the tips I picked up were by first hand observation. I say nothing of the cracked and broken sticks I scrambled for and salvaged by taping them up.

I bring my three sons to practice on occasion and weekend games whenever possible. Marty and Mark really have become students of the game.

Recently Jim Chapman, who coaches the Rosstertail team they're on, told Marty as he came off the ice after a turn during a game:

"Wonderful, you looked just like Bill Gadsby," in giving him a pat on the back. Later he suggested that Marty watch Gadsby, his inspiration, the way he poke checks, blocks the puck.

At the next Red Wing game, my wife, Colleen, said Marty never took his eyes off Gadsby. And he studied the others, too, because on one occasion, he nudged his mother and said:

"Wasn't that a fine play Doug Barkley made, mother," as he's noticing, which is good, Marty didn't stop there.

Recently, after Marty's team played one from Brampton, Ontario, the youngsters were asking for some money to get a souvenir before going home. Colleen didn't have any change. She gave Marty a dollar. When he came back, he gave her 30 cents change.

"I bought this for Mr. Gadsby," he said, holding up an 80 cent cigar.

"I don't mind you buying Mr. Gadsby cigars," she said kiddingly, "but I think he smokes a shorter, less expensive brand."

Will Pay Gardens Millions

TORONTO (CP)—Maple Leaf Gardens and MacLaren Advertising Company have reached agreement on a new six-year contract under which MacLaren will pay $9,000,000 for radio, television and advertising rights, a Gardens source said Monday.

MacLaren has been paying an estimated $675,000 a year for rights to television National Hockey League games in the Gardens. The new package includes the rights to advertising inside the 14,000-seat arena.

Woman Ballet Critic To Judge Festival

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — An annual ballet festival that got its start in the United States in 1959 comes to Ottawa this April, and a Canadian woman has been chosen to adjudicate it.

Lauretta Thistle, ballet critic of the Ottawa Citizen for the last 15 years, will preside April 21-26 at the sixth Northeast Regional Ballet Festival of the United States.

It's to be held here at the invitation of the Classical Ballet Concert Group of Ottawa, which has been taking part each year since the festival was inaugurated.

More than 300 dancers are expected to perform in the best ballets of 14 companies. Mrs. Thistle visited them for preliminary adjudication.

Among the 14 are two Canadian groups—the Canadian Junior Ballet Company of Toronto under direction of Diane Jablokova-Vorpe, and the Classical Ballet Concert Group of Ottawa directed by Nesta Toumine.

Other groups taking part are from Dayton and Cleveland, Ohio, Erie, Bethlehem and Scranton, Pa., Schenectady, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Washington, Boston and Providence, R.I.

ADJUDICATES BALLET FESTIVAL — Lauretta Thistle, ballet critic of the Ottawa Citizen, will adjudicate the sixth Northeast Regional Ballet Festival of the United States which will be held in Ottawa April 21-26. More than 300 dancers are expected to attend the three-day event. (CP Photo)

SEEKS FRESHNESS

Mrs. Thistle, a native of Marigomish, N.S., and graduate of Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., has had a lifelong interest in ballet and has studied under a number of teachers.

She contributed the chapter on ballet in Canada to the Ballet Annual and Year Book published by Adam and Charles Black of London.

"What I am looking for is freshness in choreographic ideas," she says.

She plans to look for talented dancers, "but dancers cannot do anything unless provided with the material to work with, and originality and ingenuity are more precious than gold."

The festival will be a teaching one rather than a competitive gathering. It will include workshops, symposiums and master classes. Three evening performances and a Saturday matinee are to be staged for the public.

The festival association is composed of 20 companies in the northeastern U.S., a region stretching as far as Indiana on the west and the Mason-Dixon line on the south.

The Ottawa group first took part in the festival as a guest but its success resulted in an invitation to become a permanent member in 1960. This will be the first time the Toronto group has participated.

Essay on Bridges Heightens Appreciation of Engineering

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There are collectors of all sorts of things including coins, antiques and stamps. But Andrew Rooney, a CBS producer and writer, obviously collects on a grand scale —doors and bridges.

Last season his brief but delightful study of doors television show must have made a lot of people. And his 90-minute on Bridges Monday night will heighten appreciation of manmade spans, great and small.

The half hour special started with the ancient Romans arched bridges which have endured for more than 2,000 years.

Explaining in simple terms the engineering principles involved, he led us on to beam bridges, truss bridges, cantilevered bridges, draw bridges, swing bridges and suspension bridges.

The camera journey took us from the Rhine to the Hudson to the Pacific Coast and many points between. We saw lofty and handsome bridges which illustrated his own feelings about their "unembellished beauty." It was a lovely little program.

CBS apparently will follow ABC's Peyton Place lead by starting an evening soap opera in the next three or four months. Plans are to take the character of Lisa Hughes from the network's As the World Turns, the most popular show in daytime TV, and build a new two - a - week evening show around her.

NBC will be rejuggling its day-time schedules March 29. Say When, a panel game, will disappear, but another panel show, Call My Bluff, will replace it.

Beautiful Italian Actress Dreams Only of Working

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Once upon a time in Hollywood's glamorous long ago, it was the dream of most European performers to go to America movies and live beside a swimming pool.

Times change. Witness Italy's beautiful Virna Lisi. Did she harbor visions as a young actress of conquering Hollywood?

"No," she replied. "I never thought about it at all."

Miss Lisi went on to explain: "To me, working is everything. When I go for a week without working or preparing to work, I am very unhappy. In Europe I can make five or six pictures a year. I like that.

"But what would I be doing if I stayed here? I would probably make only one picture, maybe two pictures a year. The rest of the time I would go crazy.

As for grand living, Miss Lisi could give a few lessons to Hollywood's big spenders. She has five large houses in Rome, the Italian countryside and mountains. All this hasn't deprived her pocketbook of earnings alone; she is married to Italian industrialist Franco Pesci.

Don't get the impression that Virna downgrades everything about Hollywood. She likes the people, the sunshine, in fact, almost everything—except the movies.

"They tell me Americans make coffee like the Italians," she commented. "I'll be curious. I can drink five, six cups of American coffee and still sleep like a baby. It is not true. Oh, if only I could have a cup of good Roma coffee—"

Tonight — Regular monthly meeting of Belleville and District Field and Game Club, at Club Cabin, 8.00 p.m.

At the Park

NOW SHOWING

Jacques-Yves Cousteau is a Captain in the French Navy. He also is an author, a scientist, an inventor. He also is the winner of an Academy Award, as one of the world's greatest moviemakers.

Currently, at the Park Theatre, there is "Jacques-Yves Cousteau's World Without Sun", a breathtaking depiction in color of Cousteau's undersea community where oceanauts lived and worked for a month without once coming to the surface. Cousteau's first film, the Academy Award-winning "The Silent World", was concerned only with underwater life—the fish world, as seen and studied by aqualunged divers. The current Columbia Pictures release is a natural follow-up; it shows some of the same divers actually living beneath the Red Sea.

On the same program in Color or "Good Neighbor Sam", stars Jack Lemmon and Romy Schneider. One show starts at 7.15 p.m. "Good Neighbor Sam" at 7.20 p.m. and "World Without Sun" at 9.40 p.m.

Jack Kent Cooke Thrives in L. A.

LOS ANGELES (CP-AP) — Jack Kent Cooke, onetime power in Toronto's broadcasting, publishing and sports world, is getting into high gear in California.

Two years after his surprise withdrawal from the Canadian business scene, Cooke is deeply involved in community antenna television systems.

As sole owner of Jack Kent Cooke, Inc., he already controls American Cablevision Company, which grossed $18,000,000 in community antenna systems.

He says American Cablevision, formed about five months ago, is the biggest privately-owned system of its kind in the world. And he adds that he intends to make it the largest in the world, public or private.

He also controls Cooke Publishing Company, set up to run "daily newspapers and other publishing properties" that he plans to buy.

Cooke, 52, was born in Hamilton and went to Central Collegiate in Toronto. He was married in 1939 to the former Barbara Jean Carnegie, and they have two sons, Ralph and Kent.

IS U.S. CITIZEN

His business interests were based in Great Britain until 1962, when he became an American citizen by special act of Congress.

He moved to Beverly Hills, he said, "because I like the country, the climate, the people, the economy and its large potential."

Cooke said American Cablevision owns facilities in 14 cities, serving more than 42,000 subscribers.

In October, 1964, the company purchased five systems, located in Laguna Beach, Calif., Barstow, Calif., Palestine, Tex., Graham, Tex., and Keene, N.H.

In November, the corporation purchased two systems in Winona, Minn., and La Crosse, Wis. A month later the corporation announced acquisition of two systems in Lewiston, Idaho, and Clarkston, Wash.

The corporation's latest acquisition was Wentronics Inc., which owned community antenna systems in Casper, Wyo., Perryton, Tex., Moab, Utah, Gallup, N.M., Independence, Kansas, and Berlin and Ocean City, Md.

Cooke said American Cablevision has also entered into an agreement with the Trousdale Construction Company to construct, maintain and operate a community antenna system to serve the exclusive Trousdale Estates area near Los Angeles. There are approximately 400 subscribers in the area.

American Cablevision now employs more than 700 persons in administration, management, technical work, engineering and accounting, Cooke said.

Community television installed in metropolitan fringe or rural areas where television signals are either weak or not received at all. They involve facilities to pick up the signals, amplify them and transmit them by wire to the receiving sets of subscribers.

A monthly fee, from $3 to $8, is usually charged for receiving the signals.

Subscribers often benefit from use of the cable even if television reception is good. Sometimes the cable allows subscribers to get all channels, including some out of range of normal antennas. It can also be used for closed-circuit transmission of programmes other viewers can't get.

Community television antenna fans believe the systems have a great future, and predict such services will be introduced in most cities of the United States.

Opponents fear the wide variety of programs available over the community systems would tend to drive local stations out of business.

JUDY GETS FLOWERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was presented with a giant floral valentine made up of 200 white and red carnations Monday afternoon. Miss LaMarsh, who has represented the constituency of Niagara Falls since 1960, was named "our favorite Valentine" by the Greater Niagara Development Committee.

Three Arrested As Police Break Heroin Ring

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police hope they have severed a west coast heroin-supply line with the weekend arrests of two men here and another man in California.

Heroin worth $100,000 on the underworld market was seized in California.

One of two raids here Friday night turned up a 30-foot power cruiser in suburban North Vancouver that contained equipment for "capping up" capsules of narcotics.

Nicholas Alexander Karpowich, 28, was charged with possession of narcotics and Douglas Kelly, 28, was charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking. Both are from Vancouver.

Travis was arrested as he returned to his light plane at Yuba City Airport. Police found bulk heroin under the plane's floorboard and charged Travis on several counts of drug possession.

Police said the 18 ounces of heroin seized in Yuba City were bought for about $200 an ounce in Mexico, could be sold to street pushers for about $72,000 and retailed to addicts for more than $100,000.

The price for a capsule of heroin is expected to jump to $20 from $15 because of the seizure.

Income Tax Explained

DEPENDANTS EXEMPTIONS (Children)

The basic exemption for children is $300 for those under 16 years and $350 for those over 16 and up to 21 years. At first appearance this would appear to provide no difficulty but numerous letters are received each year regarding claims under certain sets of circumstances.

A child born in Canada and living in Canada on December 31 of the taxation year cannot be the subject of more than $300, because the child is qualified for family allowance regardless of age and that no allowance was received. However, if the taxpayer is supporting his child and the child has a permanent residence in another country, then $350 may be claimed as the child would not be qualified for family allowance.

No claim may be claimed for a child under 16 who became deceased at any time in the taxation year. There would apply even if the child died late in December and family allowance was applied for the succeeding year.

There is no claim at all for still-born children. The child concerned must have been living to be qualified for the exemption. In cases where a child died shortly after birth, a taxpayer should attach a note from the doctor in attendance stating that the child actually breathed. In all cases like this the exemption is $350. Funeral expenses are not deductible.

Children of immigrants who have taken residence in Canada during the taxation year and whose parents are in receipt of family assistance are treated just as if they were qualified for family allowance. However, in the first year of residence, if it is to the taxpayers advantage he may claim such children for $350 if he adds the amount of family assistance received to his tax payable under "tax adjustments."

For a personal reply, enclose self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: Our baby died within an hour of birth. Can I claim any exemption?

ANSWER: Yes. Claim $350.

QUESTION 2: My son age 14 is now attending school in England. He will be there for three years. Can I claim $350 for him plus his school expenses?

ANSWER: You may claim $350 exemption but nothing at all for his expenses.

Stirling

CARD PARTY

STIRLING — Last Thursday evening Stirling I.O.O.F., No. 324, sponsored a euchre party in the hall on Charlotte Street, under the direction of Noble Grand Glenn Clarke. There were 11 tables in play. Four of the prizes were donated by Brother Noble Grand Clarke, Gen Carlisle, Don Walker and Noble Grand Clarke. The winners were: Ladies, Mrs. Earl Fox; Mrs. Claude Tucker; men's, Kenneth Mumby, Dennis Bronson and social prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bedford who observed their 50th wedding anniversary and St. Valentine's Day. Two birthday cakes were given, to Mrs. Ray Rose and Mr. John Kane. An amount of $26 of the proceeds will be given to the Eye Foundation Research project.

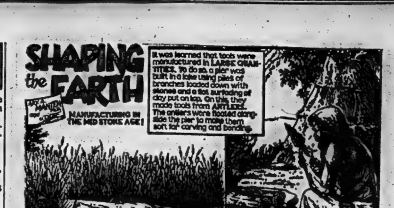
Mr. Donald Tucker has been appointed caretaker for the village of Stirling and Frankford, and three townships, Rawdon, Sidney and Murray. Mr. Tucker plans to construct an animal shelter at Stirling which will conform to the Humane Society regulations. He hopes to receive other appointments in nearby areas and thus be able to carry on his work on a larger scale.

Mrs. John Grills of the Carmel-Glen Ross area was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by ambulance on Wednesday following a heart seizure.

Mrs. Jack Weatherall was taken to Kingston General Hospital by ambulance last Thursday, and Mr. Albert Fraser, John Street, was taken by ambulance to the Belleville General Hospital.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bedford entertained 12 friends from Campbellford, also their daughter, Mrs. George Striker, and Mr. Striker of Frankford. Four tables of euchre were enjoyed, followed by prizes and refreshments.

ATTEND MEETING



Those from Stirling Agricultural Fair Board who attended the district meeting held on Thursday in Belleville, included the president and Mrs. Ivan Sarles, district officer Clarence Fitchett and Mrs. Fitchett, president of Stirling Ladies' Division, Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Messrs. Lyle McLaughlan, Mac Sharp, Glenn Bush and Miss Gena Spry.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McMurray, Gore Street, quietly observed their 54th wedding anniversary on February 11th.

Mr. Roy Tucker is convalescing at his home following a sojourn in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray were guests at a graduation dinner and dance in the King Edward Sheraton Hotel, Toronto, in honor of their son-in-law, Mr. William E. Bailey of Port Perry, who was one of the graduates of the Certified General Accountants' Association of Ontario.

Mr. Earl Fox Jr., Past Grand Master of the IOOF of Ontario, was recently honored with a gold award by the Canadian Red Cross Society. Since this organization began keeping a record of voluntary blood donations Mr. Fox has a total of over 50. Previous to that throughout the years when no records were kept he has contributed almost 50 more.

Zorro Is Cuban Hero

El Zorro, the legendary masked defender of the poor.

Little masked 'and capped Zorros, black z-marked capes swirling behind them and swords brandished high, rush through the streets of Havana on Sundays and holidays challenging any and every passerby.

They tote swear by him, comic strips are full of him and the television devotes a daily half-hour program to his exploits.

The cult has grown to such a point that a "national El Zorro" and his six companions will be elected for this year's spring carnival from among Cuba's 250,000 primary schoolchildren.

New Zealand Navy Is Badly Equipped

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — Startling discoveries during a refit of the aging New Zealand frigate Rotoiti have served to highlight the critical state of the Royal New Zealand Navy.

The periodical refit of the Rotoiti disclosed that the hull of the warship had deteriorated seriously. Extended visits to Australia and the Pacific islands have been cancelled. The frigate, which is used mainly for training naval ratings, has gone to sea on trials, but for the time being has been restricted to coastal waters.

Hull repairs would probably be expensive. The fate of the warship is to be considered by the naval board, but the expectation is that she will be withdrawn from service about the end of the year.

The Rotoiti is by no means the only New Zealand warship near the end of her useful life. In fact of the navy's 13 ships, six—two frigates and four minesweepers—in reserve and are not likely to return to an active role.

SEVEN REMAIN

That leaves seven vessels in active commission, including the frigate Hawea, the frigate Pukaki, also is nearing the end of her useful life. Both are Loch class frigates, commissioned in most purposes.

The flagship, the cruiser Royalist, also is near the end of her service and is expected to be withdrawn from commission in 1966.

The only two thoroughly modern warships now in service are the frigates Otago and Taranaki, built to modern standards and air conditioned for tropical operations. A third modern frigate, the Wellington, is nearing completion in Britain.

But naval authorities claim that even when she becomes available, New Zealand will be ill-equipped to contribute to joint defence in the Pacific area.

Under existing regional defence arrangements New Zealand maintains one warship, in rotation, attached to the British Far East Fleet, based on Singapore. This does not leave any formidable strength available for defence tasks nearer home.

Officially the naval re-equipment program calls for a fleet of six modern frigates, but when the others will be ordered and built has not so far been decided.

Some Indians Believe Former Nationalist Leader Is Alive

Subhas Chandra Bose, former president of the Congress Party for many years and close coworker of Gandhi and Nehru, died in a plane crash in 1945 on his way from Singapore to Tokyo. Bose commanded the war-time Indian National army which unsuccessfully fought the British forces along the Indian-Burma frontier for two years.

His ashes are kept in Tokyo's Renkoji Temple and all Indians visiting Japan worship at the shrine. The Indian government, all the political parties and the common people regard him as a national hero.

But the Indian government has been unable to proceed with plans for bringing his ashes to India to be enshrined in a national memorial. It cannot even erect a statue in his honor. The postal department has been assailed by opposition parties for issuing a commemorative stamp in his memory.

The reason: Some influential politicians and many Bose admirers think that the nationalist was killed in the Formosa plane crash was not their hero and that Bose is not only alive but is in India, waiting for the "proper moment" to reappear in public.

PROTEST ACCEPTANCE

In Calcutta, Bose's home town, there have been a number of agitations to protest "slanderous" acts of the governments of the report of his death.

The central government in New Delhi and the provincial government in Calcutta have repeatedly assured the people that Bose is no longer alive and have put forward concrete evidence of his death. But this has only angered the Subhaswadi Janata or "People for Bose Movement."

Some years ago, the Nehru government set up a high-level committee to investigate the Bose mystery. After visiting a number of cities in Southeast Asia and recording evidence, the committee categorically reported that Bose died in a Taipei hospital on the night of Aug. 18, 1945, and a recognized Hindu priest cremated and brought to India.

The ashes were quietened the People for Bose Movement for a while but not for long. Now, they have successfully launched on the ground that Bose is living in a Hindu ashram in Uttar Pradesh near Calcutta as a recluse and that government should appoint a committee to persuade him to emerge from his seclusion.

MODIFIES STATEMENTS

The follower of Bose visited the monastery and reported that the hermit-sadhu was not the famous Bose. He definitely not his famous uncle. Following an argument his name was changed and he has modified his statement. He now says: "The monk may or may not be the real Bose but I never be sure about such things."

The turbulent Socialist Party leader, Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia, has threatened to launch a country-wide mass struggle if Prime Minister Shastri does not himself go to the monastery and find out the truth about the monk.

But Shastri says that he and the government are "absolutely convinced" that Bose is not alive.

Prof. Humayun Kabir, the minister of Petroleum and a great admirer of Bose, thinks that the People for Bose movement is a political attempt to exploit the popular sentiment for the great leader to embarrass the government.

Income Tax Explained

WORKING WIVES

A great number of inquiries are received each year from husbands whose wives earn over $1250, as to whether they cannot claim $1000 exemption on another dependant. Their argument being that as the wife's income is such that they are taxed as a single person, they should be allowed an $1000 as an unmarried person is permitted to make.

A married person residing with their spouse is not permitted to claim the equivalent to a married, that is $1,000 on any other dependant he or she may support. This is laid down in Section 26 (2) of the Income Tax Act when a wife earns over $1250 she is taxed by deducting her income from $1250 and claiming an exemption of the difference. A wife is allowed to earn up to $250 before it reduces the $1000 normally allowed for a wife and under no circumstances may more than $1000 be allowed. Legislation when a wife is 65 years of age or over the husband will try to claim the additional $500 exemption but is not allowable as the additional $500 exemption for being over 65 applies to the taxpayer and is not to any dependant he may support.

For income tax purposes, it is the net income of the wife. If her income is from rentals of a business, as much applies is the net after her allowable expenses have been deducted.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: My wife earned $1,500. Have I any exemption for her?

ANSWER: Yes. Deduct this $1250 from this and claim $250.

QUESTION 2: My wife did not earn enough to be taxable. Can I include her as dependant on my return?

ANSWER: No. She must file a return in her own name and the tax deductions will be refunded to her.

Canadian Sea Dog Put Bite on HMS Rodney!

HALIFAX (CP) — Even the grim business of shepherding Second World War convoys across the Atlantic had its lighter moments, says former commander George Hay Stephen, there was the time he threatened to open fire on one of Britain's largest battleships.

Cmdr. Stephen, 60, otherwise known to countless navy men as Uncle George, retired last fall, but his memories of wartime seagoing days are vivid.

He lives with his wife in a remodelled house at Ferguson's Cove, about five miles from here, filled with curios and reminders of life at sea, and decorated by his own handiwork.

Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1904, he was brought to Canada in 1918. Following his family's marine tradition, he went to sea in 1920 in a merchant ship. He progressed upward to master's foreign-going certificate and along the way became a naval reservist.

When war broke out in 1939 he was called to naval service and remained constantly on active duty until the end of hostilities.

Mostly he sailed with the mid-ocean escort group based at St. John's, Nfld., escorting merchantmen across the pre-dawn North Atlantic. But on escort captain, he slept with his clothes on within reach of the bridge.

DEMANDED REPLY

It was while in command of the Mayflower that he challenged the Rodney, a powerful capital ship seen one day by his convoy in the wake of reports that German surface raiders were in the area.

Twice the Aldis lamp on Mayflower's bridge asked the approaching ship to identify itself. There was no reply and Uncle George ordered the signal threatening to open fire unless there was an immediate answer.

The acknowledgement winked back by Rodney ended with "Carry on, Mayflower, a very gallant little ship." The tale told later in the famous Crow's Nest in St. John's became a part of Canadian naval lore.

Out on the Atlantic the warm glow spread by sailing in the Crow's Nest faded before the threat of ice. Uncle George's convoys ranged round their flocks of ships as did echoes ringing the alarm for trace of the hidden menace.

Uncle George's submarine tally at war's end was three kills and a probable. He saved some German survivors, was obliged to leave others to drown when there was a chance his own ship would be torpedoed.

"We didn't like to leave the rescued Germans at all and they were landed at Halifax blindfolded," he said.

RESCUE SHIPS SPARED

His worst memory of the war was the torpedoing of a rescue ship. In the latter years a ship with special medical facilities, doctors and nurses, would accompany convoys. "The Germans were not all bad," he said.

This particular ship had just picked up survivors from another torpedoed convoy and she was hit. Most were lost.

One of Cmdr. Stephen's kills came about by a lucky chance when he was captain of the St. Laurent. He had left the head of the convoy and coming up again saw abead a U-boat following the merchantmen on the surface.

The submarine dived as soon as he spotted the St. Laurent coming up behind him. The German frantically zig-zagged and the St. Laurent lost contact.

Picked up again, the U-boat was forced to the surface by depth charges. The first shot from St. Laurent's forward gun hit him in the conning tower but the sub kept going full speed ahead on the surface at 19 knots. St. Laurent overtook and passed him at 24, blazing away with all guns and dropping depth charges close to the enemy.

Cmdr. George said he circled once, came back and picked up one living survivor from the German craft.

ARRIVED INTACT

He finished the war as the most decorated junior reserve officer, including one OBE and two DSC. He was also mentioned in dispatches.

What was probably his most memorable convoy ended in May 1940 which started as a few ships at New York and Boston and consisted of 187 vessels by the time it paked Cape Race.

Cmdr. Stephen was senior officer of the escort group for the 10 - mile - square convoy. This vast supply of food and material reached Britain and Russia without the loss of a single ship.

"It broke the back of the war," he said.

After 1946 Cmdr. Stephen was

Massey Workers Have Agreed On Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for Massey - Ferguson Limited and the United Auto Workers (CLC) reached agreement Monday night on a contract affecting 5,000 employees on strike in Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock.

Terms of the settlement will be submitted to the union membership as soon as meetings can be arranged, said A. G. Dennis, associate director of conciliation services for the Ontario labor department.

No details will be released until members ratify the terms, he said.

The workers have been on strike since Feb. 8.

In an interview later, a union spokesman said ratification meetings will be held Wednesday and Thursday evening. Negotiators were to spend Monday night and today clearing up final details of the agreement.

The union went on strike at midnight to back its demands for a 30-cent hourly wage increase similar to UAW agreements with Ford Motor Company and General Motors of Canada.

The company and union bargained until Feb. 9 when talks broke off over a dispute on the necessary basis of a contract offer by the company.

Hanged 85 Years Ago

Australian Jesse James Is Still Controversial

Melbourne (CP)—The old, old controversy about Ned Kelly has surfaced again in Australia.

Ned, leader of a gang of bush-rangers (outlaws) who defied capture by hundreds of police troopers in the 1870s, is to Australians what Jesse James is to North Americans — only more so.

He's been dead—hanged for murder—85 years, but the legend of Ned Kelly is still fresh enough for a flash of passion when the name is mentioned in some parts of the country.

Hero or scoundrel? Martyr or murderer?

Whichever he was, Ned Kelly matched a place second to none in Australian folklore. He's been the subject of innumerable books, magazine articles and films.

Songs, poems and even ballets have been written about him, and an exhibition of Ned Kelly paintings by famed Australian artist Sidney Nolan worth $75,000 has been hung in London, Paris and New York.

In his final showdown with police at the township of Glenrowan in northeast Victoria, Kelly wore a helmet and armor fashioned from quarter - inch steel. The breast-plate and helmet were dented by 19 bullets before police brought him down with shots in the legs.

STARTS CONTROVERSY

Kelly's armor, and that of other members of his gang, has touched off the latest controversy.

Recently, Melbourne's institute of applied science relegated the armor and other Kelly relics to a basement. "Why should we revere a convicted murderer?" asked Assistant Director F. J. Kendall—and he might have known he was starting something.

The relics were replaced by an exhibition of calculating devices and electronic computers.

In no time at all, Kendall's telephone started ringing and newspapers started getting letters and feature writers started reaching for their typewriters.

Thirty different organizations and private citizens wrote asking if they could have Ned's armor.

Now the museum has handed the exhibit over to the state library for its historical collection.

Victoria, then still a separate colony, was in its pioneering days when the Kelly gang was at large. There were four of them, Ned, the leader, his brother Dan and two friends.

WILL ARGUE

You'll get an argument anytime about where the rights and wrongs were in the incidents which led to the gang taking to the bush as outlaws. Some say they were victimized by corrupt policemen, others that they were horse thieves and hoodlums. At any rate, the Kellys had had brushes with the law long before they took to the bush. Both had served prison terms.

For two years the gang hid out in the bush, being cared for by supporters and making more and more audacious raids.

Soon their name was a byword throughout the land. They were held in awe and fear by law-abiding people. At a place called Stringybark Creek, a posse sent to ambush the Kellys was ambushed itself. When the gunsmoke cleared three of the four troopers lay dead and the fourth escaped wounded into the bush.

Outraged officials demanded more action and even bigger search parties were sent out. But the Kellys played cat and mouse with them, always being a jump ahead. Their sympathizers, and they had many, said the Kellys shot only in self-defence at Stringybark Creek, and that the police had fired on them first.

ROB BANK

The gang crossed the border into New South Wales, and took over the Township of Jerilderie. They locked up the townspeople in the local hotel, leisurely cleaned out the bank and rode away.

Other holdups followed. The Kellys led a charmed life, mocking the police.

The showdown came in June, 1880 at Glenrowan when the gang captured most of the townspeople and held them prisoner in the hotel while they waited for a trainload of troopers travelling from Melbourne in pursuit of the Kellys. The gang intended to ambush the train, having torn up part of the track.

A schoolteacher escaped from the hotel, stopped the train before it reached the obstruction and the troopers and their horses were unloaded.

Then began the Battle of Glenrowan. The Kellys, holed up in the hotel, released their prisoners and made their last stand, exchanging shots with the police who had surrounded the building. Finally it was set on fire.

Ned escaped. He reached his horse tethered in the bush, but came back, walking among the troopers' rifles and firing a revolver (his left hand was wounded) while bullets pinged off his armored breast.

Eventually he was shot down, wounded in the legs.

He was hanged Nov. 11, 1880.

The three remaining members of the gang were believed to have been killed in the fighting or burned to death in the hotel.

Ned Kelly left something which will outlive most of the stories about him. An Australian who spoke with courage and tenacity in a man invariably says, "He's game as Ned Kelly."

Centennial Is Poser for Centennial

CENTENNIAL, N.S. (CP)—How will Canada's centennial be celebrated in Centennial?

This little Cape Breton village of 75 people hasn't the money to undertake an elaborate program by itself. But its name has caught the eye of officials concerned with plans for Centennial Year in 1967 and residents are hoping they'll be cut in for a share of the $1,500,000,000 to be spent on centennial projects.

Centennial, in Inverness County (it doesn't appear on the Nova Scotia Travel Bureau's highway map), was once a bustling little spot with a church, some stores and a prosperous economy. The church is gone now and the quiet life isn't interrupted by the ringing of the telephone — there aren't any.

Ant MacDonald, public relations director of the Canadian Centennial Commission, came here last fall to see if there was some inexpensive way Centennial could celebrate its centennial.

Bill MacEachern, publicity director for the Liberal party, proposed a park near the community which is surrounded by some of Nova Scotia's most impressive scenery.

Another suggestion was for a new post office but the size of Centennial makes this a questionable proposition.

The federal-provincial cost-sharing program won't help much, either. Ottawa and the province provide a dollar each per capita to match local contributions. This would provide $225, but it won't go far.

'Meet Toronto From Toronto!'

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto of Utah have moved to Toronto and they're prepared for the inevitable confusion.

Lamont F. Toronto, for 12 years Republican secretary of state in Utah, has come here on a three-year assignment for the Mormon Church.

The confusion began as Mr. Toronto, his wife and three of their four children were flying to Toronto.

"The airline clerk couldn't figure out if I was a destination or a person," Mr. Toronto says.

Mrs. Toronto is anticipating trouble when she orders from stores, and the children are prepared to be teased in school.

Mr. Toronto, who headed a real estate and insurance business in Salt Lake City, will receive the use of a house and expenses, but no salary, while serving as head of 10,000 Quebec and Ontario members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

He succeeds Frank H. Pitcher who is moving to Calgary.

The 50 - year - old Mormon, who has acted as an unpaid bishop for his church for 10 years, gets his name from his grandfather, an Italian sailor named Joe Taranto.

The grandfather joined the Mormon church in 1840 and changed his name to Young (after Brigham Young) but, when he married, took back his old name, changing the spelling to Toronto.

Rawdon

RAWDON — A new venture took place on Sunday evening when Mount Pleasant United Church Women sponsored a "Family Night" at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon church hall, under the direction of the newly appointed executive committee.

Invitations for a potluck supper were mailed to all families living in the community. Approximately 70 men, women and children enjoyed a delicious potluck supper. Guests were in attendance from Oshawa, Cambray and Woodville.

Following the meal the new U.C.W. president, Mrs. Harry McAdam, welcomed everyone and extended thanks to the ladies who had given assistance to the event.

Mr. Robert Hoard conducted a singsong of familiar hymns, with Miss Sally McAdam as pianist. At the recent congregational meeting Mr. William McAdam made the presentation of a piano light in memory of his father, the late Earl McAdam. This light was recently installed and used for the first time on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Robert H. Hoard entertained the children in the audience with a Bible flannelgraph story. Kenneth Coogh contributed accordion music. Kathy Sharpe, Debby David, Jill McAdam and Margaret Hoard sang with Sally McAdam as accompanist.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver who has served as pianist and later organist of Mount Pleasant United Church for the past 25 years, was given a special ovation.

Mr. Ross Hoard made the presentation of a piano light, and on behalf of the choir Mrs. Marguerite McMillan made the presentation of costume jewelry for which the recipient expressed thanks.

Mrs. Mac Sharp who has served for several years as assistant, will now take over the duties of organist and Mrs. Weaver will act as assistant.

Mrs. Will McAdam and the president each read articles pertaining to hymn writers and these two special hymns were sung by the audience. The church choir rendered two selections with solos taken by Miss Jean Sharpe and Mrs. Marguerite McMillan.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. James Hoard and who read the Bible lessons, while Mrs. Kenneth Weaver read a story written by a field secretary in the west telling of a Christian family home. Miss Brenda Williams read an article on the same theme.

The pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, spoke briefly and closed the service.

Lady Lansdowne In Hospital After Wounding

PERTH, Scotland (Reuters) Lady Lansdowne, wife of a former British minister of state for colonial affairs, was seriously ill in hospital here Monday following a shooting incident.

Details of the shooting, which happened Friday, were not disclosed.

The Marquess of Lansdowne declined to say anything more than that his wife was in hospital.

Lady Lansdowne, about 45, was rushed to hospital suffering from a body wound. An emergency operation was performed.

Africans Unsure on Correct Name

DOUALA, Cameroon (AP)—Black, African or Negro?

Africa's intellectual circles seem to be divided on what to call themselves.

Bongo, a French - language magazine for Africans, polled dozens of prominent French-speaking Africans and African students. No decisive opinion emerged.

In the French-speaking world, the word "noir" (black) is presently more accepted than "negre" which often has been used as an insult. In recent years, "Africain" has started to forge ahead, particularly in official terminology.

In Bongo's poll, all three terms found partisans and opponents.

"By refusing to be called Negro, a Negro discards his Negro personality," said poet Aime Cesaire. He originated the term "negritude" which stresses Negro traditions and culture.

"I hate to be called a Negro," said a law student in Ivory Coast. "The word has connotations of slavery and inferiority. . ."

"I am black, that's all. Why should I be called Negro?" asked another African student.

PROUD OF TERM

"I am a Negro and I am proud of it," said Ivory Coast's poet Bernard Dadie.

"Unfortunately the word 'negre' has a bad connotation in French," said Senegalese Prof. Amadou Sanh. "I am a Negro, but I don't like to hear it," he added.

"Not only am I a Negro but I strongly feel that this term should be rehabilitated," said Mali's UNESCO delegate, Amadou Amoate Ba. "We should turn this term into a glorious title."

Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, an English-speaking African, has asked that the word "Negro" be banned from a new African encyclopedia being compiled in Ghana.

What Communists Likely To Do Next Big Question

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the partial lull after last week's American strikes at North Viet Nam, the over-riding question has been: What are the Communists likely to do about them?

So far, there has been no concrete answer. And that fact alone may be reassuring to those who feared the attacks would provoke a stiff Chinese reaction.

But the next move is anybody's guess.

Southeast Asia experts at the United Nations, attempting to assess the true intentions of the various governments amid a welter of threats and charges, shy away from firm predictions.

PLAY IT COOL

Some say the Russians so far have tended to "play it cool"—at least pending assessment of the results of Premier Kosygin's 11-day trip to North Viet Nam, China and North Korea.

They point out that the three Communist capitals most directly concerned—Moscow, Peking and Hanoi—are involved in a tricky three-cornered relationship.

They say that the North Vietnamese government of Ho Chi Minh, sometimes called a tool of Peking, is actually playing a balancing act between the two Communist giants.

Ho himself and his foreign minister, Tran Van Dong, are represented as leaning towards Moscow in its ideological struggle with Peking. Other elements of the Hanoi regime lean toward Peking.

Kosygin's trip to Hanoi is thought to have been motivated by fear Russian influence in Hanoi was slipping and that the North Vietnamese might make some move that would lead to fighting on a broader scale in South Viet Nam.

CONFLICT SEEN

Kosygin's action in promising Soviet military aid in the Hanoi-directed guerrilla war against South Viet Nam appears to conflict with this view. But some experts say this was the least the Soviet leader could do under the circumstances to prove loyalty to the rest of the Communist world.

They say the Hanoi government is pivotal in Moscow's campaign to bring more Communist parties into the controversial March 1 meeting in Moscow to prepare for a unity conference.

One expert familiar with Hanoi politics said the North Vietnamese leaders don't like to think of themselves as pawns between the two giants, but rather as a bridge to bring them closer together.

This expert said the North Vietnamese want to maintain their freedom of action and fear Peking moves that may bring massive American attacks on their own country.

But there is no indication yet the North Vietnamese will risk antagonizing Peking by yattending the March 1 meeting.

New Method of Quoting Unlisted Stocks Started

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Traders on the biggest stock market of them all, the over-the-counter market, are adjusting today to a new method of quoting prices.

For 1,300 issues bought and sold throughout the United States but unlisted on any stock exchange, wholesale prices will be quoted instead of retail. (For more than 35,000 other issues traded only regionally or locally, the old rules still apply.)

But there's still a dispute as to who will gain and who lose from the change.

The Securities and Exchange Commission says the new method will give investors a true picture of prices, free of "insiders' quotations or wholesale prices. The retail prices previously quoted were the insiders' or dealers' prices plus an unpublicized commission or markup.

But a sizable segment of the 4,120 over-the-counter dealers who belong to the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., say small-dealers will be forced out of business. They say only the big stock and bond houses will survive, because a big volume of business will let them charge investors the smallest commissions.

WANTED MOVE BANNED

Some of the small dealers tried unsuccessfully last week to get a court order forbidding the association from starting the wholesale quotations Feb. 15.

The new method of quotation is just one of the SEC proposals made a year ago. Already it has secured revisions in the securities law requiring bigger companies whose stocks are traded over the counter to make public disclosures of their financial status, comparable to those required of companies whose stocks are listed on exchanges.

The SEC still has in abeyance a proposal that would end risk-less transactions.' This is the name given to deals where the stock broker, instead of executing a customer's order as an agent, goes into the market and buys the stock himself and then resells it to the customer at a markup, usually well above the normal commission.

SEC proposals also include a demand for full disclosure. This would make a dealer tell his customer what he had paid for any particular stock and the amount of the markup.

FOLLOWED CRASH

The SEC began its study of the bugs over-the-counter market after the big speculative buying there in 1961, which sent many unlisted stocks soaring, only to tumble in the spring of 1962.

In 1962, around 2,500,000,000 shares changed hands in the over-the-counter market for a total of about $29,000,000,000. The market cooled down after the 1962 crash. But, of late, it has regained much of its old activity.

It has lost a number of its star performers, however. The SEC proposals, especially the law requiring fuller disclosure of company business, caused a number of big firms to seek listing on stock exchanges.

Many large companies still remain on the counter, especially banks and insurance companies. It is for these that wholesale price quotations now are available, with the amount of the dealer's commission or markup presumably ascertainable for the asking.

MAN, WOMAN DIE AT RAIL CROSSING

Al Williamson Alleged Author Of 'Phoney' Note

Liberal Says Bennett's 'Image-maker' Writer

VICTORIA (CP)—Albert (Al) Williamson, 60, described as one of Premier-Bennett's "image makers," was named in the British Columbia legislature Tuesday as the man who wrote a "phoney" letter to Ottawa signed, "W. A. C. Bennett."

Naming of the Vancouver public relations man came but a few hours after Quebec Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said in Ottawa he was considering calling Williamson and other witnesses to testify before his federal inquiry.

Harry McKay (L—Fernie), a lawyer, said in the house he was naming Williamson as the author of the letter "with regret", but he had to do so because Attorney-General Robert Bonner would not.

"Everybody in this house knows the author," said Mr. McKay.

"It is Mr. Al Williamson. He is both a man of many parts, a part-time public relations man for Premier Bennett, one of the image makers, a public relations man for Stonehill, a member of the RCMP reserve."

SENT TO DORNAN

The letter in question was sent to Hal Dornan, aide in Prime Minister Pearson's office, who said he had turned it over to the immigration department.

Written on the premier's official stationery, the letter said by Mr. Bonner to involve apparently a bid to get landed-immigrant status for American millionaire Harry Stonehill. Mr. Bennett has said it is a "phoney" not written by him.

DEATH SCENE at James Street level crossing where two Morch Manufacturing Ltd. workers, Mrs. Elizabeth Whalen, 50, and Ronald Berry, 20, were killed when car was struck by CPR freight.

Mrs. E. Whalen, Ronald A. Berry, Crash Victims

Car Struck by Train As They Go to Work

Police today are still probing causes of a grinding train-car crash that took the lives of two co-workers at the gates of their plant.

Instantly killed when an automobile was hit and hurled off a 133-car CPR freight on West Dundas and James streets were Mrs. Elizabeth Whalen, 51, of Corbyville, and 21-year-old Ronald Arthur Berry, 26 Donald Street.

The fatal mishap occurred at 7.23 a.m. minutes after Mrs. Whalen was believed to have picked up the Berry youth with whom she worked at Morch Manufacturing.

The Berry youth was the father of two young children. Mrs. Whalen had an adult son and daughter.

The east-bound freight, packing an 88,000-ton punch — smashed the car broadside as it drove over the crossing toward the Morch yards.

The automobile was hurled close to 150 feet down the track, straddling a wire fence. Both victims were thrown from the wreck.

Mrs. Whalen had worked in the company's plating room for the past 12 years. The Berry youth was a machine shop apprentice.

Fellow-workers of the victims were still arriving at the plant while police and coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott were probing wreckage at the scene.

Mrs. Whalen, said police, left married daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Hughes, of Lancaster, California, and a son, Garry, about 27, resident at home, but presently believed travelling in Western Canada.

It was expected that Dr. Scott would order an inquest later today.

PC Bid To Debate Quashed

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A Conservative bid for a full-scale debate on "allegations and disclosures of widespread corruption . . ." which have disturbed and shocked the public conscience was ruled out of order in the Commons Tuesday.

Instead, the House turned to study of the proposed federal labor code and heard Labor Minister MacEachen outline a plan that would offer relief to industries that contend they will be hurt by the code's rigid hours-of-work provision.

It was the first sitting since the current parliamentary session began a much-needed rest Dec. 16, and the MPs took 9½ hours to clear away the preliminaries and get down to the business of the day, the labor code.

First, a half-hour was spent hearing from Prime Minister Pearson and Yvon Dupuis (Liberal, St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville) about the circumstances that led Mr. Pearson to ask for Mr. Dupuis' resignation as cabinet minister without portfolio.

Most of that time was taken up by a long and involved statement in French by Mr. Dupuis.

Next, it required 40 minutes to clear away the complaints of Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) arising from his arrest on Parliament Hill by RCMP officers Feb. 12. After a long hassle, much of it procedural, the matter was referred to a committee.

Finance Minister Gordon read a long policy statement on bank ownership, some documents were tabled and then the Conservatives produced a motion for a special debate.

Moved by Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) and seconded by Eric Winkler (PC — Grey-Bruce), it requested that the House adjourn "the order of business a matter of urgent public importance, namely the great public unease which has arisen in all parts of Canada as a result of the allegations and disclosures of widespread corruption, marked by the intrusion of undesirable influences into several federal regulatory agencies including that of the prime minister, which have disturbed and disturbed the public conscience and called into question the conduct and public morality of those in authority. . . ."

Speaker Alan Macnaughton heard a round of debate on the matter, then ruled the motion out of order. He said it contained "vague allegations which are in the nature of a charge" and was not a "proper adjournment motion."

Mr. Pearson had dealt briefly with the motion, noting that its general terms and "extravagant

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon's newly-announced limitations on ownership of chartered bank shares by provincial corporations or the big corporations are being assessed here more for their political than their financial implications.

Albania Stuns UN Assembly With Move to Compel Vote

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Albania, closest ally of Communist China, stunned the United Nations Tuesday by demanding an immediate end of the East-West truce in the peace-keeping crisis.

Albanian delegate Halim Budo called for the General Assembly to return to its normal business. In effect, he was forcing an immediate decision on whether the Soviet Union, France and 11 other countries should lose their assembly votes for failure to pay peace-keeping assessments.

The surprise action threw the assembly into confusion, confronting it with the prospect of a Soviet - American showdown despite months of seemingly successful efforts to avoid one.

Budo demanded an immediate roll-call on his motion, which would have ended a novote truce, and triggered an American challenge to the voting rights of the 13 debtor countries.

His effort was stalled by a procedural tangle that ended with President Alex Quaison-Sackey declaring an adjournment even while Budo was trying to regain the floor.

But the possibility remained that the Albanians could force a vote when the assembly reconvenes Thursday afternoon.

Dynamite Vatican Wall Door

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A pound of dynamite exploded early today against a wooden door in the Vatican wall and 100 yards from the apartment where Pope Paul was sleeping.

Police sought to determine whether the explosion was linked with Communist protests against the banning of the controversial play The Deputy.

Vatican sources said the blast undoubtedly wakened the Pope. Although no one was injured, the blast destroyed part of the

PM Gives Report on Dupuis

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAW A(CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Tuesday that a "preliminary report" about a police investigation of Yvon Dupuis prompted him to call on the minister with out portfolio to resign from the cabinet Jan. 30.

Mr. Pearson said he referred the report to Quebec Attorney-General Claude Wagner "in the course of the past week."

He gave no hint of the contents of the report and opposition MPs immediately demanded a parliamentary inquiry into all scandal charges against the government.

Mr. Dupuis denied published reports that he accepted a $10,000 "gift" in 1961 from a group in his riding of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville that was seeking a provincial franchise for a racetrack with pari - mutuel betting.

He said he made representations for the racetrack promoters while he was minister but denied he had sanctioned himself from the race-track promoters in February, 1962, after it became apparent the racetrack would be moved outside his riding.

Mr. Dupuis charged that Rene Hebert, whom he called a long-time fund raiser for the provincial Liberal party, had signed an agreement in 1962 to acquire for nothing 10 per cent of the shares of the proposed racetrack company for himself (Hebert) and his associates.

"I have here a copy of that mutual agreement signed before me on Dec. 5, 1962, in the office of Mr. Hebert, who said he represented the fund raisers of the provincial Liberal party," Mr. Dupuis added in French.

He read the letter into the record and tabled it.

Mr. Pearson rose soon after the Commons reassembled after a two-month recess and listed

Police Say Denis Made Story Change

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP inspector Jean-Paul Drapeau testified today at the Dorion inquiry that Raymond Denis changed his story to police about his connection with the Lucien Rivard affair.

Insp. Drapeau gave several examples of changes between replies given him by Denis Aug. 19 at their first interview and replies five days later at their second three-hour interview.

Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister, is accused by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne of offering him a $20,000 bribe to agree to bail for Rivard, wanted in the United States on narcotics conspiracy charges.

Insp. Drapeau, chief investigator into the allegations of attempted bribery, said Denis at first told him he had never dis-

Montreal TV Blonde Accused of Running Explosives For U.S. Negro Racial Fanatics Planning Dynamiting

NEW YORK (AP)—Raymond Wood, 31-year-old Negro who 10 months ago was just a rookie policeman, plunged coolly into a cloak-and-dagger role to unravel a plot in which three men and a striking Canadian blonde from Montreal allegedly planned to blow up the Statue of Liberty, Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Three American Negroes, described as pro-Castro and pro-Communist Chinese racial fanatics, and Michelle Duclos, a Quebec separatist, were seized Tuesday in a lightning roundup by police and the FBI after Wood had posed as a secret investigation to smash the plot.

Wood was hustled to a police station along with one of the alleged plotters as he was helping transfer 20 sticks of dynamite from a vacant lot in a quiet residential section of the Bronx to an automobile. Placed on the alert by Wood, police blanketed the area.

The six - foot - one inch, 201-pound Wood, who is single, for three months infiltrated a Negro extremist organization known as the Black Liberation Front at the risk of his life.

Wood said only "thank you" when Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, at a press conference, handed Wood an immediate promotion—the gold shield of detective.

Wood, as an undercover agent for the police department's bureau of special services, made his initial "hot" contact in a New York bar last December. It was a cat-and-mouse game as he attended meetings, walked picket lines until he was recognized as one of "them," and listened stolidly as he was told about the dynamite plots.

Those arrested were Robert S. Collier, 28; Walter A. Bowe, 27; Khaleel S. Sayyed, 22, and Miss Duclos, 28, television commentator and member of a political party that advocates separation of French - speaking Quebec from the rest of Canada.

Collier, who received an other-than-honorable discharge from military service after slashing a man during a fight in England in 1956, was said originally to have broached plans for three-man teams to destroy U.S. installations.

Jan. 19, Commissioner Murphy said, it was Bowe who espoused the idea of blowing up the Statue of Liberty.

After visiting the statue in New York harbor, Bowe bought a souvenir of it and was quoted as saying, "This is so easy we should split up and knock out the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia."

Said Murphy: "They also had a discussion concerning a simultaneous destruction of the Washington Monument, the Liberty Bell and the Statue of Liberty," adding: "We knew they have made contacts in other cities. We have no idea how many people might be involved."

Monday, Murphy said, Royal Canadian Mounted Police tipped that Miss Duclos had driven across the Canadian-New York border in a car containing the dynamite and blasting caps. A police radio car took up the trail on the U.S. side and followed her to a parking lot in the Riverdale section of the Bronx, an area of luxury apartments, and private homes.

About 3:15 a.m., Murphy said, Wood met Miss Duclos at a rendesvous. About 8 a.m., Wood and Collier drove to the lot and started to transfer dynamite, fuse and caps when police closed in.

"That is the end of it," Murphy said.

Bowe was picked up by FBI agents at his home in Manhattan. City detectives seized Sayyed in his father's Brooklyn delicatessen, and Miss Duclos was picked up as she left a building in Manhattan.

Wood was always in danger, a police official said, but never more so than when he was taken to Quebec with the plotters to buy dynamite there.

"He never even got a chance to tell us he was leaving the country," this official said. "We didn't know where he was. He couldn't risk contacting us. If he had been killed, we would not have known it.

"He was completely on his own with the most fanatic under circle of the conspiracy mob."

Miss Duclos, according to a United Nations official, tried to get employment at the UN early last month. He said she sought a post as a reader of U.S. documentary broadcasts in French, but apparently failed tests given her.

The tall blonde, wearing a black dress and coat, protested when she was held in $100,000 bail by U.S. Commissioner

"I am an honorable person," she said. "I have to work, sir. I am a reporter. I can't find that much bail."

In Montreal, Pierre Bourgault, president of Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, said Miss Duclos began working with his separatist organization as a volunteer last May when she became a member.

Bourgault said he thinks she still is a member in good standing "but we haven't seen her now in three months and we were wondering where she was."

He said she was not generally known in Montreal for her political views but rather as a TV personality.

"But she was devoted to the party and worked very hard for it," he said. "She was a fine member and a solid supporter."

A spokesman for French-language television station CFTM in Montreal said Miss Duclos appeared on a weekly, 15-minute interview program.

She joined CFTM, a private station, in 1961 as an announcer; left after six or seven months, worked in "the artistic field" and then went overseas in 1963, the spokesman said.

She was reported to have visited Europe and Algeria for a few months before returning to Montreal in late summer.

Miss Duclos then returned to CFTM and until recently was appearing on a program called Les Gens Caracteres (Profiles of Personalities), in which prominent personalities from the arts and public life in Montreal were interviewed.

Collier, after his arrest, was quoted as saying he plotted to blow up the American shrines because "I wanted to draw attention to the condition of my race."

Collier was a member of a student delegation that travelled to Cuba in 1964 in defiance of a State Department ban. He is the self-styled leader of the Black Liberation Front.

Both Bowe and Sayyed were held in $50,000 bail each.

Miss Duclos, Bowe and Sayyed all were charged with conspiracy to destroy federal property. Collier currently is charged under state laws with conspiracy and intent to use explosives.

The defendants face a maximum 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine each on the federal charge of conspiring to dynamite government property. On the charge of weapons law violation, a felony, they would get up to seven years in jail and $1,000 fine.

Preview of Global Rockets Given Kiwanis Members

Looking beyond the still-to-come era of supersonic commercial air travel into the future of hypersonic flight, Ernest W. Wakefield of Canadian Pacific, Montreal, gave the Kiwanis Club a verbal preview of global rockets capable of vertical takeoff, at their noon meeting on Tuesday at Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Wakefield said "the engineers studying rocket transport possibilities suggest that cities would be four decks, each containing 3 individual passenger coaches." During a few minutes of the flight, passengers would experience weightlessness but would use their couch belts to prevent floating around in the rocket.

The most distant point on the globe, he continued, "would be reached in 5 minutes." Referring to shorter flights, Mr. Wakefield said that "Honolulu would be 30 minutes from Toronto, and Tokyo about 90 minutes."

Turning to ground transportation, Mr. Wakefield said that it was his opinion that the railways would play the leading role in to-morrow's transportation.

Referring to Bill C-120 which incorporates the major recommendations of the McPherson Royal Commission on Transportation, now before Parliament, he said, "If it is enacted it will constitute the first important step t5 place the railway industry, for the first time in 75 years, in a position where it can compete in a commercial environment. Competition, not regulation, must be relied upon to achieve efficiency in the transportation of To-morrow," he continued.

RAILWAY CAN MOVE TRAFFIC

Referring to the railway's ability to move bulk traffic Mr. Wakefield said "that nothing yet devised or even imagined by man can move as much traffic at one time as a string of cars on a train." The speaker said that it takes 200 truck drivers and 350 trucks to handle the 8,200 ton load of a 100-car freight train, with a comparable crew of five or six men."

Mr. Wakefield referred to the highways of today "as often crowded to capacity and by the 1970's the number of automobiles would be increased to such an extent that the transfer of heavy trucks to rail flat cars, and the movement of new automobiles from factories to destination by multi-level rail cars, would not only make the highways safer for the automobile, but also less costly for governments to maintain."

As future possibilities, the speaker referred to automated trains, oil-fired-gas-turbine and atomic powered locomotives plus additional improvements in freight car equipment, and other inventions.

NO INCREASE EXPECTED

Referring to rail passenger transportation, he said, "that because of the increased use of private automobiles over short distances and the speed and efficiency offered by jet travel we cannot expect any increase in rail passenger transportation in the future years." Expected mental reduced fares while they increased travel, did not produce the revenue results anticipated."

Mr. Wakefield pointed out that the building of Canada's first transcontinental railway, Canadian Pacific, constitutes the sole case in history of the creation of a nation by the construction of a railway." "Canadian Pacific," he said, "still has confidence in the future of Canada and its ability to provide a full range of transportation today, tomorrow and into the future."

March of Dimes Nearly $600 Over Objective

Mrs. Doris Webb, chief Marching Mother for this month's March of Dimes campaign in the Trenton area, reports a grand total of $2,587.94 in the East Hastings area which opened June 1.

Figures available from both city libraries revealed an increase in books and periodicals loaned to library members was 9,502.

SEES TAX CUT

Common sense dictates the time is ripe for a federal tax cut, A. J. Little of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday. He told an interviewer the report of the Economic Council of Canada implied a cut —especially in corporation taxes —is advisable.

OWE MORE MONEY

Canadians owed a total $5,897,000,000 for credit purchases and personal loans outstanding at the end of November, 1964, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday.

W. G. Anderson New Chairman Library Board

The outgoing members of the Belleville public library board meeting last night were told that there is no indication of any great change in the needing tastes of the public."

The annual report noted that an estimated $1,000 books were required to answer requests for information on a variety of subjects. Requests included information on living conditions in the Frobisher Bay area, the rate at which coins are minted in Canada, the rights and duties of voters, the functions of the Ontario Health Unit; the regime for getting a name or location and population of Labrador city. Many sought material on current events, and views of other interesting facts.

In 1964 some 8,339 books were added to the library and 2,941 to the East End and that which opened June 1.

Three Concrete Standards Aid Building Trade

The National Concrete Products Association contributed substantially to the preparation of three standards published last year which are expected to better building standards across the country.

The three standards published by the Canadian Standards Association deal with hollow load-bearing units, hollow non-load bearing units and solid load bearing units, all of which took several years to prepare.

The NCPA standards committee was headed up by Belleville's mayor J. R. Mills, representing Wilson Concrete Products of this city, who at the Association's annual meeting held in Cleveland in January, presented the committee report.

The standards committee also participated in a review of masonry section of the National Building Code and has made several recommendations for inclusion.

As a result of the above C.S.A. standards and representation by the committee, requirements of the Construction Materials Board of the Department of National Defence are expected to be modified.

Basic Salary Changes For Certain Teachers and Principals Are Approved

Increases in basic salaries for teachers' college-graduates and for school principals, and in maximum for teachers with university training and for principals, have been approved by the Belleville Public School Board.

Basic salaries for teachers' college graduates will be $3,300 instead of $3,200, while the basic salary for school principals has been upped by $200.

The maximum salary for teachers with one year university is up $300 to $8,200; for two years university up $400 to $7,000 and for university graduates, up $500 to $7,700.

Maximum rates for public school principals have been increased by $500 with maxima now ranging from $8,100 in the smallest schools to $10,500 in the largest. These amounts include lowances and recognition for degrees.

Public School enrolment in the city's 14 schools at the end of January was given as 5,025 — up 25 from the end of the previous month. Attendance efficiency for January was 94.41 percent.

Trustee F. P. Clarke, Business Assistant J. L. Anderson and Superintendent G. A. Kells reported briefly on attendance at the Quinte Showplace in Education, Toronto. Brief reference was made to displays and addresses, and note was made of the possibility of some changes in the Board's accounting equipment and procedures.

Attendance Officer Bruce Kerr reported referrals of 18 children from the various school principals; all of these children returning to school after visit and counselling. The Board approved a new contract with the Children's Aid Society for continued attendance counselling service for the year 1965.

Superintendent Kells provided trustees with an abbreviated copy of a report from Education Minister Wm. Davis on the teaching of history in Ontario Schools. Explanation was made that the abbreviated version took many of the statements in the report out of context and that this fact should be kept in mind.

The Board approved permanent teachers' contracts for the following members of the staff: Miss Jane Aitchison, Miss Patricia Bradford, Miss Elaine Brownson, Miss Joyce Campion, Miss Brenda Harvey, Mrs. Eleanor Ramshaw, Miss Joanne Krauter, Clyde MacFarlane, Miss Leona Mellow, Don Morton, Miss Susanne Palmer, Mrs. Mavis Rupnow, Clair Rupnow, John Smith, Miss Marilyn Snyder, Ross Walmsley, Mrs. Eleanor Alexander, Mrs. Fay Burnett, Robert Burnett, Miss Marion Gray, Miss Gloria Harrison, Miss Joanne Johnston, Mrs. Barbara Palmateer, Elwood Palmateer and Murray Wood.

Provisional and probationary contract was approved for a further 19 teachers.

REPAIRS APPROVED

Approval was given to a list of payroll, replacement and improvement to buildings and sites prepared by Business Assistant J. L. Anderson, who had completed this work in company with Maintenance Supervisor Mr. W. Wilson. Direction was given that as far as possible each item be completed in 1965 rather than in the 1965 estimates. Included for consideration was a replacement heating system for the Bayside School and replacement of the circulation system for the Queen Mary School.

Superintendent Kells presented the financial statement for the year 1964, together with an analysis of pupil costs in the Belleville Public Schools compared with average pupil costs for the smaller cities in Ontario.

The Board was informed by city council that it does not approve of complete turnover of its membership at one time as has been proposed with the view to hold municipal elections every two years. The board will take no action on the matter until the result of a proposed private Bill has been ascertained.

Minor alterations in the accommodation will have plan and gratuity plan for employees, were approved and a special committee was directed to study and report on the advisability of separating the gratuity plan from sick leave accumulation.

REQUESTS DENIED

Requests of the Royal Canadian Legion to sponsor a public speaking contest, and of the Rotary Club to sponsor a poster contest in the schools, were denied, on the basis that this type of proposal from many and various worthy organizations reaches the Board many times during each school year.

Mr. Walter Elliott, elected by acclamation to the Board in December 1964, advised the Board of his wish to resign his membership in order to serve on the Parks Board. The Board appointed E. Bruce Bishop to complete the unexpired portion of Mr. Elliott's term.

COURSE CONFIRMED

Official announcement has been received confirming the Department of Education Summer Course in Elementary Auxiliary Education to be held by Harry J. Clarke School, July 5 to August 6. It is expected that Gordon E. Morgenson, M.A., principal of the Mansonville School, London, will direct this operation for the Department. Teachers and others are advised that there are incomplete and all inquiries should be held at least until the end of March, when it is expected, the general announcement for Summer Schools will be available.

The Superintendent was instructed to withhold the Board's application for membership in the Public School Trustees' Association of Ontario until satisfactory reply has been received regarding its rate structure. Membership fee for the Belleville Public School Board would appear to have increased from $115. for 1964 to $425. for 1965.

Five Vehicles Involved in One Collision

TRENTON — What started off as a two-car collision turned out to be a driver's nightmare for Martha Fritsie, of the Twin Elms trailer park.

In the beginning Mrs. Fritsie and Murla Grace Finley, 34 Ramsay Street, were involved in a two-car crash on Dundas Street East, just before 5.00 p.m.

Then the Fritzie machine went out of control and mounted a snowbank, sideswiping a car parked on the boulevard belonging to Charles Whitehead, 199 Dundas Street East. Still moving forward it careened across the street into a vacant lot, ramming a sign board before mounting a second snow bank and striking another parked car owned by Clive Mathews of R. R. 2, Trenton. And then as if adding insult to injury the car in its final convulsion hit a sign board, bowled over so it also struck the Mathews' car. Mrs. Fritzie suffered no physical injuries.

Total damage was estimated at $785.

Air Commodore Inspects RCAF Cadet Squadron

TRENTON — Air Commodore Dwight Ross, (Retired) of Ottawa, Kingston, inspected the cadets of 704 RCAF Squadron in the Recreation hall at RCAF South Station Monday night and met later with Louis Knack, president of the Trenton Wing of the RCAF Association, the squadron's sponsoring body, and Leader McCaughey, chairman of the wing's cadet committee to discuss ways and means to expand the membership of the squadron.

Although membership in the squadron has improved in the past few months, there is still room for 15 to 20 boys.

Air Commodore Ross, however, praised the general appearance of the squadron and the work of the sponsoring body.

the cabinet changes announced Friday.

HEARD ALLEGATIONS

The prime minister said "certain evidence" about allegations against Mr. Dupuis was submitted to him in December. The allegations related to "certain transactions" in 1961 in which Mr. Dupuis, then an opposition MP, was said to have participated.

"They (the allegations) were not related to his membership of the House or of the government," Mr. Pearson added.

"I saw the honorable member (Mr. Dupuis) and informed him that the evidence submitted required an investigation. To this he agreed."

The prime minister said he met Mr. Dupuis again Jan. 20 after seeing a preliminary report on the investigation. (As said previously the investigation was handled by the justice department and the RCMP.)

"It appeared to me, as a result of having that preliminary report, that it would be best in all circumstances, and without prejudice the conclusion of the investigation, for the honorable member (Mr. Dupuis) to cease to be a member of the government.

"After discussing the matter with me, Mr. Dupuis submitted his resignation, which was accepted."

SAYS NO MORE

Mr. Pearson said he should not say anything more about the investigation at this time, since it was still in progress and would enable the Quebec attorney-general.

He did not want to prejudice Mr. Dupuis' chances for a by-year to prejudice whatever conclusions the attorney-general of Quebec may reach once the inquiry is completed."

Later the Conservatives sought unsuccessfully to set aside normal Commons business to debate the implications of a parliamentary inquiry into various scandal allegations against government figures.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked whatever Mr. Dupuis was fired by the prime minister or resigned on his own initiative.

Mr. Pearson ducked a direct reply but noted that "he resigned; he wasn't promoted to the Senate." Mr. Pearson said he "deprecated" certain appointments to the Senate that Mr. Diefenbaker made when he was prime minister. He did not elaborate.

CALLED 'ENIGMA'

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's statement did not explain why Mr. Dupuis was forced out of the cabinet. He called Mr. Dupuis' statement was "a complete enigma.'

Mr. Dupuis, 38-year-old music shop owner, said he is the innocent victim of an "odious machination" by a highly-placed political clique to ruin newspapers designed to wreck his reputation and political career.

"I have a clear conscience and I am convinced that the results of the Quebec government will corroborate what I have just said."

He praised Mr. Pearson as "a great prime minister" and said those who link his (Mr. Dupuis') political career is finished don't know him.

Mr. Dupuis quoted at length from articles about him published by Montreal Le Devoir and in French and termed them libellous, yellow, malicious, dishonest and erroneous. He called on the newspaper to print corrections.

QUOTES HEADLINES

He read the following headlines in the two newspapers were lies:

"Yvon Dupuis said to have received gift of $10,000 from a racetrack promoter."

"Dielaviers admits he gave $10,000 to Yvon Dupuis."

"Lizeras (Quebec revenue minister Lizeras) sent the Dupuis file to Favreau (federal justice minister Guy Favreau)."

"RCMP beats Yvon Dupuis to the punch."

Mr. Dupuis said the press reports gave rise to two main questions: Had he received a $10,000 payoff from Roch Desiaurniers, promoter of a racetrack project in St. Luc in his riding?

Had he exerted undue influence to help Mr. Deslauriers obtain a provincial racetrack betting charter?

The answer to both questions was no.

He said he wrote Quebec Premier Jean Lesage in 1961 to support Mr. Deslaurier's application for a charter.

Similar representations had been made by three members of the Quebec legislature, Philodor Ouimet of St. Johns; Laurent Hamel of Iberville and Mr. Bellargeon of Napierville, as well as by Rev. Donatien Lesage, parish priest of St. Luc, and many other leading citizens of the area.

'TOO MANY TRACKS'

In May, 1961, Premier Lesage had replied that he opposed the opening of a new racetrack with betting since there already were too many in Quebec.

Mr. Dupuis said Mr. Lesage changed his mind the following month and asked Highways Minister Bernard Pinard and the late Paul Earl, then Quebec revenue minister, to "look after" the application.

He said he and the racetrack promoters met Mr. Pinard and Mr. Earl later that year and early in 1962 to discuss financing of the project. The promoters said they had $4,000,000 capital.

In February, 1962, he said, Mr. Earl asked Mr. Deslauriers to drop associates named Rasmus and Marcus and Graene Hebert in Montreal, about joining forces with a Mr. Vellieux of Drummondville, who had filed a rival application for a harness racing franchise.

Mr. Dupuis said he advised Mr. Deslauriers against this, since it would mean that the track would be built in another area.

He quoted Mr. Earl as telling him that the Quebec government was ready to award a franchise, provided the St. Luc and Drummondville promoters merged into one company on a 50-50 ownership basis.

SIGNED AGREEMENT

It was then that Mr. Dupuis and Mr. Deslauriers had gone to see Mr. Hebert in Montreal. He said the two other men signed an agreement to form a racetrack company, against his advice since he feared his riding would lose the project.

Mr. Deslauriers, a chirogractor from St. Johns, had asked him to sign the agreement a witness but he had refused to associate himself with such a document.

Mr. Dupuis quoted from the agreement as follows:

"It is understood and agreed that Mr. Rene Hebert will receive for his group 10 per cent of the shares of the above mentioned new company and that the said group and Rene Hebert will not have to disburse any amount to acquire 10 per cent of the shares."

He said the agreement was signed by Mr. Hebert and Mr. Deslauriers.

Our Problem Not Unique

If there have been any Canadians, in recent months, who have felt that their's is a country unfairly plagued by unique problems of language and race, we trust they have been reading newspaper reports of what has been happening in southern India.

There, a perfectly natural effort to enforce some uniformity in language has led to bloody riots.

The hard truth is that, in today's world, most nations have within their borders minorities whose language and culture differs from that of the majority, or the ruling clique.

If Canada has, in the past, been more successful than most of these nations in avoiding bitter clashes, it has been because our French-speaking fellow-countrymen have shown remarkable forbearance.

We have no right to expect this attitude to continue unless the English-speaking majority shows appreciation of past attitudes in a concrete manner, by exhibiting an eagerness to correct inequities.

The most striking generality about the French-speaking resident of Quebec is the almost universal response of friendship which greets any attempt by an English-speaking Canadian to speak French.

The smile which greets these attempts is likely to be somewhat patronizing. But considering the calibre of French spoken by most English-speaking Canadians the condescension with which the Quebecois hurries to reply in English is no more than the visitor deserves.

What About Motivation?

In Alaska, the United States is training soldiers to resist "psychological bombardment" if they are taken prisoner in any future war.

Loudspeakers set up a ceaseless caterwauling —wailing babies, barking dogs and distorted music. "Prisoners" are interrogated hourly. They are kept warm enough to stay alive—but not warm enough to be comfortable. If a man baulks at questioning, his boots are taken away. Food is dyed brilliant, unappetizing colors.

"In this exercise," says the colonel in charge, "the guys know we won't let them go over the brink and we won't do anything that could bring a lawsuit. They're shielded—but we're still effective."

The way the colonel has it figured out, it would appear that it would be a cinch for the enemy to break prisoners down by psychological bombardment.

There is, however, just one point the colonel appears to be overlooking. In the exercise the only reason the "prisoners" have for resisting questioning is to make a good impression on their officers.

If they were really prisoners of war, the reason for resisting could be the welfare of their country and the safety of their friends who had evaded capture.

Is there no psychologist in the exercise who believes wartime conditions might provide a stronger motivation for maintaining silence?

Heart Poor Ruler

The Smiths Falls hospital for retarded children has been under vigorous attacks. Amongst the complaints are that it is woefully overcrowded, to the detriment of its patients.

Hon. Matthew Dymond, Ontario's minister of health, admitted in the Legislature the other day that overcrowding existed.

He had a simple explanation. "I have always allowed my heart to rule my head." When parents sought to have a retarded child admitted to hospital, he ordered the child admitted.

His inability to say "No" to sorely-distressed parents, his determination to assist them in meeting a problem which, as most of us can understand, can assume agonizing proportions, does credit to his heart.

Unfortunately, not much can be said in praise of the head that is ruled by a heart. And heads are useful, too, and often only a good, clear head can prevent a big heart from making a bad situation worse.

Somebody in the Health Department has just got to learn to say "No" and in the nature of things we do not see how it can be anyone else but the Minister.

For me, the most typically haunting sound of the Middle East is that of the flute, whether played by a single entertainer in a village, or by a shepherd leading his flock—and here, by the way, the shepherds do lead their sheep; they don't drive them from behind as in Britain.—Peter Flinn.

Letters to the Editor

Quinte Nurses' Body Supports Proposal

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

On Feb. 15, Dr. M. Dymond, Minister of Health, received the presentation of the "Nurses' Collective Bargaining Act, 1965," from Mrs. Margaret Page, president, Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

It seems appropriate, at this time, that members from the Bay of Quinte Chapter, R.N.A.O. should make their wishes and feelings known to the community they serve in professional health needs. At the regular monthly meetings of the Bay of Quinte Chapter, many interested and active members of our association have expressed their concern about recent newspaper publications, in which one small, vocal non-elected group of nurses speak for their profession.

We support the resolution accepted by members at the 1964 annual R.N.A.O. convention in Toronto, which resolution directed the Board of Directors to take the necessary steps in preparing and applying for legislation for collective bargaining for Registered Nurses. The Board of Directors has followed these resolutions exactly as it was directed by membership and have or will shortly have instructions, as soon as possible.

An Interim Committee on collective bargaining is composed of five members chosen from names sent to the board of directors, (district presidents) of Provincial Chapters (represent Ontario).

These members were chosen in such a manner that there would be a two-thirds proportion of general duty members to represent nurses. This interim committee, plus all Chapter presidents, studied the legislation prepared by the working party. They found that it followed the resolution exactly as outlined. Consequently, they endorsed the section of the Bill in present-ing it directly to government.

All registered nurses in Ontario whether they are members of their association or not, may choose to be represented by the R.N.A.O. with this legislation.

This legislation advocates final arbitration, legally binding on both parties, manager and employee, without strike action.

Many conditions in the work situation could be improved through "The Nurse Collective Bargaining Act, 1965." Some of these are:

1. To encourage young people to enter nursing and past graduates to return to the profession which is progressive and self-governing but vitally concerned in health and welfare of their fellow man.

2. To establish a definite procedure where nurses may express their discontent with a definite situation.

3. To improve communications between the employing agency and their employees with a consequent improvement in the quality of patient care.

4. To receive recognition of previous experience and educational preparation.

5. To provide a means for the establishment of a rotation schedule, that will allow nurses to know, well in advance, their hours of duty and time off.

6. To protect nurses in small agencies from mental, physical and financial discrimination when their place of employment has no other competition.

It is our sincere hope that the citizens of this community will support nurses, by requesting their member of Provincial Parliament to accept this bill when it is introduced by the Minister of Health.

English Education System Is Defended

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Having read with interest and some amazement your report on English education as seen by a speaker in Trenton, I felt that it was necessary to make some comment as there can only hope that through lack of space there was not opportunity to give a full report.

Among English educationists I would not be alone in criticizing the so called "11-plus examination and it is therefore not surprising that a number of other systems have been evolved to take it's place. From the article one would not have acquired any information about bilateral or multilateral secondary schools, or about the varied forms of comprehensive education which are widespread throughout the country. One would not know that transfer to many of these schools would require no examination at all.

"There is examination and examination" as the saying goes. Whilst it exists, the criticism has a slight, but very slight, validity, in that some children do not do as well might be expected on the particular day. However, there is no mention of the committees of teachers and inspectors which investigate such children following the examination, and, in addition, any children put forward by principals as being considered suitable for an academic course. One would not have known of education authorities who have an effective system based on yearly examinations and work, throughout the junior school and not on a single examination. One might criticize the selective examination but not on these grounds.

Two minor points should be made. Children would go to a nursery school at three years of age, and to an infants' school or infant department of a primary school at five. Where there is transfer to a technical school, and this is now becoming more rare, this is done at thirteen and not at twelve.

While it may be true that there are some primary schools in which there is pressure on the more able children, generally speaking, there is less formality than in the secondary schools, and there is no pressure about passing grades. Promotion is automatic through the Primary School. I may also point out that corporal punishment in most English primary schools is the exception rather than the rule.

Few parents would find it necessary to withdraw their children from a grammar school because of financial considerations, since most authorities would have extremely adequate welfare organizations. Among other financial benefits are free travel on public transport to and from school for many children, highly subsidized school meals, both in primary and secondary schools, and the provision of most or all books by the school. Students of school age will often get special reduced fares wherever they travel.

There was no mention of the G.C.E. and C.S.E. certificates available to students.

It is true that a smaller percentage of children go to university than in Canada, but it should be remembered that there are a large number of other forms of higher education such as technical institutes and the colleges of advanced technology.

One would certainly not gloss over the many faults and the difficulties in providing full education for what, after all, is not a very small population. There are not enough universities, but surely some mention should have been made of the new universities already established, or in process of being built.

I can assure you that education is a live issue in England, and I would not like your readers to think that all is gloom.

Urges Construction Of Animal Shelter

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I notice that the problem of pet-population proper accommodation for animals that are impounded in the Trenton area has still not been solved.

The answer is, as suggested by Mrs. McQuaig and by this Society, for the town council to build a shelter.

This Society has supplied plans to the municipal officials and will be glad to help in any other way that we can.

Highland Handiwork

BBC London Letter

Handwoven tweeds, thick-knit jerseys, Shetland shawls that will pass through spiders' webs, pottery, ironwork and jewellery were on view at a recent London exhibition put on by Highland Home Industries, a non-profit-making organization formed to maintain and improve Scottish crafts and now serving a large and growing market.

Interviewed by Celia Irving in the BBC General Overseas Service, program in "Women all the World," the organizer, Ethel Stuart, spoke of the remarkable growth in demand for these hand-made products since the organization was formed about fifty years ago. At first, she said, the yearly turnover was only a few hundred pounds; last year it was about one and a half million. Encouragement of these old crafts had not only kept them alive but done much to improve their finish, but had raised the standard of living of many people in the Highlands, the Hebrides and Shetland Islands who formerly had no means of earning money during the winter months when they were unable to carry on with crofting, forestry and other outdoor work.

Many of the traditional knitting stitches and patterns have been evolved by the women themselves, and are handed down from mother to daughter. Some of the patterns are very complicated and may require investigation of more than one of the factors we've discussed.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son is 11 and has a septal defect, a small hole in his heart. Is there any treatment, medicine or radium that can be given to correct this? — Mrs. M. M.

Nothing that can be given, but this type of defect is often readily repaired by surgery. Your physician would have to decide whether there is need for this.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our son started walking at about a year old, with both feet looking inward. He is two now and still walks that way. We bought him some shoes to help him walk straight, as suggested by friends. He walked straighter and fell less. The doctor recently checked his feet and legs and said they were straight and that he didn't need special shoes.

So now he is wearing regular shoes again but with his feet turned inward, and he falls often. I am worried. Can you advise me? — Mrs. B. W.

It is common for toddlers to be in the feet are naturally flat and this position is more comfortable.

If you are still concerned, possibly an examination by an orthopedist is in order, but from what you tell me I suspect this boy is quite normal and his feet will straighten out automatically rather soon.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does hiatal hernia tie in with a woman's "change of life" in any way? Would one be on a special diet for it? I am close to 50 and am an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "Make Sleep Your Easier." — K. B.

Hiatal hernia has no relationship to menopause. Yes, a bland diet, about the same as is used for ulcers, often is helpful with hiatal hernia. So is weight reduction, and sometimes other measures.

To Your Good Health
Muscular Twitching Result of Many Causes

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss muscular twitching and jerking around the eye and mouth, and back to one ear. I am afraid this causes my severe headaches and the numbness on that side of my head. — N. U.

I can give you a number of possibilities. It is highly probable that you will need a lot of help from your doctor in identifying the correct cause, but it will be worth the time and effort.

This twitching (tic) is often dismissed as being a habit developed by nervous or neurotic individuals. And so, indeed, it sometimes is. But there are also other and quite different causes.

There are cases in which such ties give evidences of being an aftermath of certain types of encephalitis or inflammation of the brain.

Neuralgia of the facial nerve can cause twitching of both the mouth and eye, since branches of this nerve serve both areas.

In a good many cases (and probably from widely differing basic causes) attacks of this twitching can be touched off by fatigue, by emotional excitement and sometimes even by vigorous use of the facial muscles. Hard chewing is one example.

Some nervous individuals quite unconsciously tense their facial muscles to the point of fatigue and pain, and both the twitching and headaches could be related to this. Muscle tension, in fact, is a very common cause of headache, the so-called tension headache.

Malocclusion, a faulty bite of the teeth, can be a contributor to such tension, and dental correction sometimes is a fundamental treatment.

So the problem can become quite complicated and may require investigation of more than one of the factors we've discussed.

Chief Coroner Criticizes Two RCAF Doctors

SHARON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. H. F. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, criticized two RCAF doctors for their actions in connection with a plane crash that killed an airman Dec. 14.

Dr. Cotnam was presiding at an inquest into the death of Capt. Harvey Fleury of Camp Petawawa, whose Army Cessna 172 crashed near Holland Landing, about 30 miles north of Toronto. The coroner told Sqdn. Ldr. James Garrity of Toronto Military Hospital that he should not have signed the victim's death certificate, but should have waited for a coroner to do it as required by the Coroner's Act.

The coroner also criticized Sqdn. Ldr. Gordon Clayton of Camp Borden for removing samples of the dead man's brain, muscles and blood from the scene of the crash. Dr. Clayton said he had done so under instructions.

"It would seem to me that these things could have been done at an autopsy," the coroner said. "Don't you feel that this was an indignity to a dead body? . . . The public could have seen what was happening."

Liberal Party Has Lost Confidence in Leader PC Association Told

Stressing party unity, a leading Progressive Conservative MP last night warned Belleville party members not to be deluded by personal attacks on John Diefenbaker's leadership.

Simultaneously, Walter Dinsdale, MP for Brandon-Souris and Northern Affairs Minister in the Diefenbaker administration, claimed the Prime Minister is now leading a Liberal party that has lost confidence in his leadership.

He said it was "an old Liberal tactic" to make vicious personal attacks on those opposing them in office.

"There have been some of the most vicious and violent attacks on ours that have gone beyond the bounds of propriety" Mr. Dinsdale told a joint meeting of the city's Conservative men's and women's organizations at Kiwanis Centre.

Dinsdale on the feminine touch in politics: See Page 7.

"Let us not be deluded, bewitched or confused by that sort of propaganda."

"The fate of the party is inseparable from the fate of the leader. You cannot attack . . . the leader without having unfold harmful effects on the party."

"Let's support the party and the leader in all respects," he added.

The recent Conservative executive meeting at Ottawa brought forth a united party in which "we discussed policies and programs just as much as we discussed leadership."

"Let us stick together as Conservatives because we feel that Canada needs the Conservative party at this time."

LASHES LIBERAL POLICIES

In a 45-minute speech in which he lashed Liberal policies for dividing the country, Mr. Dinsdale accused the government of "fiddling around with symbols" while leaving the substance of national economic progress untouched.

This has also brought a reaction against the Pearson leadership.

"Instead of a government of action; a government of certitude, a government that knows where it is going, we have a government of confusion."

The loss of national goodwill by Mr. Pearson has created a situation where 40 percent of the electorate are undecided on how to vote.

Mr. Pearson, he charged "faces a disillusioned and embittered country; he faces an angry Parliament; he faces a cabinet that is in disarray — I don't have to draw any diagrams."

He also believed the Prime Minister was confronted with "a Liberal party, a Liberal caucus that has lost confidence in his ability to lead."

Mr. Dinsdale said he hesitated to forecast the date of the next election.

"I wouldn't prophecy in the present mood of the house, but it is obvious the government we have at the present time is cannot endure . . . It seems to me that it (the election) is going to be called by defeat in the House of Commons rather than at the choice of the government."

AGGRAVATE ISSUES CLAIM

Many of Canada's national problems pre-date Confederation, but he accused the government of aggravating them by deliberately projecting "explosive and divisive issues" into current political discussion.

He particularly singled out Prime Minister Pearson's national flag speech to the Canadian Legion at Winnipeg last year at a time when the government was having policy difficulties.

It could only of necessity mean an emotional outburst such as this country had never seen before and has produced a situation which has done serious harm to national unity."

He quoted Transport Minister Pickersgill observing recently that Canada was difficult to govern.

"He should have discovered that a long time ago. It is a difficult country to govern without confusing the issues by the antics of the government over the past few months."

"What we do need to concentrate on is not symbols but on the substance, the economic substance that will bind our nation together."

Mr. Dinsdale said his chief criticism of present government administration was: "Instead of coming to grips with problems by presenting concrete programs it is continuing to indulge in propaganda techniques."

He charged this was an extension of the past two Liberal election campaigns which were "saturated with gimmicks."

He cited:

(1) Defence policies, in which a favorable service vote was generated by a "nuclear gimmick."

SAME NUMBER ON HAND

Armed forces' integration has resulted in "the same number of service people in there, but they have changed hats to a certain extent . . . and all this has been accomplished at a wonderful spate of public relations."

Integration was actually begun under the Diefenbaker administration, he said, Reconciling—specifically in abolition of the Arrow project, was condemned at the time. Yet when Defence Minister Hellyer now "wipes out whole systems of weaponry he is praised as a man who is . . . making great economies for the country."

(2) Fiscal policies which have seen Finance Minister Gordon return "good conservative" budgeting. He has reinforced the policies of his Conservative predecessors.

"There have been no 60 days of decision; no positive programs of action coming out of the new administration," charged Mr. Dinsdale.

"Rather . . . they have been resorting once again to another characteristic of...the Liberal party. Instead of attacking programs they attack personalities."

"The trade push and the decision to peg the dollar during the Diefenbaker administration have now borne fruit," he said.

"Conservative programs are now vindicated by the (current) economic upsurge."

Mr. Dinsdale was introduced by Leo Gritis, former MP for Hastings South, and thanked by Dr. John Stock, president of the city's P.C. Association.

Game Warden Guest Speaker At AOTS Meet

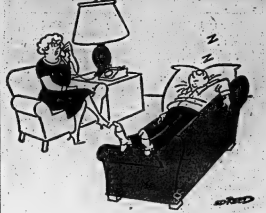
A night to remember would be the only way to decide the February meeting of Holloway Street U. C. Men's Club. The first duty of incoming president Ted Foote was to extend a hearty welcome to the guests of the evening, the members of the Campaite Club, whose presence added warmth and lustre to an enjoyable evening.

This was the first AOTS meeting to be held in the new Christian Education building.

The walls of the new kitchen echoed in exultation as the ladies of Unit 2, U.C.W., served the supper under the leadership of Mrs. Ken Parks, convenor.

Mr. Ron Jones read the Scripture lesson proceeding with a most appropriate devotional, speaking of worship with the congregation in the church, family worship in the home, and the inspirational worship of the work by the Divine hand of the Creator in all the glory and beauty of mother nature.

The "Songs at Eventide," part of the program was also conducted by Rev. T. F. Townsend with Mrs. Mary White assisting at the piano.



The guest speaker, Mr. George Warner, game warden for Prince Edward County was introduced by Sam Orr. Mr. Warner spoke briefly of the local activities of the Department of Lands and Forests concluding with showing the film, Provincial Parks of Ontario, which proved to be a most entertaining film, remarkable for its scenic beauty.

Reg McCurdy thanked the speaker on behalf of the members.

The president announced that plans for the pancake social evening were complete with tickets available from club members.

Elgin Moynes on behalf of the Energetic Club, thanked the AOTS for the invitation to enjoy the evening's entertainment with them.

The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. C. W. Coleman.

BRAISED BEEF HEART

Patiently read what I have to say about beef heart for 2 or 3 minutes. I bought one weighing 3½ lbs. for $1.35. I rimmed off the fat and cut it in half and used half for Braised Beef Heart (see below) which I served to 4 at a guest meal. They loved it. So did I. The other half I simmered in flavored water and used sliced thinly for sandwiches.

Since lean beef costs more than twice as much from the others, muscles of the beef carcass, good cook-managers should utilize the fine cardiac muscle for beef dishes.

Mothers who have daily lunches to pack will bless me, I hope, for suggesting that they use thinly sliced boiled beef heart for sandwiches, using a little French mustard for spreading one of the slices of bread.

The only "must" to observe in cooking heart is that it requires long, slow, moist cooking to make it tender.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by, Mary Moore

BRAISED BEEF HEART
(serves 4)

1½ lbs. lean beef heart, cut into ¾" strips,
2 tablespoons shortening or butter,
½ cup chopped Spanish onion,
¼ teaspoon garlic salt,
1 chicken or beef bouillon cube,
1 tablespoon vinegar,
½ teaspoon basil (or other desired herb),
1 teaspoon salt,
⅛ teaspoon pepper,
⅛ of 1 bay leaf (optional),
½ teaspoon sugar,
¾ cup boiling water,
1 cup canned tomatoes.

In large frying pan melt shortening or butter and add onion and meat and brown them lightly. Add all remaining ingredients, reduce heat and simmer 3 hours, stirring occasionally. Serve on bed or inside border of

HOT FLUFFY RICE

Into heavy pot measure 1 cup raw long-grain rice and 1 teaspoon salt. Add 2¼ cups boiling water, cover and bring to boil and immediately turn off heat for 10 minutes. Turn on heat as low as possible and cook 20 minutes longer when all grains will be tender and distinct.

SAVORY SIMMERED HEART

The remaining half heart I put in my soup kettle, barely covered with water and added 1 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon green onion flakes, and simmered covered for 3½ hours. I let this cool in the cooking liquid. Then I wrapped it in a plastic bag and chilled it for slicing thinly for lunch sandwiches with mustard and lettuce. A real and inexpensive treat.

PARTY IDEA

For beef heart devotees: use my simmered heart idea for a whole heart from which you have trimmed the fat. When it is tender and chilled have your husband slice it wafer thin and arrange these slices overlapping in-perfect order on your finest platter. Serve this at a make-your-own sandwich buffet party meal with accompaniments such as French mustard or mustard relish, lettuce, sliced tomatoes and various interesting breads which have been sliced and buttered.

Wife Preservers

Use an old nylon stocking as a "laundry bag" for lacy, woolly hose items and toss them into the machine with other clothes.

Wellington Unit FWTAO Hears Talk on Retarded

The February meeting of the Wellington Unit of F.W.T.A.O. was held at Rednersville Public School.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Doris Durand, a teacher at the School for Retarded Children in Belleville. Mrs. Durand explained the needs of the trainable retarded child in this modern society.

Various examples of the children's work were shown to illustrate the difficulties these children have to overcome.

Mrs. Durand led an explicit and stimulating discussion on how one can effectively help these children.

Mrs. Tesky, the principal of Rednersville School and the members of her staff served a buffet luncheon.

Bringing Up Baby

BIRTH COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Somehow there's something unutterably appealing about a baby playing with his feet or just kicking up his heels at random. But your baby's foot-play is more than a joy to behold. It's an important part of foot and muscle development. The curling and uncurling of tiny toes . . . the stretching, pushing and pulling, all play a strengthening role in preparing those exquisite extremities for future activities: creeping, standing, walking. Great self-developers, babies.

Another developing idea. One of the great helps to baby's growth and muscle development is protein. Gerber Protein Cereal Food provides your baby with an excellent source of protein, in a delightfully palatable form. It has a 33% protein content and a tasty, toasty, nut-like flavour. Like all Gerber Cereals, it has added iron and important vitamins—thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2), and niacin. And, like the other Gerber Cereals, it stirs to smooth perfection in seconds.

Occupational hazards. Once your baby gets to be the least bit mobile, expect bumps, falls and bruises are unavoidable. Certainly you'll want to comfort your cherub when minor mishaps occur but it isn't wise to over-sympathize. Being too protective may actually instill a fear of trying new educational adventures.

Good eating habits start early... and what better way to begin than by introducing your little one to the enticing variety of Gerber Strained or Junior Vegetables. Each is "custom-cooked" according to its own requirements . . . to help preserve garden-fresh colours, garden-good flavours, and important nutritional values. 8 strained, 3 junior varieties.

Travel tip. Gerber Teething Biscuits make good "traveling companions" when you and baby go visiting. They're individually wrapped in sparkling cellophane so you can put them in pocket or purse with pretty preserved. Gerber, Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Several gave highlights from the Presbyterial annual meeting which had been held at King St. United Church, Trenton.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Don Irish for taking ladies to Trenton for the U.C.W. Marilyn Finkle was also thanked for preparing the programs. Mrs. Lindenfield read an article on supply and social action from the clip sheet.

Susanna's Family Fare

ELEMENTAL WARNING

If you don't want your electric stove elements to burn out prematurely, give the old heave ho at once to those aluminum foil coverings that so many gals use on the metal wells underneath each element.

This was not only the stern advice of an electrician, but of the company who supplied the two new elements for my stove.

Yes, I was using that type of covering and both these chaps patiently explained to me that this was the reason that one ring each on two of the heavy duty electric elements of my stove did their fade-outs so soon.

The reflection of the bright foil underneath intensifies the heat so much in the element, that it becomes hotter than it should — like trying to burn the candle at both ends.

I know these bright covers (either the ready-made ones or those fashioned from foil wrap) make the whole stove gleam — since the wells themselves are purposefully manufactured from dull metal — but unless we are prepared to cope with expensive replacement bills about 25 percent more often than is necessary, we should consider these words of warning from the boys in the business . . . according to them, when we add foil to the stove plates it's like gilding the lily? — SUSANNA

OUCH!

Dear Susanna: My son has been fixing my clip earrings for a number of years so that they don't pinch. This is easy to do, and here is his method.

Just bend the base or shank downward to ease the clamp — very gently and ever so slightly — or upward to tighten, if too loose. Tweezers or small pliers do nicely. — K's Mother.

Oooooo! That feels better! — SUSANNA

Women Praised for Work On Political Scene by PC Association Speaker

The ladies—bless 'em—cut crucial figures on the political scene, a leading Canadian politician reminded the public last night.

For in his audience he could count a goodly number of the fair sex—all active workers who add a formidable feminine touch in political campaigns.

Acknowledging their contribution to public affairs he momentarily departed from his survey of current national issues to verbally bow in their direction.

"I am always conscious of the importance of women in the political arena because of the support given by my own wife," he confided.

However, they also apparently could pose a threat to a man's public career.

"Whenever I become a bit unmanageable in any shape or form my wife always has one threat she holds over my head. If I don't behave myself she will threaten to run against me for the nomination in the next election.

"And I know she could win hands down," he joked.

However, the female instinct for public business also takes some contrasting twists.

Mr. Dinsdale recalled the time, as a fledgling politician he was seeking his first election in his home riding of Brandon-Souris.

"My old Sunday school teacher came to me and said: 'Politics is a dirty business Walter. It's a dirty business. It's so dirty I don't even vote. But in your case I will make an exception. I won't vote for you but I'll pray for you'."

"I suggested it would be much more practicable if she voted for me and prayed for my opponent," he chuckled.

Before his address, the Women's Association held its annual election and returned the following slate of officers:

Mrs. Dorothy Howell, president; Mrs. P. Murray, Mrs. R. McKay, Mrs. Margaret Orr, vice-presidents; Mrs. M. Haggerty, recording press secretary; Mrs. H. McBurney, treasurer; Mrs. J. Ireland, membership convener; Mrs. Rhoda Gray, past-president.

Honorary presidents are Mrs. W. Adams, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, Mrs. J. Carnew, Mrs. Lee Grills, Mrs. C. L. Hyde, Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Mrs. H. Rollins, Mrs. E. Sandercock, Mrs. M. Tugnett, Mrs. M. B. Weese.

Hsinchu is a drab railway town 35 crow-line miles southwest of Taipei, but 45 miles by car. The nunnery is situated in a congested downtown alleyway where children play and chickens and ducks forage for food spilled from uncovered garbage bins.

Miss Aitken joined the sanctuary last May as a lay disciple.

"Last month, two days after I had shaved my head, I was accepted as a novitiate—a novice nun," she said. "But I want to become a full-fledged nun, then go back to the United States as a Buddhist missionary."

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Aitken of Rochester, N.Y. She has one sister, Sally, 15.

"I first became interested in Buddhism when I was 12," Miss Aitken said. "I wasn't satisfied with my parents' religion—they were Presbyterians then, but later became Lutherans. So I started hunting around for a new religion.

"When I was 18 I knew Buddhism was really right for me. What really impressed me was the belief in rebirth—in reincarnation—that any good or bad is your own doing. There is no eternal hell, always hope for redemption. That explained everything to me.

"I also liked the compassionate Buddhist attitude toward all living creatures."

Miss Aitken, who has been given the name of Ming Chueh, which means "profound understanding of Buddhist teaching," finds the life at the nunnery far from dull—"it's always exciting."

"Typical day? Well, it would be something like this. I get up at 4 a.m. Then, from 5 to 6 a.m. I chant with my teacher (the abbess, Shen Kwan). After chanting, I sweep the temple.

"While I do so, Mrs. Choshe's the lay disciple—prepares breakfast. At 7 a.m. we eat breakfast — we have all our meals in the kitchen. Then we attend to cleaning our rooms, washing clothes and so forth.

"After that I study. We have lunch between 11 and 12, then rest for an hour or so. Sometimes I go shopping or visit sick people. Sometimes people come to see us with their problems.

"At 4 p.m. I start the fire in the charcoal water heater and we take turns having baths.

"At 6 p.m. we have supper, then chant for an hour and study until bedtime.

"I love chanting. In the morning we chant hymns, in the evening sutras (scriptural narratives, especially the teachings of Buddha)."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the month was held in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent Nell Shandrese presiding.

Words of thanks were read from the sick and bereaved.

It was decided that next meeting would be an open meeting as the Loyal Order are to be asked to be in attendance for a social hour after the meeting.

The draw donated by co-worker Missy Morris was won by Gladys Bird.

After the meeting penny bingo was played and lunch was served by the hospital chairman, Mary Morris and her committee.

It was reported that co-workers Joan King and Dorothy Patten are ill in hospital.

St. Michael's CWL Sponsors Valentine Ball

A capacity crowd attended the annual Valentine Ball, sponsored by St. Michael's Catholic Women's League in the auditorium, last Friday evening. Greeting the guests at the door was president, Mrs. R. Rasboski and dance convener, Mrs. J. Sheridan.

Swinging red cupids and large hearts surrounded the dancers and decorated the large white tables. At midnight a sumptuous banquet was provided, with the red and white theme carried out in the centrepieces of tomatoes flanked by silver candelabra. Food conveners were Mrs. J. Boyle, Mrs. J. Mattis and Mrs. J. Maxey with the assistance of many more women too numerous to mention who worked hard to make this one of the highlights of the evening.

Mr. Bruce Lynch was master of ceremonies who kept things running smoothly from one event to another. Spot dance winners were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rivers, Mr. Peter Young and Miss Julie Poirier, Mr. J. Darlington and Mrs. E. J. McGuigan and door prizes to Mr. Michael Collins and Mr. Robert Langabeer.

A vote of appreciation was extended to the men who helped in so many ways and to all who contributed in any way to this most successful event.

Make Fashionable Clothes For Handicapped People

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Clothes for the handicapped person can be fashionable as well as functional.

"There's no reason why people in wheelchairs can't have the Brooks Brothers look," says Helen Cookman, director of the Clothing Research and Development Foundation. "After all, your taste doesn't change just because you happen to be in a car accident."

Until recently, well - styled clothes weren't available for the handicapped. Sleeves weren't designed for crutches. Coats weren't made to accommodate the person going out doors in a wheelchair. A rug was needed and this in turn made the person feel old and discarded.

But Mrs. Cookman is helping to change all that. A designer, she began research 10 years ago on her first collection of clothes for the handicapped. She believed there would be a psychological lift in fashionable styles. It took a few years for the idea to catch on.

At the 1963 fall showings of the New York Couture Group the first presentation of "Functional Fashions" was introduced to the press, the work of a group of top designer-manufacturers that included Pauline Trigere, Davidow, Bonnie Cashin and Tina Leser.

BRIGHT COLORS

"Each designed one or more costumes, keeping in mind the handicapped person's need for ease of motion and diffidulty in getting into or out of clothes. Each season since then a new collection has been marketed, the royalties going to the research foundation.

At the recent spring showing by the New York Couture Group there was another brief display of the functional collection. Bright colors, fashion details and interesting fabrics were as much in evidence as in the regular fashion collections.

The added features were underarm easement or no sleeves for those using crutches, large buttons and easy-to-manage buttonholes, and accessible pockets.

Gored skirts and coat-dresses, including one in red and white by Jerry Silverman, turned up frequently.

With the floor-length evening gown back in style, "functional fashions" has solved the problem of a crippled person negotiating stairs while wearing one. Two short drawstrings are inserted a few inches apart in the skirt front. These pull the skirt up and leave hands free for crutches or bannisters.

HELPS CHILDREN

Mrs. Cookman offers some tips to people sewing or buying for the handicapped. For example, slacks can be fully zippered down both sides so the wearer can open them, sit in them and zip them up, even with one hand.

When there is a crippled child in the home, Mrs. Cookman advocates making the clothes for the other children with the same functional features. The clothes can look just as smart. All children like easy clothes, and the handicapped child feels less set apart.

For example, the popular jumper can be completely zippered up the sides and made with wide inverted side pleats. There is freedom of movement and the slipper is easy to handle without sacrificing style. The companion blouse can have large buttons and buttonholes hidden under a panel front.

This year's new raglan sleeve can be used effectively, as seen in a go-everywhere, water-repellent coat of red wool jersey shown here. The looseness of the sleeve provides freedom of arm movement in propelling a wheelchair or walking with crutches.

'Mental Health' Talk Given at Auxiliary Meet

The regular meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held on Tuesday, February 16th, at Education Hall with president Mrs. William Dallas in the chair.

Reports were read by committee chairmen, with Opp Shop convener Mrs. W. J. Musgrove asking for a few more volunteers for Saturdays and for pick-up service, especially in the east end of the city. Next month's meeting will host the Opp Shop workers. Despite poor weather, sales have been good and the Opp Shop is running smoothly. Mrs. Owen Clarke reported that the Girl Guides made 300 Valentine favors which looked pretty on the patients' trays on Valentine's Day. Mrs. J. Casey asked for more knitters and sewers to help make layettes for the Samaritan Cupboard.

Mrs. Dallas announced that Mrs. F. H. Beeby has been appointed vice-chairman of Region No. 9 of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association.

Mrs. Holden, in introducing the speaker, Mrs. J. L. Thompson, gave an impressive resume of her qualifications and achievements. Mrs. Thompson's subject was "Mental Health" and her remarks were illustrated by a film, "To Serve the Mind."

The members were given an insight into the advances being made in the care and treatment of the mentally ill. Today's methods are a far cry from the old idea of locking the mentally ill away for the rest of their lives. Today after a few months treatment most patients are able to return to every day life and resume their places in society. It is hoped that with the completion of the new hospital that there will be a fully modern psychiatric department in Belleville, which, Mrs. Thompson stressed, was sorely needed at the present time.

Mrs. J. Casey in thanking the speaker expressed the gratitude of the members for the privilege of hearing an informed talk on a subject of so much importance.

After adjournment of the meeting tea was served by Mesdames W. Fox and A. E. Miles.

Headline in Student Paper Becomes Reality

VICTORIA (CP)—"Mrs. Barr Expecting," was the headline in the University of Victoria student newspaper last spring.

The story was about the election of Mrs. Olivia Barr as president of the student council and it went on to say that she was expecting great things during her term of office.

Her great expectations were realized a few months later when she took time off from school and presidential duties to present her husband Iain with a son.

Mrs. Barr took the paper's razzing in such good grace that the staff members fired a cannon to mark the event, then gave her a model of the gun as a memento.

Olivia is a slim blonde, pressing 30, who gives her age as "over 21—that's all a lady ever admits to."

Her day is divided between heading the 3,200-student body, housekeeping, studying and looking after Douglas, now three months old.

"Thank God for a diaper service," she says.

Three senior psychology courses take up six hours of her time a week. She is adding them to courses she took to get a degree in psychology here in 1964.

She is trying to decide about going to graduate school for an advanced degree or returning to advertising.

She worked in the advertising department of a Montreal department store after attending McGill and before she and Iain migrated to the coast.

As leader of the university's student body, Olivia has final responsibility for a $130,000 annual budget.

Part of her time is taken up attending student conferences in other parts of the country and preparing for those held in her own territory.

She carries a staggering work load. Even as she lay in the maternity ward waiting for Douglas, student council members somewhat shamefacedly brought her some paperwork.

"I had to sign for that damned cannon they wanted for the birthday blast."

WOMEN TAKE OVER

COOKHAM, England (CP) — Women in this Berkshire town now are in control of the local council. After a recent election, members comprised 10 women and nine men.

Successful Living

Health and Well-being At Stake—See Doctor

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 and have had an extreme perspiration problem for over three years. I know the condition is caused by nerves, but as I have always been tense and active, I seem no solution there. I read of an operation on the sympathetic nerve which, among other things, is effective in stopping perspiration, called "sympathectomy."

I know seeing a doctor is my best bet, but I can't afford that. Could you tell me about this operation, its results and so on! — JITTERS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JITTERS — Not so fast! Is it your plan to get on the nearest operating table and direct the surgeon as to what to remove? Perhaps you'll miss that sympathetic nerve!

If nerves are tense, you can relax them. Otherwise, you seek to treat a symptom and ignore the cause. The intelligent thing is to learn how to handle yourself more effectively. Your whole physical and emotional being enters into this.

I find it hard to swallow the idea that you can't afford doctoring for anything which is so basic to health and well-being.

DEAR DORIS — I met a boy one month ago at a party in another city. He writes letters to me but my mother said a girl my age should not write letters to a boy at 15.

What should I do? Listen to my mother or write to him secretly? — BAB.

DEAR BAB — No clandestine love notes, please! Get Mom's okay to write him to say you can't write him. That the party was fun and you hope you'll see him again some time.

DEAR DORIS — I am 79 years old and am a regular cry baby. Any touching scene of any kind causes real tears to fall.

What is the cause of this and can it be overcome? — CRY BABY.

DEAR CRY BABY — As we grow older, our scale of values changes. We no longer drive so frantically after the almighty dollar. We strive for peace of mind and we become more sensitive to feeling tones, both in ourselves and in others.

When we add to this the fact that not-quite-so-robust health removes the strength to inhibit our emotions as well as we used to, you will understand a little why tears — and not always sad ones — are often near the surface. No reason to be ashamed of them.

Confidential to DISTRESSED — Write in again enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply to your question. I have already dealt with it in the column on more than one occasion.

"Guess what! We're taking up judo at the Women's Club!"

Ann Landers

Divorcee Not Interested In Extra-marital Sex

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you tell me why a widow or a divorcee is considered a sure thing by every male I've had the poor luck to meet these past two years?

ANN LANDERS

I'm a 33-year-old divorcee who holds a respectable position. I dress in good taste, my necklines don't plunge and I can talk intelligently about contemporary affairs, books, art, and music.

I'm tired of going out with men who think you owe them your life just because they buy you a dinner. I've been called old-fashioned, prudish, archaic, mid-victorian, sadistic, and masochistic just because I am not interested in extra-marital sex.

I've heard every line imaginable, but the one last night was unique. What do you think of a man who wants to take the sadness out of your eyes? Isn't that incredible? Or am I nuts? — PLAIN DISGUSTED.

DEAR P.D. — A man who talks about taking the sadness out of your eyes is probably interested in putting a little gladness into his own.

Don't lower your standards, Doll, but redouble your efforts. There are still plenty of eligible men around who don't regard every woman they see as their Target for Tonight.

Enroll in an adult education class at the university. Join a great books discussion group, be a volunteer for the political party of your choice. The Red Cross needs Gray Ladies. The list is endless. Get going.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband comes from one of those families whose motto is "All for one and one for all". This sounds admirable but it has caused me nothing but heartache.

In the 18 years we've been married my husband has spent at least half of his spare time helping his brothers and sisters build and repair their homes. In all fairness I should tell you, Ann, that eight years ago when we built our home his relatives pitched in and helped. We could not have afforded this lovely home otherwise.

Last year my sister-in-law carelessly set their home on fire with a cigarette. Now my husband spends all his spare time rebuilding with the rest of the family. He usually takes our daughter along to play with her cousins. I sit home alone because my sister-in-law is a bore.

I've considered telling my husband that since he enjoys his family so much he should spend all his time with them. Yes or no — CONTEMPLATIVE.

DEAR CON. — No, I hate to trot out that tired slogan but it's tailored made — "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

After 18 years your husband is not going to change his attitude toward his family, so you'd better change yours.

Make up your mind you're going to find something to admire in that tribe and go with him when he goes. Sitting at home, building resentment against him and his family will bring you nothing but a shattered marriage and infinitely greater unhappiness.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WAIST IN UPHEAVAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Social historian James Laver says "fashion is not arbitrary, but rather a reflection of social conditions." Speaking to the Women's Canadian Club here, he said: "When we're in a state of social upheaval, the waist is always in the wrong place. It's either up or down, never in the middle."

Ownership

tion, resident in Canada or abroad, may own 10 per cent or more of a bank's outstanding shares.

—No government or government agent may own any shares in a chartered or savings bank.

—If any individual or corporation now owns more than 10 per cent of a bank, an exemption will be allowed.

—But if any government buys shares in a bank before the new limitations become law, the shares will be declared non-voting stock.

The limitations appeared clearly designed to thwart Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia. He first wanted to have his government invest in 25 per cent of the stock of the proposed new Bank of British Columbia. Later he said his government might buy into an existing chartered bank.

Under the conditions Mr. Gordon wants written into the Bank Act, he urged quick adoption of two bills now before Parliament to incorporate the new Banks of British Columbia and of Western Canada.

Before the Commons started its Christmas-New Year recess, C.C.F. leader Tommy Douglas and his colleagues were refusing to let any Senate bill pass the Commons because the Senate had pigeon-holed the B.C. bank bill.

While these political considerations swirled about Mr. Gordon's stand, his statement in the Commons Tuesday was based on what he called the tradition that bank stock has been widely dispersed among a great many investors. No small group of shareholders has had effective control of any major Canadian bank.

In fact, sources said, there would be few if any instances in which the 10 per cent stock ownership limitation would come into play.

Mr. Gordon announced last Sept. 22 he planned to limit non-resident shareholdings in federally - incorporated insurance, trust and loan companies and banks. This, he said, had already prevented a foreign takeover of one Canadian bank with facilities across the country.

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C. said "it will be interesting to see how far the federal government can go toward regulating funds provincial government has within its control."

Premier Bennett said:

"At no time do I try to dictate to the federal government. I find the statement very interesting."

In Toronto, a member of the founding group of the Bank of Western Canada said he favors the federal government's plan to allow new bank promotors to buy large initial shareholdings, although laws have been proposed to prevent any single individual from holding more than 10 per cent of shares in established chartered banks.

J. D. Tigert, assistant to the president of Wellington Finance Corporation, said founders of the new bank will initially own 49 per cent of shares—a situation he said is necessary to ensure "solid financing."

Speaking in a telephone interview from Montreal, John N. Coleman, chief general manager of the Royal Bank, said Canadian banks have always been owned by small shareholders.

"We want this situation to continue and the new law is most desirable."

A night watchman, Vittorio Rivi, told police he saw two men approach the gate, then hurry away and drive off in a high-powered car just before the explosion. He said the men were short, youthful in appearance and well dressed.

Easter Island Agitation

Trouble Flared on Pacific Flyspeck

By FRED JOYCE

EASTER ISLAND (CP) — A microscopic political upheaval on this Pacific Ocean flyspeck came to its climax right in the middle of the Canadian - led Medical Expedition to Easter Island.

The Royal Canadian Navy got drawn in, the medical researchers had a mild mob scene on their hands and the 350 native voters of this Chilean dependency won themselves a new deal at the polls.

The agitation was stirring at the time HMCS Cape Scott brought the 38-member medical research team here in December. The islanders were being told that their lot — under a Chilean navy lieutenant - commander helped by four elected advisers—could be better.

The leading spirits were Alphonso Rapu Haoa, a 32-year-old island-born but mainland-educated schoolteacher and budding politician, and Lt.-Cmdr. Guido Andrade, a Chilean navy surgeon stationed at Easter. They said the councillors elected last fall were unacceptable and new elections were needed.

When word of this was sent to the mainland, 2,500 miles to the east, the Chilean government's reply was that Andrade and Rapu should be sent to Chile aboard the Cape Scott, which was to visit Valparaiso after dropping the scientists.

Andrade and his family went, after a giant farewell party, but Rapu went into hiding. He was still underground when the Chilean gunboat Yelcho appeared Jan. 9 with 40 marines aboard and also Andrade, for an on-the-spot investigation by marine Cmdr. Guillermo Rojas.

He began an inquiry into dissatisfaction on the island, including reports that Rapu's group was agitating to join a federation of Polynesia, 2,500 miles to the west but the supposed ethnic home of the Easter Islanders.

Meanwhile, an open letter to Chile's president signed by Rapu and 55 others had appeared in the Chilean press complaining of lack of self-government, dictatorial administration of the island and low pay for the few natives on government jobs.

Rapu appeared before the inquiry Jan. 9 and was told to return next day. The same day, a crowd of his followers—mostly women — heard him having words with Rojas in the officer's jeep and rushed on the pair, apparently under the impression Rapu was being arrested.

The incident occurred near the expedition's campsite, one of the few fenced spots on the island, and about a dozen women rushed Rapu inside. The married fired rifles into the air. Some of the women, screaming, fell to the ground, claiming they had suffered heart attacks.

Rojas sent his marines away and waited for the islanders to cool off. While he waited, Rapu slipped out a rear gate under cover of darkness and rode off on a waiting horse.

Next day, the marine commander visited the camp, apologized to the expedition for the disturbance and announced there would be new elections.

In the voting, Rapu and three friends took over all the councillors' posts and have a one-year mandate to do something about improving the island's economy. At their first meeting, they talked of getting new industry. At present, the 1,200 islanders catch fish or lobsters, and between 50 and 80 work on a government sheep ranch, 18 are employed by the Chilean air force and seven work on a small experimental farm.

gainst adjectives" were being put on the record under the guise of public urgency.

CITES RUMORS

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said all kinds of rumors were being spread about the Dupuis resignation and the chairman's name earlier had been nothing to clear up the mystery. For that reason alone the motion should be adopted.

After the speaker's ruling, the daily question period lasted 65 minutes, dealing mainly with minor issues, and ran into the 6 p.m. supper adjournment.

Mr. MacEachen opened the two-hour night sitting with his promised report on amendments he will propose in the labor code, already approved in principle and into clause - by - clause study, the final debating stage.

The labor code provides for an eight-hour day and a 40-hour week in industries under federal jurisdiction, along with a $1.25 minimum hourly wage and certain paid holidays and vacation periods.

Its hours-of-work section allows an additional eight hours a week on overtime pay but rules out overtime hours except on special authority.

REPORTS COMPLAINTS

Mr. MacEachen said there have been complaints from a few industries that the rigid working hours will cause hardship for them, even within the 18 - month adjustment period provided in the bill. Transport industries in particular had been protesting.

In cases where the 18-month adjustment was not deemed sufficient, industries will be allowed to request a special inquiry. The inquiry will "investigate the facts," hear the views of the employers and workers concerned and make a recommendation to the minister.

This recommendation could result in a special deferment by the minister exempting the industry from the hours - of - work section of the code. It would be for a fixed period, renewable on the minister's order.

But Mr. MacEachen also stressed that the exemption would not be total. Deferment orders could contain provisions for a special set of work-week standards or require that hours of work be reduced by stages.

He said he had rejected suggestions that some industries be given blanket exemptions from the hours-of-work section or that special standards be written into the bill to fit different special cases.

ALLOWS EXCEPTION

Another amendment would allow an exception from the rule of one day's rest in seven. "As the bill now stands, this rule is too rigid," the minister admitted.

Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister, said the hours of work set out in the bill have met with "strenuous objection" from truckers, grain elevator workers and the railway running trades.

He wanted to know whether these groups were satisfied with the amendments but the night's debate did not give the minister an opportunity to reply.

Mr. Starr, member for Ontario riding, said the code might cause unfair competition in the trucking industry where it would affect only interprovincial firms. He noted that firms operating entirely within Ontario can, under provincial law, have a 48-hour week with another 12 hours of permissible overtime.

CONCERNED ABOUT MILLS

Several opposition members complained about local feed mills being subject to the code regulations. William H. A. Thomas (PC—Elgin-Lissex West) said that unlike the major grain handling facilities, the local mills did not come under the Canada Grain Act and should not be subject to the code.

Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) said he didn't "see any excuse for the long finger of federal authority to suddenly grasp and strangle the frugal economy of the local feed mill."

Robert Temple (L—Hastings South) sought special consideration for railway employees who operate on a mileage basis and have little control over the hours they work.

Alfred D. Hales (PC — Wellington South) said furniture movers have a special problem since they must move their loads from one point to another in the fastest possible time, even at the expense of long hours. The same thing applied to truckers who moved agricultural products from western to eastern Canada.

BANK RUN OVER

The Hong Kong government Tuesday cancelled an order limiting cash bank withdrawals to 100 Hong Kong dollars ($19). The limit was imposed a week ago when residents made runs on five Chinese banks here and the banks ran out of physical currency. The government has since received shipments from banks in Britain, spokesmen said "wild, irresponsible rumors" started the run.

EARNINGS INCREASE

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. had earnings of $39,136,000 in 1964 compared to $29,823,000 the previous year, the company announced Tuesday in a preliminary report. Company President W. S. Kirkpatrick said the consolidated earnings represent $2.35 a share compared with $1.82 in 1963.

Police Say

ctussed the Rivard case with Mr. Lamontagne, but denied the fact that the Montreal lawyer was acting for the U.S. government.

At the second interview, Insp. Drapeau said, Denis recalled that he had discussed the Rivard case with Mr. Lamontagne and insisted that he had told the inspector this at the first interview.

"We tried to reason it out with him but he tried to make out he had already told us facts and now was just repeating them," Insp. Drapeau said.

Denis had originally told him he had met Liberal organizer Guy Masson in the Motel de Ville in suburban Eastview.

He had still insisted he met Masson there even after he was confronted with motel records showing no Guy Masson stayed there at the time in question.

Denis had finally agreed to check his taxi account and found he had met Masson at the Fontainebleau Motel in Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River from the capital.

Insp. Drapeau said Denis couldn't recall at the first interview receiving a telephone call July 22 from Mr. Lamontagne. But he recalled it at the second interview.

He had said at first that he met at Masson's motel a person known to him only as Bob. At the second interview he had said the man's name was Bob Denis.

THINKING ALOUD

Insp. Drapeau said that when Denis left headquarters after a statement for the RCMP he was thinking aloud and mentioned something he had said to Masson. He hadn't put this in the statement. When asked about it he had decided to insp. Drapeau and the RCMP sergeant also present that he had said it.

He agreed to leave Canada voluntarily—and did so a few weeks ago—after his bid for immigrant status was rejected by Ottawa.

TALKED TO DENIS

Williamson has said he talked to Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Trembiay, and Norman about Stonehill's bid for immigrant status.

After Mr. McKay had named Williamson in the B.C. legislature here, Mr. Bonner said in an interview the Liberal member had abused the immunity of the house and had named a man as committing an offence when that man had no recourse in law.

Monday night, it was reported that the RCMP — who, under orders from Mr. Bennett and Mr. Bonner have been investigating the "phoney" letter for about a week—seized papers from Williamson's office.

Police have refused to confirm or deny the report. Mr. Bonner has said only that the investigation is still under way.

Mr. Williamson denied Tuesday that the RCMP has removed documents from his office relating to Mr. Stonehill. He said he has co-operated with police and made available to them what material they wanted.

Mr. Bennett last week said that RCMP in Vancouver had obtained a statement from a Vancouver man" admitting the man had written the letter. His name was not revealed.

U. S. Moves to Soften Propaganda Value of Likely New Chinese Nuclear Blast

By ARCH MacKENZIE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States has moved promptly again to soften the propaganda edge of an expected second Chinese nuclear blast forecast Tuesday in Washington.

State Secretary Dean Rusk did the same thing before the initial Chinese test last Oct. 16.

Tuesday's Washington statement said the U.S. has reason to believe a follow-up test is being prepared, to make use of information gained in the first. U.S. intelligence, based presumably on high-altitude reconnaissance and nuclear - debris sampling, pinpointed the October test area in the western China desert at Lop Nor. It assessed the blast in the low-power range of at or under the equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

SOME TIME AWAY

The most important immediate point is that China remains some time away—estimates vary—from being able to manufacture a nuclear bomb as such, or the vehicle to carry it far.

But, it is also agreed generally, this is a steadily-diminishing consideration of more important long - term questions, depending on just how quickly China can close the gap.

It hinges on how much fissionable material it can provide for bombs, progress in rocketry or long-range aircraft and how much of its economy China chooses to dedicate to these goals.

The fact remains that prospects seem much less bright than they were last October for working out a system to control the proliferation of nuclear capacity by nations still on the fringe or outside the nuclear club.

China and France are outside the limited test ban treaty signed by the U.S., Russia and Britain.

China and the U.S. are—if there is possibility—the more bitterly divided with the latest crisis in Viet Nam. Nor is Russia in any better position to attempt to play a middle role. President de Gaulle of France pursues his road in nuclear, monetary and other matters.

FEARED BY ASIANS

A second Chinese nuclear test, it is felt, will do little to reassure Asian countries, such as India, which have chosen to face a militant Chinese policy and which have been pondering whether to impose the extra economic burden of a nuclear project on themselves.

The U.S. has sought to reassure such nations by stating its willingness, if necessary, to extend its nuclear umbrella on their behalf. President Johnson did so in October.

As for China's nuclear progress, there has been speculation this may go faster than some now think.

The head nuclear physicist for China is believed to be a former associate of Madame Curie while the head of the Chinese rocket program has been identified as Dr. Chien Hsuehsen, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who returned to China in 1955 after studying German rocketry and acting as a consultant to the U.S. Navy.

Women Discount Reasons Given By VON Chief

TORONTO (CP)—Eight of 10 women who resigned from the Voice of Women have discounted the reason given for their action by Mrs. C. B. Macpherson, VoW president.

Mrs. Macpherson said Sunday that the women likely left the peace-promoting organization because they were tired of defending it against charges of communism.

Mrs. William MacKenzie, who was president of the Metropolitan Toronto branch until her resignation, said in a statement:

"We are not tired and see no possibility of rejoining VoW. She (Mrs. Macpherson) is correct when she states that we object to too much emphasis on militant political protest."

Mrs. Mary Perimutter, who also resigned, said in an interview: "We would never have joined the organization if we were simply fearful of defending ourselves against smears."

Mrs. MacKenzie said her statement was endorsed by Mrs. Perimutter and other women who resigned from the organization, which was founded in Canada five years ago.

Says Russia Has Hundred Megaton Bomb

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia is armed with intercontinental and global rockets whose nuclear warheads are equal to 100,000,000 tons of TNT, Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky said today.

He also claimed Soviet supersonic planes are equipped with long-range rockets carrying nuclear warheads.

Sokolovsky spoke at a press conference held in connection with the 47th anniversary of the Red Army.

Muscle, Dynamite, Weather Break Flood Threat

Moira Flows Freely

Emergency measures co-ordinator Colonel Angus Duffy reported a check of the Moira watershed as far north as Tweed showed tributary streams reduced in flow.

The good news followed yesterday's sudden ice pile-up around the Footbridge which sent the river seeping over its east bank, flooding out one warehouse.

Today's improvement came in the wake of a rush operation by city works crews to smash channels through ice binding the water between the Footbridge and the river mouth.

Yesterday, while a mobile crane with an iron weight smashed its way along the west bank between the Lower Bridge and the CPR overpass, a dynamite crew laid a long train of dynamite charges across the river's mouth.

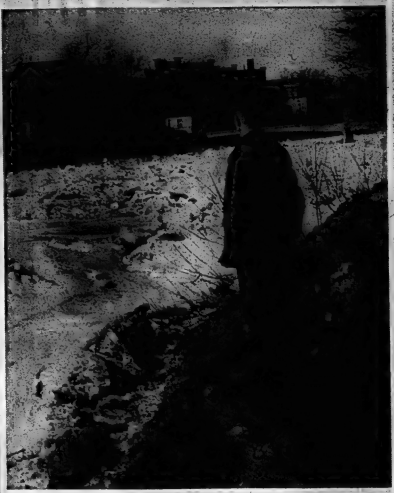
By this morning blasting crews had exploded almost 600 pounds of dynamite in the emergency.



Last night and today the weather delivered the coup de grace as temperatures dropped and held the river surface around freezing point.

IRON MUSCLE is put in clearing operation by mobile crane smashing channel along west bank of Moira.

VICTIM of sudden ice eruption was this warehouse at Footbridge, hastily emptied of goods by T. Eaton Company as water seeped over banks.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Feb. 16

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled out of order a proposal for an investigation into alleged scandal in government.

It was proposed by Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) in a motion for adjournment of scheduled business.

It asked parliamentary investigation of "intrusion of undesirable influences" into government offices.

Mr. Macnaughton noted the subjects already were being investigated.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused Prime Minister Pearson of rejecting the proposal in a "cavalier" manner.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said his party would await the results of a current judicial inquiry.

Mr. Pearson told the House he asked for the resignation of Yvon Dupuis after seeing a preliminary report on allegations against him.

Mr. Dupuis, former minister without portfolio, maintained his innocence of any wrongdoing in connection with a bid for a racetrack in his riding.

The House resumed study of the proposed labor code.

Labor Minister MacEachen said industries that prove hardship under the code will get deferments.

Mr. Starr said the minister should give details about all complaints about the code's working hours.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 17

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of the labor code. The Senate stands adjourned to March 2.

COLD WATER FATAL

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — James Richard Remile, 3, died Tuesday after he fell through ice near his home near this town 20 miles east of Toronto. Dr. W. W. Tomlinson said the shock of cold water killed the boy.

Stripper Jack Murders Again On Schedule

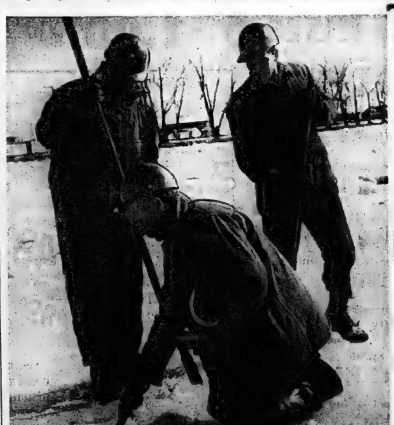
The search for the killer by detectives and uniformed police was intensified after the naked body of his sixth victim was found Tuesday in tall grass in the West London suburb of North Acton.

The latest dead woman was identified as Mrs. Bridie Moore, 37, alias O'Hara, who lived in West London. A pathologist said she had been dead for more than a week.

Previously, five prostitutes had been found stripped and strangled at more or less regular intervals in West London during the last year.



The case stirred unpleasant memories of "Jack the ripper," who stalked the streets here 76 years ago killing at least six prostitutes—and never getting caught.

The Daily Mail recalls that after "Jack the Stripper's" fifth murder in November detectives studied the time cycle between the deaths.

"They forecast that another murdered woman would be found in late February or early March," The Daily Mail says.

Work Resumes At Hollinger Gold Mine

TIMMINS (CP) — Normal operations resumed Tuesday at the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Limited mine there after underground openings between the mine and the McIntyre Porcupine Gold Mines workings at nearby Schumacher were sealed off during the week-end.

A fire discovered Feb. 5 in the McIntyre mine had sent gas through Hollinger workings and 950 men were laid off until the gas cleared.

Some 300 Hollinger employees reported for the afternoon shift Tuesday. Mine officials said they expect the mine to be back in full operation today.

One man has died and 650 have been laid off as a result of the fire in the McIntyre itself.

Twenty-two five-man rescue teams have been fighting the blaze since it was discovered more than a mile underground. The fire fighters have contained the fire and are using water and fog- and foam-making machines in an attempt to smother burning embers.

However, hoisting operations from the 3,000-foot level to the surface were resumed during the weekend and milling operations, suspended last Wednesday, were resumed Monday.

Mother, Four Children Die In House Fire

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — A mother and four children died early today in a fire which raged through their two-storey frame home.

Killed were Mrs. William Wilson, 27, and her four children, ranging in age from 11 months to 10 years. The bodies were recovered.

The children were identified as Patricia, 10, Ruth, 8, Barbara, 4, and 11-month-old William Thomas.

Dr. W. ... a coal miner left for work only minutes before the fire broke out.

Quebec Union Feud Is 'Etched in Acid'

Relations between Quebec's Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor (CLC) have come to the boil. In this story a Canadian Press writer analyzes the conflict as the Canadian Labor Congress prepares for a Feb. 11 strategy conference on the issue.

By GERARD McNEIL

But the next moment a heated Mr. Laberge was waving his finger at Jean Marchand, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, in a steamy television debate.

The confrontation between the leaders of the warring bodies etched the conflict in acid. Mr. Laberge accused the CNTU of "systematic marauding." Mr. Marchand jabbed at the QFL—affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress—over American "leadership" of Canadian unions.

Behind their words is a ferment in the province's labor field.

From about 90,000 members for each rival in 1959, the CNTU now claims 150,000 members and the QFL 130,000 dues-paying personnel plus CLC affiliates that bring the figure to 235,000. The tightly-knit, militant CNTU has snatched 10,000 from QFL ranks in the last year. Sharp battles continue in many areas.

MAY TAKE OFFENSIVE

The federation has been on the defensive. But this could change soon. Leaders of more than a dozen CLC unions meet at Ottawa Thursday with the aim of mounting a counter-attack against CNTU raids.

CLC President Claude Jodoin recently has struck out against Mr. Marchand, calling him "a fanatic" whose tactics are hurting both labor and national unity.

Mr. Marchand has indicated he's not interested in labor peace for its own sake.

"We aren't candy salesmen dividing up the market," he said on TV. "We are men trying to transform society. . . .

"It isn't in labor structures that unity is important. It is when the real interests of the workers are at stake and we are in agreement on objectives that central bodies should put aside their petty differences and fight together for the worker."

Mr. Marchand, 64, says labor unity in the United States—whose AFL-CIO is associated with the CLC—has only hurt workers. His view is that comfortable, unworried unions no longer are alert to membership needs.

BUS DRIVERS SWITCHED

He says the internal "no raiding" policy of CLC unions—barring any affiliate from taking members from another—leaves workers no alternative but the independent CNTU when they become dissatisfied.

In December 2,900 Montreal bus drivers who belonged to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) switched to the CNTU. So did 900 Provincial Transport Company employees. The CLC's Railway and Steamship Clerks lost 1,000 grain elevator workers in Montreal.

CNTU Secretary - Treasurer Marcel Pepin says outdated charters and poor service to the locals caused the changeovers.

He says 500 members of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association (CLC), an international local near Montreal, were easy pickings for this reason. A CLC informant confirms that the glass blowers wanted to switch to another CLC union but were not allowed.

Mostly French - speaking, these members had a U.S.-written charter that suggested—in English—that they salute the Stars and Stripes.

"They hadn't seen an international representative in two years," Mr. Pepin added in an interview.

EDIT CHARTERS

Some 180 QFL staff members met in December to tighten the organization against CNTU inroads. They decided to increase servicing, see that charters are at least bilingual and edit out Stars and Stripes-type Americanisms.

The battle isn't all going one way.

"They are raiding us right now in Sorel," Mr. Marchand said in an interview. "We know some workers are dissatisfied with local CNTU leadership. If we lose them, we deserve to."

At Sorel, the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) are trying to snatch 500 titanium workers from the CNTU and now claim a majority of the group. The Steelworkers also are raiding the CLC moulders' union to stop the CNTU from making inroads there. Steel's defiance of the no-raid policy is partly responsible for Thursday's meeting.

Another major test is on at Ste. Therese, where the CLC's Sheet Metal Workers authorized the United Auto Workers to try for its members after the CNTU started making inroads at a manufacturing plant. The UAW claims it now has a majority of the 317 members.

WANTS FREEDOM

In the TV debate, Mr. Laberge argued that labor should be trying to organize 3,400,000 unattached Quebec workers rather than warring over the organized ones.

Mr. Marchand said in an interview:

"We aren't at war with the CLC but we want to be free to organize workers when they want to change. Even if we were affiliated, we wouldn't agree to a no-raiding policy."

He believes the CLC itself may be about ready to throw out its no-raiding clause.

Meanwhile, the CNTU is thriving. It grew out of the old Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor formed in 1921 by the Roman Catholic Church as a buffer against Communism.

Its ranks reached about 45,000 before thinning in the 1930s. But the church again rallied the movement by setting up the socially advanced faculty of social sciences at Laval University in 1938.

This was the germination ground for most of the men who have wrought the great social, political and economic changes in Quebec since 1960.

KEEN DEBATER

Mr. Marchand was an early graduate of it's industrial-relations school, and is remembered as one of the keenest debaters ever to come from a faculty that has produced scores of cabinet members, business leaders and executive - level civil servants.

The CCCL changed its name in 1960, mainly to remove the word "Catholic." The name scared off potential Protestant and Jewish members in the Montreal area. And it didn't fit, since barriers to religious membership were removed in 1943. Even the word "church" was deleted from the constitution.

The new image has helped gain 60,000 new members in five years.

"That was a major reason for the change—to make headway in the Montreal area," said Mr. Pepin. "About 40 per cent of Quebec workers are there."

DENIES CHARGES

He denies the Jodoin accusation that CNTU organizers use nationalist and religious appeals to woo workers.

The CNTU flatly opposed separatism, which it says would bring disaster to Quebec labor. Mr. Marchand is a member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biliculturalism.

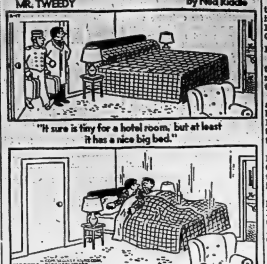
While the CLC is linked to the New Democratic Party, the CNTU constitution forbids political alliances. This has not kept it from being a political force.

It fought Premier Maurice Duplessis and lashed out at Real Caouette and his surging Creditistes in 1962. It is making almost as much trouble for Quebec's current Liberal government as for the CLC.

Some 3,200 liquor board employees have been on strike since Dec. 5, and CNTU groups in the Quebec-Hydro network are driving hard bargains with the Crown agency.

FIGHT WITH LAWYERS

In November, 28,000 civil servants gave a landslide vote to the CNTU-backed Syndicat des Fonctionnaires and now hope for permission to affiliate with the confederation.



It has set up a credit education system for members, and is fighting with the Saguenay bar over what it calls "expropriation" of troubled families by lawyers.

An experienced labor observer here says there isn't really too great a difference between the CNTU and the CLC but a merger is unlikely.

"There is one very pragmatic reason against it: The CNTU would be swallowed up by the International unions."

And the CNTU is growing so fast here it has cut back plans to organize in Ontario and the Atlantic Provinces.

"We have two or three hospital groups in Ontario, and one local in Newfoundland," says Mr. Pepin, "but we just aren't prepared to go into other provinces. We haven't the organizers."

TREE WIDESPREAD

Eastern hemlock grows from the Great Lakes region to the Maritimes, its distribution linked with the distribution of deer that seek the shade of these trees.

Auditor-General Is Taking Hard Look at How Govt. Eliminating Some Expenses

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson intends to take a hard look at how effectively the government is eliminating outdated procedures, uneconomical operations and wasteful practices.

He will embark on this new and wider field of investigation about the time he gets his auditing office geared to top production.

When he presented his annual report to the Commons Tuesday, the House's public accounts committee had already caught up with its backlog of reports.

Mr. Henderson, responsible only to the Commons and not to any government department, has been fighting for years for adequate staff to audit government departments, agencies and Crown corporations properly.

He now has two firms of solicitors under contract to give him independent legal opinions. In the past he had to seek the opinions of the justice department which, in turn, was tendering legal advice to the departments of government he was auditing.

KICKED ESTIMATES

Mr. Henderson found further cases of government building and ship construction working running far beyond original estimates, and incidents in which the government passed orders-in-council without what he regards as the proper legislative authority.

He reported this year on those among other cases:

—A locally-hired accountant in the Canadian high commission in Canberra, Australia, misappropriated funds totalling $13,539 in four years. It cost $12,000 to investigate the defalcation, and $7,033 was recovered. External affairs department is tightening up its procedures.

—The mines and technical surveys department spent $75,000 to send a photographic ship to the Caribbean when it normally would be in winter port, to help the Royal Navy chart shipping channels "no military service in kind to the Royal Navy which originally charted Canadian coastal waters."

—Prairie Farm Assistance Administration procedures and policies need careful review. Minutes are not kept of the emergency fund's review committee, and it is difficult or impossible to trace fraudulent claims for benefits.

WANTS MONEY BACK

—The navy is trying to recover $74,000 paid to seven shipyards which built 12 new destroyer escort vessels on cost - plus - fixe - per - cent-profit contracts. They earned the "excess profits" on the basis of over - estimates of the value of component parts ordered by the navy.

—A $9,000 aircraft electronic navigation device worth $15,000 in replacement value was sent to an RCAF depot for repair and mistakenly turned over to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation. It was sold for $20 and the ultimate buyer wouldn't give it back for any reasonable compensation.

—Houses and related buildings costing $143,000 at Pigeon River, Ont., abandoned and then sold for $8,142 when the area's depot moved 11 miles. Employees now drive 40 miles to and from Fort Arthur and Fort William.

—A company with a paid-up capital of $180,100 received subsidies totalling $2,363,450 to operate a ferry between Baie Verte, Nfld., and Port-aux-Pere, Que., and the government now has a second mortgage on the company's used ferry boat.

Winter Fatal For Poor Of India

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The poor of India dread the winter. For many of them it means shivering out the open for four bleak months.

Some 60 homeless people have so far died during this winter's cold blasts. Besides New Delhi, the capital, the cold has affected Amritsar, Srinagar, Ludhiana, Lucknow, Rajkot and other cities in northern India.

Officials in New Delhi place the city's homeless at 5,000. The figure is higher, say newspaper reports and opposition leaders. The death due to "exposure" — the term officially used in post-mortem reports—of 18 persons has led to angry debates in Parliament and in the municipal council.

Stung by criticism, the government's housing ministry and the municipal corporation have started a program for building what are called "night shelters." A night shelter will provide accommodation to people free of charge between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. Each person will be given two blankets and a mattress.

The Indian Service League also has built dormitories for 2,000 persons.

Ironically, not all the homeless are enthusiastic about the night shelter project. Some have refused to use the shelters because they say they lack privacy.

One 60 - year - old pavement - dweller told a social worker: "One meets all kinds of undesirable people in these shelters. Out on the pavements it may be cold, one may have to die, but one can choose one's neighbors freely."

Bishop's New Bomb

Oh Lord! He's Done It Again!

By GODFREY ANDERSON

LONDON (AP) — Dr. John Robinson, 45, Suffragan Bishop of Woolwich—the man already denounced by some as an atheist and heretic—is setting a new time-bomb to shake up the ancient Church of England.

His first test: a salary. Honest to God, brought public money from the Archbishop of Canterbury and caused the Church Times to ask whether he should remain a bishop at all. His new book, The New Reformation?

In the first book he questioned the old-conception of a God "up there in the sky" and suggested that a new theology was needed. This time he urges the church to see itself in the light of the situation it is facing in a modern world.

He sees the church today as being more concerned with buildings than souls. It is stifled in administration, he contends.

HOW TO HIT

"The big thing facing all the churches is how they can make any impact in the wilderness of a de-Christianized world," he says. "At least we are now nearer the death or organized Christianity in its present form, so perhaps we are nearer the Resurrection too."

"We must strip off all the surplus fat," Robinson says. "The task of the church is to earn itself less with buildings and institutions and work more in terms of really being the heaven, the salt, inside secular structures.

More should be done through the church taking shape around the greatest areas of human need, he says.

"Smaller groups—call them cells if you like—could meet in private houses, meeting only occasionally for collective worship in a church. As the church goes more and more into the real front line, it is the laity rather than the vicar in his pulpit on Sunday who must bear the brunt of battle."

Canning Plant Being Cleaned Up After Fire

PICTON — Clean up at the Hyatt Canning Co. plant at Cherry Valley, scene of the recent disastrous fire, has since been underway. All canned goods have been salvaged by the Continental Salvage Co. and taken to a Toronto warehouse. Those ruined were trucked to Cove Beach, used as fill and covered with earth.

Owner Ronald Hyatt stated that the matter of rebuilding is being investigated and that a decision will be made shortly. However, he stressed, the Company plans to continue its processing this year. This could be at a new plant or at their West Lake Plant.

Fortunately, at Cherry Valley, the contents of boiler and cooking sections are intact, and immediate building would require an office, warehouse and workroom section.

Mr. Hyatt spoke in appreciation of all who helped at the time of the fire, others who offered their services and the Baxter Co. which had loaned truck and labelling equipment.

MINISTERS ORGANIZE

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 ministers met in Toronto Tuesday to organize the Evangelical Fellowship of Canada, aimed at bringing evangelical groups into a closer working relationship. Secretary is Rev. Ward M. Shantz of Kitchener, Ontario superintendent for the United Missionary Church.

New Building Desired Says County Council

PICTON (Staff) — Renovation and enlargement of Shire Hall (County Buildings) has been abandoned as a County Centennial project.

Finance Committee report presented Monday said it "felt that a new building on the site of the house purchased last year (next Registry office) would be a more economical way of providing extra administration area."

An entirely new building, as such, will be dependent on the various municipalities willing to appoint the County as their agent for the Centennial Grants program.

The Finance Committee re-aged to get all municipalities to pool their grants on a county project rather than each municipality undertaking their own project. Need of more office space led to the renovation program being adopted.

Beyond adopting the report Council did not discuss the matter.

In adopting a Finance and Supply Committee recommendation, County Councillors increased their indemnities to $250 per day. The Committee's indemnity was raised to $15 per meeting. Both are plus mileage. This would bring the indemnities in line with other county councils, it was stated. Reeve Gordon Lloyd of Hillier was the only member opposed to the increase.

Council also passed a by-law to increase the wolf bounty from $25 to $55, though the Provincial Government pays only a subsidy on the $25 bounty.

It was stated other municipalities paid larger bounties and action was needed if the County is to be rid of sheep-killing wolves.

Reeve Donald Hood, South Marysburgh, said he knew of five experienced wolf hunters who refuse to hunt for the present bounty. His township paid two mills on damages to sheep last year. Wolves in South Marysburgh will move elsewhere, he warned.

Girl Guides Will Hold Church Service

PICTON (Staff) — The Girl Guides of Canada will be observing the joint birthdays of the Founder, and World Chief Guide, Lord and Lady Baden-Powell.

In Prince Edward Division this will take place on Sunday, February 21, at 2.00 p.m., in Picton United Church.

Miss Betty Anne Anderson, a Girl Guid Ranger, will be guest speaker and all Brownies, Guides and Rangers along with their Guiders are expected to be present.

A dedication of new flags will take place at this time, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt performing this ceremony.

Two Gold Cords will be presented to Judy Sharpe of Picton and Penny Hollingbury of Picton Heights, both very worthy of this award.

The collection for the World Friendship Fund is used to promote Guiding in needy countries and help many backward and new places throughout the world.

As we are a world organization "Thinking Day" is observed in order to think and pray for our sisters in other nations—as only through understanding and knowledge can we hope for peace.

This service is open to the public and Mrs. A. Hamblin, Division Commissioner, would like to invite all parents and friends of the movement to join in this colorful service.

NHL Brass Rejects Voss Charges

"Unfounded"

MONTREAL (CP) — The six governors of the National Hockey League Tuesday flatly rejected charges made against referee-in-chief Carl Voss as "entirely unfounded" and said an alleged attempt to "manipulate" the outcome of a game had been fully investigated by the league one year ago.

The statement, issued by board chairman J. D. Norris with the unanimous approval of the governors, was in reply to a press conference held last Friday by former NHL referee Eddie Powers and three other one-time NHL officials.

They presented what they claimed was evidence of manipulation of games, in particular a March 22, 1962, game at Boston with New York Rangers. New York won the game 6-3.

The statement said that at a governors' meeting Feb. 2 in New York, Powers made a number of charges and complaints against the referee-in-chief, Carl Voss, most of which had to do with an alleged attempt to "manipulate" the 1962 game "which had been investigated previously and thoroughly aired on three television programs and in the newspapers approximately one year ago.

"We are satisfied that the charge against Mr. Voss is entirely unfounded and that it is the product of the malicious distortion of a routine action given by the referee-in-chief in the course of his duties to the referee in charge of an important game."

Campbell announced several days ago he had accepted the resignation of Voss, effective at the end of the current season.

Schoolboy Curling

By DON ANGUS

FREDERICTON (CP)—Giant-killing performances by two Maritime rinks have made a five-way battle of the Canadian Schoolboy Curling Championship, which passes the halfway point today.

Tuesday's three rounds belonged to Stuart Campbell's quartet from Bridgewater, N.S., and a New Brunswick foursome skipped by Tony Richardson of Moncton as they moved into a three-way tie with Ontario for the lead with three victories apiece. Each topped a top contender from the unbeaten ranks.

Sharing the lead with Campbell and Richardson was Paul Savage's Ontario entry from the Toronto suburb of Don Mills. All three had 4-1 won-lost records. Immediately behind them were Dan Fink's Saskatchewan rink and Doug Dobry's Alberta four, with three victories in four starts.

Still in contention at 2-2 were Northern Ontario skipped by Wayne Staski of North Bay, and Manitoba, led by Grant Wuckert of Winnipeg. Prince Edward Island had three losses in four starts, followed by British Columbia and Quebec at 1-4 and Newfoundland, without a victory in five appearances.

Tuesday's fireworks began in the fourth round when Richardson drew in by inches with his last rock to shade Ontario 9-8. That turned the lead over to Fink's Regina rink, which had shaded Manitoba 9-7 in another close one for its third straight victory after a third-round bye.

SQUEEZES OUT WIN

Campbell looked after Fink in a 6-5 cliff-hanger that highlighted Tuesday night's fifth round squeezing out the win when the Saskatchewan skip failed to stay in the house with his last rock for the point that would have sent the match into an extra end.

Savage kept Ontario in the leading group by coming up with a crucial 8-number to Northern Ontario 7-6 in the final end and Richardson kept pace with a 14-4 romp over Quebec. In the other fifth-round games, Alberta's Dobry downed British Columbia 7-4 and Prince Edward Island shaded Newfoundland 7-6 in a battle of winless rinks.

Nova Scotia was the only comfortable winner in the fourth round, thumping P.E.I. 11-4. Fink seeded twos in the ninth and 10th ends to dispose of Manitoba and Richardson's New Brunswick four was one down before his pressures drew against Ontario. Northern Ontario also needed a last-end defence to knock off British Columbia 9-8 and Quebec outlasted Newfoundland 10-9.

In Tuesday morning's third round; Ontario hammered Newfoundland 12-3, New Brunswick downed British Columbia 10-5, Nova Scotia slipped past Quebec 7-5, Alberta subdued Northern Ontario 8-6 and Manitoba whipped P.E.I. 12-3.

Canadian Curling Championship

National Figures In Spectator Roles

BY THE CANADIA NPRESS

Jack Arnet, a 25 - year - old University of British Columbia skip whose rink played together in competition only once before this season, the B.C. championships, will defend his province's Canadian curling crown at the national championships opening in Saskatoon March 1.

Last year Lyall Dagg brought the national title to B.C., then went on to win the world championship in Calgary. This year Dagg had to drop out of competition — because of business pressures — a few days before the B.C. championship round opened.

Besides Dagg, other nationally prominent curlers won't be going to Saskatoon. Edmonton's Hec Gervais, veteran national contender and former titlist, lost the Alberta championship last weekend to Nick Lashuk's Calgary rink of Slim Otterson, Ken Hamilton and Don Duguid. Last year's Alberta winner, Ron Northcott, was eliminated in regional competition.

In Saskatchewan, four - time Canadian champion Ernie Richardson of Regina lost out in the city playoffs. Harold Worth of Saskatoon emerged as the provincial champion last weekend.

MANN FOURTH

Ontario's 1964 national finalist, Bob Mann of Hanover, wound up in fourth place in th provincial finals last week. Ray Grant and his Unionville rink of Al Cleary, Ray McGee and Keith Jewett won the right to advance to Saskatoon with a 6-1 record.

Ian Baird, who represented Nova Scotia in 1960, 1963 and 1964, lost out in the Atlantic provinces's final to Ron Frank in of Halifax and his teammates, Peter Corkum, John Hawkins and Laddie Farquhar.

Another 1964 national player lost in New Brunswick, where Dr. Peter Lyons of Moncton and his rink of Ken Little, Ray Gould and Ray Carey defeated Ray Turnbull of Moncton rink in the provincial playoff. Mabey formally curled for his father, J. Mabey, who represented New Brunswick last year and in 1960, 1962. The elder Mabey did not compete this year.

A Newfoundland newcomer, George MacCharles, 26, of St. John's, last week became the youngest skip ever to win the 10th province's title. Among prominent Newfoundland curlers he defeated was John Pike of Grand Falls, the 1963 provincial champion.

In Prince Edward Island, a veteran of five national championships beat last year's P.E.I. titlist, but had help from two members of the 1964 rink. Doug Cameron of Charlotte town was out over Art Burke who competed in the national final last year. Cameron's lead Bobby Dillon and mate Allan Smith curled for Burks last season.

MAKES COMEBACK

Northern Ontario's Jack Polyblank of Kirkland Lake is another national competitor who made a comeback this year. He defeated Tom Tod of Fort William with a last-end draw shot last Sunday to qualify for his third trip to the Canadian final. He represented Northern Ontario last year and in 1961.

A newcomer rink from the RCAF station at Bagotville, skipped by Vill Tracey, made a clean sweep of the provincial finals last weekend to win Quebec's representation.

In the Manitoba championship under way in Winnipeg, six former provincial winners had unfavorable records at the end of Tuesday's play. They were defending champion Bruce Hudson, Hersh Lerner, winner in 1963, Norm Houck, Mac Scales, Terry Braunstein and Bill McTavish, all from Winnipeg.

Central Pro Hockey

DETROIT (CP) — Marc Dufour of St. Paul Rangers continues to lead the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race.

In 30 games, the 22-year-old right winger has scored 33 goals and assisted on 39 for 72 points.

Mike Walton, former Toronto Marlborus star now with Tulsa Oilers, is in second spot with 64 points. He has scored 32 times and has had the same number of assists in 54 outings.

Norm Beaudin of Memphis Wings and Danie Ross of St. Paul share third place with 62 points each. Beaudin has scored 39 times and picked up 23 assists and Ross has 24 goals and 38 assists to his credit.

Superb at Home
Hotspurs Cold In Away Games

LONDON (Reuters) — Poor form away from home seems to have put Tottenham Hotspur finally out of the running for the English First Division soccer championship.

Its defeat Saturday by neighboring Fulham means it has won on opponents' grounds only once in 30 league games this season.

By contrast, the Spurs' superb home form has brought them 13 victories more than any other team in the First Division, and this alone has kept them in the picture.

Tottenham manager Bill Nicholson has spent more than £275,000 this year striving to build a team that can recapture the flavor of 1961, when the Spurs achieved the coveted double—winning the Football Association Cup and the league championship. The following year they again won the Association Cup, and in 1963 captured the European Cup Winners' Cup.

The retirement of wing-half Danny Blanchflower, "general" of this side of master tacticians, and the accidental death of talented inside-forward John Sanchez left gaps in the ranks have been hard to fill.

Nicholson, determined to win the English honors that would put Spurs into the European trophy circuit, paid £40,000 for Mike England, Alan Brown, £70,000 for wing-half Alan Mullery, £25,000 for left-winger Jimmy Robertson, £45,000 for left-back Cyril Knowles, £25,000 for goalkeeper Pat Jennings and £72,500 for centre-forward Alan Gilzean.

But with a road record in league play of one win, four ties and 10 losses, Tottenham cannot approach Saturday's fifth round Association Cup tie at Chelsea with bounding confidence.

Chelsea, Leeds and Manchester United have hopes of the cup and league double. All three won last Saturday. Chelsea beat talented Blackburn Rovers 3-0.

Chelsea has lost only one away league match this season.

Cheevers Top AHL Goalie

The damage inflicted on his record by Quebec Aces' 7-1 bombing of Rochester Americans didn't show in the weekly statistics released by the AHL today. But Cheevers still has permitted 16 goals fewer than his nearest competitor since 11 his league - leading average of 2.48 goals a game before the Quebec debacle has taken on a little weight.

The scoring race remains an intramural affair between Art Stratton and Len Lunde of Buffalo Bisons. Stratton leads his teammate in points, 77 to 75, and tops the league in assists with 52. Lunde is the leading goal-getter with 38.

Junior Colleges Held up by Disagreement

TORONTO (CP) — Disagreement between Ontario universities and the provincial government over a proposed system of junior colleges has resulted in the delay of an announcement on the system by the government, it was reported Tuesday.

Eva Gerstein, a member of the advisory committee on university affairs, said in an interview that the government will indication of the system and finally make some statement as serious reservations expressed to its intentions on the system by the presidents on its success within 12 months.

A committee of university presidents is expected to state its position early next week. Disagreement arose over jurisdiction of the system under the jurisdiction of the department of university affairs. But in early January, Education Minister William Davis told a press conference the colleges would be governed by the special schools and services branch of the department of education.

Praise Canadian Conductor

LONDON (CP)—London music critics, sounding an unaccustomed note of envy for what they usually consider as the uncultured north of England, gave high praise recently to the visiting Northern Sinfonia Orchestra conducted by Canadian Boris Brott, 30.

Hugo Cole of The Guardian, noting that London has no permanent chamber orchestra, said the north is "lucky" to have such a group "and a real conductor."

Cole said Brott, also assistant conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, "allowed the music to unfold at admirably judged speeds and with an apparently infallible ear for dynamics and textures."

Noel Goodwin of The Daily Express said the orchestra, based at Newcastle upon Tyne, has established itself as a keen and stylish ensemble and "it is high time that London had a chance to hear this orchestra in more sympathetic surroundings." The concert was given in the rather cramped quarters of Friends' House in downtown London.

"Mr. Brott shows consistently skill in bringing a positive character to the music he performs," Goodwin wrote, "and in getting an alert response from the orchestra."

Eric Mason of The Daily Mail, saying that the orchestra is "successfully irrigating what used to be a cultural desert in the north," praised the orchestra's "smooth corporate tone and ensemble."

The Daily Telegraph critic said Brott, joint principal con-doctor of the group, who commutes to his conducting job in Toronto, "is an alert and sensitive musician" and "has excellent command of the orchestra."

Minor Hockey

Games were played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's novice, midget and juvenile divisions last night.

OMHA playdown games in the midget and juvenile sections are slated for 7.00 and 8.30 here at Memorial Arena tonight. Kingston meets Belleville in both games, and Picton clashes with Belleville Riteways in a novice exhibition at 5.30.

NOVICE

Rangers blanked the Wings 8-0. Paul Ackerman paced the attack with three goals while Andy Ricketts hit for two. Mike Fleiger, Dale Bamber and Billy Thompson also scored.

MIDGET

Canadiens nipped the Elks' Hawks 6-5 with D. MacCormack and R. Day triggering two goals each. S. Lee had the only assist. T. Wellesley scored two and J. McKenzie one in defeat. J. Cole and B. Gibbons got assists.

Leafs shaded the-Red Wings in a game marred by penalties. R. Ellis got three goals and an assist and R. Rosebush two of each to lead the Leafs. S. Thorne also scored. Wing marksmen were L. Lloyd, W. Mair, K. Allen, D. Atkinson, and M. Wardhaugh. K. Lang had two assists and H. Selles one.

D. Atkinson of the Wings, who picked up two minors, drew a misconduct and match penalty, teammate Vinkle got a misconduct and match penalty, and the team coach, also an Atkinson, was assessed a match penalty. Wayne Garrison and Dafoe, of the Leafs, also got misconduct sentences. The BMHA will likely investigate the matter.

JUVENILE

Scoring a goal each for the Aces were Tomaso, Chrtien, Salter, Ruttan, O'Donoghue, Hannah and MacDonald. Hannah got two assists, Ruttan and Tomaso one apiece.

Gregory was a two-goal man for OSD, while Mooney, Stewart, Ullet and Warren also scored. Cripps had three assists, Mooney two and Meany one.

CANCEL PLAY

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans have been cancelled for a Montreal presentation of The Deputs, the Rolf Hochhuth play which condemns Pope Pius XII for not speaking out publicly against the Nazi massacre of the Jews. A spokesman for Rondeen Associates Limited, the company which booked the show, said the cancellation was caused "by the lack of response and complete indifference of the public."

Nationals Defeat Finns 4-2

From AP-Reuters

TAMPERE, Finland (CP) — The first platoon of Canada's entry in the 1965 world hockey champion ships defeated the Finnish national team 4-2 Tuesday.

The game, first in an eight-game exhibition tour for the Canadians, took place in the newly - completed indoor stadium where the world championships will be played March 4-14.

The Canadian squad, largely made up of players from Winnipeg Maroons, 1964 Canadian senior champions, had only two men who are definite choices for the team that will represent Canada in the world tournament — goaltender Don Collins and defenceman Bill Johnson.

A second platoon will fly overseas March 1, made up of first - string players who were unable to spare the 32 days from work or university studies required to participate both in the eight-game exhibition series and the tournament proper.

Elliott Chorley, a 33-year-old right wingman from Winnipeg, scored twice for the Canadians, who also had goals from centre Aggie Kukulowicz and defenceman Tom Marshall.

Oldtimers Can Help Nationals

The national team's advance party is already in Europe for an exhibition tour.

Rev. David Bauer, adviser to the Canadian team, said the NHL Old Timers will give the national team an insight into the type of opposition it will meet at the world tournament which begins March 4.

"The Old Timers play the type of game we see in Europe," Father Bauer said. "They have tremendous puck control."

What causes BACKACHE and how it may be helped

One widespread recurring form of discomfort is what is commonly called backache. One frequent cause of backache can be traced to sluggish kidney action. This condition often may result in irritation of the urinary system, followed by backache and tired feeling.

Based on a formula introduced over 70 years ago, Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys to help overcome the irritated condition, and so bring relief from the backache and tired feeling. Dodd's Kidney Pills are available at any drug counter in the blue box with the red band. The important thing to look for is the name. You can depend on Dodd's.

Junior D Playoffs

"A" series pits Tweed against the first-place finishers, the Wellington Dukes.

"B" set sees Stirling tangle with Bancroft.

The semi-finals are three-of-five series and each game must be played to a finish. If the teams are tied at the end of regulation time, a ten-minute overtime will be played, to be followed by sudden-death play if necessary.

Tweed will play at Wellington this Friday night to open "A" series. All games in this set will start at 8.30 p.m. Other games are at Tweed on February 20, at Wellington on February 24, at Tweed on February 27 and at Wellington on March 1.

Stirling starts the other series at Bancroft on Sunday, February 21. That game is scheduled for 2.30 in the afternoon, with all others set for 8.30 starts. Other games in the series will be played at Stirling on Feb. 22 and 24, at Bancroft on February 26 and at Stirling on March 1.

The winners will meet in a four-of-seven series for the group title, and the right to advance in OHA Junior "D" playdowns. The group must declare a winner by March 16.

Twin Title Fights Set Garden Record

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe the doubleheader is the answer to boxing's future. Madison Square Garden has lined up light-heavyweight and welterweight title fights for the same March 30 show. It has another twin bill in the drawing board for May.

Not even Nat Fleischer, the ring historian, can remember two title fights in the Garden the same night. He recalls the ill-fated Carnival of Champions promoted by Mike Jacobs at the Polo Grounds in 1937 when four championship fights were staged. He also remembers the 1962 triple title show in Los Angeles during which Davey Moore was fatally injured.

Jacobs almost lost his shirt with the 1937 outdoor show because of hefty guarantees to lightweight champ Lou Ambers for a scrap with Pedro Montanez, Barney Ross fought Ceferino Garcia, Marcel Thil met Fred Apostoli and Harry Jeffra took on Ziete Escobar on the same card. The show drew $2,800, paying $222,644, but it lost money.

No matter how much the March 30 show draws, light-heavyweight king Willie Pastrano gets a guaranteed $100,000, welter weight champion Emile Griffith $70,000 and Jose Torres and Joe Stable $10,000 each. The Garden figures on a $200,000 gate at a $20 top, plus a big chunk from the closed-circuit showing by theatre network television. The New York area will be blacked out.

By a unique arrangement, Torres' financial adviser has agreed to make up any difference between Pastrano's 30 per cent of the take and his $100,000 guarantee for a light heavyweight title defence. Griffith will be fighting his 11th championship bout when he defends against Stable in the companion 15-rounder.

Harry Markson, boxing director of the Garden, already is making plans for another doubleheader in May. One of the bouts might be a rematch between Floyd Patterson and George Chuvalo.

Rex Harrison One Dropout Who Has Solved Problem

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—All school dropouts have the same problem—finding a job suited to their ability.

Rex Harrison is one dropout who seems to have solved the problem satisfactorily. Forty years after he quit the halls of learning at 16 to join a Liverpool repertory company, he command a small fortune—or a large one.

At 56, happily married to British actress Rachel Roberts and acclaimed for his performance in My Fair Lady, Rex is riding on Cloud No. 9.

"I enjoy life—not a great kick out of it," he remarked.

It is a pleasure to see an Englishman enjoy himself, particularly in this generation. And when Harrison enjoys himself, he lets it all the way. Chuckles, removes his horn-rimmed glasses, then throws laughter like a schoolboy.

SYMBOLIZES CHARM

The lanky actor, who portrays an English aristocrat in his latest movie, The Yellow Rolls-Royce, has become almost a symbolization of urbane charm and debonair sophistication.

This amuses him, for he is more sure of what sophistication isn't than what it is.

"I don't fear to be sophisticated," he observed. If you try, you're dead.

"I've found the real sophisticates generally live in the most simple manner. They find that life more satisfactory.

"There are many people who superficially lead sophisticated lives, but who aren't sophisticated at all. The frills and chi-chi don't make one sophisticated.

"Sophistication is a misnomer. It sounds like you are always drinking champagne poured by servants. I'm not that way at all. I usually draw my own cork."

ENJOYS EATING

"I like to sit and drink and talk with friends. I enjoy eating very much . . . English food: Stews and roasts and beef and kidney pie. England has damned good fish, too.

"I like immensely taking exercise, because it makes me better. . . .

"I hate the mornings . . . any morning . . . because I was trained so many years in the theatre to come to life at night at 8.

"A lot of things bore me. Not working bores me, or not having something I'm anxious to do. Pretentiousness bores me, and people who are bored bore me. So does three-letter words.

"Basically, I don't like moving about—and I've never stopped moving. I love about. It's a terrible drag. I would like to want not to stay put—and I will more and more do so.

"My philosophy? It's quite simple: Live for the moment—tomorrow is for dying."

For Second Time

Bobby Orr Sets Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins will have to wait another 13 months before they can make a National Hockey League out of Bobby Orr but the 18-year-old defenceman keeps giving the perennial NHL tail-enders tantalizing glimpses of better things to come.

His latest achievement Tuesday night was a goal in Toronto Maple Leafs' 9-5 tie with Toronto Marlboros that gave him 21 goals this season and enabled him to break the scoring record for defencemen in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series for the second year in a row.

The record, achieved by the second - place Marlboros when Brit Selby scored his third goal of the game with one second remaining, prevented them from catching Niagara Falls Flyers for a share of the league lead.

Orr, a native of Parry Sound who starred briefly for the NHL until his 18th birthday in March, 1966, joined the Generals in mid-season after being cut from the Bruins' training camp. Last season he scored 31 goals in the 56-game schedule to break the previous mark of 22, set the year before by Jacques Laperriere of Montreal.

His goal Tuesday night, a 25-foot shot that went into the right-hand corner of the net, touched off a demonstration from his teammates and the 3,803 fans.

Centre Brian McDonald scored three goals for Hawks. Ken Hodge, Bob Sicinski and Ross Richter scored the others. Montreal scorers were Christian Bordeleau with two and Lucien Grenier.

Greatest Story Ever Told Said Best Film on Bible

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Throughout his long history with The Greatest Story Ever Told, George Stevens has striven to avoid the usual trappings of a commercial motion picture.

Because he felt the Christ story should not be treated like any other film venture, the producer-director has refused to discuss casts, contracts and other business matters. The publicity campaign has been muted.

Tonight's premiere in Hollywood will be conducted without the accompaniment of searchlights.

But, with the openings here and in New York, The Greatest Story Ever Told has entered the marketplace. It now is available for public viewing at a price ($3.75 top here) and hence must be appraised in terms of commerce as well as art.

BEST FILM ON BIBLE

Stevens' film is a soaring achievement. It is the best film ever made from a biblical theme. It also is a flawed masterpiece.

Pictorially, the film is everything Stevens hoped to achieve. His cameras command the magnificence of Western America. He works with lights and shadows, rather than exploiting the brilliant hues that most color movies possess.

Costumes, cities and landscapes are largely in desert shades of beige and brown. No hint of color intrudes, except for dramatic purpose, as in the scarlet of Mary Magdalene's dress or the brilliance of the resurrection sunrise.

The second most notable feature of The Greatest Story Ever Told is the performance of Max Von Sydow. His may be the definitive portrayal of Jesus, being wise and powerful but with a deep well of spirituality and mysticism. His face seldom admits to his ego or express the feeling.

In all other respects, the film reflects the art and reverence that has been invested in it. Some sequences are inspired, notably the dialogue with the devil in the wilderness, the tender scenes with John the Baptist, the ousting of moneychangers from the temple.

The other side will find the film a theatre. Some of the scenes are inescapably tableaux, despite Stevens' efforts to keep them alive. The guestelarrings, notably John Wayne's, add a jarring note of recognizability.

Perhaps the major drawback was one Stevens faced on himself. Jesus' dialogue is limited to selections from the Scriptures. Nothing has been added to the exalted words, but the limitation divorces the central figure from some of the dramatic hyplay.

Despite these matters, the balance weighs heavily in favor of The Greatest Story Ever Told.

Royal Shakespeare Group Gives Skilful Readings

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Put an ait upon the pomp and mill and stories of the death of King," was the Shakespeare borrower summons on CBS' The Hollow Crown, Tuesday night.

For the next hour, we were regaled, not only with stories of royal death, but with royalty's most glorious lines, delivered in a bit of music composed by James I and some company.

It was the first of a two-part reading of the Royal Shakespeare Company, taped in England, by four skilful performers.

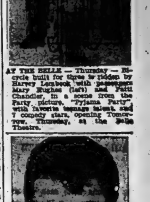
The program opened with an extravagant and passionate defence of Mary, Queen of Scots, written by Jane Austin when she was 15, full of hate for Elizabeth I and a wild partisan of the Yorks in the long-gone War of the Roses.

IS FASCINATING

It was filled with fascinating material—a formal proposal of marriage by Henry VIII, a poignant but proud letter to Henry from Ann Boleyn, accused of his wife's death before her execution, even a roefful little poem by Elizabeth I, mourning the days "when I was young and fair."

The comedy highlight was a proposal to marriage — also of Henry VII on the physical appearance of the Queen of Naples —whom he did not marry.

The second part, to be broadcast next month, will deal with weavers of the Crown from Charles II to Victoria.



Lucille Ball, in nobody's surprise, will return to CBS for another season. The big question is when. Her new comedy side kick now that Vivian Vance wants to take life easier.

Masked Gunman Steals $2,000, Wounds Chaser

TORONTO (CP)—A masked gunman stole about $2,000 from a trust company Tuesday and then fired five shots, one of which injured the manager slightly on a rebound.

The agile bandit leaped over a counter, scooped up stacks of bills and then shot at Ronald Homes, 35, who tried to interfere.

One bullet hit a wooden partition and then smashed into Holmes' elbow, causing a large bruise. Two more bullets missed.

Holmes kept coming. The gunman ran out of the British Mortgage and Trust Company office and along the street and Holmes chased him.

The robber fired two shots which missed and disappeared in traffic.

OPPOSES TREND

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, 72, Toronto, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, said Sunday the Christian church should oppose the discount stores' trend to a seven - day commercial week. He said in an interview that longer business hours adopted by the larger stores are forcing proprietors of smaller ones to sacrifice family life to meet the competition.

Chrysler Strike Shows No Sign Of Settlement

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A strike of some 7,000 workers at Chrysler Canada Limited plants here continues with no indications from company or the United Automobile Workers (UAW) when contract talks will be resumed.

Company and union negotiators met at a committee level have not met since Thursday, the last time involved in the strike that started Jan. 28 have yet to reach the main bargaining teams.

The latest issue to cloud the bargaining atmosphere is a charge by the union made last weekend that the company is using "strike - breaking tactics" by importing United States - manufactured automobiles" during the strike.

The union made the charge to Prime Minister Pearson and asked the government to intervene and prohibit "improper use of the new tariff treaty."

MAKES CHARGE

The letter said that cars are being imported duty-free under provisions of the new Canada-U.S. tariff agreement and that this nullifies collective bargaining processes.

The company says the implications in the charges made by the union are both false and misleading.

"We can only repeat again that there is no point at issue in negotiations with Local 444 that responsible bargaining would not solve," a company statement said.

It was learned through independent sources that the production of Chrysler - built cars in Canada since the strike has totalled more than 6,300 cars. The number of cars imported by Chrysler Canada in the estimated at not more than one-tenth the lost production total.

The strike involves the workers at three plants and Walker Metals Limited, a Chrysler subsidiary.

In addition, some 150 of the 1,300 office workers have been laid off and picket lines have been set up for the first time in one of the company's main administration buildings. Chrysler plants in other Ontario cities not affected.

Main issues involve representation, overtime, job opportunities and production standards.

Road Costing $55,000 Now Used by Only Two Workers Report of Auditor Shows

OTTAWA (CP) — An access road to a light and fog alarm station at Chatham, B.C., 100 miles northwest of Vancouver, cost the federal government more than $55,000 and is used by only two workers, Auditor-General M a x well Henderson observes in his annual report to Parliament, tabled Tuesday.

Before 1963 the department of transport station was serviced by coast guard vessels, the report says. When the department decided to establish a meteorological observing station at the same site, it was decided in 1961 that economies would result from building an access road.

But after the road job was well under way, the plans for the meteorological station were cancelled.

The Chatham case is one of 35 instances of non - productive payments reported by the auditor - general for his report on government spending in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1964. He notes that this compares with 37 such cases reported in the previous year's report. Many relate to construction delays and there are some for abandoned work.

PAY CONSULTANTS

One of the largest such payments, $194,982, was for fees to consultants for an abandoned project at Frobisher Bay in the Northwest Territories.

In 1963, the U.S. government decided to withdraw its Strategic Air Command operations from Frobisher and its facilities were taken over by Canada, eliminating the need for the planned buildings.

The consultants were instructed to stop work on plans for the second phase and in December, 1963, they were told it was being abandoned. Payments totalling $194,982 were made up to March 31, 1964, for completion of 85 per cent of the design work.

The report also related the case of 630 magnetrons ordered for the RCAF in 1959 at a ceiling price of $454,545.

After 432 units had been received and accepted, the RCAF cancelled the contract. However, the contractor claimed and was paid the full ceiling price of $454,545 since he had manufactured, or partly manufactured, all 630 units in accordance with specifications.

In 1956 an auditor was dismissed by the Unemployment Insurance Commission because of irregularities in his expense accounts. A provision in the Civil Service Act at that time required that dismissal be authorized by order-in-council. This authorization wasn't obtained.

In 1962 the auditor sued for $22,675 for loss of income and $25,000 for unlawful interference with his employment. The case was settled out of court with payments of $4,000 to the auditor and $500 to his solicitors.

Two unproductive expenditures were on land purchases for rental housing. In 1961 the treasury board approved a plan for a bulk leasing arrangement for 50 housing units for army personnel stationed at Carp, near Ottawa. Before the idea was abandoned in 1963, the government had spent $12,331 for purchase of land at nearby Almonte and $6,627 for survey, soil investigation, services and heating design. The land has been turned over to Central Mortgage and Housing for disposal.

A similar project was approved in 1961 for Perth, near Ottawa. The land was purchased for $7,432 but the idea was abandoned when it was found that no one was ready to provide housing except at rents also above those for accommodation already available in the area. CMHC had also been asked to dispose of this land.

Other unproductive payments cited by the report included $149,883 in "additional payments to a contractor for construction delays in a communications installation at North Bay. The contract was let in 1959. Delays were attributed to time required for a policy decision on whether to cancel or complete the project, complexity of the job which caused difficulty in scheduling sub - contract work, delay in providing the contractor with working construction drawings.

FBI And RCMP Join Many-City Terrorist Hunt

Dynamite Plot Hatched At Meeting in Quebec

NEW YORK (AP)—New York police, the FBI and the RCMP sought possible additional members today of the thwarted terrorist plot to dynamite the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Authorities refused to comment on reports the search had spread to Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Toronto and Montreal.

With the aid of Raymond Wood, 31, a Negro undercover policeman, the dynamite scheme was uncovered Tuesday. Police arrested three American Negroes and a blonde Canadian and charged them with attempting to blow up the three national shrines.

Twenty-two sticks of dynamite, said to have been imported from Canada by one of the four, Michelle Duclos, 28, of Montreal, were seized.

"We know they have made contacts in other cities," Police Commissioner Michael Murphy said of the four. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

RCMP WON'T COMMENT

RCMP sources in Ottawa said they would say nothing on Commissioner Murphy's statements, and that any comments on the case would have to come from New York as the people were arrested there and now are being held.

The four accused, in addition to Miss Duclos, a Montreal television commentator, are Rudolf S. Collier, 28, said to be the leader of the group; Walter A. Bowe, 32, a supporter of the now-defunct Fair Play for Cuba Committee; and Khaleel Sharrieff, 22, a former engineering student who also is charged with disorderly conduct for demonstrating in front of the United Nations Building last December.

Miss Duclos is white, the other three are Negroes. They were held in bails ranging from $50,000 to $100,000 each.

The United Nations also may figure in the story.

Murphy said Wood, the undercover agent, made his first contact with the alleged conspirators as UN party given by the Cuban delegation.

Also, Miss Duclos, who only last month sought without success a job at the UN, was re-

Current Session Year Old

This is the 217th sitting day for the House of Commons, already well ahead of the previous record session of 174 days in 1960-61.

Another round of debate is scheduled on the proposed federal labor code which has been bogged down for two days on a single one of its 54 clauses, the one setting out maximum working hours.

Wednesday, critics of the labor code's hours-of-work provision ran into a determined stand by Labor Minister Mac-Eachen.

After listening to a string of demands that certain industries be exempted from this section of the code, Mr. MacEachen made it crystal clear that he will not agree to any total exemptions.

He said MPs "should bear in mind that a bill of this kind is bound to effect chances."

USELESS WITHOUT CHANGE

"If it were not intended to effect changes' it would be useless for me to ask me not to interfere with the status quo, as was done last night, because that is the purpose of this measure."

Then the minister dealt with repeated requests for exemption of the trucking industry.

He said he realizes truckers have special troubles in complying immediately with the eight - hour day and 40 - hour week set out in the bill. These would be eased by the provisions for long - term deferments and the setting of special standards.

But in rejecting the idea of total exemption for truckers, Mr. MacEachen stated his case as sternly and bluntly in these words:

"The hours of work in the US Will Strike at North Viet Nam Targets Without Waiting for Specific Red Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam to establish a pattern.

This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy, a week after the first series of air strikes against North Vietnamese infiltration targets.

Johnson told a conference of businessmen here the people of South Viet Nam are under attack "that is controlled and that is directed from outside their country," a reference to the U.S. contention that the Communist guerrillas are directed by North Viet Nam. He said:

"We must all understand that we will persist in the defence of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. strategic objective in strikes at bases in the North is to convince the Communist leaders in Hanoi Viet Nam that they cannot win the war in the south except at the risk of destruction of their own economy.

There is hope in official quarters here and in other allied capitals that at some point negotiations for settlement will become possible on terms which would put an end to the Communist drive against South Viet Nam and would secure that country's independence — perhaps under some kind of neutralization or nonaligned agreement.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

Minister Waits Move By Doctors

LONDON (Reuters) — Health Minister Kenneth Robinson today awaited the next move from the British Medical Association council in a dispute that threatens a mass walkout by family doctors from the country's socialized medicine setup.

Robinson said Wednesday night that he is ready to hold immediate talks with the council to find a solution to the dispute over demands by 23,000 family doctors for a major wage increase and improved working conditions.

"I don't think it will come to the kind of showdown some people are talking about," he said. "I believe both sides want to find a solution, and I am ready to talk at any time."

There was no immediate response in his proposal from the council, which served notice on the Labor government Wednesday that doctors would withdraw from the National Health Service unless their demands are met.

University Heads Reject Idea of Junior Colleges

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's university presidents have opposed establishment of a province - wide network of 30 colleges offering higher technical and general education that would be an alternative to university for Grade 12 graduates.

A report to Education Minister William Davis by the Ontario Committee of University Presidents suggests in effect a third school system separate from the elementary and secondary schools and the universities.

Mr. Davis said Wednesday he had received the report and studies are nearing completion. A plan is expected to be presented to the legislature within a year.

The presidents rejected the idea of junior colleges on the United States pattern as a rejection of a bridge between high school and the later years of university.

The colleges, one in each of the 30 Ontario cities with more than 20,000 population, would be similar to Toronto's Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and the Lakehead College of Arts, Science and Technology at Port Arthur.

The presidents proposed administration of the college system by the new department of university affairs. Mr. Davis suggested early last month that projected community colleges would come under the special schools' branch of the education department.

The education minister's special study committee on Grade 13 supported a community college system in a report last June. The government's advisory committee on university affairs backed the idea.

However, there have been disagreements over the precise role of the proposed colleges. Some experts envisaged the colleges as regional stepping stones to university for Grade 12 graduates—Grade 13 is necessary for university entrance —but others see them as an alternative to university for students who want more practical concentration on technical, scientific and artistic skills.

The university presidents opposed a provincial college system that would be a mere extension of high school on one hand and a means of "mass accreditation" for the university on the other.

The university presidents said the curriculums at the various provincial colleges should not necessarily be identical. They could stress training in skills required in the local community—chemical engineering in Sarnia, for example, or laboratory technical training in big hospital centres.

The report foresaw colleges with enrolments of about 850 each to start, rising to 2,000, and serving communities with a population of about 80,000 in a 30-mile radius.

The colleges should exercise considerable regional autonomy through boards independent of the local school board.

The province and the local municipalities would be responsible for financing the colleges, but tuition would not be free. A system of assistance should be set up for students requiring financial help.

Inspector Wanted to Set Trap

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP Inspector Jean - Paul Drapeau testified today he thought the police investigation into attempted bribery allegations against Raymond Denis started out wrong but he had to follow orders.

He told the Dorion judicial inquiry that he thought of setting a trap by having Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne meet Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister, and "see what was said between the two."

Insp. Drapeau said he told a colleague of his Aug. 19 that was when he received his instructions following allegations by Mr. Lamontagne that Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to bail for Lucien Rivard, Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. government, seeking extradition of Rivard on narcotics charges.

Year-a-year Reduction Will Start Next Year

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Future old-age pensioners got a break from the government Wednesday with an announcement from Prime Minister Pearson that the qualifying age will be lowered over a five-year period until, in 1970, the pension will be paid at 65.

The $75-a-month old age security pension now is paid at age 70. Next year it will be paid at age 69, the following year at age 68 and so on.

The change will take the form of an amendment to the Canada Pension Plan, which will come before Parliament again in a few days after being examined through 51 sittings by a joint parliamentary committee. The old age security program, although separate from the proposed CPP, is being meshed in with the plan to some degree.

Until Wednesday's announcement, the plan would have provided for the old age security benefit to be paid between the age of 65 and 70, but on a reduced basis. By 1970, persons age 65 would have been able to draw a security payment of $81 a month, instead of the $75 they now will get.

Under the wage-related CPP, contributors can get maximum benefits of $104 a month when the plan reaches maturity in 1976.

COST UP $138,000 000.

A government spokesman estimated that the changes by 1970 will cost $167,000,000 a year, more than the current old age security program as contained in the pension plan legislation.

Dr. Joseph Willard, deputy minister of welfare, estimated that its first year of operation—1965—the age - reducing plan would cost $23,000,000.

However, a portion of the additional benefits being paid out will be recovered through income taxes. Mr. Pearson announced that the $500 additional exemption now given to persons over 65 will also be changed over the five-year period, so it will apply to those under age 70 by 1970.

A spokesman said this will have little effect on those persons who depend to a large degree on the benefits for their livelihood. But it would take much of the advantage away from the relatively well-off.

While Wednesday's announcement does give added benefits

School Boards Aided

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial grants will be made this year to help Ontario school boards provide text books for students in grades 11 and 12, Education Minister William Davis announced Wednesday.

The grants will be $20 a pupil in the first year but will be cut to $10 a pupil in 1966 after school boards build up a stock of books that will not have to be replaced.

Mr. Davis said that while the grants may cover the total cost of books in some areas, his department expects most school boards to supplement the provincial subsidies.

The move is an extension of a program started in 1964 when grants of $12 a pupil were made for text books for students in grades 9 and 10. That grant has been cut by half this year.

The department said the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation plans to set up a joint committee to evaluate the program.

INCREASE OTHER GRANT

Mr. Davis also announced that the grant for supplying library books to elementary schools will be increased to $3 a pupil from $1.

A number of other changes also have been made in the department's grants structure. One of these will extend to virtually all school boards a grant for renovations which is available at present only to boards in rural municipalities and small urban areas.

Sir Asps (PC—Kingston) told the house the government should ensure that existing legislation was enforced before it begins to liberalize them.

Mrs. Apps said that as chairman of the legislature's select committee on youth, he was concerned to hear. Petre Reaume (L—Essex North) advocate liberalization of the laws.

Before the committee had been told that youths under 21 had little difficulty in obtaining liquor by buying it themselves, having others buy it for them, or by purchasing

Assembly Faces Dangerous Session With Albania Forcing a Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly today faced a tricky and dangerous session in which tiny Albania could force an East-West showdown all other members want to avoid.

The Albanian delegation vowed to renew its bid to end the veto paralysis that has long maintained a precarious truce in the UN's long peace-keeping dispute.

In effect the Albanians—close allies of the Communist Chinese — were pushing the United States and Russia headlong into a confrontation that both had tried to avoid.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Another very rapidly moving storm is expected to move south of the Great Lakes tonight. This is expected to result in mainly cloudy weather in southern Ontario today with a period of light snow tonight and partial clearing on Friday. Temperatures will remain colder than those of the past few days.

Today's Chuckle

Albanian delegate Halim Budo launched off the new crisis Thursday by demanding a return to normal voting procedures. This was challenged the United States to put up or shut up in its promise that on the first formal assembly vote, it would challenge the voting rights of the Soviet Union, France and a number of other countries refusing to pay peace-keeping dues.

Assembly President Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana averted an immediate showdown Wednesday by adjourning the meeting. Ways suggested since to avoid the showdown have revolved on a possible postponement of today's meeting.

But late Wednesday night, sources in the African and Asian groups said the decision for delay had been reached.

It was reliably learned that Budo had met with Russian and other delegations, had shown itself just as anxious to prevent a showdown as the West.

The Western Latin American and African groups meanwhile held separate caucuses to discuss ways out of the crisis.

The aim was to find a procedure to dispose of a few items on the agenda that would have to be dealt with over a long adjournment — possibly until September — during which the peace-keeping tangle could be sorted out.

Several possible formulas were circulating, all involving comlicated procedural twists.

The chief remaining item of business is to provide for interim financing of the UN in the absence of a regular budget.

As planned, Secretary-General U Thant would have been empowered to spend through this year at a rate not exceeding last year's expenditures, and members would have been urged to make advance payments of not less than 80 per cent of last year's assessments.

Some delegates said they doubted that interim financing could be authorized without facing up to the Albanian demand for a vote.

At the bottom of the whole dispute is the Russian and French argument that only the Security Council has jurisdiction in peace-keeping matters, and that they cannot be forced to pay peace-keeping assessments voted by the assembly.

The planned long adjournment was to have given the time for negotiations on both the debts problem and the question of how future forces would be raised and financed.

India Says Arrests in December Foiled Reds' Plans for Uprising

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government charged today that pro-Chinese Communists were plotting a Cuban-style revolution before mass arrests crushed an extensive Communist underground.

Guerrilla warfare instructions written by Premier Chou En-lai, son of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's top aides, were being circulated in preparation for a revolt in the countryside, the government said.

The charges were made in a lengthy statement laid before Parliament by Home Minister G. L. Nanda in his first detailed public explanation of why the government arrested about 900 pro-Chinese Communists beginning Dec. 30.

The government is convinced, Nanda said, that the Communists pose a crucial threat to "vital interests of the nation." Communists and other leftist opponents of Prime Minister Shastri's regime charge the government decimated the Communist organization to prevent the Reds from winning what appeared to be a sure victory in the March 4 elections in their stronghold of Kerala State on the southeast coast.

The Communists were arrested under the so-called Defence of India Rules that have been in force since the start of the Chinese invasion of India in 1962.

Nanda's statement said the Calcutta area of poverty-stricken West Bengal state was to be the starting point for the Communist plot. It said that it was here that Guevara's pamphlet Guerrilla Warfare — a Means was circulated.

Nanda recalled how the Communists captured two tribal districts of south-central India in 1948 and amid much bloodshed set up a revolutionary government.

"It is this grim and tragic tale that the Communists were attempting to repeat," his statement said.

Nanda left no doubt that the government feels the over-all strategic direction came from China.

He added: "The evidence of left (pro-Peking) Communist plans to launch a violent revolutionary struggle—which they hope will synchronize with a fresh Chinese thrust on our borders—cannot be lightly brushed aside."

Nanda said the pro-Peking Communists support China, during the 1962 border war with India and split away from the pro-Soviet Communists at the order of the Chinese leaders.

Nanda said that when police raiding parties stormed their organization throughout India, the Communists had secret underground hideouts set up to hide important party officials and finance anti-government activities.

Opposition members of Parliament charged Nanda timed the publication of his statement to blunt parliamentary criticism of the government over the language controversy now sweeping the country.

There have been bloody riots in minority language areas against New Delhi's plan to impose Hindi as the nation's official language.

Meanwhile, anti-Hindi demonstrations broke out in five cities in Kerala State and all—including the capital of Trivandrum—were paralyzed by general strikes. No deaths were reported.

About 60 persons died last week in neighboring Madras State during widespread riots.

Linton D. Read Will Be Principal of Moira School

A fifteen-year veteran of the local high school teaching staffs and vice-principal for several years, Mr. Linton D. Read has been named principal of Moira Secondary School with duties to commence next September.

Mr. Read will succeed James Musgrove as Moira Secondary principal, with Mr. Musgrove to head the fourth Bay of Quinte District high school now under the planning stage.

At the same time Harry Birmingham is named as vice-principal at Moira, also with duties to commence next September.

STAGGERED CLASSES

Also named as vice principal was Moira Secondary School teacher Gerald Bowes, who will act as a second vice-principal at Belleville Collegiate for one year during the period of staggered classes starting next September.

The staggered classes at BCI are expected to be in effect until the new high school is completed.

Last night's meeting of the high school board was lengthy with discussion centered mainly around the planning of the 4th new high school.

The board took recognition of the city council resolution on Monday asking that separate tenders be called for both a 900-seat auditorium and a 1,300-seat auditorium in connection with the new high school.

The board will ask their architect to provide an estimate of the cost of separate plans and separate tenders for the two auditorium sizes.

WILL HAVE CAFETERIA

But the new high school will have a regular cafetria instead of a battery of automated vending machines which at one time had been suggested. The idea of vending machines was turned down in favor of the regular cafeteria.

The board took membership in the Urban and Rural School Trustees Association and also in the Trustees Council.

Board member Grant Kerr was named as transportation committee chairman to succeed the late Clifford Barber.

And the long standing regulation "No smoking" in high school buses is to be rigidly enforced.

The school board last night voted to instruct bus drivers to strictly enforces the "no smoking" edict on school buses.

Locally-raised Holstein Cow Becomes Champ in Mexico

A locally raised purebred Holstein cow sold a year ago from the farm of Murray Reynolds and Son, Foxboro, has been making a name for herself in competition in this country and in Mexico.

Sold as a fresh milker last year to H.C. Briggs and Son of Turner, Maine, the three-year old cow won the championship for the best uddered female at the Royal Winter Fair in 1964.

At the sale of stars following the Royal, Mrs. Gladys Jupiter Pontiac, was purchased for $3,900 by a Mexican cattle buyer from Toronto.

Since then the three-year old has won the grand championship at the Queretaro Exhibition in Mexico and has won the All-Canadian title as the best uddered female.

A full sister of the championship cow is still owned at the Foxboro farm and M. Reynolds is beginning to think he should start showing her at cattle shows.

(CP)—An Ontario lands and forests department official said Wednesday conservation officer John Toll acted rightly when he shot to death a wounded yearling fawn last Saturday near this village 20 miles south of Hamilton. Mr. Toll had been criticized for shooting the wounded deer while a government rescue team was approaching it with a helicopter. D. M. Omond said the helicopter crew could not have landed safely near the deer.

Pleasure Craft Docking Facilities in Big Demand

The demand for pleasure craft docking facilities at Belleville is greater than the accommodations available.

And according to Harbor Master Don Barrett the Belleville Harbor Commission anticipates doing what is necessary to improve the situation.

At the present time the building of extra finger docks is under consideration. The commission has received a number of requests for waterfront space from local boating enthusiasts. It is policy of the commission to build the accommodations and then rent them on a first come first served basis.

Water levels in the general area are now being studied by the special projects division of the Department of Transport, Mr. Barrett said. The commission has held a meeting with a federal government engineer when all facets of the present and possible future developments were discussed with regards to their effect on the local facilities. While commercial shipping will likely be about consistent with previous years low water levels curtailed some of the delivery schedule of bulk companies, Mr. Barrett pointed out.

The pleasure craft passing through the swing section of the hay bridge numbered 1967 records compiled by the commercial show. Of the total 90 per cent were pleasure craft made up of between the half bearing U.S. registrations.

Robert M. Hull Suggested Name For New School

The choice of a name is still to be made for the fourth high school planned for construction in Belleville by members of the Bay of Quinte High School District Board will have no end of names to choose from.

Local high school students, along with pupils from senior grades in district public schools were invited to submit ideas in a school naming contest.

The contest is now ended but board officials still have a big chore in sorting out some 190 different names and name combinations suggested.

The decision will be made within the next month or so.

Suggested names for the new high school range all the way from the Robert M. Hull Secondary School, to names perpetuating the memory of the late President John F. Kennedy and local and national figures.

Around World Flyer Believed Killed in Crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first woman to fly the equatorial route around the world is believed to have piloted a small plane that crashed in the San Gabriel Mountains Wednesday, killing the two women aboard.

Although the coroner's office declined official identification until her husband views the badly burned bodies, the husband said he had no doubt his wife, Joan Merriam Smith, 38, is dead.

Authorities believe the other woman was Trixie Ann Schubert, 42, of Los Angeles, who was writing Joan's life story.

Grants Towards Prizes at Fairs Will Be Made

TORONTO (CP)—Agriculture Minister Harry Hays told the annual meeting of the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada Wednesday that his department's policy with respect to grants towards prizes at fairs will be announced within the next three days.

Mr. Hays said he had received suggestions from fair boards and breeders' organizations across Canada and that while he had kept them in mind, he expected that the classification originally set up by his department would be little changed.

Ontario and Quebec breeders contended they were displeased with Mr. Hays's remark.

He said he also talks all shows open to competitors from anywhere.

In Ontario and Quebec, where 90 per cent of Canada's dairy cattle are located, a network of local shows with competition limited to a county or district has been developed during the last 20 years. Breeders feared that professional show herds travelling from fair to fair would discourage local exhibitors.

Harold McCaul of Napanee, Ont., vice-president of the association, asked for flexibility in the plan that would leave it up to fair boards to decide whether or not to close shows to outside competitors and still qualify for departmental assistance.

Jaycees Erect Sign at Station Advertising Major Industries

The city of Belleville and its major industries are getting some worthwhile publicity through the erection by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of a colorful industrial sign at the CN station.

The sign erected on an island in the open space between the station ticket office and the new baggage building, is in plain view of passengers at each windows of passing trains.

The names of 12 local industries appears on the "track" side of the sign, while the opposite side is devoted strictly to CN advertising.

The Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce was responsible for the sign and paid for its erection. The Jaycees contract with local industries for name space on the sign.

The CN donated the space for erection of the sign and in return uses the south side of the signboard for its own advertising.

UNVEIL SIGN

"The Jaycees were responsible for the idea of the sign and we are happy with it," stated Kenneth Hunt, manager of the CN Rideau Area, as the sign was officially "unveiled" this morning.

On hand for the brief ceremony were local CN officials, Jaycees president Don Dafoe and Don Burr, president of District 6 of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who headed up the Jaycees special sign planning committee.

Mr. Hunt said the island on which the sign is erected will be suitably landscaped with shrubs and flowers. A plank ledge around its circumference will augment station platform seating.

And the island will also publicize some of the minerals in the county of Hastings. Large chunks of ores sunk into the island surface give viewers an idea of what county minerals look like in their natural state.

Builders Will Donate Time In Construction

TRENTON — James Coed, the president of the Trenton Builders' association, told executive members of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night there would be a "misunderstanding" about a statement to the effect that the builders intended to build a free chamber office, "free of charge."

Mr. Coed said that while some of the builders might donate free time to the project, they would, primarily, attempt to get wholesale companies to donate material for the proposed Front Street office, and that the chamber would have to hire a supervisor and possibly two or three workmen to erect the building. However, as many local firms have already offered to donate materials, and also to do such work as excavation free of charge, the overall cost to the chamber should remain static. Douglas Adams has been delegated to approach one local builder and offer him the supervisory job.

Work on the chamber office should start in the spring and once started should take about four months to complete.

Sewer Charge Protested by Club President

TRENTON — The Trenton Golf and Country Club, with president F. J. Aziz as spokesman, has complained to Trenton council about the sewer charge.

Mr. Aziz points out that "lots of water" is needed to keep the nine-holed course green. "Stiff competition" is now being offered by the 18-hole Quinte course, with access to the bay for water, and by the 18-hole RCAF course on which civilians have been invited to play, says Mr. Aziz. He says the Trenton club has no indication of expanded membership in the near future — "we'll be lucky to hold our own."

Mayor MacDonald has invited all local firms to present briefs, encompassing their "beefs" about the sewer charge to council.

New Health Bd. Chairman Seeking Salary Increase

TRENTON — At the first meeting in 1965 of the Trenton Board of Health Wednesday afternoon, H. S. Pane, chairman of the board for a number of years, was re-elected to head the board for the coming year. Other board members are Miss Marjorie Gothard, E. D. Topping and Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH.

Mr. Pane notified the board that he meant to seek a salary increase from town council. He pointed out that he now receives $3,200 for a number of duties, those of sanitary inspector, plumbing inspector, air pollution inspector and chairman of the board, and gets roughly $1000 per year than the lowest paid town workman.

Mr. Topping moved that council be asked to raise Mr. Pane's annual salary to $3,800 and the other members concurred.

In other board business, the members voted to renew the board's contract with the Rushnell Ambulance Company, by the terms of which the board pays Douglas Rushnell a $3,000 subsidy on operations. The contract expired on Dec. 31. It is renewable on a annual basis.

Mr. Pane asked the members and the press to make town residents aware of the fact that special discs, which carry the wearers blood type, allergy to certain drugs and other information are available from the Canadian Medic-Alert Foundation at 176 St. George Street, Toronto. A small charge for the "life-saving" dics is made by the foundation.

Mr. Pane reported on a recent air pollution conference he had attended in Toronto. He said that Trenton was the only Ontario town where the burning of leaves in the autumn is countenanced. He will take this information to town council in the hopes council will reenact a by-law, forbidding the practice. The town did have a by-law to this effect a few years ago, but it was rescinded when the council of the day considered the cost of gathering up the leaves in trucks.

FREEZZES IN SNOW

Mr. Pane said town engineer Eric Aldersey had stated the leaves could be picked up by a sweeper and placed on a following truck for around $1,000 a year.

Mr. Topping complained about the oil and tar pollution of the Trent River, which, he said, was very apparent at this time of year, as the substance gathers along the riverbank and freezes in the snow.

Mr. Pane said that according to an Ontario Water Resources Commission survey, much of the oil and tar had been spewed into the river years ago, settled on the bottom and "bubbled" up from time to time.

Miss Gothard said she had had many reports of cellars in the Leopold Street area in east Trenton being flooded with water and that there was a distinct "creosote" odor to the water.

Mr. Pane said he would prepare a list of the streets in town which are unserviced by sanitary and storm sewers for the next meeting of the board.

$125 Fine Will Be Payable In One Month

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton on Wednesday, Kenneth Wayne Nichols of R. R. 2, Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol and was fined $125, the payable in one month, by Magistrate Philip Baker.

Nichols, who said he "didn't want to do time for fear he lost his job," will automatically have his licence suspended for six months.

Ralph Frederick Ellis, charged with driving while intoxicated, or under the influence of a narcotic drug, asked to have the case enlarged for two weeks while he got a lawyer to defend him.

However, the magistrate enlarged the case until March 3.

CASES ENLARGED

In magistrate's court at Trenton on Wednesday, cases of unlawful assault brought by the Crown against Glen Farrell, and Dorman Gunter were enlarged for one week, and a similar charge against Gary Edward Meyers was enlarged until March 3.

Farrell, who is charged with striking Ivan Miller in the face with his fist, and Gunter, charged with unlawful assault, causing actual bodily harm to Gordon Carter, both pleaded not guilty.

ONLY GIVEN FINE

Because the circumstances surrounding a case where Melvin Lawes of 65 Bay Street was apprehended driving without a licence on January 23, were "a little different," Magistrate Baker (to quote Magistrate Philip Baker), Lawes was let off with a fine, rather than having to spend time in jail when he pleaded guilty in Trenton court on Wednesday.

Lawes told the court he had been waiting for a doctor's certificate about his general health condition before renewing his licence. A statement from the Council Told Association Offers to Conduct Study

TRENTON — The Trenton Community Assistance Association, through its spokesman, Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, has offered to conduct a "thorough study of the social conditions as presently existing in Trenton," and the study would be carried out by a door-to-door canvass of the town with the persons selected by the association making out a comprehensive questionnaire at every home.

From these questionnaires, vital statistics would be obtained from which recommendations would be made to provide adequate social services for the town. The association would cooperate fully with welfare administrator Gordon Davis and Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH. All expenses would be borne by the association which showed a $741 surplus on operations last year. (the association raises its money by the sale of used clothing in the Quinte Street depot. The town made a grant of $220 to the association last year.)

Mrs. Smithrim told town council last night that councils "over the years," seemed to be more concerned with finance, roads, curbs, sidewalks and bringing in new industry," there neglecting social services to the people who are already here.

Mrs. Smithrim also asked council to make available the basement of the Dundas Street West post office, to be used for the clothing depot, if and when the town buys the building . . . after post office operations are moved to the new Front Street building.

Council will consider both requests brought forward by the association.

Break, Enter Charge Brings Six Months

TRENTON — Magistrate's court was held at 10.00 a.m. in Trenton yesterday, with Magistrate Philip Baker of Kingston sitting in for vacationing Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Paul Lawrence, 17, of Middleton Park, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the Ebenezer Christian Reformed Church on Fourth Ave., on the night of Dec. 28. Lawrence was arrested by police to have said in a statement that he broke a window of the church and entered it to sleep, as he was "very tired." A pulpit microphone, taken from the church by the accused, has been returned.

The defendant termed his actions as "stupid," when asked if he had anything to say by the magistrate.

Magistrate Baker cited a doctor's report which intimated that the only cure for the accused was to "age."

"When he grows up, he may straighten out," observed the magistrate.

Taking into account a previous conviction for car theft, Magistrate Baker sentenced the accused to six months' definite and six months' indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Department of Transport bore out Lawes' statement. Lawes has now forwarded the doctor's certificate to the department but will face an automatic six months' suspension on the Trenton charge. He was also fined $25 and ordered to pay court costs of $3.50.

Heart Fund Drive Is Off To Good Start

TRENTON — The Trenton Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation was off to a fine start at the first of the week on its eight day fund raising campaign in the Trenton area. Convener of the drive is Mrs. R. D. McDonald.

Persons missed by the canvassers, who still want to contribute, may send in contributions to Douglas Adams, manager of the Trenton branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Wants Offices Of Companies Put in Town

TRENTON — Trenton council, meeting in postponed session last night, voted to ask the Bell Telephone Company, and the Lakeland Gas Company to put offices in Trenton and carry on "normal business" in this town of 14,000.

The motion was sparked by Councillor Paul Tripp who said the utilities companies were treating Trenton "like a crossroads," rather than a town of its status.

Until a few years ago, Bell maintained offices here. Lakeland has never had an office in Trenton. Bills are paid in local drug stores. Problems, re service, incorrect billing and so on are handled over the telephone with an out-of-town representative of the companies. This is not always satisfactory to the customer, the councillor said.

Crosswalks Under Attack By Councillor

TRENTON — At the instigation of Councillor Edward Todd, Trenton council last night passed a resolution to ask the Ontario Department of Highways to either do away altogether with street pedestrian markings in the province, or make them standard throughout Ontario.

Councillor Todd said that motorists and pedestrians, trained in such centres as Toronto or Picton, automatically expect cars to stop when they step into pedestrian crossing zones.

In Trenton, for instance, pedestrian crossings are marked, but are not actually cross walks, as they have no special "X" markings or lighted signs. Councillor Todd said he felt a like situation existed in many other Ontario centres and led to confusion.

Brotherhood Week

If there is anything to be said for the menace posed by the hydrogen bomb and its threat of universal nuclear extinction, it is that it has brought home to mankind, with stunning impact, a sense of the inter-dependence of all men on this perilous planet. This "brotherhood of fear" is merely the reverse of a more positive fraternity which is not so generally recognized; the common heritage which men of all races share is the priceless blessing of life and the promise of human existence.

But if this be the nuclear era, it is also the jet age. Never before have the artificial boundaries, the petty jealousies of a parochial past been exposed so fully, so candidly, as by the globe-circling aircraft and ubiquitous mass-media of the 20th century. For the narrower superstitions, the mistrusts, the squalid fears which have sundered race from race, color from color, creed from creed, since the shadowy ages when every stranger was an object of fear in a static world, are seen today as the myths and delusions that they are. Mankind stands today revealed, as never before, as a single family inhabiting a world of infinite promise, infinite peril.

Within this family, as in any other, there are individuals at varying stages of development. There are mature and sophisticated races, wise in the ways of civilized life and the complexities of 20th century society. There are others just emerging from childhood, and still others at the earliest levels of human development, the stone-age childhood of mankind. Whatever the degree of their maturity or responsibility, all share an equal dignity as members of the family of man and an equal right to enjoy the blessings of human existence.

It is the purpose of Brotherhood Week to direct the attention of men and women of every creed and color to the ties that unite them in a world-wide family, sharing common fears and aspirations, bound toward a common goal. Surely never have such ties been more self-evident than they are today, nor the ancient barriers of ignorance and prejudice, which once sundered race from race, been more clearly disclosed in all their squalid decay. Yet never has the need been more urgent for men to recognize the common destiny which unites us all in a world-wide brotherhood, honored and equal under God.

Would De-emphasize Marks

At a two-day seminar held in Niagara Falls, Ont., over the weekend, Ontario Federation of Labor delegates heard a proposal for a high school program which "would let students forget the current emphasize on marks."

The proposal was made by J. R. McCarthy, Ontario's Deputy Minister of University Affairs.

Frankly, though, we would not like to see such a sweeping change made on an extensive basis without a comprehensive test.

Most people who complain about the emphasis on marks appear to us to be overly concerned with the plight of those students who, under the present system, do poorly.

Surely, though, if there are real benefits to be derived from changing this system, other than the obvious ones of letting some dull or lazy students escape the present penalties for their flaws, or faults, then these real benefits are likely to be largest for the brightest, most industrious students.

We would like to see some community establish a high school run on the system proposed by Mr. McCarthy, with the brightest students—or at least those students who have a record of obtaining the highest marks—being selected as students.

By the time the first graduating class had completed the full five-year course at the school, we ought to know something about the system's efficiency. A comparison with the results obtained at other high schools, where the "current emphasis on marks" had been maintained, would be intensely interesting, although allowances would have to be made for the fact that the students of our special school had been handpicked at the beginning of their secondary school career.

How would this comparison be made? By examinations, by marks, we suppose. How else?

Hats are for fun. Hats must make people laugh, hats must make people in the street turn round, stop the workers who are paving the street, or the painter who is doing the house. I wear only mad ones, and so I buy those very, very reasonable cheaper hats, for a few shillings, wear them three or four times and discard them.—Duchess of Bedford.

Strictly Personal
Child Likes Secrets Kept From Parents

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Nothing can stalk a narrow plank suspended two inches above the ground; but hardly anybody could do the same on a plank suspended between two precipices; thus, it is "imagination" rather than "fact" that controls and influences most of the critical issues in our lives.

To a small child, the lagoon in the park is as vast as the ocean; and to an adult who has not grown, the mores and presuppositions of his own particular milieu are the eternal truths of the universe.

Intelligence consists largely of the ability to carry on a creative dialogue with oneself; the fool is condemned to a perpetual monologue in which his thoughts perish without reply or contradiction from another part of him.

Eventually, every basic belief tends to turn into its opposite: to our time, for instance, most people who believe in religion turn it into a therapy (which it can't be), and most people who believe in psychotherapy turn it into a religion (which it can't be).

Lesson for nations: it was not the strongest or largest animals that survived, through prehistoric times, but those most able to adapt themselves to changing conditions.

A bright woman who is proud of the part she cannot be beguiled by a man with a handsome face or a lanky physique will capitulate to one with a brilliant mind — not realizing that such a choice is just as foolish and lopsided, for a mind without a character to match is as deficient as a body without a mind to match. (Most of us, anyway, marry "parts" of people, and spend our lives wishing for the other parts.)

It is not so often the medicine, but the taking of medicine, that makes people feel better; and the "act of faith" is as important in the so-called science of medicine as it is in other realms of activity.

Self-preservation is the second law of nature; the first law is the preservation of nature itself — which nations are violating today in their suicidally dangerous efforts at self-preservation.

Children must have, and should be helped to have, secrets from their parents; and the parent who wants to know everything the child is doing, thinking and feeling will end up knowing less than the parent who respects the child's privacy.

Some arguments, however true or reasonable, make no impact upon their listeners, for the reason given by Amiel: "A man only understands what is akin to something already existing in himself."

To Your Good Health
Here Are Things You Can Do To Calm Down Queasy Colon

By JOSEPH C. HOLMER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can anything be done to help colitis, other than to watch diet and to avoid rough or irritating foods? — L. N. A.

Yes, usually there are other things you can, and sometimes should, do to calm down a queasy colon.

Not all forms of colitis are the same. However, all of them require reasonable caution as to diet.

One of the most common is the spastic colon. Colitis is not an accurate description for it, since the "itis" implies inflammation, but let's not quibble over words.

The spastic colon is seen primarily in tense individuals. If they learn not to squander their nervous energy on things that don't really matter, and if they deliberately learn the art of relaxation at the end of a day's work they go a long way toward ending their trouble.

Another aspect of the same thing is irregular elimination, which in turn can be affected by irregular eating. Give your intestinal tract a break! Don't skip meals. Don't "eat and run." After a meal, allow some time to relax. And — this is important — don't use excessive doses of laxatives, because they will irritate the colon. That is what they are for — to instigate action by the bowel. Constant repetition of this can make any colon irritable — not to mention one which already has a tendency to go into spasm.

For some patients, mild sedatives are helpful.

Mucous colitis, however, is another thing. Quite often some allergic condition is the basis. A useful step toward a cure is to seek out the foods which set off the allergy.

Ulcerative colitis is a more serious condition involving bloody diarrhea and ulceration of the colon. It needs very-precise, specific treatment to fit each case. If that's the kind of colitis you have in mind, you must already be under a physician's care and he is telling you what to do.

Still other forms of colitis are from a parasitic infection, the commonest being the amoeba. Fundamentally medication is required to get rid of the parasite, and then care must be exercised to avoid picking it up again.

In any of these forms of colon trouble, foods containing a high proportion of roughage must be avoided. Whatever the cause of the colitis, don't irritate the tender or sensitive or nervous colon unnecessarily.

But what you do, or what treatment you have, besides that, depends on the type of colitis involved.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 58 and had high blood pressure for several years but just didn't do anything about it. Last spring I went to the doctor and my pressure was 240. He put me on a very strict diet since I was much overweight. I lost 40 pounds and the pressure went down to near normal.

Lately, however, I had a little flare-up. I guess it was a very light stroke in my left arm and leg. Could this have been the result of losing so much weight? — Mrs. T. P.

On the contrary, losing that weight may have prevented the stroke from being more serious. If you haven't reported this to your doctor, do so immediately.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I read in your column that a malignant tumor cannot be shrunk by treatments. Why? — Mrs. H. A.

You didn't read any such thing in this column. Malignant tumors (cancer) often can be shrunk by X-ray treatment. Sometimes they can be entirely destroyed that way, just as they can sometimes be removed entirely by surgery. Complete destruction of the tumor means that the cancer is cured. Partial destruction is temporarily helpful.

Ottawa Offbeat
Public Washing of Tories' Dirty Linen Disturbs Dief

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "What a time," mourned John Diefenbaker — still, but-for-how-much-longer Conservative Leader — "for them to do this!"

He was talking, just the other day, to a group of newsmen, and scarcely had to tell them he was speaking of the three-year-long and still-continuing civil war raging among Conservatives over his leadership.

"They could learn," he said, "something of the self-interest of Party loyalty from the Grits."

It was obvious, of course, that in his judgment, it was preposterous for "them" to carry on this way in the Conservative Party over what should be the strictly a private political "family quarrel," when the Liberals, beset by continuing scandals, remained mum.

Leadership disputes, he felt, were really nobody's business but the particular party concerned, and surely not something to be debated at the top of everybody's voice in public.

But scandals in high Government places, he implied, were of urgent public concern and should be fired and discussed, especially by the Liberals whose responsibility they were.

WHO ARE "THEY?"

It was beyond his understanding, he explained, that in such circumstances, the Tories should be talking their heads off about their private troubles while the Grits were silent as stone about their public tribulations.

His reference to "them," as he spoke of the warring Conservatives, was interesting.

Who are "they?"

And if "they" are Conservatives, who are the other Tories not numbered among "them?"

"They," in his view, are not merely the party rebels, but a certain section of the Conservative hierarchy, an organization and perhaps financial Tory "elite," headquartered largely in and around Toronto.

The other Conservatives, those Tories apart from "them," are — or have been — those who can be lumped under the broad, sweeping heading of "Diefenbaker Conservatives."

The way Dief has always seen it, "they," the bad guys of the party, the "Toronto Bunch," kept the Conservatives in the political wilderness for 22 seemingly endless years. Then to the rescue came "Diefenbaker Conservatives," and took over the Party.

WIDE SPLIT WIDENS

Except for the year of surprise — and that is what it was, when he won the 1957 election — and for the Conservative long after that 1957 sweep when the Tories for the first time, if only briefly, were united behind a winning Dief as all-powerful Chief, the split has been wide and getting wider.

Now, Dief, down - graded Dief as a "Prairie lawyer," and his men as the "Cowboys," "they" were the ones who chose, applied and saw go into general use.

The "Diefenbaker Conservatives," in turn, considered "them" as self-styled sophisticates, intellectual poseurs whose "eggheac" became a word of derision.

The Conservative Leader has always disliked and distrusted "them," ever since the very beginning when he first came to Parliament 25 years ago, as the Tories' answer to then largely Liberal Saskatchewan.

He first tried for the Party Leadership at the Winnipeg convention in 1942 but "they" denied him it, giving him third place after second-ballot wins by the MacPherson and winner John Bracken.

He tried again in '48 but, "they" gave George Drew the job.

From the outset, Dief was convinced that he quickly, from the very day of election as leader, could take the party to glory.

And when "they" denied him the prize a second time, in the the bitterness of disappointment, agonizing, he spoke of "them" as "cliphers and SOBs" — and that is quite a story, still to be told in detail.

Finally, when, despite "them" he did it — and better than any Conservative Leader ever had done it before — he exulted that he now controlled the Party, as any Chief worth his political salt would, and swore "they" would never take it away from him.

And now, look what is happening.

Rural donors once more showed the way to urban givers at the Red Cross Blood Clinic here on Sunday when 72 of a total of 114 gave their addresses as districts and villages outside the city.

While the 42 city donors, numerically, showed a decided increase over those of last week, when exactly 100 gave their blood, clinic officials feel, that residents here can come forward in greater numbers than has been the case for the past two or three months.

To date, rural donors have shown an excellent spirit of sacrifice in giving their blood to the nation's cause. Some of them travelling long distances, they have given not only their blood, but their time, and have provided their own transportation, including precious gasoline.

Letter to the Editor

Robertson Block Fire Provides Opportunity

Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer,

The very best thing the West Robertson Block has provided as an opportunity to bring new life to the centre of Belleville.

The old building, when it was put up in the early 1880's, was a most beautiful and particularly up-to-date. It cast a cold shadow over the pushing crowds of the very best shopping area in the city.

Good aesthetics is also good business. Beauty brings customers. People tend to come to an attractive place. Trees, flowers, fountains or rivers in the sunshine, all fascinate people. The combination with colorful store fronts and desirable merchandise is irresistible. Pedestrians appreciate a self-contained area, of interesting shape, where you can walk and not get lost; where there is always some pleasant vista around the corner, but at the same time the plan is so comprehensible that you never give directions to a stranger.

Why not a pedestrian arcade, lined with shops, offices and a restaurant, joining Front St. to the river?

The river is the great feature of our city. Speaker after speaker, addressing the Community Planning Association over the past year, has remarked on the two big advantages of downtown Belleville: the pleasing enclosure of Front St. (where a toothless gap would be a shame) and the largely unrealized possibilities of the river-front. Once the latter is properly controlled, and planting and pathways provided along its banks, we can find another use for the river-front than a parking lot.

Canadians are learning to live in cities. We are learning how important it is to provide for meeting and mixing in the compact centres of towns, where various social or cultural activities can be carried on conveniently; where a lawyer is close to a stationer, where a clothier is close to a tailor, where a library is close to a post office, where a restaurant is close to a theatre, and an apartment house is handy to all of these and not needful of an automobile.

The Metropolitan block, though older than the destinguished in design than the West Robertson, seems to be on the way out. Why not include it in the scheme?

Parking problems should be tackled in a big way. Naturally, if it is wished to accommodate comers, the city would have to provide some underground parking. To devote valuable surface area to mere parking of automobiles is a poor sell folly. Out-of-town customers must be accommodated, but city residents should take thought of the really enormous expenses of providing for private cars in the downtown area, plus accordingly. A vastly improved public transit system seems indicated.

If the burned-out owners can agree on a good land-banking scheme, and hire an imaginative architect to do more than merely replace a row of five stores, then the grip of the dead hand of history on Front St. may yet be broken.

A leading Ontario Rabbi last night took to task local society discrimination which bars individuals from community social clubs and organizations because of group or class.

Rabbi Bernard Baskin of Hamilton's Temple Anshe Sholom charged leading community citizens as often guilty of "genteel prejudice" when selecting club membership rosters.

The rabbi was given a standing ovation by more than 180 members of all faiths after he spoke to a climaxing Brotherhood Week Dinner at Sons of Jacob Synagogue here.

His speech, calling on members of all religions to practise what they profess attacked prejudice on all levels, from Nazism to local social discrimination.

Too often, in forming community organizations, he warned, the choice of membership was made by those who belong to such groups, on the basis of class.

"Who are the people who belong?"

"Why, they are the honored, best people in the community — so I don't understand it," he said.

Instead of basing such choice on individuality, members are selected on "genteel prejudice which rules out entire groups and classes."

NOT POPULAR TO SAY

"Now, this isn't a popular thing to say," added Rabbi Baskin. "I am a visitor here you know. I am not back home— so I can say it."

Rabbi Baskin also criticized the attitude of Canadians who shield the country in a cloak of victimized social groups.

"Canada," he said, "has two indigenous groups in Eskimo and Indian, and as far as those two groups are concerned we have hope far from the right thing."

On a recent trip to the Brantford Mohawk reserve he said he observed conditions "difficult to believe in—1965 in this rich province in this land lavishly endowed by God."

The assembly, which included clergymen from all city churches, heard:

"What we need is a keen realization of our widespread shortcomings and inadequacies, our widespread deficiencies in this matter of brotherhood in our time, in our society."

HELICH TO BE DESIRED

While the great majority of North Americans are churchgoers, their practice of everyday life often leaves much to be desired, he intimated.

"We sooner do we close the church or synagogue door, no sooner do we leave our churches, than we engage in acts of prejudice, discrimination, bigotry, antagonism and hatred where our neighbor is concerned."

He said it was tragic that the rank and file church members should not feel called upon to translate their religious tenets into common-day life.

"This, I think, is the religious scandal of our age. We cannot have it both ways. We cannot be religious schizophrenic; we cannot talk out of both sides of our mouths simultaneously."

He also criticized the lack of true brotherhood idealism on a continent proud of its democracy.

Contemporary society makes a goal of scientific progress while neglecting human understanding.

IGNORING NEEDS CLAIM

As Rabbi Baskin put it, society first was attempting to land a man on the moon while ignoring the need of securing him a job despite the fact "his color of skin is different from the majority."

"We speak of equality of opportunity; we speak of equality before the law. But how many contradictions, how many anomalies, how many paradoxes are there in our vaunted and highly praised North American democratic way of life?"

Communist propagandists were making propaganda capital out of such a situation, he warned.

He called for all supporters of the brotherhood ideal to fraternize more closely, to recognize hatemongers, and confront local merchants of scandal and innuendo.

Rabbi Baskin was introduced by Ted Schwab of the synagogue congregation and thanked by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, pastor of St. Michael's.

The assembly observed a minute's silence in tribute to one of the founders of local Brotherhood Week — the late Rev. J. Buckley, former pastor of St. Joseph's.

Brotherhood Way of Life Says Speaker

Noble Hatton, chairman of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, addressed the Belleville Jayeees at their regular monthly dinner meeting held at the Belleville Sharing Club on Tuesday evening. Mr. Hatton explained to the Jaycees that brotherhood is a way of life and explained the basis of the work of which he is a part.

As a prelude to brotherhood week, the Jaycees had as their guests, members from the local service clubs and clergy.

Also in attendance were nine members from the proposed Jaycee Picton unit.

Canadians Called Stodgy By Americans

How does Canada carry on as far as its U.S. cousins are concerned?

Without too much dash — according to Rabbi Bernard Baskin of Hamilton.

As a man with one foot in each culture's soil he should have a fair idea — and he imparted it during his keynote address to the Belleville Brotherhood Week banquet last night.

A native of Brooklyn and 15 years resident in Canada, he warned last night against readily believing in national traits.

"Canadians", he said, "exhibits brashness to American's canal".

"And how about Canadians?" queried the rabbi.

"Well, my American friends tell me we are stodgy."

Organization Planning Year Of Activities

Belleville's Brotherhood Week organization, which climaxed its annual observation last night, is planning a full-scale Centennial Year operation.

Rev. Alexander McDowell, of Eastminster United Church, told a concluding banquet at Sons of Jacob Synagogue that plans already were in the offing for the event.

Representatives of all district churches outside the present East Hill denominations which originated Brotherhood observations here, already had been contacted.

"In every case we met with enthusiastic support," he said. "Everyone thought this would be a splendid thing for the churches and the synagogue to organize for our Centennial Year."

The Sons of Jacob community already had agreed to start the groundwork on the project, he added.

Parkdale Ratepayers Will Be Heard

Ratepayers from the north Park Dale district will have the opportunity this evening of making representations for or against re-zoning of the former Mossman Farm from M2 to R2.

Members of the local planning board have already held a public meeting in the Park Dale district outlining provisions of the proposed zoning change.

trucking industry are, in my opinion, excessive. They ought to be reduced for health and safety reasons and in order to meet the general hours that prevail in industry."

He repeated that adequate provisions have been made to ease the impact of the hours-of-work law.

MAY BE AVERAGED

One clause allows work to be averaged over a year instead of daily or weekly periods. Industries can ask for an 18-month deferment to prepare for adopting the code. Finally, they can go before a special inquiry to seek longer deferments and a special set of standards to be applied in the interim.

John Munro (L — Hamilton East) said the code will eventually lead to a uniform standard of work in the trucking industry across Canada, once provincial governments are encouraged to match the federal bill. This would be of advantage to the whole industry.

He referred to a brief from the Teamsters Union (Ind.) that spoke of "some of the hazards ever-present in the life of the transport driver because of the failure to limit hours of work."

Mr. Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, said the brief told how many lives were lost in highway accidents because of fatigue and the use of "pep pills."

He cited the case of a four-death accident in Ontario that had been blamed by a magistrate on a truck driver's fatigue after 30 hours of work.

"I am only pointing this out because we have heard one side and surely we should hear from the other side, which involves the many employees in the trucking industry," he said.

The code applies only to industries under direct federal jurisdiction and involves about 500,000 workers, well under 10 per cent of the national labor force.

In addition to working hours, it provides for a $1.25 minimum hourly wage and minimum annual vacations and paid holidays.

SAYS PLOTTED IN QUEBEC

The New York Daily News says the dynamite plot "was hatched at a terrorist meeting of 18 to 20 American extremists last month in northern Quebec."

The newspaper attributes its information to unnamed high police sources and said the meeting was addressed by Collier, Patrolman Wood and Robert F. Williams, a propagandist for Cuba.

Williams, formerly with the North Carolina branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, fled to Cuba four years ago after being indicted in connection with racial disturbances in Monroe, N.C.

"According to the news informants, Quebec has been used as a springboard for terrorist plotting against this country. In certain areas of the French-speaking province, there is strong anti - American feeling, and a direct Montreal-Havana air service has made it easier for Castroites — such as Williams — to maintain close contact with the Quebec and American fanatics."

THE MAPLE LEAF FOREVER

In days of yore to this fair shore,
Brave and bold, our fathers came,
And carved from out the virgin soil,
Our fair and vast domain.
Each Province now, from sea to sea,
Is joined in love together;
And our loved emblem e'er shall be
The maple leaf forever.

Chorus
The maple leaf our emblem dear,
The maple leaf forever.
God bless our country, and our flag,
The maple leaf forever.

2nd verse
This fair Dominion now extends
From Lakes to Pole, from sea to sea,
Vancouver's Isle, to Newfoundland,
One Nation strong and free.
From prairies wide, to cities grand,
From forest, mine, and river,
God richly blessed our own dear land,
Our Canada forever.

3rd verse
From every race, and every clime,
To Canada's shores we came;
To give our children for all time,
A land where peace and freedom reign,
And these dear rights we shall maintain,
And swear to yield them never;
For freedom's emblem e'er shall be,
The maple leaf forever.

Teen-aged drinking appeared to be a serious problem not only in the Elogston area but in many other areas of the province, said Mr. Apps, a non-drinker.

MAKES CHARGE

Liberal Whip Stan Farquhar (L — Algoma - Manitoulin) charged that the absence of provincial government programs for the North amounts to actual discrimination against that part of Ontario.

Mr. Farquhar, whose riding includes Elliot Lake, said the Conservative government has displayed no plans to exploit new markets for northern produce, to make the most of timber resources, or to perpetuate existing reserves.

He said northerners were allowed to supply the labor to cut timber or to mine ore, but then these raw materials were mover into already over - industrialized centres for further processing.

Leonard Braithwaite (L—Etobicoke) called on Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree to amend the Ontario Human Rights Code to end the last vestiges of discrimination in employment and housing.

HITS EXEMPTIONS

Mr. Braithwaite, only Negro member of the legislature, demanded an end to exemptions granted under the code to the employment practices of non-profit educational and philanthropic institutions.

"Some public school boards and some hospital boards still advertise, for example, for 'Protestant' teachers and still inquire into the religious faith or ethnic origin of applicants for a job," he said.

He noted that the Ontario civil service and provincial agencies are exempt from the provisions of the code.

Dalton Bales (PC — York Mills) suggested establishment of an Ontario film board to commission independent films and distribute copies.

P. E.-Lennox Not Backwoods Says Member

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons was told in no uncertain terms Wednesday that hockey star Bobby Hull does not come from "the backwoods of Ontario."

Looking indignant, Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Prince Edward-Lennox) rose on a question of privilege to protest a "scurrilous article" in Time magazine reporting that Chicago Black Hawks' prolific scorer comes from Prince Edward-Lenlox, "the backwoods of Ontario."

Mr. Alkenbrack, who lists himself as co-founder of a lumber company at Napanee, said he is proud to have Hull as a constituent and denied that the Bay of Quinte district where Hull was born is a backwoods.

"The Bay of Quinte district is the oldest civilized and settled area in Ontario—older than Chicago," he said amid laughter.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton, a Westmount, Que., lawyer, cut him off by saying there was no question of privilege involved.

to soon-to-retire, those now drawing old-age security will not benefit.

The additional benefit to persons now 65, and who will draw the benefit for the full five years between 65 and 70, will be at least $4,800. After the pension plan becomes effective, the old age security payments will be tied to the cost-of-living index.

GOT WARM WELCOME

The government's move was warmly welcomed by spokesmen for all opposition parties, although former Conservative welfare minister J. Waldo Monteith got a dig in with the suggestion that the amendment meant the pension plan now is in its fifth version.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), who tried during committee hearings to have the flat - rate benefit increased to $100 a month, said the government should consider such a raise. Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo) also suggested an increase in benefits.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the qualifying age should be lowered to 65, with a means test. No means test will apply at 65.

Mr. Pearson said the committee made other proposals "that everyone would like to act on, but they are too expensive for the government to accept as financially responsible at this time. . . ."

Inspector

party counsel. Ross Drouin asked whether he had thought of setting a trap.

Yes, replied Insp. Drapeau, he had said to a colleague that if he hadn't been ordered to interview these three men he would have liked to set a trap.

SUGGESTS CHECK

He also testified that he suggested to his superiors checking the background — movements and telephone calls — of the three men. He had been told there wasn't time. Mr. Favreau wanted no time wasted."

Insp. Drapeau agreed with Mr. Drouin's suggestion that a tape recording was the best way to monitor an Aug. 20 phone call between Denis in Ottawa and Lamontagne in Montreal, provided it was known in advance when and where the call was to be made and that one of the parties would consent to have recording equipment used.

He hadn't suggested this method when he tipped RCMP Inspector J. R. R. Carriere in Montreal to "cover" the Aug. 20 call. He had left the method up to Insp. Carriere.

The inquiry has been given testimony by Insp. Carriere that he instructed Sgt. Ronald Cyrette and Const. Gilles Poissant to listen in to the call at Mr. Lamontagne's office.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. A. N. R. Rota is President of the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society.

In 1957 a group of thirty doctors' wives from Belleville and the surrounding districts met for the purpose of forming a Medical Wives Auxiliary, and named Mrs. Donald Scott as first president. Membership was limited to doctors' wives, widows, and women doctors.

Six months later the group became affiliated with the Women's Auxiliary to the Ontario Medical Association, and was then known as the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Medical Society. Since this time, the membership has increased to approximately forty.

The aims of the Auxiliary are: (1) to promote friendship and understanding among the members of the group; (2) to act as liaison between the medical profession and the public; (3) to do such work as may be approved and requested by the branch of the Medical Society.

In 1959, as an initial endeavor, a tea and fashion show were held at Bridge Street United Church. From this small beginning has evolved "Fantasy in Fashion" which has become the annual fund-raising project.

Through the generosity and support of the public, the proceeds from these fashion shows have enabled the group to assist the following charitable organizations: the Ontario Home for Mentally Retarded Infants, Plainfield — a cryogette, stroller, chair, and sewing machine; sponsoring underprivileged children to summer camp; monetary support to Trenton-Brighton and Belleville Retarded Children's Schools; donations to the local branch of the Canadian Arthritis Society, and to the Children's Aid Society; support to the Bursary and Loan Fund of the W.A. to the O.M.A.; books and toys for the paediatries ward of Trenton Memorial Hospital; knitted and miscellaneous articles for the Samaritan cupboard in Belleville General Hospital, and donations of home-baking for the Christmas parties for arthritic patients.

Through the co-operation of Mrs. Enos David, the group has undertaken a program of visitations to shut-in arthritic patients in and around Belleville.

Again, this year, the Medical Wives will present the seventh annual showing of "Fantasy in Fashion" on March 3rd.

WEDDING

HAASE — RUSHLOW

The Ven. A. S. McConnell officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Thomas' Anglican Church on Saturday, February 13 at 2 p.m. when Gayle Rae Rushlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rushlow, Belleville, was united in marriage to Albert Karl Otto Hasse of Scarborough, son of Mrs. Albert Hasse of Germany and the late Mr. Albert Hasse. The altar was adorned with white shasta daisies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white silk bridal gown featuring white nylon net over a full skirt and enhanced with a lace bolero. Her headdress was a white pillbox adorned with net and white roses and she carried a nosegay of white and pink roses.

Mrs. Jean Corby dressed in blue linen suit, matching hat and white accessories, with a corsage of pink and white carnations, attended the bride.

Mr. Donald Rushlow, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a figured brown and green sheath dress with beige accessories.

The couple plans a wedding trip to Germany in April but for going away the bride chose a white and black crepe dress with matching jacket, matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Hyderman and Mrs. Hasse and was presented with a beautiful nylon comforter by her fellow workers at the T. Hawkins Company. A presentation was also held for the bridegroom by his fellow workers at the Ontario Hydro Company in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Hasse will reside at 63 Sutherland Avenue, Scarborough.

PRIZE-WINNING PIEMAKER is 17-year-old Sylvia Tracey here with her Moira Secondary School Home Economics teacher, Ila Meyers.

Sylvia Tracey, Moira S.S., Bakes Prize Cherry Pie

Miss Sylvia Tracey, 18, of Stanley Street, Belleville, recently was rescuing Moira Secondary School won second prize in the National Cherry Pie Contest, held at Vineland on February 16.

Sylvia who was one of 16 contestants including one lone boy from Winnipeg's Technical Vocational High School, was edged out of first place by Sharon Dorsch, 17, of Baden, with third prize awarded to Ainsley Rand of Port William, Nova Scotia.

The second place winner is a Grade 12 student at Moira Secondary School and was proud winner of $100 in cash, plus a wrist watch, a sterling silver pie server, an electric tooth brush, as well as an enscribed bronze plaque.

The following is Sylvia's cherry pie recipe:

PASTRY

2¼ cups pre-sifted pastry flour; 1 teaspoon salt; ¾ cup shortening; 1 egg yolk; ½ cup cold water.

METHOD

Sift and measure the flour. Add the salt and sift into measuring bowl. With a pastry blender, cut in one-half of the shortening until it is the size of cornmeal. Cut in the remainder until the particles are the size of peas. Beat egg yolk and water together in a small bowl. Sprinkle the flour mixture with five to six tablespoons of beaten egg and water mixture, one tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly with a fork, adding only enough to moisten all the flour. Put dough on saran wrap and press into a ball. Roll out about two-thirds of the dough for the bottom crust; use the remaining for lattice strips. Arrange crust in pie plate; pour in filling. Cut the crust with egg white, arrange and trim.

Bake in 400 degree F oven for 25 minutes.

FILLING

2¼ cups thawed, drained cherries; 1 cup cherry juice; 3 tablespoons cherry juice (cold); 3 tablespoons cornstarch; ½ cup sugar; 6 drops lemon juice; 1 tablespoon butter; ¼ teaspoon salt.

METHOD

Drain cherries. Heat 1 cup cherry juice while mixing cornstarch with 3 tablespoons of cold juice. Add cornstarch mixture to heated juice and cook until thick. Add sugar slowly to hot mixture and just let it come to a boil. Remove from heat, add lemon juice, butter, and salt. Combine well with the drained cherries. Allow to cool. Pour filling in the unbaked pie shell.

Yield—filling for a 9-inch pie.

Church Groups

(ENERGETIC CLUB)

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church met on Thursday, 10th with Al and Phyllis Lucas' group in charge. Norma and Elgin Moyes took charge of the devotional period. The business part was conducted by the president Audrey Brethour. Plans for the play which will take place early in March along with a paper drive to be held sometime in April were discussed.

Phyllis Lucas introduced the guest speaker Mr. Stevens who came to Belleville six years ago where he had been Clerk of Session at Calvary Church, Westmount in Montreal. He was principal in a Commercial High School and has been president of the Teachers' Federation of Quebec; also for Canada.

He spoke about the Session which is one of the main governing bodies of the church. He pointed out the duties that were expected of each elder.

Al Lucas expressed thanks to the speaker.

The balance of the evening was spent in games and lunch was served by the group in charge. Phyllis Chambers was the "Tatler" at the close of the meeting.

Club Activities

4-H CLUBS

The February meeting of Sidney Dairymen's Club was held recently at Aiken's Hall. The sleigh riding party was cancelled due to poor road conditions. President Beverley Clapp opened the meeting and led in a short business discussion. Several attended the Leadership School being held in Napanee on February 13.

With Bruce Swan at the piano, the members enjoyed a sing-song period. The remainder of the meeting was spent in dancing, followed by lunch.

BETHEL - ZION 4-H

The first meeting of the Bethel - Zion 4-H Club was held at the Church Hall on February 16, with 13 members present.

The election of officers was as follows: presidents, Brenda Stanley and Marlene Tufts and press reporter, Ila Mitchell. Members were divided into two groups, called "Buttons and Bows" and "Pert and Pretty" respectively. Leaders are Mrs. Ted Ray, Mrs. G. Tummon, Mrs. J. Ketcheson and Mrs. G. Russell. Each leader gave a demonstration concerning the project "What Shall I Wear?" Each girl made a sample French seam and slip-stitched hem for the record books.

Bridge Street UCW Hold Tea, Millinery Fashion Show

Winter melted into balmy spring yesterday afternoon, for a brief period, as, amid a profusion of spring blooms, the United Church Women of Bridge Street United Church presented a millinery ("Fashion Show."

While local models of much poise, charm and beauty teased eight and fostered dreams of personal attractiveness, some four hundred ladies happily partook of delectable sandwiches and dainty cakes and sipped tea in the afternoon and coffee in the evening.

Hats, creations by Anita Pinsonnult, Mr. John, Georgette, Bro-Marie, Nadelle, Ellen Faith, Bennett and other designers, were proudly supplied by Woodley Fineries with Miss Elizabeth Black as commentator.

NEWEST CREATIONS

Featuring the newest spring colors of white, green, pink, yellow, the perennial navy and new "coffee", hats ranged from severely tailored sailors to very feminine cloches and berets. Large hats, small hats, hats of exquisite straws, frothy organza and tulle, gardens of flowers, simple grosgrain bits and superb detailing, assure milady perfection and admiring glances be she the mother of the bride or on the mundane visit to the supermarket.

Convening the show was Mrs. A. J. Clare. Assisting were: Mrs. Bryson-Leslie, president, and Mrs. H. M. Davis who received the guests.

Hostess in the tea room for the afternoon was Mrs. E. R. Marsh, while those pouring tea were: Miss I. Dickens, Mrs. C. J. Morgan, Mrs. N. MacFie, Mrs. S. Gilmour and Mrs. Packman. In the evening the hostess was Mrs. T. Golden, while those pouring coffee were: Mrs. A. Skinner, Miss Olive Elson, Miss Grace Tucker, Mrs. Bruce Kerr and Mrs. J. Dickens.

Others who assisted at this social event were: decorating, Mrs. Harold Mott; ticket convener, Mrs. Ross Schryer; advertising, Mrs. Thornton Brown; kitchen, Mrs. George Crestrix (afternoon); Mrs. J. Loyens (evening); bake table, Mrs. E. Denyes and Mrs. Stuart Riley.

Convener of models was Mrs. O. Summers with models, Mrs. J. G. Stevens, Mrs. J. Casey, Mrs. J. J. Watson, Mrs. T. E. Franklin, Mrs. Ras Bowen and Mrs. Donald Scott.

Mrs. Victor Barkley accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Roger Reidel, in several lovely selections.

"Her hair is a woman's crowning glory," is indisputable, especially when the crowning glory is topped by a becoming and skillfully selected chapeau.

Susanna's Family Fare

EASY IF YOU KNOW HOW

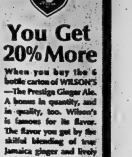
Dear Susanna: How would I go about starting African Violets from cuttings? I've no idea where to begin and hate to let my friends know how clueless I am . . . they all seem to be so good at everything. — I. G.

If they are, they had to learn sometimes, just like you and I are doing now. I have collected quite a file on this delightful subject, but will just deal with one version here from a lady who has dozens of them growing several places in her home.

She prefers large plastic pans or pots and vermiculite or a commercial African violet soil is her choice for slips. It should be thoroughly wet for planting. Cut a good healthy leaf diagonally, making sure the stem is about 1½ inches long. Since it blends, she says to lay it out on paper to dry. Next, take a pencil and make holes in the soil so that each leaf can be planted in a diagonal position. As long as the container is heavy, don't add moisture, but when it becomes light in weight, the slips may be watered. When the baby leaves are the size of a quarter, she transplants them to individual pots.

An uncomplicated method is to fill a jar with water and cover it with a piece of wax paper. Poke holes in this and insert the cuttings so that their stems are in the water.

What would a plant discussion be without a word from our old cellables at the Department of Agriculture: They recommend warm water only and say to never soak the mature plant. Water, in the morning preferably, from the top, being careful not to let any drops spill on the leaves.



There now, even if you have not actually grown one yet, the next time the subject comes up you can make like an expert — nearly everyone does! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: To keep my sewing patterns in good order, I place each one in a clear plastic stocking bag. I tape the top closed and make an opening down one side. They stay smooth and clean and are readily identified.

If you have an old blank photograph album, this is an ideal place to store your patterns. Just tape one bag with pattern to a page and you can locate the one you want at a glance. — Barbara Tennant

Ann Landers

Woman Feels Widows Are Forgotten Group

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been a widow for 10 years and I'm raising my four children alone.

Here in America we have all kinds of organizations to help the needy — Red Cross, Salvation Army, Family Service, and even the Peace Corps for people in other countries. Why don't some one start an organization to help widows?

My husband died of a heart attack. He was my partner and my helpmate. Now he's gone. If the faucet leaks it costs $5 to have it fixed. When appliances break down, the house needs repainting, or the car needs repairing, we widows have to pay the same prices as women with husbands.

ANN LANDERS

My sons would love to go hunting and fishing but I can't send them alone. My children are missing out on so many childhood joys because they have no father. Is it fair? Do you feel, as I do, that a national organization should be started to help us. — S.A.Y.

DEAR S.A.Y. — I agree that widows should be helped — particularly the widow who must work to support her children — but the type of help she needs can best be provided by a loving family (if she is lucky), considerate friends and thoughtful neighbors.

If widows were given free plumbing services, many divorced women would feel they were entitled to it, too. Then the unwed mother, and the woman whose husband walked out "temporarily," would say, "Me too."

I am printing your letter as a reminder that fatherless children do miss a great deal, and they should not be forgotten.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently you printed a letter from a young woman who wanted to know if it was proper to correct friends when they mispronounced a word or use improper grammar. She said she'd be grateful if her friends corrected her, but all she gets is dirty looks.

You said most people resent being corrected, particularly in the presence of others. I concur. This little poem (one I learned in high school) says it very well:

Call me a hypocrite, call me a thief;
Say that of liars, I am the chief;
Call me a scoundrel, say I'm too clever
But regarding my grammar, correct me, please — never.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 20-year-old college junior. When I was 17 I fell in love with a boy of 18. I may still be in love with him but I doubt it.

I am sure, however, that I will never be able to tolerate his family — and the feeling is mutual. To make matters worse, my family dislike him intensely and they make no secret of it.

My boy friend knows of the bad feelings on both sides but he insists we can manage because "we will be marrying each other — not our families."

Last weekend I suggested that we break up. He said, "If you dump me I will quit school and be a bum."

I don't want this on my conscience, Ann, yet I feel he is not the one for me and perhaps I am using this family stuff as an excuse to stop seeing him. Can you help me think my way through this muddled-up mess? — QUANDRYVILLE.

DEAR Q. — Don't let the boy shift the responsibility for his future on to you. He could graduate from college and still be a bum.

You are only 20 years old, Toots. Where's the fire? Your letter is proof that you are loaded with doubts. A great many marriages fail, even when they seem to have everything going for them.

Put your decision on ice for at least a year, then see.

Neighbors Hold Presentation Party

IVANHOE — A happy event took place on Wednesday evening when a number of former neighbors visited Mr. Roy Thrasher at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Milton Shaw and Mr. Shaw.

Owing to hazardous driving conditions only a small representation of the Mount Pleasant community was present.

Mrs. Harlow Sharpe recalled pleasant associations with Mr. Thrasher and the late Mrs. Thrasher mentioning of the warm hospitality shown at the Thrasher home and the contributions made to the life of the church and the community.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell made the presentation of a beautifully bound Presbyterian Book of Praise and a T.V. lamp with an aerial view of Mr. Thrasher's old home at Mount Pleasant, embellished on the shade.

Mr. Thrasher, although taked completely by surprise, expressed grateful thanks for the lovely gifts which he will always treasure.

The remainder of the evening was spent in visiting and reminiscing during which time lunch was served.

SOFT CHOCOLATE IN ENVELOPES

A new product — unsweetened chocolate that does not require melting — has made its appearance on the market and roused our interest.

Using the new soft chocolate which is packaged in several one-oz. envelopes, we made Brownies and Devil's Food Cake and Frosting.

This soft chocolate does eliminate the messy melting step required when you use hard chocolate squares and is less wasteful and consequently does speed up the process. But no matter how hard I tried I could not avoid getting some chocolate on my fingertips when I squeezed it from the envelopes.

SPEEDY DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE AND FROSTING:

1/3 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 envelopes ready soft chocolate, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 1/3 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup milk.

In heater bowl cream shortening, adding sugar as you cream, until both are very light. Beat in egg well. Squeeze soft chocolate from envelopes directly into mixture. (Note: The chocolate in the envelopes needs to be softened either by massaging with your fingers or running under hot water tap. Then cut off ends of envelopes and press between thumb and finger to extrude all chocolate from envelopes.) Add vanilla. Stir baking soda and salt into measured flour and fold, alternately with milk in thirds, into chocolate mixture just until all ingredients are blended. Turn into 8" or 9" square pan lined on bottom with buttered wax paper. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes or until tests done. Let stand in pan 5 minutes, then invert onto cake rack, peel off wax paper and cool. Cover with Creamy Chocolate Frosting: Two tablespoons butter; 1 envelope soft chocolate, 2 cups icing sugar, 3 tablespoons milk. Beat until of spreading consistency.

SPEEDY BROWNIES:

1/3 cup butter, melted, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 envelopes soft chocolate, 2/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chopped nuts, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Barely melt butter in saucepan large enough to hold all of the batter. Add sugar, mix well, then beat in eggs. Squeeze in chocolate and stir. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt and stir in. Add nuts and vanilla and mix. Spread in buttered 8" or 9" square pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Cut into squares or oblongs. These turn out with a nice shiny top and require no icing.

U.C.W. Meetings

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. W. Harlow of Stirling was hostess for the February meeting of the Eggleton United Church Women with 11 members and two visitors in attendance.

The president opened the meeting with a poem and prayer. Selected hymns in keeping with the theme, "Guidance" were sung, with Mrs. Bruce Stapley playing the accompaniment. Correspondence was dealt with and the secretary read two thank-you letters.

The community friendship secretary reported four visits on sick; on cards sent out; a plant taken to an ill member in hospital; also a plant and a box of candy sent to two older residents in the community, who were celebrating birthdays.

Mrs. Forde Stapley displayed the articles of clothing she had purchased for the supply allocation for the group. Thanks were expressed to Mrs. Bridges for the lovely basket of artificial flowers, placed in the church.

A Valentine card, to be sent to Mrs. Ashley, was signed by all the members.

March meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. William McMullen, with Mrs. M. Clancy to prepare the program.

Mrs. Forde Stapley, program convener took charge. The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Bruce Stapley. Three members, Mrs. Charles Stapley, Mrs. M. Kirkey and Mrs. F. Stapley each gave a reading, based on the theme, Mrs. Maurice Clancy, with the map of Brazil and assisted in the questionaire by Mrs. M. Kirkey and Mrs. C. Fitchett described the beautiful city of Brasilia, and the surrounding country. Just the wealthy and poor — no middle class people there, and much illiteracy, disease and poverty amongst the poorer class.

Mrs. Stapley thanked the hostess and all who had assisted on the program.

Mrs. Clancy conducted a contest, prepared questions on the talk on Brazil; Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. B. Stapley were the winners with perfect answers.

Using a Valentine table setting, lunch was served by the hostess.

4-H HOMEMAKING CLUB GROUP TWO

MELROSE — The first meeting for the spring project "What Shall I Wear?" was held on February 13, in the church basement with seven girls and two leaders present.

An election of officers was held with the following results: president; Nancy English; vice-president — Judy McEwen; treasurer — Susan Lazier; press reporter — Sandra Weese.

Members pamphlets were distributed and the project was outlined. The practical work was choosing colors which suit each girl.

The next meeting will be held on February 23 in the church basement. Each member was asked to equip a sewing box if they did not already have one. For the next meeting the girls were asked to bring two pieces of material in colors to suit a dainty, gentle girl and two to suit a forceful, assured type.

The Experts Say

Local Little Theatres Good Training Grounds

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—If you think you want to be a professional actor, amateur performances can do two things for you. They can give you experience and they can give you some idea of whether you are any good.

Arnelda Hall has been an actress since 1940. She got her professional start with the Canadian Repertory Theatre in Ottawa, has worked most seasons at Stratford since the Shakespearean Festival started in 1953. She has worked several years with Toronto's Crest Theatre and with the CBC.

Miss Hall appeared with amateur groups in her native Hamilton before she became a professional actress.

"There is nothing better than being on stage and getting all the experience you can get. You should go into anything you possibly can to find out if you have any talent at all.

"But remember that sometimes in amateur groups the atmosphere isn't professional. People think they can miss rehearsal and come in at any old time. If you can work with people who are professional or want to be you may get a different attitude."

YOU NEED TALENT

If you can get formal training, you should. "But it isn't so much how good the training is as how good you are. If you have no talent, no amount of training will do you any good. Also most of our best Canadian actors started with very little formal training."

There are other types of training that are useful.

"I think the most important asset one can bring to develop if you want to be an actor, is your diaphragm. Whatever I've done has been on that base. I can do different things vocally because I have the power.

"But you have to get a good voice teacher. There is nothing worse than a bad teacher because if you've had one, a good teacher has to unteach all the bad habits.

"Lacking voice lessons, or with them, take ballet or fencing, anything to develop the coordination of the body.

"An actor really never should stop learning. Whenever you get a chance to work with anybody who's good, whether you are amateur or professional, you should."

STUDIED MIME

Miss Hall began taking voice lessons when she was 11 and eventually got a licentiate at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. She studied ballet and mimes after her graduation from McMaster University in Hamilton.

At any time, she says, you should see all of the theatre and read as much about it as you can.

A first positive move toward working in it might be auditioning to become a student at the National Theatre School in Montreal, the Manitoba Theatre Centre in Winnipeg, or an apprentice at Stratford or in a summer theatre. The national school and the CBC on occasion, send talent scouts across the country to arrange auditions.

Successful Living

Unreasonable Families Can Be Precious, Loving

DEAR DORIS — Years ago we helped my father buy some land. He always said he'd pay us back when he sold this or that but he's never kept his promise.

So my husband asked him for a quarter of it and he said he couldn't possibly owe that much. This mess made my husband end up in a rest home for three months, and since then my father has been on the outs with us.

He must have told my sister and brothers that it is our fault because they treat us like outcasts. Do you think it would do any good if you wrote to them? We can't make them believe us and I sure hate to be on the outs with them. — OUTCASTS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR OUTCASTS—So much for unbusiness-like family arrangements. Their name is legion — and so, I am sorry to say, are the family outcasts thus sentenced.

Tell me this: Does his debt justify a continued estrangement from your father? Is it your present plan to maintain your distance until you finally attend his funeral — probably in tears.

I couldn't think of writing to your sister — who hasn't asked for my help — but I do suggest you rethink the whole thing for the sake of your own peace of mind. Even unreasonable families can be precious and lovable.

DETAR DORIS — I am 18 and my mother keeps me locked up like I was a rare jewel. She has never allowed me to date except if I go with one of my cousins. She claims that dating will interfere with my school work which I give my undivided attention seven night a week for lack of something to do.

I met a very nice boy and everyone else in the house thought he was just super except my mother. She complained about his coming around and threatened all sorts of stupid things. My father has to agree with her or else there would be a fight.

My friends said to try talking to her and so I did. But it did not work. She does not let you get one word in and besides she always has to be right no matter what she says.

Please help me, Doris. All I want is to be able to see my "Mr. Special" on Saturday night for a few hours. — CONFUSED TEEN-AGER.

DEAR CONFUSED — It's better to be a rare jewel than a neglected juvenile. But neither is good. Mom won't find the right setting for her jewel by keeping it under lock and key!

I gather that even Pop is afraid of her. This one calls for a brave combined effort towards showing Mom she is hopelessly outnumbered and out of order. Quote me if you like.

DEAR DORIS — I am in my middle sixties, active and in good health, can drive a car and lots of time. Is there any place that can use a volunteer for two or three hours a day? — ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS — Physiotherapy centres and outpatient clinics usually welcome car-driving volunteers with open arms. And the aides who need visitors are plentiful. For local steering, go to the Children's Aid Society, 65 West Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS — I'm a girl 17 years of age and in love with a man who is 22. He knows I love him.

The trouble is I'm very shy and he is too. He doesn't go out with anybody. How can I get him to ask me for a date?

Mom said she wouldn't mind if he'd ask me for a date; she said it would probably overcome our shyness. What could I do? And is he too old? — TROUBLED SEVENTEEN.

DEAR TROUBLED — Let's face it. He knows you love him and still doesn't ask you for a date. Doesn't this mean he doesn't think it would be suitable?

He is far too old for you. Don't chase him. Let somebody your own age chase you.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church met at their regular meeting in the downstairs auditorium of the church with Mrs. Hazel Blakely and Mrs. Lyla Votcary leading the devotional period.

The president, Mrs. Jean Locklin presented the facts concerning the World's Day of Prayer service to be held on March 5th at Tabernacle United Church. Mrs. Joyce LeRoy, Mrs. Ruth Babcock and Mrs. Helen Spearman were delegated responsibilities in this regard.

It was announced that a special public service would be held in the evening of March 5th at which time Miss Doris Donnan, Reg. N., would speak relative to her work among the Eskimos and Indians in the Hay Bay, N.W.T. area.

Another work meeting was scheduled under the direction of Mrs. Verna Hall for Feb. 26th. The president also brought to members' attention the need for funds for Hephzibah Orphanage in India.

A study was given relative to the work of Women's World Fellowship, an organization in the denomination started in 1956 when the general president of W.M.S., Mrs. Emily Reisdorph was travelling in South America and saw the needs there. She visited the Christian ladies around the world in prayer for one another.

The interesting Mizpah Band prayer partner cards including a picture and birth date of a missionary and encouraged to write and pray for them. It was stated "a missionary can be no more powerful than the prayers behind him."

A circle of prayer was led by Mrs. T. Hawkins, Mrs. R. Babcock and Mrs. V. Mills to close the service.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1965

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 17, 1965

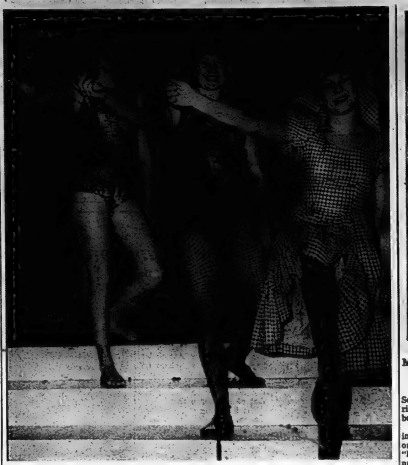
Prime Minister Pearson announced the $75-a-month old age security payments will be made available at age 65 instead of 70.

The eligible age will drop a year at a time to bring it down to 65 by 1970.

The announcement was greeted with approval by spokesmen for all other parties although some hoped for an increase in the payment.

The Commons continued clause-by-clause study of the proposed labor code on pay and hours of work.

Labor Minister MacEachen said hours of work in the trucking industry are excessive and endanger public safety.



He had decided against a blanket exemption for truckers, a group that has opposed the legislation.

Lloyd R. Crosse (PC — Queen's-Lunenburg) said the code added to the "web of bureaucracy" enmeshing Canadians.

THURSDAY, Feb. 18

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue study of the labor code. The Senate stands adjourned until March 2.

Academic Halls Ring With Sounds Of Show Business

The academic halls of Moira Secondary School this week are ringing with the sounds of show business.

Today final touches were being painted and pinned in place on scenery and costumes for "Moiranics"—the school's annual variety show.

Tomorrow night the curtain goes up on the final, polished production many weeks in preparation.

Theme of this year's show is "Yesterday and Today" — a framework that allows inspiration to move in a wide latitude.

The range brings into the spotlight's focus such acts as pre-historic jazz and shattered Shakespeare — all so-called, of course—and strung on a witty line of narration.

Camera-loaded Ranger Heads Towards Moon

PSADENA, Calif. (AP)—Ranger VIII streaked on toward the moon today after what scientists say was an apparently successful manoeuvre designed to send it crashing onto the lunar surface early Saturday morning.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target, a broad and dusty plain called Mare Tranquillitatis, the Sea of Tranquillity.

It will be 3 p.m., however, before they can calculate Ranger's new path precisely. Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles.

The manoeuvre came as Ranger VIII was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

The manoeuvre involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 59 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

Massey Settles On Same Basis As Auto Firms

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Workers at five Massey-Ferguson Limited plants at Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock voted Wednesday to accept a new three-year contract giving them the full pattern of wage and fringe benefits negotiated earlier in the auto industry.

Union officials valued the package agreement at 64 cents an hour.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (CLC), said the 5,000 Massey-Ferguson employees voted 92.3 per cent in favor of accepting the contract. Votes were taken at all three centres Wednesday, with ballots being counted here.

A company official said it was hoped to have all plants back in operation by this afternoon.

'Official Church Teaching' Not Seen in Statements Says Spokesman of RC's

TORONTO (CP) — Should Roman Catholics let their conscience be their guide on birth control?

Rev. Stanley Kutz of St. Michael's College seems to have said so, on paper and verbally but, since a report on his lecture on the subject appeared this week in two Toronto newspapers he has let it be known through colleagues he does not want to discuss the matter with reporters.

Church authorities are reluctant to discuss the subject other than to say that Father Kutz, regarded as a progressive in the church, was speaking as an individual, not reflecting church teaching.

Father Kutz, in a lecture to a group at the Catholic Information Centre last Sunday, said it would be a sin for a Roman Catholic not to follow his own conscience—in the last analysis —even if he disagreed with the Pope. The banished birth control.

Father Kutz, a member of the Basilian Order, took a similar stand in an essay he wrote for a recently published book, Contraception and Holiness. In it he suggests the church should re-examine its methods of communicating and expressing moral values in a manner "more in keeping with our present understanding . . . of personal conscience."

The church condemns the use of contraceptives for the direct purpose of sterilization. However, it permits use of a contraceptive pill in certain cases, such as regulating a woman's menstrual cycle during illness or after childbirth, even though temporary sterilization indirectly results.

The only method of family planning the church recognizes is the rhythm system, keyed to a woman's menstrual cycle.

Father Kutz was quoted as saying in his lecture that on issues such as birth control a Catholic should try to discover what the church has said, then consult his priest, his doctor and possibly his married friends. Then he should seriously decide what his conscience tells him and follow it.

Father Kutz was reported as saying that too often on moral issues Roman Catholics ask what their church says instead of asking: "What is the truth of the matter?"

A spokesman for the church said Wednesday that Father Kutz' statements do not reflect "official church teaching."

"The teachings of the church are based on sound moral principles. The ordinary Catholic knows these are related to the application of the Ten Commandments which bind all of us and therefore the seriously-thinking Catholic knows what he must do."

In his essay Contraception and Holiness, Father Kutz asked:

"Must we continue to exclude from the sacraments of reconciliation and unity those Christians who, after serious thought and prayer, have come to the clear conviction of conscience that they must practise contraception if they are to make the best of a life that will never be perfect in this world?"

The book is a collection of 11 essays by Roman Catholic priests and lay persons on the problem of contraception and was distributed among council fathers at the third session of the ecumenical council in Rome last year.

The essays were written at the request of Archbishop Thomas D. Roberts of London, who said there was urgent need for the council to "re-examine this entire question of the relation of natural law to contraception."

The book was made available to council fathers for what was described as a reasoned and respectful plea to ecclesiastical authorities for a re-assess of mind on the contraception issue.

Two Teenagers Killed in Crash

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP) Two persons died and another was seriously injured when a car and transport collided on Highway 11 about 10 miles south of here Wednesday night.

Dead are Linda Irvine, 17, and the car driver Donald Shell, 18, both of Orillia.

Police said Miss Irvine was killed in the crash and Shell died in hospital at nearby Bracebridge.

Car owner Dale Bigelow, 19, also of Orillia, was reported in satisfactory condition in Bracebridge Hospital with undetermined injuries.

The unidentified truck driver was not injured.

Claims Mercer Prison Doctor Was Derelict

TORONTO (CP) — Fred Young (NDP — Toronto Yorkview) told the legislature Wednesday that an inmate of the Mercer reformatory once reported a lump on one of her breasts to a prison doctor, who told her it was nothing to worry about.

On her release, the girl found the lump was cancerous and it was removed, Mr. Young said. Outside the House, he quoted the girl as telling him that if she had not been released from Mercer last fall, "I would have been dead."

Mr. Young, the last speaker in his group to reply to the speech from the throne, gave full details of the case to Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossman.

He said a period of six months elapsed from the time she saw the Mercer doctor and the time her own doctor told her the lump was cancerous. She was then referred to a specialist, who performed the surgery.

Outside the house, Mr. Young declined to name any of the three doctors or the girl. The operation was performed last October.

He said in the legislature there should be no further delay in reorganizing and modernizing Mercer.

Mr. Young also attacked Leonard Braithwaite, who represents Toronto Etobicoke in the legislature, for other Liberals who visited Mercer and then told newspapers of poor conditions at the institution.

He said the only thing the Liberals had discovered at Mercer which a grand jury investigation had not were chamber pots. He accused the Liberals of chamber pot politics of the worst order.

Mr. Braithwaite defended himself and his colleagues in their actions.

ROBARTS NOT INTERESTED

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts, mentioned frequently as a possible successor to John Diefenbaker, said Wednesday he is not in the least interested in becoming federal leader of the Conservative party.

"I am content where I am and I have a lot of unfinished business to do for this province and the people," he said in an interview outside the legislature.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Canyon, Sports Editor

Phil Linz, that ill ole harmonica rascal of the New York Yankees, was given $200 by the Bomber brass with the suggestion he spend it to take lessons on his lipsichord.

Linz, it will be recalled, was tabbed that innocent last year by the then manager Yogi Berra, for gargling assorted other tunes, "Oh sleep, Little Yogi, oh sleep, oh sleep. Oh sleep Little Yogi oh sleep."

The Linz serenade came at the wrong time. The Yankees were in the midst of a slump and were returning aboard a bus when the sound of music (?) burst upon the Berra ears from the rear of the charabanc.

Linz had hit the second head of his L.P., "Oh, Berra me not on the lone Prairee" when a package of infuriated Italo-American dynamite broke up his Hip-to-Hip concerto.

"Tis said that Yogi's musical education was sadly neglected in his boyhood. His only connection with music came when he joined a Jews-harp orchestra composed of the smallest kids with whom he learned the fundamentals of baseball.

Linz could have been airing anything from the "Shaving Scene from the Barber of Seville" to Mozart, Bach, Cole Porter and the blats of the Beatles for all Yogi cared.

The Linzian stylings did not possess the charms that soothe the savage breast so he discovered when Yogi grabbed his mouth melodeon—and whipped a $200 strike over the "musician's" plate.

Had Linz been a "yogi" in the true sense of the word he would have played the "Funeral March" for even then. It is proven, the path of glory that leads to the baseball grave was being readied for the easy-going Yogi.

Berra, it was claimed in some quarters, did not have the necessary attributes of a successful manager. Neither, they said, did he look like one.

Which brings to mind the story of when Yogi reported to the Yankees after serving a hitch in Uncle Sam's Navy.

Berra reported to the training camp in his uniform of blue, duffle-bag in hand.

The manager looked at the short, squat, grinning Yogi, sizing him from his bell-bottomed pants to his gob's hat.

"What's the matter?" Berra asked, "don't I look like a ballplayer?"

"Hell," the manager snorted, "you don't even look like a sailor."

Two hundred Yankee iron men will buy a lot of lessons for the lyrical Linz. (Actually the loot came from Steve's hideway to repay Phil for his in the Linz wallet blasted out by the Berra explosion.)

However, he could show appreciation by learning to play "Oh, Johnny, Oh Johnny" in several variations and serenade his new boss, Mr. Keane, prior to going to the training camp.

But every dog has his day, even a tough little mastiff like Berra. And it may come when the New York Mets meet the Yankees in their annual exhibition games.

Like the famous beloved Bums and their Daffy Sinfonies of the late Ebbet's Field, Ole Casey may come up with a musical surprise for the haughty hidalgos of the Bronx.

It is reported that a gang composed of the old Flatbush fusiliers hijacked a consignment of mouth-organs destined for Yankee Stadium and will form their own back-tooth band.

The new Shea Stadium may well become the Carnegie Hall of baseball this year.

Champion To Fight, Or Else

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The World Boxing Council said Wednesday that world flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch will have to honor a contract for a title defence against Italian challenger Salvatore Burruni in Rome next March 12 or face loss of his title.

WBC co-ordinator Ramon G. Velezques said he received from the European Boxing Union a copy of Italian promoter Rino Tommasi's contract guaranteeing Kingpetch $50,000 for the fight.

Pone's camp had cancelled negotiations for the fight when the contract did not arrive by a Feb. 10 deadline.

Mikita Passes Hull In Points Race

* * * Habs Blank Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Bobby Hull keeps turnstiles turning, Stan Mikita may be securely leading Chicago Black Hawks to a National Hockey League championship.

Secretly, because Mikita plays in the shadow of Hull, one of the most exciting players in pro hockey. No one can deny Hull's value to Chicago, but these days Stan is the man up front.

Slowed by a knee injury and the tenacity of his opponents' checking, Hull has accounted for a mere goal and two assists in Chicago's last 12 games. But the Hawks are four points ahead of the pack in the pennant race, and Mikita is the reason.

The Chicago centre has scored nine goals and is credited with 19 assists in Chicago's last 20 games. Thirteen points behind Hull in the scoring race at mid-season, he now leads by one point.

Mikita took the lead with his two points Wednesday night as he paced the Hawks to a come-from-behind 5-4 victory over New York Rangers at Chicago. In the only other game played, Montreal Canadiens blanked Detroit Red Wings 3-0 behind Charlie Hodge's third shutout.

TRAILED 4-3

Trailing 4-3 at the start of the third period, the Hawks got two quick goals from Doug Mohns and Fred Stanfield to tie the game. Mikita's 21st goal gave the Hawks the victory with less than six minutes remaining.

Kenny Wharram gave Chicago a 1-0 lead in the first. Earl Ingarfield, Rod Gilbert, Vic Hadfield and Donnie Marshall counted four for the Rangers in the second to only one Chicago goal by Pierre Pilote on a Mikita pass play.

The victory kept the Hawks four points ahead of Montreal, who moved two points ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. The Wings remained two points behind Toronto.

Back home in the Forum after a disastrous five-game road trip, the Canadiens posted their third victory over Detroit this season.

Henri Richard's 16th this season, on a first - period power play, proved the winner. Claude Provost added the clincher in the second.

Hodge made 23 saves, 16 of them in the third period.

Boston Bruins visit Montreal, Chicago is at Toronto and New York at Detroit Saturday Sunday, Montreal plays in New York, Toronto in Detroit and Boston in Chicago.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita has passed Bobby Hull in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Clinching a 39-game drive that saw him eliminate a 13-point deficit, Mikita picked up two points in Chicago's 5-4 victory over New York Wednesday night and jumped one point ahead of Bobby Hull.

Mikita's 21st goal and 47th assist gave him a total of 68 points, five more than Hull's 63. Hull, however, held scoring lead remained at 67.

Other leaders in the NHL Big Seven also were busy off the scoring pace. Claude Provost of Montreal. He registered his first goal in nine games, a three-way tie with Phil Esposito and Gordie Howe for fourth place at 48 points.

All The Way Argos Goal Says Coach

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Shaw, head coach of Toronto Argonauts, said Wednesday night he doesn't "buy this third - place hit" when it comes to qualifying for the playoffs in the Eastern Football Conference this year.

Speaking at a banquet, Shaw said he wouldn't be especially elated if Argos merely qualified for the playoffs.

"I'm looking all the way. I'm not saying we'll make it but that's our ultimate goal.

"I didn't come to Toronto to lose. I would cut my own mother if she didn't go all out."

Habs Sharpshooter
Larose Surprising Success

MONTREAL (CP)—If you'd asked the experts before the current National Hockey League season which 10 players would score the most goals, few if any, of them would have included Claude Larose on their list.

Yet, with the NHL schedule past the two - thirds mark, only eight other NHL marksmen have managed to better the output of this Montreal Canadiens right winger.

With 19 goals in his first 51 games, Larose ranks as one of the surprise success stories of the season.

A six-foot, 170-pound native of Hearst, Ont., Larose says he told his friends prior to the season that, given the necessary ice time to prove himself, "I'd score at least 20 goals."

Canadiens coach Toe Blake says he "more or less expected Claude to do this well."

"All the reports we had on him were good and he's certainly lived up to them."

Montreal railbirds, however, didn't have access to these reports and, with only past records to go on, they could be excused if a few of them didn't see Larose as one of the team's leading goal-scorers.

He had dressed for a total of 25 games with Canadiens during the two previous seasons and emerged from this experience with exactly one goal. In the first scrimmage at this year's training camp, he suffered a broken nose which left him out of action, and out of condition, until almost the end of the season.

Larose, who will be 23 next month, says there's no particular secret to his performance.

"I'm playing my position better than I used to and I think I'm shooting a bit faster, but mainly it's just a case of working out there as hard as I can. . . ."

Ottawa U. Clinches Top Spot

MONTREAL (CP)—The University of Ottawa has clinched first place in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association hockey standings but the battle for other playoff positions seems likely to go down to the wire.

Statistics released by the association Wednesday show that Ottawa has moved beyond the reach of second-place Royal Military College of Kingston. RMC has 19 points to Ottawa's 22, but has only one game remaining.

Carleton University of Ottawa has finished the 14-game schedule with 18 points in third place. However, Sir George Williams University of Montreal, the defending champion, is just one point behind Carleton and has another game remaining.

And "Away We Go"!
Cass The Gas, Opens First Jet

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, slow - moving and 20 pounds overweight at 230, huffed and puffed Wednesday through his first sparring drill in three months.

Clay, tentatively scheduled to meet Sonny Liston in Boston May 25, had his first ring action since an emergency appendectomy operation on the eve of his title defence against Liston last Nov. 18.

Slumped over the ropes after three rounds with brother Rudy, Clay shouted between breaths:

"For a three - month layoff and being 20 pounds overweight, I didn't do too badly. Rudy, he's better than Floyd Patterson and I could have whipped Patterson today."

Rudy hailed the champion with little retaliation. In the first round, Cassius grimmaced after a low shot to the midsection.

Cassius snapped a quick warning remark to his brother but said later: "He just hit my protective belt. It didn't hurt. The bursia thing is in a corner like."

Clay made his usual disparaging remarks about Liston, Patterson, Ernie Terrell and Eddie Machen, who meet in Chicago March 5 for the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title.

The WBA ignores Clay as champion because he booked a rematch with Liston. It ranks Terrell No. 1 contender for the vacant title, followed by Patterson and Machen.

Amateurs' Sad Plight
Puts Blame on NHL

MONTREAL (CP)—Rev. David Kaiser, coach of Canada's Olympic hockey team, said Wednesday that the National Hockey League must be blamed for the poor state of affairs in which Canadian amateur hockey now finds itself.

Speaking to members of the Canadian Sporting Association, he said "we have perhaps lost sight of the fact that we must distinguish between the objective professional hockey and that of amateur hockey."

The main aim of professional hockey, he said, is to make money, while that of amateur hockey is to shape the individual and develop his personality.

He said that in his opinion professionals dominate hockey from beginning to end and that the decisions of these professionals are necessarily good for Canadian youth.

Father Bauer said he disapproves of televised hockey games because of the number of fights which take place during the matches.

DAVID BAUER

"Whether we like it or not, professional hockey, especially televised hockey, influences our youth," he said.

RCAF Star Banned for Five Games

RCAF Flyers took a big step toward clinching the Bay of Quinte men's basketball league pennant at the air station last week.

Flyers turned back the Belleville Lightfoots' challenge 57-48 to keep the losers at a safe distance in the runners-up spot.

The game was marred by an incident early in the game. RCAF star Wilf Borden disagreed with a foul called against him by referee Murray Swan. Borden is alleged to have attacked the official, punching him below the waist and face. He was ejected from the contest.

Later last night, representatives from each of the league's four teams voted to suspend Borden for five games. The Flyers have six games remaining in the schedule.

The Lightfoots, playing their home game on the opposition's court, took an early lead but the Flyers surged ahead 29-27 by half time. Belleville tied it early in the second half but Flyers regained their comfortable lead and maintained it over the distance.

Joe Theriault starred for the league-leaders. He hooped 17 points, most of them on one-hand long shots off a pivot. He got scoring assistance from Ernie Clarke with 14 points and Rainbolt with 11.

Ian Houchin paced the Lightfoots with 16 points and Don Smith sacked 10.

The same two clubs meet at the air station again next Wednesday.

RCAF FLYERS (57): D. Nelson 4, W. Rowden 8, E. Clarke 14, Wydrzuk 10, J. Theriault 17, Dodd, Rainbolt 11.

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — A devastating second-half burst of three goals in five minutes led Inter-Milan to a 3-1 win over Glasgow Rangers in their European Cup semi-final first-leg match here Wednesday night.

Rangers will find it difficult to pull back the two-goal deficit in the second leg match in Glasgow March 3.

Prairie Rinks Rally; Share 5-1 Lead

Schoolboy Curling

By DON ANGUS

FREDERICTON (CP)—Two Prairie rinks pressed a strong counter-attack against a challenge from the Maritimes as the Canadian Schoolboy Curling Championship entered the home stretch today.

With four rounds remaining in the 11-rink round-robin competition, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Nova Scotia all emerged unbeaten from Wednesday's double draw to share the lead with identical 5-1 lost-won records. Ontario, a co-leader at the start of the day's play, suffered two defeats and fell all the way to sixth place.

As play resumed with the eighth-round draw at 9 a.m. (8 a.m. EST), Don Fink's Regina rink faced the tough Northern Ontario foursome skipped by Warren Stealo of Moosonee. Doug Dobry of Viking, Alta., was drawn against Prince Edward Island and Stuart Campbell's Cinderella quartet from Bridgewater, N.S., took on talland Newfoundland.

The host New Brunswick rink, skipped by Tony Richardson of Moncton, had a chance to improve on its 5-2 record against Manitoba, Quebec and British Columbia, both out of the running, clashed in the remaining eight - round match.

Two more rounds were set for the 2:30 p.m. with the tournament scheduled to end with Friday morning's 11th - round draw unless playoffs are needed.

IT'S STRONG POSSIBILITY

That possibility was far from remote. All three co-leaders had crucial matches remaining on their schedule while fourth-place New Brunswick has met most of its toughest opponents and has the advantage of a last-round bye.

Also still in contention were Northern Ontario at 4-2 and Ontario, led by Paul Savage of Toronto, at 4-3. They were followed by British Columbia and Manitoba at 2-4, Prince Edward Island at 1-5 and Newfoundland and Quebec at 1-6.

Dobry and Fink came up with Wednesday's key victories as the Alberta skip knocked Savage out of a first - place tie by defeating Ontario 7-5 in the sixth round and Fink gave the same treatment to Richardson's New Brunswickers with an easy 8-3 triumph in the seventh.

Campbell's Nova Scotians, who sat out the evening session, easily mastered Manitoba 11-5 in their only start of the day.

HAS NO TROUBLE

Saskatchewan had no trouble with Newfoundland in its afternoon game, trailing 8-4 before Alberta had a tough time pulling out a 5-4 decision over Prince Edward Island. Fortune as Dobry barely survived a hard-hitting battle of takeouts with Bob Doherty of Montreal.

In other seventh - round matches, Fred Durant's New Brunswick entry from Grand Falls scored its first victory and knocked Manitoba out of contention by whipping Grant Wuckert's Winnipeggers 8-3. Northern Ontario's Warren Stealo needed an extra end to subdue Prince Edward Island 10-8 and B.C. shaded Ontario 6-5.

In the sixth round, P.E.I. lost another tough one to New Brunswick 7-6 but Stealo picked up a big three in the ninth end to give Northern Ontario a 10-7 victory over Quebec.

OMHA Playdowns

Kingston Wins Juvenile, Midget Openers

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Oddfellow midgets and the A.C.T. "Travellers" juveniles dropped the opening games of their OMHA playdown series to strong Kingston entries before a fair crowd here last night.

Kingston midgets broke up a tight contest with three quick goals early in the third period and dumped the Oddfellows 6-1.

Kingston juveniles, with more finishing power, whitewashed the "Travellers" by a 6-0 score.

Both games were the first in two-of-three series. Second games in both these sets, as well as those of the peewee and bantam series, will be played in Kingston this Saturday.

Rollins peewees are the lone Belleville club with a victory, while the three higher-division teams must win on Saturday or call it a year.

Belleville's strong point in last night's games was the goaltending of Don Oddfellows' Vern Whalen and the "Travellers'" Paul Smith. Both turned in outstanding efforts against Kingston's fast-passing front-liners.

In the midget battle, the teams skated all out during the first two periods in a good display of positional hockey. It was scoreless after one period.

That lead lasted until 11.40 when Mike Babcock tied it on a pretty goal. He cut around a lone defenceman and sunk a backhander. That's the way the period ended.

It took Kingston just over two minutes to win it in the third. Dick Smith cruised behind the Belleville defence to poke home a loose puck at play with Feeley and Nicholson at the .58 second mark. That was the winner but Mike Flanigan, aided by Paul Gavel at 1.59 and Russ Clark, helped by Gavel and Jim Rowe, made it 4-1 at 2.27. Clarke and Smith added clinchers at 12.12 and 14.08. Smith and Babcock got assists. Whalen kicked out many other toughies but up front the teams were outplayed.

There were 11 minor penalties called, by referees Bob Carey and Ted Hurst, with Kingston drawing six.

Kingston: D. Gavel, B. Landon, R. Smith, J. Lau, M. Babcock, G. Feeley, S. Nicholson, A. Brennan, P. Gavel, K. Reid, D. Best, G. Greauett, P. McCann, R. Clark, M. Flanigan, S. Galt.

Belleville: V. Whalen, W. Boyce, L. Moore, T. Schwager, A. Muir, B. Carter, J. Parks, B. Beecher, R. Summers, D. Burrell, B. Wood, J. Holden, C. Wilson, W. Storms, R. Hannah.

JUVENILE GAME

Kingston juveniles scored one goal in the first, three in the second and two in the third straight games to reach the final. Playing their first year together are Mrs. Audrey Thornbourne, skip, Mrs. Marina Wood, third, Mrs. Anne Boudreau, second, and Mrs. Helen Young, lead.

The host Nova Scotia rink from Liverpool was eight ends tall, like their midget counterparts, outplayed the home team with dazzling style from the blueline in.

Syl Apps and Leo Lavallee played major roles in the Kingston attack. Apps fired the opening goal from close in front on a play with Terry Landon at 17:00 even.

In the second, Lavallee combined with Chris Seale to make it 2-0 at 4:00, sinking a quick slap shot. A minute later Apps scored his second on a solo effort. Jim Osborne made it 4-0 on a play with Landon and Seale late in the period.

Belleville had a man in the sin-bin when Lavallee netted his second, assisted by Apps, at 11.31 of the third. Ed Leeman tipped a rebound in the open side, aided by Lavallee and Jack Watts, at 16:18 to end the scoring.

The game was the cleanest in many a moon between Belleville and Kingston juvenile teams. Only five minor penalties were called. Kingston got three of the total.

Kingston: J. Coates, D. Clark, M. Carson, J. Osborne, J. Kinnear, D. Percival, C. Nelson, E. Routley, D. McCullough, T. Landon, S. Apps, C. Seale, E. Leeman, J. Watts, L. Lavallee, P. Catlin.

Belleville: P. Smith, R. Post, F. Farrell, L. Lapenestre, D. Dickey, B. Gregory, S. Ethier, J. Smith, P. Ford, D. MacCormack, B. Ulliett, B. Lancaster.

Seventh Loss In Row For Barons

CLEVELAND (AP)—Hershey Bears scored three goals in the third period Wednesday night to defeat Cleveland Barons 7-4. It was the seventh straight loss for the Barons in the American Hockey League.

Michel Harvey picked up a loose puck behind the Cleveland blue line and fired a shot past Les Binkley at 5:25 of the third period. Binkley caught Bob McCord's shot, but was hit hard and the puck dropped into the cage at 14:17. Keith McCreary tallied the final goal at 17:36 during a scramble in front of the Cleveland net.

The Barons were a man short when Hershey scored its two final goals.

The score was tied 1-1 and 4-4 at the end of the first and second periods.

Harvey put Hershey ahead 2-1 in the second period after Joe Szura scored for Cleveland and Pete Conacher for the Bears in the opening frame. Roger Dorey sandwiched two second - period goals around single tallies by Cleveland's Glover brothers, Dennis and Fred. Dave McComb made it 4-4 at the end of the third period with a goal at 17:18.

10 Rinks Eye National Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian women's curling championship at Halifax, 22-26, shapes up as a wide-open contest as 10 rinks from across Canada shoot for the title left vacant through the absence of two-time winner Mrs. Ina Hansen of Kimberley, B.C.

No matter who wins this annual bonspiel, the victor will be testing her spells for the first time. Mrs. Hansen, winner in 1962 and 1964, has retired and foursomes skipped by Joyce McKee of Saskatoon (1961) and Mabel DeWare of Moncton, (1963) lost in provincial playoffs.

But several of this year's entries have played in past Canadian finals including Mrs. Vincent Callaghan's crew from Bathurst, N.B., which finished with a 4-5 record in 1964.

Another with national finals experience will be Mrs. Fern Irwin's Ontario rink from Dixie. She and lead Mrs. Eva Law are still intact from the 1962 provincial champion foursome. Mrs. Regina Johnson, third, and Mrs. Pern McDonald, second, are other members of this year's Ontario team.

The Irwin rink, undefeated in zone play this year, ran into its stiffest competition in the provincials finals at Port Arthur. Mrs. Irwin and Vi McDougall of Sudbury finished rund-robin play with 4-1 records but Mrs. Irwin won a tough playoff 8-6.

HAS EXPERIENCE

One of the more experienced rinks will be that of Mrs. Dorothy Thompson who has skipped four Alberta championships and last represented the province in the first Canadian Women's curling finals at Ottawa in 1961.

Mrs. Barb MacNevin will take a set Debbie, Sask., rink to Halifax. Its members have been in the northern Saskatchewan finals several times.

Mrs. Elsie Farquhar, lead on this year's Newfoundland rink from Goose Bay, also was lead on the Prince Edward Island championship entry in 1963. She joins a foursome skipped by Mrs. Eileen Farrell.

British Columbia will be represented by a Kelowna rink skipped by Mrs. Peggy Gee, a mother of six. With her are Mrs. Joyce Smart, third, Mrs. Ida Thompson, second, and Mrs. Marnie Robertson, lead.

Sybil MacMillan's P.E.I. entry from Charlottetown includes Marjorie Steward, third, Mrs. Jeanne Dumoulin, second, and Janet Douglas, lead.

Quebec's delegation from Dolbeau will be headed by Mrs. Soulange Larouche. With her are Mrs. Jeanne Dumoulin, third, Mrs. Rita d'Marquis, second, and Mrs. Cecile Bonenfant, lead.

A group of Winnipeg housewives makes up the Manitoba rink of Mrs. Peggy Casselman, Mrs. Val Taylor, third, Mrs. Pat MacDonald, second, and Mrs. Pat Scott, lead.

Petra Favored For Title

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A victory-starved United States figure skating team is looking forward to a title bout in the 52nd North American champion ships with Canada this weekend.

It's been four years since an American figure skater won an international event and the powerful U.S. team would like nothing better than reversing Canada's sweep of honors in 1963.

The biennial competition begins Friday morning with consolatory figures in men's singles. The compulsories in women's singles and preliminary figures in pair and dance are scheduled Saturday, while all four finals will be skated Sunday afternoon.

The U.S. goes into the meet favored in three of the four events, but is given little chance of upsetting Petra Burka of Toronto in the women's singles. The 18-year-old Canadian is one of the leading contenders to win the world title in Colorado Springs, March 2-6.

Gary Visconti of Detroit and Scott Ethan Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., are expected to hook up in a repeat of their men's singles title duel in last week's national meet at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Visconti upset the defending champion and Olympic bronze medalist and will be out to prove it was no fluke. Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., is the Canadian champion.

Junior League Playoffs

A special meeting of team representatives from the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League was held here last night.

Playoff arrangements were the matter of the hour, for both the "B" and "C" sections of the grouping.

Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough are in the "B" category with Napanee, Gananoque, Picton and Trenton in "C".

Belleville "B"s will meet the lower of the two other "B" representatives. Right now, Kingston leads Peterborough by four points and in order for Peterborough to earn a bye in the group finals, the club must win its three remaining games while Kingston loses both its starts.

If Belleville meets Peterborough, the best-of-five series will open in Peterborough on Sunday, February 28. That game is slated for a 5.00 p.m. start. The second game would be played in Cobourg on Wednesday, March 3, the third in Belleville on Friday, March 5. If a fourth game is necessary, it would also be in Belleville on Monday, March 8. A fifth game would be played on March 11, with the place to be decided.

No dates were arranged should Belleville meet Kingston.

In the "C" section, the Gananoque Islanders have their choice of opponents because of a first-place finish. Gananoque chose Napanee, leaving Trenton and Picton to battle in the other half of the semi-finals.

If time permits, the clubs hope to play four-of-seven series.

Dates for the first five games of the Napanee-Gananoque series are: Sunday, February 21 in Gananoque, Monday the 22 in Napanee, Thursday the 25 in Gananoque, Monday March 1 in Napanee and Thursday March 4 in Gananoque. The Sunday games starts at 7.30, the others at 8.30 p.m.

First two games of the Picton-Trenton set will be played in Picton on February 22 and 23. The next two will be played at Cobourg on February 26 and March 1. Both series must be over by March 5. Length of the group finals will depend on the time available.

BC Lions May Quit League

VANCOUVER (CP)—A director of British Columbia Lions said Wednesday his team may consider joining a non-Canadian league if the Canadian Football League's "indicated trend of cutting-back" continues.

Lions' vice-chairman Al McKechers, also retiring president of the CFL's Western Conference, said club officials were "disappointed, discouraged and frustrated" by new CFL policies announced last week.

Lions, Grey Cup champions, disapprove of decisions to reduce import rosters to 14 from 23 and restrict naturalized imports to three a team.

"It has always been our aim to improve the game and expand in British Columbia," McKechers said. "The cut-backs, without our approval, indicate a trend toward contracting, not expanding."

"If that attitude were to continue, we would have no alternative but to look elsewhere for a league to play in," he said.

BASKETBALL STAR HELD

SEATTLE (AP)—Charlie Williams, Seattle University basketball star, another member of the team and a Chicago man were arrested Wednesday night on bribery conspiracy charges involving a game with Idaho on Jan. 22, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced.

Jim Irving and John Russell scored for Canada Wednesday.

From One Who Knows
'There's a Double TV Standard for Women'

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Elaine Grand, one of an elite band of Canadians who have carved a top niche for themselves in British television, sipped a vodka-and-tonic in her cozy West London home and pondered the question of why so few women seem to make good in TV either here or in North America.

Winnipeg - born Elaine, a warmly sympathetic woman of 36 with a mop of unruly brown hair and an infectious grin came to Britain on a visit in 1956 "and just stayed — the usual story."

For three of her eight years in Toronto, she was an expert interviewer on a nightly current-affairs program on CBC television. On her arrival in Britain she was soon introduced to the world of commercial TV by a Canadian friend, Montreal-born playwright Ted Allan.

Now she is a successful producer and regarded as the top woman interviewer on British TV.

She thinks one of the problems facing women in television or any other field is just this tendency to "slot" them in their own women's category, labelling them top woman this or that, rather than judging their work as individuals. She hates being asked to do a "woman's program," though one of her most provocative TV productions, a series on unhappy and frustrated wives, was an example of a woman's topic that engaged the intense interest of men as well.

SEES DOUBLE STANDARD

Women appearing on any TV program tend to be given a different treatment from men, she finds.

"A man can come into the studio bald, scruffy, with dandruff on his collar from his few remaining strands of hair, and nobody will worry about his looks. They'll say 'Oh, he's a great expert on East Germany,' and leave it at that.

"A woman comes on and immediately the producer looks at her and says 'Oh no dear, not that dress,' and the makeup staff get at her and remake her face entirely and nobody says she's a great expert on East Germany.

"No wonder it makes people self-conscious. You have to be very strong to stop them doing this sort of thing to you."

Women themselves contribute to this double standard, though, by thinking looks and a good voice are more important than expertise.

"A man wouldn't come along for an interviewing job on the strength of having been an actor or a male model. He's usually been a journalist, don or schoolteacher."

Elaine thinks women should make natural interviewers—"at a cocktail party, who's doing the interviewing?" — and they can be better than men at getting creative artists to talk about their work. "A man's ego gets in the way."

She sees no reason why a woman shouldn't also succeed in political or industrial reporting, for instance, "if she's good in her field."

LAUDED BY CRITICS

Elaine Grand is good in her field. Now primarily a producer of documentaries for Granada, a Manchester-based commercial company, most of her programs attract favorable comment from the TV critics and a buzz of discussion in the correspondence columns.

She says she is "basically not a serious person," and claims her own favorite of her programs was a comic documentary on people and their pets called The Loved Ones, but most of the subjects she has treated have been deep-rooted, controversial social problems.

The weekly Observer commends: "She has the knack of putting into words and images ideas still only half-articulated among the public."

Last year she produced a thoughtful and compassionate survey of unmarried mothers. Her most recent and most ambitious project is a series on Britain's creaking prison system, called Inside. It has been shrewdly timed to coincide with the national debate on hanging and crimes of violence, though capital punishment itself is not dealt with in the program.

Prison reform is something Elaine Grand feels strongly about, and although her program is impeccably factual and unemotional, it does ask whether the whole concept of punishment by imprisonment is becoming obsolete. Elaine herself would like to see millions spent on research into criminal behavior instead of simply building more prisons, but she realizes public opinion is hidebound on the subject and doesn't expect one television series to crack the ice.

"If the program gets just one person in a thousand thinking differently, it will be marvelous."

LOOK TO BRITAIN

An odd sidelight during her 18 months preparation for the series was the reaction of prison officials in Sweden, long supposed to be Europe's most socially progressive country. They advised Elaine to study the work being done in Britain, and in fact, she says, British prison staff are way ahead of public opinion in dealing with prisoners.

"It's the buildings that are abominable."

During her researches she found the home office, with a shrewd grasp of public psychology, never objected if she wanted to film some forbidding, fortress-like prison but if she suggested showing some of the more modern, less grim, establishments, there was a perceptible reluctance.

Now married to Montreal-born film writer Reuben Shipman, Elaine is the name of her first husband, who died in 1951—Elaine gives the impression of a person who thoroughly enjoys her life.

TOP INTERVIEWER — Elaine Grand, 38, a Winnipeg native, is regarded as the top woman interviewer in British television. Also a veteran of current affairs programs in Canada, she rebelled against being asked to do a woman's program. She also is a successful producer. (CP Photo)

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The last lingering months of winter were the hardest in a pioneer logging settlement on Quebec's North Shore in the 1920s, much as they are today in other isolated parts of Canada.

There were no roads and no ship had appeared since November. Toward spring, the best of tempers became frayed as the routine became nerve-wracking and such staples as meat and eggs ran out.

Harvey H. Smith has caught this special mood in one of 15 sketches in Shelter Bay (McClelland and Stewart), a book about life in the outpost 40 years ago.

The Happiest Day of the Year —first of the stories—is for Marie Gelinas the April morning the supply ship pushes into Shelter Bay.

It carries the long-overdue Christmas gifts, the needed supplies and, best of all and most yearned for, fresh new faces.

One of the newcomers is Ned Flood, and Shelter Bay's 12 Protestants assume this Australian will be an addition to their flock. They find at Sunday service he is a Roman Catholic.

But Catholics and Protestants, French and English, mingle amiably in these pages, sharing the trials and laughter of pioneer life.

The 12 Protestants hold their own Sunday service, but also turn up at mass to catch the village news.

FIRST TOILET

Smith writes of the mystification caused by the arrival of the Westmount Special—not a train but the first toilet in the community. It goes into the home of the intrepid Capt. William Whitehead, the American operations superintendent and one of the figures who flows through the book with Marie Gelinas, mail - carrier Pierre Radisson and his bushies.

Smith admits in an introduction that the characters are for the most part real—"only the names have been changed."

Capt. Whitehead is obviously the late Arthur A. Schmon, then chief executive officer of the Ontario Paper Company, Thorold, Ont., and Quebec North Shore Paper, Baie Comeau, Que., until his death last March.

Schmon went to Shelter Bay in the early 1920s to develop woods operations for the Thorold newsprint mill set up by the late Col. Robert McCormick of the Chicago Tribune.

Smith was invited by Schmon to Shelter Bay and went, planning to spend five weeks making a documentary film on the spring logging drive. Caught in the North Shore freeze-up, he stayed more than two months.

The New York advertising man, now retired in Hancock, N.H., where he wrote Shelter Bay, met first-hand the characters he describes and obviously fell in love with them.

Municipal Works May Use Money To Install Water Mains

DESERONTO — Under the Municipal Works Assistance program Deseronto is allotted $156,569 for work on a filtration system and an additional $100,000 is available under other works program. Councillor Mc-Vicker put forth the suggestion that a project be started to install water mains with this allotment.

The Council is to meet with the School Board on Thursday at 8 o'clock as a "committee of the whole" as requested by the School Board. Tenders are to be called for a combination dump truck and snowplow and also for a new heavy duty police car as the upkeep on the present one is too costly.

The cost of maintaining the present sewer line which services approximately five blocks was $1,118 last year. Councillor Sharpe suggested it would be more economical to have a new 12-inch line put in at a cost of $5,000.

It was moved that a survey be made of the homeowners on this line to ascertain if they would stand an additional assessment for this cost. This would probably be between $10 and $20 a year, the only other possible alternative is for the homeowners to install septic tanks.

Councillor McVicker suggested that the night parking by-law be enforced. Many cars on St. George St. and others are hindering the snow plow. Signs will be erected at the town dump that persons doing unauthorized dumping will be prosecuted.

Lesley Ann Warren Makes Debut in New Cinderella

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Lesley Ann Warren is the Cinderella-girl of Cinderella itself, a really unknown young dancer - singer who was chosen a year ago by Richard Rodgers to play the title role in the rewritten production of the old fairy tale.

It will be seen on CBS next Monday night.

Rodgers' 90 - minute musical was taped last October. Since then, Lesley Ann, a young New Yorker, has been patiently awaiting discovery — by playing in the national company of 110 in the Shade.

On the night television auditiones will be seeing her for the first time, she will play her featured part in a Toronto theatre.

AUDITIONED TWICE

The slender, graceful performer was auditioned by Rodgers twice. The first time she tried to sing My Funny Valentine, but was so tense that the gentle Rodgers suggested she read lines instead. She was called back and, out of all the hundreds of applicants, was chosen.

Cinderella originally was produced and broadcast several years ago for CBS. For a time, it held the all-time record for the estimated size of its audience. But Rodgers was not happy with his work, and changed it from broad farce to the delicate mood of a classic fairy tale.

The 90-minute special will include plenty of Rodgers music, including one song written for South Pacific but cut out when the show ran too long.

Lesley Ann, in her early 20s, has her eye on a film career. She has been offered several contracts, but thinks she would rather wait until just the right part comes along.

Recommended tonight:
Dr. Kildare, NBC, 8:30-9:30 p.m. EST — With Ed Begley guest - starring as an elderly man with financial problems.

Sean Garrison Hopes To Achieve Film Heights

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ready for another film star named Sean? This one is surnamed Garrison, and out at Universal City they're saying he has the same stuff as the Sean called Connery.

Garrison a handsome Irishman, is playing the romantic lead opposite Jean Seberg in Moment to Moment, directed by Mervyn LeRoy. The new Sean possesses a simple ambition:

"I hope to become a box-office commodity."

Sean Garrison hopes to achieve the heights in Hollywood, with all the power and glory that go with being a star. Such ambition is only natural in a fellow who was earning his own living on the sidewalks of New York at the age of 8.

Sean figures he received his performing skill from his mother—"she was from the old country (Ireland) and she could spin a great story." His father died when the boy was 5, and Sean soon became the man of the family.

HAD OWN BOX

"By 8 I had my own shoe-shine box," he recalled. "Business was pretty competitive among shine boys in Manhattan, so I had to discover some way to build a better trade. I found it one day when a man asked me to sing a song while I gave him a shine. I sang Home on the Range and he gave me $1.20."

Sean knew a good thing when he saw it, and soon he had an entire repertoire of songs, even combining with a pal on duets.

He grew up his shoeshine operation after a few years and worked on a dairy farm in upstate New York. Then at 15 he cut out, figuring high school was not for him.

He drifted south, to the Caribbean and all over, taking jobs at everything from bowling pin-setter to Coca-Cola man.

He had always kept up his singing. A friend suggested he try for a job in television. He did—and ended up as film librarian at ABC. But he later landed a contract at Warner Brothers and for a year galloped from one television western to another.

Sean returned to New York, worked a little theatre, and also took a variety of jobs, including Santa Claus at Gimbel's.

He started to click in plays and was discovered in the road company of Camelot by Leroy. He won a Universal contract.

TV Link On Campus

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Closed - circuit television may link the University of New Brunswick at Fredericton with its branch campus in Saint John, due to move into its own quarters in the fall of 1967.

The idea, being considered by university officials, is that it would enable students at either place to view work done with specialized equipment at the other.

Temporary quarters for the UNB branch opened last September in two renovated buildings as plans are being laid for the construction of permanent quarters.

The city of Saint John has formally handed over to UNB the deed to an 87-acre campus site in the Tucker Park area of the north end, and construction of the first two buildings, for science and the arts, may begin before the end of next year at a cost of $1,350,000:

The 229-acre Tucker Park site was given to the city in 1914 by the late Col. J. J. Tucker. Located in the Millidgeville area, it offers a panoramic view of the St. John and Kennebecasis rivers.

Currently, students are taking first-year arts and science in Saint John. Enrolment is expected to grow to 200 next fall when second-year courses are offered in arts and pure sciences.

Trenton Thumps Lindsay 11-2

TRENTON — (Special) — Trenton Legion Juveniles will carry a big nine - goal margin into the second game of their home-and-home two count OMHA Juvenile "A" minor series in Lindsay next Tuesday.

The Legion boys trounced Lindsay 11-3 before about 350 fans in the series opener here last night.

Trenton led 1-0 after a close first period and opened up a 6-1 lead after two heats.

There were 18 penalties assessed, all minors except a third - period misconduct to Brodhurst of Lindsay.

Scoring for Lindsay were John Gibbons and Jim Golden.

This coming Sunday the Trenton Lions Midgets meet Cobourg at Trenton in the second game of the O.M.H.A. playoffs. The Legion Juveniles play an exhibition game the same night.

Frick Halts Japanese Relations

NEW YORK (AP) — Japanese - American baseball relations were terminated, at least temporarily, by commissioner Ford Frick Wednesday when he revealed he has ruled in favor of San Francisco Giants in their dispute with a Japanese baseball team.

The impasse involved Masanori Murakami, a 20-year-old pitcher. Both the Giants and Nankai Hawks claim rights to the left hander.

"I have sent out a bulletin to every one of our clubs that there will be no further relations with Japanese baseball until this thing is settled to my satisfaction," Frick disclosed, "I am deciding in favor of the Giants. I have heard nothing from the Japanese commissioner."

The dispute began when the Nankai team said it had signed a contract with Murakami for the 1965 season. Murakami had already signed a contract to pitch for the Giants this year.

RCMP Uniforms May Have Two Flashes

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP, which has been under fire at the Dorion judicial inquiry for not being Liberal enough, may adopt bilingual flashes for its uniforms, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Louis - Joseph Pigeon (PC—Labelle) asked whether the government is considering the possibility of giving the new "RCMP" flashes on Mountie caps and uniforms with bilingual coats.

"The answer is, obviously, yes," Justice Minister Favreau replied without elaboration.

Mr. Pigeon also asked whether Prime Minister Pearson has asked the Quebec government to change the name of Harrington Lake in the Gatineau area. (Harrington is a small private lake in the Gatineau Hills near Ottawa where the prime minister has his summer cottage. Local residents call it Lac Mousseau.)

ISN'T ENOUGH REASON

John Stewart, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Lamontagne, replied that there is not sufficient reason to change the name at this time.

Mr. Pigeon asked whether the bilingual College Militaire Royal de St. Jean, Que., will give the full four-year course for officer cadets. Cadets now take three years there and the final year at the Royal Military College in Kingston.

Mr. Stewart answering his first question as associate defence minister, said the programs of the military colleges are being reviewed in line with the integration of the armed services. No decisions had been taken.

In another question about bilingual practices, Maurice Cote (SC — Chicoutimi) asked why the "Canada approved" seal now used by federal meat inspectors had not been replaced by bilingual stamps as the change had been sought for more than a year.

Bruce Beer, parliamentary secretary to Agriculture Minister Hays, replied that no action is being taken on bilingual meat stamps because 25 western countries are opposed to the introduction of a standard stamp.

WOMAN KILLED

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Jane Henderson, 25, of Prince Albert, Sask., died en route to hospital Wednesday after a car crash in which she was a passenger overturned on Highway 401 about 15 miles east of here.

Caouette Never Hopes to Be Prime Minister

MONTREAL (CP)—Creditiste Leader Real Caouette has said a French - speaking Canadian could not become the country's prime minister without "betraying his roots and stabbing his race in the back."

He made the comment Tuesday night during a television survey of Quebec political spokesmen on the possibility of Premier Lesage's returning to federal politics. The poll was carried on the CBC French-language program Aujourd'hui (Today).

Asked if his statement meant he disqualified himself as a possible prime minister, Mr. Caouette replied he has never hoped to become prime minister.

"My only ambition is to serve my country as the head of the provincial group of the Ralliement des Creditistes."

Other comments on current matters Mr. Lesage may return to Ottawa included:

Daniel Johnson, Quebec opposition leader: "I always have said that Mr. Lesage is looking for the first possible chance to return to Ottawa." He has the air of an emissary of Ottawa, and I would not be surprised if he soon would make Quebec a province like the others."

Louis - Joseph Pigeon, Conservative MP: "I am convinced that, if he returned to Ottawa, it would be a catastrophe for the autonomist rights of Quebec."

Robert Cliche, Quebec NDP leader: "The departure of Mr. Lesage would be the Quebec Liberal party in a poor state. But Mr. Lesage should not count too much on the idea that, as a French-Canadian, he automatically could obtain Quebec's federal vote."

Trespassing Charged Against 10 Toronto Men

PICTON (Staff) — Ten Toronto men were charged on January 30 with petty trespassing in the Township of Hillier and arrested by County Constable Earl Marvin on that date. The men who were rabbit hunting are alleged to have ignored warnings from farmers who objected to their hunting on their property.. All pleaded guilty and paid fines out of court. Law enforcement authorities will be watching to see this does not occur again. It was stated by Constable E. Marvin. This practice must stop.

Harold Pennell of Picton who was charged on February 11 with keeping a common gaming house was fined $200 and costs when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate R. C. Jackson in Magistrate's Court Wednesday morning. The other men, who were present with him when officers of the O.P.P. anti-gambling squad raided the game at a used furniture storehouse in the West end of Picton also pleaded guilty and each were levied fines of $20 and costs. From evidence given by Constable Moore of the O.P.P. gambling room of the game had been under surveillance from the 15th of November. Over this period of time the building was under observation 32 individuals had been on the premises at one time or another. A total of $238 had been taken by investigating officers on the night of the raid.

"RAKE-OFF" TAKEN

Pennell, it was disclosed, had been taken a "rake-off" but the amounts were not known nor how frequently they were paid. Before passing sentence Magistrate Jackson said that this might be classed as a medium-sized game, that the men were not criminals. He said there is no suggestion that there is any organized crime or underworld action involved. It was merely an illegal poker game and that the men were not charged with gambling but rather because they were found on the premises of a common gaming house.

Reginald A. Ell, who was charged with driving while impaired and was involved in an accident near the bay bridge on February 3, was fined $125 and costs when he pleaded guilty to the charge.

Two men pleaded guilty to supplying liquor to minors and each fined $50 and costs or one month in the common jail:

James Smith of Bloomfield appeared in Magistrate's Court charged with extortion and pointing a firearm. Smith pleaded guilty and was remanded until March 3 pending mental examination. When Foy arrived at the Smith home he was threatened by the accused with a .22 calibre rifle and asked to mark the balance of the loan paid. Magistrate Jackson asked that the court make arrangements to have the man sent to Kingston for examination as he was in a highly excitable state of mind and might be a threat to society.

Judith Lambkin, age 17, of Picton, charged with attempted suicide, pleaded guilty to the charge and was also set aside for mental examination at the Ontario Hospital in Kingston. Mrs. Lambkin had punctured her wrists in a Picton restaurant on January 29. Fred Farley of Picton pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbery with violence and was released on his own recognizance until March 3 while he obtains legal counsel.

Teen-age Canada Big Name Bands Coming Back for the Teen-agers

BY JACK HUTTON

"The signposts are up across Canada. Big bands are on the way back in for thousands of teen-agers — and rock'n'roll is on the way out.

"By the end of this year Elvis Presley may be just a pleasant memory, replaced on countless record players by the big band sounds of Les Brown, Benny Goodman or Count Basie."

Those two paragraphs appeared exactly five years ago this week end under this reporter's by line in 14 Canadian newspapers.

It marked the first time in Canada that a national column dedicated solely to the interests of readers ranging from their early teens to their early 20's had made it across the country.

And it established probably the most incorrect prediction made by anyone inside the country in 1960. As readers kept reminding me for years, Elvis stayed around, while the big band revival never made it.

But what intrigued me was that the column carried on. In a country where the publishing business expects a new column to lose one-third of its first customers within four months, this didn't happen. Instead letters kept pouring in.

And there seems to be a reason. What was it? I wondered about it for months — in fact, years — before it certainly wasn't me good looks.

OFFERED OUTSIDE JOB

The answers didn't occur to me until months later and then, as happens to every newspaper columnist, I was offered an outside job with what seemed a sky-high salary.

I was tempted. Oh, so tempted. In fact, I told the company president I was ready to say yes, but would the weekend to think things over. And I drove home 80 miles to spend a quiet two days reading. And thinking.

Writing this column isn't my only weekly employment, but nothing else takes first place. Worrying about future columns, however, can sometimes seem endless. And you rarely see your readers. What importance is a column?

That's when I realized the fifth anniversary was just around the corner. What had I done? What had I accomplished? Had I written millions of words in vain?

I reviewed the more than 200 columns, tapped out on an aging portable typewriter in a cluttered basement office while the radio or record player soothes the occasional writing block. And I thought of the unseen friends who have written.

You know, a philosophy emerged behind the written words. All those columns on projects across the country, well-known names, hobbies, fads of the moment, school worries, the never-ending problems of growing up.

They all boiled down to three statements: 1. We are living in the most exciting age that the world has known. 2. The world is changing fast, but the values behind it aren't; our folk's fuddy-duddy as they seem at times, still have the basic answers. 3. If you fall within the age group I mentioned, you can reach any goal you aim for.

ANY GOAL POSSIBLE

I mean that. Any goal. Prime Minister? Aim for it and you'll be surprised by the results. Another Glenn Gould or Johnny Bower? Set your sights and you'll amaze yourself.

The opportunities that exist in this country for people of our generation who want to aim high are astounding. What job or profession do you want to fill? Just aim for it.

Thinking back over the columns, I thought of the hundreds of readers who've written to say that they started hobbies simply because I'd mentioned them, I thought of the hundreds who contacted each other through this column.

When I arrived back at work Monday morning, I'd never made a clearer decision. I dialed the number of the president. "Thank you, sir," I said. "I've decided to stay where I am."

And that, old friends, is how this column celebrated its fifth anniversary. We're not through yet.

Deseronto

FLAG RAISING CEREMONY

DESERONTO — An official flag raising ceremony was held in Deseronto on Monday at 12 o'clock.

Present were: Mayor G. Lott, J. C. Reynolds, town clerk; Reverend B. L. Farrel, Reverend J. Soutter, Councillors J. Sharpe, D. Brooks, R. Huffman and Reeve C. Brooks and many spectators.

Mr. C. Martin and Mr. W Miller, members of the color party under command of Mr. A. Hill marched from the Legion hall and took positions each side of the steps of the town hall. The school children arrived, and formed a semi-circle in front. As the clock struck 12 a bugle fell over the crowd and the Red Ensign was lowered while the color party dipped their flags.

Canada's new flag was presented by Ricky Baker, a young citizen, to Mr. Hill to plage on the flag pole and together they raised it to fly proudly in the breeze for the first time.

Reverend James Soutter presented the blessing and the prayer after which "O Canada" was sung.

The color party retired and the crowd departed. In the background two young people, flying bicycles, were flying the flag from their handlebars.

Development Of Northwest Ontario Urged

TORONTO (CP)—C. B. Binder, president of the Northwestern Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce, appealed to the provincial government Wednesday to help spur economic development of the northwest through government action.

Mr. Binder, publisher of the Port Arthur News - Chronicle, said it makes no sense to people in his part of the province that the Toronto area should be crowded almost beyond the point of breathing decently, while northwestern Ontario yearns for population and industry.

"We feel we are not flying in the face of economic reality when we claim that somehow something must be done to prevent the grotesquely distorted development of this province to the detriment of the whole," he said.

In introductory remarks before presenting a number of resolutions to Premier Robarts and cabinet ministers, Mr. Binder spoke of specific problems that were particular to his part of the province.

"We feel they should obligate the government to view northwestern Ontario in a special light," he said.

Suggestion to Broaden Investigation Over-ruled Inspector Tells Inquiry

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion inquiry began delving Wednesday into why the RCMP did not question certain persons whose testimony might have been of value in the police probe into an alleged bribe offer and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers.

The RCMP's chief investigator of allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne said he was over-ruled by his superiors when he suggested broadening his investigation.

Inspector Jean-Paul Drapeau said he suggested to RCMP Deputy Commissioner J. R. Lemieux on Sept. 10 that he should question both the wife and a close associate of Lucien Rivard, the accused narcotics conspirator on whose behalf the alleged bribe attempt was made.

Insp. Drapeau said the deputy commissioner doubted the "propriety" of interviewing Mrs. Rivard at that time and said he already knew the unsavory reputation of Eddy Lechasseur, Rivard's close friend.

Several of the key witnesses before the Dorion inquiry have said they dreaded Lechasseur and his underworld gang.

CHANGED MIND

Insp. Drapeau said he had been told to "possibly" question the mother of Lamontagne. He had intended to do so at first but changed his mind after he found out she lived in Chicoutimi, Que., rather than in Montreal.

Insp. Drapeau quoted Deputy Commissioner Lemieux as saying he (Lemieux) doubted Mrs. Lamontagne's testimony could "add much."

Mrs. Lamontagne since has told the inquiry of threatening phone calls her son received July 21 while he visited her at Chicoutimi.

Mr. Lamontagne alleges he was offered a bribe of $20,000 July 14 by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant of then immigration minister Rene Tremblay.

He also says he was subjected to pressure by Andre Letendre and Guy Lord, aides to Justice Minister Favreau, and by Guy Rouleau, Montreal MP who then was parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson and chairman of the Liberal party caucus.

LINKED TO CASE

Another person whose name had been linked to the Rivard affair at the time of the RCMP investigation was Senator Louis P. Gelinas, treasurer of the Liberal party in Quebec.

Insp. Drapeau said the name had been made known to him but he was not ordered to see the senator.

The investigator — 47th witness to testify before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court — said he was ordered first to question only Denis, Lord and Letendre.

He was given those instructions Aug. 19, eight days after Mr. Lamontagne complained to the RCMP in Montreal.

He reported the results of his interviews Aug. 28 and was given further orders Sept. 3 to question Guy Rouleau, his brother Raymond Rouleau, Raymond Daoust, Rivard's lawyer, Robert Gignac, a friend of Rivard, and Liberal organizer Guy Masson.

REPORT WAS BASIS

His report on those interviews was made Sept. 18 and served as the basis for the decision by Mr. Favreau that there was insufficient evidence to successfully prosecute either Denis or the justice minister's two assistants.

The matter became public after Mr. Lamontagne's charges were brought up in the Commons by a member of the opposition last November.

Insp. Drapeau testified that the last person he interviewed was Guy Rouleau, Sept. 17.

He asked the MP what he thought the interview might be about. "He said he thought it might be about some parking tickets," said the investigator.

Insp. Drapeau had been told eight days earlier by the MP's brother that Guy had informed him the RCMP would visit him concerning the Rivard case.

TOLD DIFFERENT STORY

The RCMP witness also testified he was told a different story by Guy Rouleau about telephone calls made to Lamontagne than that the inquiry already has heard from the MP.

Insp. Drapeau said Guy Rouleau told him of speaking with Lord about the possibility of bail for Rivard and of asking the special assistant to Mr. Favreau by telephone to see Montagne in Montreal about it.

The inspector said Rouleau told him he had not received an answer from Lord when Letendre was approached in the same vein. Insp. Drapeau said he was told by Rouleau that information was received from Letendre. Later Rouleau approached Lamontagne independently.

In testimony earlier before the inquiry, Mr. Rouleau said Lord had provided information but that he had not spoken with Letendre prior to calling Lamontagne.

Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins stressed the importance the commission puts in the timing of Guy Rouleau's call to the Montreal lawyer.

BEATLES SCORE AGAIN

LONDON (AP)—The Beatles have crashed the august halls of London's Stock Exchange and it appears they have racked up another smash hit. Big Icefield Could Be Shipping Hazard

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—A mammoth icefield, reaching from its birthplace in the Greenland and Labrador seas, has pushed as far south as the Grand Banks and could become a major hazard to shipping.

An International Ice Patrol spokesman at the United States Coast Guard station here said Wednesday one of the heaviest concentrations of sea ice in years is moving down Newfoundland's east coast.

The icefield, its most southerly tip somewhere in the vicinity of the Grand Banks, is almost 40 miles wide at St. John's and more than 80 miles wide near the northern coast of Newfoundland.

The field is nearly 200 miles wide where it leaves the Labrador sea to start its southward journey.

The ice, less than 10 miles off St. John's, is being held offshore by a west wind. If the wind changes to east, the prevailing wind at this time of year, the ice will crush in on the coast and St. John's shipping "will be in for a very bad time," the spokesman said.

Commonwealth Status Given Tiny Gambia State

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The independence march of British territories in Africa has been completed for the present with the arrival of tiny Gambia at Commonwealth status.

Gambia, the smallest in area and population of the new African countries, is less than twice the size of Prince Edward Island and its people number only 300,000. Nigeria, by contrast, has nearly 40,000,000 population.

The ceremonial raising of Gambia's red - white - blue-white-green independence flag at midnight Wednesday night meant Britain was stepping out of its first African colony after 300 years of rule.

It also meant white-supremacist Rhodesia now is the only African territory for which Britain has responsibility in addition to the southern Africa protectorates — Bechuanaland, Swaziland and Basutoland.

Rhodesia has long enjoyed internal self-government but Britain is pledged to withhold independence until the black majority has a real say in the running of the country.

PEANUTS MAIN INDUSTRY

Although Gambia once had more advanced constitution than other British colonies in West Africa, it trailed in the independence race because of its lack of economic resources—peanuts constitute its main industry—and its small size.

Its success now gives the Commonwealth 21 fully-fledged members and gives Africa 37 independent states, nearly one-third the membership of the United Nations. Prime Minister David Jaware will take his place at the June conference of Commonwealth prime ministers in London.

Ghana started the African procession nearly eight years ago and a total of 11 British territories, with a population of 110,000,000, now have attained independence, all joining the Commonwealth.

Some observers feel that the ideals of independence have been settled and certainly there have been trying times, particularly in such countries as Ghana and Tanzania. The London Daily Telegraph comments:

"There have been backslidings, lapses, tensions and differences, but on the whole—especially in comparison with the performances of other colonial powers—the job of decolonization is one for which both sides can take credit."

HAS NO ARMY

Gambia amounts simply to two narrow strips along the last 270 miles of the Gambia River and cannot by any stretch of the imagination be termed an economic powerhouse. But its easy-going, cheerful population make friends of practically all visitors and one of the country's appealing features is that it has no army.

Gambia's greatest hope for development is seen by all experts as close co-operation with Senegal, which surrounds the little nation on all but the Atlantic side. Senegal, former French colony, and Gambia were once linked in the "Senegambia" Federation.

State Medicine Not Envisaged In Hall Report

10 Health Commissions Would Operate Plan

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government intends to discuss a proposed pre-paid medical care program for all Canada with the provinces before deciding whether to sponsor it in Parliament.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday after tabling the second and final report of the royal commission on health services that it will be given the same close study as the first report, made public last June.

But before deciding whether to go ahead with the plan suggested by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada and his fellow commissioners, the two reports will have to be discussed with the provinces.

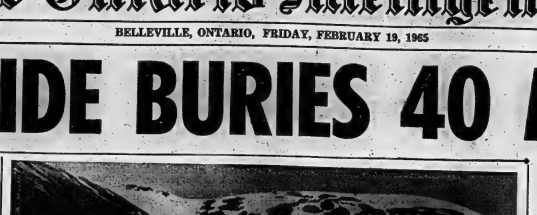
So far, no real discussions on the subject have been held with any of the provinces, though a preliminary meeting was held last summer on the first report.

The complication is that while the medical care plan was evolved by a federal royal commission appointed by the former Conservative government and now reporting to the present Liberal government, the subject matter is largely in provincial jurisdiction.

WOULD SPLIT COST

The plan evolved in the first report was to have the federal government and the provinces split 50-50 the cost of paying all doctors, dentists, and similar medical care bills.

How the machinery would work was spelled out in the second report. It made clear that operations would be centred mainly in provincial authority.



Ten health services commissions, one for each province, would operate the plan, including the negotiation of professional fee rates with the professions. They would also administer hospital grants and, programs to encourage professional training.

Huts Buried, 120 Huddle In Glacial Valley

Avalanche Wipes Out Remote Copper Camp

By WALTER HAYES

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — The fate of their missing unsure and fearing more slides, 120 miners are huddling in a remote glacial valley in northern British Columbia waiting for help.

Rescue forces from British Columbia and Alaska are poised to pluck the men from their Granduc Mines camp today and to search for others still unaccounted for.

Estimates of the number of men still missing range from 20 to 40.

R. D. Baker, manager of the Canadian - owned Granduc Mines, said there were more than 140 men at the campsite when an avalanche struck Thursday morning.

He said there could be as many as 40 men missing.

Lt.-Col. W. W. Mathews, heading the makeshift evacuation centre set up at this north coast port 950 miles south of the disaster, said at least 20 are missing.

WEATHER IS VICIOUS

Vicious weather—high winds, snow and rain—prevented rescuers from flying into the mountain-ringed valley.

The weather was to improve later today but deteriorate again Saturday.

Weak signals from a makeshift radio transmitter with the miners crackled the message that 17 of them were injured—seven seriously.

The messages said the injured were lying on the floor of the company office — "the only building left standing."

They also said that a heavy snowfall had turned to rain and the men feared more slides would rumble through the narrow valley.

The avalanche struck the copper operation when a piece of the twin Leduc Glaciers slipped, burying men and all the camp's power equipment.

RESCUE 40 MEN

The campsite reeled under the blow but survivors muscled their way through a snow blocked mine entrance and rescued 40 men.

The missing are believed buried with the buildings at a small camp near the mine entrance. The bulk of the crew retreated to the main camp a mile away where only the office stood.

Soldiers, a mountain rescue team, a ferry and other vessels and helicopters will be used today to ferry the men out.

An RCAF Dakota aircraft arrived here early today equipped to handle stretcher cases. The plan carried a two-man paramedic rescue team and supplies of blood plasma.

The 1,000 - passenger ferry Tahsis, provided by Alcan, will be used as a hospital ship at Chickamin River north of Stewart.

Discard Mercer Report

TORONTO (CP) —A critical report by a grand jury last fall on the operation of Mercer Reformatory for Women was discarded by the Ontario government Thursday as purely partisan.

The report on the grand jury's findings was made by a special government - appointed investigating committee, and was termed "whitewash" by members of the Opposition.

The committee's report, while giving the Toronto reform institutory a clean bill of health, did recommend, however, that the attending physician, Dr. W. A. Hills, should be replaced.

Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutes, who set up the investigating committee, also announced as he tabled the report in the legislature that

Quebec MP Quits PC Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Conservative Remi Paul bolted the federal "Diefenbaker party" Thursday and announced that he would sit as an independent until the party gets a new leader.

Mr. Paul, a 43-year-old lawyer who represents the riding of Berthier - Maskinonge - Delasnaudiere, told the Commons that the "great Conservative party" now is under the control of a single man—John Diefenbaker—and he has lost all confidence in the leader.

After making his brief announcement at the opening of the day's session, Mr. Paul crossed the floor and took a new seat at the far end of the Liberal benches. There are several empty seats in that area, and one of them was occupied for a time in 1963 by Guy Marcoux, the Quebec-Montmorency member who left the Social Credit party for a time after a dispute with Deputy Leader Real Caouette. He rejoined the Social Credit party after Mr. Caouette formed the Creditiste party.

Mr. Paul's defection from the party was unexpected. Although Quebec Leader Leon Balcer had threatened to walk out over the leadership question, he recently said he would remain within the party for the time being. And other Quebec members would be urged to do so, he said.

WILL SEEK NEW LEADER

Mr. Paul said that although his action differed from Mr. Balcer's and his "many other Conservative friends," he would continue to work with them to give the party a new leader, a new platform and a new life.

Another Coup Attempted In Saigon But It May Fail

SAIGON (AP)—Another coup hit South Viet Nam today, but an attempt to nullify it appeared to be in the making.

Warplanes were circling the rebel-held Saigon radio station, and tanks were drawn up outside the station. Loudspeakers repeatedly warned the civilians to clear the area.

There was no shooting as yet, but the situation was extremely tense.

Col. Pham Ngoc Thao said the coup's purpose was to end the dictatorship of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the strongman commander of the South Vietnamese armed forces.

Thao claimed that Khanh was under house arrest and that Brig. - Gen. Nguyen Ky, commander of the air force, was also under arrest.

Ky was reported safe at the Binh Hoa air base near Saigon and still in control of many of his fighter planes. It was thought he might attempt a counter-attack.

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the militiaty and the people. He said his action was directed against one man—Khanh—and no one else.

It was the eighth government upheaval in South Viet Nam since President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and slain Nov. 1, 1963. Khanh, commander of the armed forces, has been the country's strongman since Jan. 30, 1964.

Khanh had been expecting trouble. Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserves, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in

Minimum Hourly Rate Set

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A bid by the New Democratic Party to write a $1.50 hourly minimum wage into the federal labor code was rejected by a wide margin in the Commons Thursday night.

The code would establish a minimum wage of $1.25 hourly in the bandful of industries that come under federal jurisdiction.

Six Conservatives, including former labor minister Michael Starr, joined with the Liberals in voting down the $1.50 amendment proposed by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre). The standing vote was 96 to 27.

Labor Minister MacEachen noted that the $1.25 rate is the most advanced on the North American continent, well ahead of provincial wage minimums and even exceeding that of the United States. Although the U.S. rate was $1.25 it was only provisional and not yet in effect on a national basis.

He said the government had been confronted by pressure groups opposing even the $1.25 rate but had resisted them.

WANT TARGET

The idea was to set a target for the provinces, which control wage laws governing the bulk of industry. When they attained it, the federal government could again move ahead in this field.

Mr. MacEachen quoted examples of provincial minimum wage laws—$34 a week in Alberta cities, $36 a week in Saskatchewan and $1 hourly in the Toronto - Oshawa - Hamilton industrial region. The Alberta and Saskatchewan rates were

Camp Atop 1,000 Feet Of Ice

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lonely huddle of buildings, the temporary homes and workshops for some 120 men, lay in a glacial valley 800 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Beneath them, the ice of twin glaciers ranges up to 1,000 feet thick. Around them, extinct volcanoes—some 200,000,000 years old—rose to 8,000 feet.

The mountain walls are steep, dark brown and older than granite. Some scrub timber, spruce, clings to the lower slopes.

A piece of the Leduc glaciers —a smothering of ice and snow —slipped Thursday and some 40 men and some of their buildings vanished. Other men were injured.

Home base for this camp is the Granduc Mines, Limited, Vancouver. Most of the men at the camp were from here.

An 11 - mile - tunnel is being driven to link copper fields with mill site.

Doctors Lose No Time In Attacking Hall Report

TORONTO (CP) — Organized medicine in Canada, hostile to a tax-backed medical care program, renewed its attack Thursday in reaction to the second report of the federal royal commission on health services.

Canadian Medical Association-headquarters here issued a 1,200-word "preliminary statement" on the second volume of the Emmett Hall royal commission report shortly after the volume was issued in Ottawa.

The CMA reiterated its opposition to "the system of health insurances outlined in Volume I and defended in Volume II" of the Hall commission report.

"A preferable approach is provided through voluntary mechanisms, multiple choice of carrier and aid from tax funds for those who need such assistance," the CMA said.

The commission calls for a universal prepaid health insurance program financed half by the federal government from tax revenue and half by the provinces from taxes, premiums or even lotteries. Programs would be set up by the individual provinces and freedom of choice would be guaranteed for both patient and doctor.

The CMA said it is not convinced that the proposed insurance system will avoid being a single, uniform, monolithic, government-controlled program.

The association criticized the proposed program further for failing to permit a citizen who wishes to opt out to get back any taxes or premiums paid for services he or she relinquishes.

It said "some rationing" of medical services is essential to reduce unnecessary demand and suggests that the patient be required to pay part of the cost directly to the doctor, an idea rejected by the commission.

However, the CMA statement welcomed the commission's recommendation that government funds given to universities for research and training be increased.

It agreed also with the recommendation that only practitioners with a university doctoral degree be allowed to call themselves doctors and that medical service in the north needs improvement. But it said the commission has given "inadequate consideration" to public health and care of the aged.

Roger D. Bartlow, president of the Canadian Chiropractic Association, said the commission's report "transcends its duty and inconsistent in its reports and recommendations.

Mr. Parlow said in an interview that the commission recommends optimum or improved health care for all Canadians by "free independent, self-governing professions" under its proposed scheme, but relegates chiropractic services to a position where they virtually can-

Albanian Move Is Foiled And UN Assembly Adjourns

UNITED NATIONS (CP) —Albania and 10 other countries should have no vote because their peace-keeping dues exceed two years' assessments.

Western delegates privately called it a defeat for Communist China, Albania's close ally, since the result upset what they saw as a Chinese attempt to force a Soviet-American collision.

Only Mauritania supported the Albanians.

But there was furious debate both inside and outside the chamber on whether Albania's rights had been trampled. Even some countries who joined in the majority expressed doubts about the ploy employed to block the Albanian move.

Negro Shot, Newsmen Beaten In Alabama March

MARION, Ala. (AP) — One Negro was shot twice and at least eight other persons—including three newspaper men—were beaten during a clash between Negro demonstrators and police on the first night march of the present voter registration campaign.

The march started quietly Thursday night at the Zion Methodist Church.

About 500 demonstrators left the church and headed for the jail to protest the arrest of one of their leaders, James Orange. Police told them to disperse.

"We stood there a little while and turned around," said Albert Turner, president of the Perry County Civil League. "One of the ministers in the group started praying. By that time state troopers had arrived."

He said the troopers "started pushing the crowd back toward the church, but our people couldn't get in the door because it was jammed. When they tried to go around the church to a side door the troopers beat them."

Police and highway patrol officials declined to comment on what followed. But there was clubbing and shoving and some rock and bottle throwing. An FBI spokesman said some arrests were made.

The man who was shot was identified as Jimmie Lee Jackson, 26, of Marion. He was shot twice in the stomach and was in critical condition in a Selma hospital.

Five other Negroes were taken to hospital in Selma.

Richard Valeriani, an NBC correspondent, was clubbed on the head and taken to hospital at Marion. Six stitches were needed for a wound at the base of his skull.

Two United Press International men also were injured. Pete Fisher, a photographer, said he got "a pretty good working over" and his camera was smashed. Reggie Smith, a newsfilm cameraman, said he was hit in the ribs and his camera broked.

Turner said that Orange was arrested earlier in the day on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Orange and Turner had been leading the voter registration drive.

In Washington, an FBI spokesman said the FBI would investigate, if called upon to do so by the civil rights commission, and make a report on the facts to the justice department.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he sent a telegram to Attorney-General Nicholas Katzenbach asking for federal protection of citizens in Marion.

The voter registration campaign, which began in Selma and spread here, now is in its fifth week. More than 3,000 Negroes have been arrested, most of them in Selma, which is about 50 miles to the east.

Merchant's Allegation On Parking Conditions In Municipality Denied

Think Plane Responsible For Big Bang

A low flying jet plane travelling faster than sound was believed responsible just at daybreak this morning for a loud explosion which jarred many city residents out of their sleep.

Whether a plane breaking the sound barrier was responsible for the explosive sound was not definitely determined, but there were reports of a passing plane being sighted and the whine of a jet engine was heard for some seconds after the explosion.

Purchasing Agents Meet At Kingston

The Aluminum Co. of Canada at Kingston was host to the members of the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario Tuesday afternoon, providing them with a tour of the plants at their Kingston Works.

That evening the February meeting was held at the La-Salle Hotel in Kingston. The meeting, under the direction of Mr. R. Davis (Canadian Locomotive Co., Kingston) was attended by 27 members and guests. The meeting was first addressed by Mr. Adair, Director of Purchasing for the Aluminum Co. of Canada. The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Wm. C. Brown (Dow Corning Silicones Ltd.). Mr. Krane outlined some of the outstanding advantages that have been made and are being made in silicone elastomers.

Before the meeting adjourned Mr. Coorad Brunks of Queen's University, who had been accepted as a member, was presented with his Certificate of Membership.

NAMED FOR CHURCHILL

LONDON (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill's publishers in Britain, Cassells, have announced an annual literary prize worth $5,000 to be named after their most famous author.

Lack of new industry and congested parking conditions are two of the main problems besetting Belleville's downtown merchants.

This was the claim of Fred Hebden, Front Street radio and TV dealer, who claimed that customers were being driven away from the downtown area by over-zealous ticketing for parking violations.

He said that meter attendants waited "like leeches" to pass out parking tickets after the meters turned red.

"If I were a customer I would never come downtown if I got a parking ticket," he said.

But Cleo Colling, past chairman of the city parking authority, denied that parking conditions in the core were all that bad and defied anyone to find a better-parking program in any other centre the size of Belleville.

DISPUTED ALLEGATION

He disputed that meter attendants waited like leeches to pass out parking tickets, stating that 12 minutes grace was always granted before tickets were given out.

Mr. Colling said the local parking authority owned $350,000 worth of off street parking property "which had not cost the taxpayer a cent."

And he defended the city's section in enforcing parking regulations.

"If you do not enforce parking regulations all would take advantage of the fact and leave their cars all day," Mr. Colling said.

Theatre Guild Workshop To Be Held

Noted theatre authority, Norma Springford, tonight opens a weekend workshop sponsored by The Belleville Theatre Guild.

Originally planned for the Loft Playhouse, now destroyed by fire, the sessions open at St. Michael's auditorium tonight and continue at Education Hall.

Tonight's opening session is open to the public to relax while Saturday and Sunday will be given over to stage production with the emphasis on movement.

The workshop is the result of enthusiastic response to a similar venture last October, when Mrs. Springford conducted her first course in Belleville.

The projects were sponsored jointly with the Department of Education's Community Programs Branch.

This weekend is expected to draw broad response around the Quinte region and Central Ontario. Persons interested have been asked by the Guild to contact Mrs. Irene Turnbull.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Feb. 18, 1965

The Commons continued study of the labor code bill regulating pay and work hours for workers under federal jurisdiction.

Rene Paul, member for Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere, announced he will sit as an Independent MP.

The move was taken because of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's policies, he said.

On the labor code, William H. S. Thomas (PC—Middlesex West), argued that eastern feed mills should not be under the code.

Labor Minister MacEachen said the Conservatives included feed mills when establishing minimum vacations.

Two proposed amendments to the bill were defeated in standing votes.

Tom Barnett (NDP — Comox-Alberni) suggested application of the code to work hours be made jointly by employers and employees.

This was voted down 79 to 32.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) suggested the minimum wage be set at $1.50 an hour.

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. EST tomorrow for study of the labor code. The Senate stands adjourned until March 2.

want where survivors will be brought 60 miles by helicopter.

The army personnel will be ferried into the campsite to uncover the missing.

HAVE NO FOOD

"The two main problems are no food, clothing, shelter and bad weather preventing us getting in to survivors," said Col. Mathews.

First report of the glacial destruction came from Inuk Kelly, Vancouver, flying for a Pacific Western Airlines radio station at an airstrip near the camp.

His brief, "May Day, May Day, this is CFUN" international distress call — touched off the rescue operation but his broadcast was stopped when the ice and snow rumbled over the camp powerhouse.

Radio-controlled batteries from bulldozers left untouched and set up a station in the computer office—the survivors' only communication with the outside world.

"This is Fortal Camp transmitting blind," was the message received.

CAMP WIPED OUT

"Fortal Camp has been wiped out by the glacier. There are several slides in the area.

"They (the miners) require food and medical supplies, breathing equipment and oil pressure lamps.

"We're now moving equipment."

His messages were monitored but his attempts to answer him were fruitless.

Later the monitor crackled: "Another slide starting."

"The temperature is now 31 degrees. If it gets any warmer and starts to rain then there will be more slides."

Kelly faded beyond reception in the mountainous area and was silent four hours. Then he asked for morphine and hot water bottles."

His last terse message Thursday said:

"We can hold out tonight."

TWO-TONE WARNING

LONDON (CP)—A new sound will be heard in Britain soon. Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice has approved the "pinpon" warning sound for standard police cars throughout the country, a warning similar to that used by police cars in France.

More Members Wanted in Association

Who should belong to the Downtown Merchants' Association?

Executive members of the local association feel that there should be a greater participation on the part of downtown merchants, in fact it felt that any "selling" business should be a member.

And there are others who feel that membership should be all business and professional people.

Local high school teacher Roger C. Greig, attending last night's merchants' meeting from a point of personal interest said he was surprised to learn that all business people — banks, restaurants, insurance and finance companies — did not belong.

He said he was interested in the downtown area because he felt it was a good place to live, and was interested in making the downtown area more accessible.

One of the Association executive members said many of the people mentioned had been approached but were not interested in joining.

On the other hand a recent arrival in the city from Peterborough said in that city the professional people were very interested in the downtown area.

Both doctors and lawyers are members of the businessmen's association in that city and prove their interest by regular attendance at meetings.

Half Million Spent Here by GM in 1964

OSHAWA — Spending in Canada for purchases, wages and taxes by General Motors of Canada in 1964 reached a new high of $765,000,000, the company reports. GM of Canada spent $706,000,000 in 1963 and $575,000,000 in 1962.

Of the 1964 total $443,000, exclusive of federal and provincial taxes was spent in Belleville.

Crucial Talks In Dispute Continuing

Crucial contract talks between union and management of Du Pont of Canada continued this morning at the Sun Valley motel here.

Discussions, supervised by a conciliation officer, started yesterday and are believed to have gone on through the night.

Secrecy shrouded the talks and no word on progress has been leaked outside the conference room where the main discussions were in progress, between management and representatives of local 134 United Mine Workers of America, Ind.

A conciliation officer, queried by a Toronto Intelligencer reporter in the motel lobby this morning, tersely replied there would be no public information at present.

The 1,700-member union voted earlier this month to take strike action if a settlement isn't reached.

Legally, the union can strike next Wednesday.

trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably still were in charge.

These include two battalions stationed in the central Bin Dinh province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 5th, 7th, 9th and 5th army divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

The first signs of the coup came at the waterfront near Khanh's armed forces headquarters. Several M-24 tanks smashed through the barbed wire barricades outside the navy headquarters and Khanh's house, which are on the same street.

Hiding in one of the tanks was Col. Thao.

This happened about 1 p.m. At the same time, tanks smashed their way onto the Saigon airport, blocking South Vietnamese air force planes which apparently had been won over. The coup was all but finished by the remainder of the afternoon. With 30 minutes all key military installations in Saigon had been taken by the rebels.

It was believed that troops from the Dong Nai forest, 15 miles north of Saigon, had occupied the installations with ease. Dong Nai is home of two ranger battalions.

At 2 p.m., when Thao had received confirmation by radio that all objectives had been taken, a convoy of tanks and military trucks drove through the streets to Saigon radio station.

There, Thao said in a broadcast: "This is not a coup d'etat but it is a revolutionary movement.

"All the units of the army, navy and air force and marines are participating.

"Gen. Khanh is a dictator. All units throughout the country have pledged allegiance and security.

"This is the voice of the military-civilian force."

Interviewed at the radio station, Thao said: "We want to get rid of Khanh and his regime. We will see later if any of the present government will participate."

A new government named by Khanh had been installed in office on Thursday. Dr. Phan Huy Quat is premier and Phan Khac Suu was retained as figurehead chief of state.

The coup took the U.S. embassy by surprise.

The diplomats were reported trying to prevent bloodshed.

In the early days, the only way in was by tractor-train over a winter road 20 miles to the glacier and then which, at its winter peak, lies 20 to 30 feet deep.

Today the way in is by freight plane to an airstrip high on the glacier, then by tractor-train to the mine site.

Leduc is two separate glaciers which come together near the camp.

Once the mine is in operation estimated to be in 1967, the all-the-year-round road will be driven to Stewart so the copper concentrates may come out by sea.

Already, Grandduc has spent $3,000,000 on the project; plans call for another $53,000,000 to be spent.

The camp is in a high-snowfall belt," says Dr. William Mathews, head of geology for the province of British Columbia, and who has visited the camp.

SNOW PILES UP

"The area is notorious for heavy snowfall. By the end of January, the camp equipment will be feet buried in snow."

A company prospectus, released only this week, said the area contains an estimated 30,000,000 tons of almost two-per-cent ore, which Dr. Mathews described as high grade.

The area, the prospectus says, is potentially the largest single copper deposit in Canada.

What caused the slide?

Communications were intermittent so it wasn't known for sure, but Dr. Mathews said the recent warm spell "could have been a significant factor."

Exploration work started in 1953 and by the end of 1963, progress had been made in outlining ore occurrences. A mining plant, drills and other equipment were moved in. Some 330 feet of tunnel was completed with 4,344 feet of surface and underground diamond drilling.

In 1956, work started on a three-compartment vertical internal shaft to a target depth of 1,200 feet. Work continued on into 1958, then stopped.

For two years only geological and geophysical exploration was carried out. Work resumed in 1959 when Newmont Mining Corporation of Canada Limited took control.

Production, after a first-year target of 1,500,000 tons, is expected to hit 2,500,000 tons. The planned mill will treat 7,000 tons a day on a seven-days-a-week schedule.

Local Landmark Down But Not Out -- Twice

Hardly anything remains of an old stone landmark in the centre of Shannonville. But it still continues to attract attention.

For the second time in three days Belleville firemen have been called to the ruins of the building being demolished alongside the Wayside Inn.

Fire deep-seated in the rubble has been smouldering, today threatening to spread to the hotel. A spokesman for the fire department said there was no reason for alarm and the situation was under control.

Service Fee To Patients Is Rejected

OTTAWA (CP)—Any service fee to patients under its recommended health care program would continue to deny medical services to the poor and would not prevent overuse by higher income groups, says the Hall royal commission on health services.

The commission, in its second and final volume of a report that recommends a government - sponsored, pre-paid health care scheme, said the entire proposition of having the patient pay a minimum fee, in addition to any premium, must be rejected.

"Such a policy would mean that Canada was simply continuing to ration health services on the basis of ability to pay, a policy which was overwhelmingly denounced in submissions to the commission," the report said.

This report says surveys show an extremely high correlation between high incomes and high use of medical services.

NOT POOR ALONE,

"To the extent that over-utilization or demand for unnecessary services is a problem—and its existence, though limited, cannot be denied—it is one which cuts across all income groups and is not concentrated in the poor."

The remedy for over-demand and over-servicing lies in control by the medical profession itself through the appointment system, the report says.

The commission expects no sharp increase in demand for medical services immediately following implementation of the program and "categorically" rejects predictions that the program would result in a deterioration of quality during the first 10-year period.

It also said the generous increases in nurse training recommended to improve medical services and increase personnel, and a possible breakthroughs in treatment, should improve quality.

The commission says demands on health resources will increase after the program.

PROVIDE MORE STAFF

"Paralleling that increase, the expansion of the educational facilities we recommend will provide the additional personnel necessary to meet these extra needs and to give the over-worked physician the time and help for the performance of his professional duties full time for a normal life with his family and time for continuing education and research."

The first volume recommended expansion of six new university medical schools, four new dental schools, 10 new university nursing schools, and grants and bursaries to students.

the reformatory is to be replaced.

But Mr. Grossman said he had suspended plans for a new building pending a statement of policy from the federal government on whether it planned to take over custody of all persons sentenced to six months or more, as recommended by the Fauteux report.

The provincial government now engages the custody of offenders sentenced to less than two years. Others with higher sentences go to federal penitentiaries.

The federal government now has decided to take over responsibility for sentences of a year or more. There will be no sentences between six months and a year. The provinces will deal with offenders sentenced to six months or less.

The investigating committee dismissed all the grand jury's charges and questioned the impartiality of the jury foreman and the objectivity of the jury itself.

In recommending in a roundabout way that Dr. Hills be replaced, the members of the committee said that because of Dr. Hills' "forthright and sometimes what abrupt manner," the inspector - patient relationship had suffered at Mercer.

SAYS IT'S 'WHITEWASH'

Donald MacDonald, leader of the NDP, said the report was a "whitewash attempt at whitewash."

Allen Trotter (L—Toronto-Parkdale), who had toured the Mercer after the grand jury's findings were made public, said he was dumbfounded the government would bring in "such a whitewash with Mercer," Mr. Trotter said.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree also announced in the legislature that a section of the Workmen's Compensation Act prohibiting discrimination in wage for agriculture workers will be introduced in the statute.

The move will allow Mr. Rowntree's department to develop regulations for the benefit of the act to farm workers following necessary study."

AIMED AT DISCRIMINATION

Mr. Rowntree also introduced an amendment to the Ontario Human Rights Code that would prevent discrimination against other persons in marriage because of the race of the other.

The amendment was designed to cover situations where one party to an interracial marriage might be denied admission to a public place because of the race of the other party to the marriage.

Legislation to prevent boundless discrimination in any business agencies under the provisions of the code which prohibit discrimination in hiring

WILL RETEST DRIVERS

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said a program of retesting Ontario drivers will probably be started in four years from now.

He said that the department now re-examines about 300,000 drivers a year in specific categories—the elderly, school bus drivers, accident-prone drivers, those involved in fatal accidents and those who have had their licences suspended.

By gearing itself to retest an additional 300,000 drivers a year, the department would be able to cover the whole of the motoring population in said years.

Mr. Haskett also disclosed that this year the department will carry out an expanded program of motor vehicle inspection in co-operation with the provincial police.

Mobile safety check units manned by police and department personnel will be posted along Ontario highways at such locations as weigh scale sites so vehicles could be checked away from the main stream of traffic.

Reports Read To Council On Re-zoning

TRENTON—With Councillors Joseph Gould and C. V. Graham away on a holiday in the south, their reports were read out by Councillors Ross Burtt and Paul Tripp, who are still withstanding the rigors of the Canadian weather.

Councillor Burtt said 33 infractions of the zoning by-law in residential zones had been uncovered, and that town solicitor Roderick Campbell had been asked to deal with 18 of them. The solicitor wants to make sure the infractions still exist before taking legal action.

Councillor Tripp, reporting for the traffic committee, said the committee did not approve of a request to re-zone property at the corner of Dufferin Ave. and McGill St., to permit the establishment of a commercial enterprise here. Reason given was that it might create a traffic hazard.

The committee also recommended placing an illuminated three-way sign on the Gilmour Hill intersection, to direct motorists to Highway Two, east and west and Highway 401.

Councillor Edward Todd recommended a study of the need for storm sewers in the Loud and Hanna Street areas where basement flooding has occurred recently, and the establishment of a traffic signal light at the corner of Byron Street and Dundas Street East.

Councillor Todd also recommended a storm sewer in the area between Hanna, where a four-foot deep "lake" in the middle of the road has sent residents to the basement to hunt up their fishing tackle, and Councillor Tripp would like to see a light at the south end of Orchard View Drive and Dundas Street West where you "can't see a thing on a dark night."

Governor Addresses Lions Club

District Governor Evans is a member of the Havelock Club.

The primary purpose of the District Governor's visit was to advise and assist President Ernie Finkle, secretary Jack Dybie and other officers, directors and members of the club on matters pertaining to Lions administration and the Lions' great program of humanitarian service.

ACTIVE UNIT

Belleville is an active unit of the International Association of Lions Clubs, which is dedicated to community betterment in all its aspects; to national and economic, social and cultural progress, and to the promotion of international understanding. In all of these fields, Lions International has wrong influence and has been a force for countless constructive services.

WORTHY PROJECTS

Locally, the Belleville Lions Club is presently engaged in the purchase of artificial eyes for needy blind persons; is contributing toward the construction cost of the Lake Joseph summer camp for the blind; sponsored a tyke team in the Belleville Minor Baseball League, and last year finished payment on a mortgage for the Retarded Children's School on John Street.

administration came in for criticism from Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson, who accused the government of deliberately under - estimating government revenues in its budget forecasts.

Mr. Thompson said at least $20,000,000 more in revenues will be available in 1965-66 than the government has forecast. He described this as "cooking the books."

He said the government was guilty of under - estimating revenues from corporation taxes, liquor, succession duties, land transfer taxes and securities transfer taxes, among others.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond announced that the Fort William tuberculosis sanatorium will take over the care of 30 bed-ridden children at the Smiths Falls hospital school for retarded children.

Mr. Dymond said his department is also carrying on discussions with another Ontario hospital to take from 125 to 150 retarded children from Smiths Falls.

Later, Dr. R. Bruce Hopkins, superintendent at the Ogwanda Sanatorium at Kingston, said about 100 rooms of the institution will be used for the bed - ridden children from the Smiths Falls hospital.

Vernon Singer (L — Toronto-Downsview) introduced a bill, formalizing a proposal by Mr. Thompson, which calls for an ombudsman to protect individual citizens' rights against arbitrary government decisions.

HIDE TO SEEK

POOLE, England (CP)—Dorset naturalists have installed coin-in-the-slot telescopes in a "hide" overlooking the Brownsea Island bird sanctuary in Poole Harbor.

Department of Transport employees who are busy these days repairing locks along the Trent River canal system ran into a problem at lock number three at Glen Miller. In order to be able to repair the locks the entrance had to be shored up with logs. The lock gates held fast by some twenty feet of ice, jammed into the entrance by the force of the river, presented quite a problem until a large excavating crane was employed to remove the big ice blocks. Department employees are shown steering crane scoop into ice.

Chief Poste Thanks Town For Assistance

TRENTON — Fire Chief T. E. Poste of Belleville has written to Trenton council, expressing his appreciation for the cooperation and assistance given to Belleville firefighters by Trenton's chief, Cecil Ellis and his men during the recent fire in the West Robertson Block in the larger centre.

Chief Poste pointed out in his letter to council that this was just one more demonstration of the value of the Mutual Aid agreement between departments of Belleville and Prince Edward Counties.

NOT GIVEN SUPPORT

Trenton council voted Wednesday night not to support a resolution brought down by the town council of Lasark, Ont., by which the Ontario government would be asked to extend per diem rates for Children's Aid Society wards, who have reached the "cut-off" age of 18, but must, for one reason or another, remain in the protective custody of the society until they are 21.

Council voted against supporting the resolution on the strength of an action already taken by welfare administrator Gordon Davis, who thought the situation might "get out of hand," in some cases. Trenton has had very few, if any, similar problems, Mr. Davis was quoted as saying.

Brighton Area Family Loses Home by Fire

TRENTON— A Brighton area couple Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hardy and their family of three lost their home and all their contents in a fire late yesterday. The flames consumed their story and a half frame dwelling house at R. R. 3 Brighton and loss is estimated at around $4,000.

The Brighton fire department under fire chief Edwin Boes sped to the scene but the flames were out of control and firemen were unable to save the dwelling in spite of their heroic efforts.

Mr. Hardy told chief Boes he tripped while carrying a five gallon uncovered can of oil across the room. The oil spilled out over the top of the hot space heater, he said.

Mrs. Hardy and the other members of the family were away when the fire broke out. The Hardys are staying with relatives. Back in 1963 a house on the same farm owned by Hardy was destroyed by fire.

SPEEDY CATCH

REGINA (CP). — Commercial fishing for whitefish in Last Mountain Lake, 35 miles north of here, was valued at about $40,000 last year. About 100 licensed fishermen took only four days to land the 200,000-pound limit permitted under commercial regulations.

Society Asks Council to Hold Tag Day

TRENTON — After Trenton council learns more about the work of the Muscular Dystrophy Society and its application, if any, to Trenton residents, it may grant permission for the society to hold a tag day in Trenton next August.

At Wednesday night's meeting of council, a letter asking permission for the tag day was read out. Council does grant permission to organizations who have held tag days in the past. Since this would be a "first" for the M.D.A. council wonders if it should establish a precedent.

VON to Borrow Against Bonds Held to Pay Debts

TRENTON — Faced with a $334.92 overdraft in the bank at the year's end, and with a savings bank balance of $137.13, Clifford Miller, president of the Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses branch of nine members of his executive voted at a VON meeting this week to borrow against $3,000 worth of bonds, bought in a happier day, to enable the branch to carry on until other sources of income, such as the annual town grant, start to come in. Sold at the moment, the bonds would be worth less than face value, but they are a good source of borrowing and worth hanging onto.

Last year, for the first time in many years, the branch was faced with paying a more realistic rent for its office than the $5 monthly charged by the Canadian National Railways for the office in the old CNR station. The station was torn down to make way for the A. & P. parking lot. Sympathetic, the town council upped its annual grant, but the increase still wasn't enough to keep the branch in the black last year.

The VON will ask for a meeting with a council committee to try to get an additional grant this year before the council rises.

Meanwhile, a committee of the VON has been set up to plan for something "special," and it is hoped to fund-raise, in the way of a spring tea. Members of the committee are Mrs. W. A. L. McDonald, Mrs. A. L. Richards and Dr. John Harris. The date for the tea and other details will be announced as soon as the committee has formulated plans.

The annual VON tag days will be June 4 and 5 if council agrees to the request in time. A house-to-house canvass will be held in October, from the 19th to the 30th.

The VON nurse in charge, Miss Mary Margaret Gillies, told the council that she and her part-time nurses had made 123 visits in January.

Of these 87 were adult home cares . . . an increase of 37 over adult visits in January, 1964. This means, said Miss Gillies, that many more persons are taking advantage of the VON services.

Seven of the 123 visits were paid for in full at $5 a part; eight free visits, where the patients could not afford to pay, were made, 28 visits to members with new born babies were paid for since there is no charge for this service and 80 visits were made to persons who have lately come from creative institutions, such as the TB san, and part payment was received for these.

Miss Gillies said that a Miss McNaughton, a registered nurse from the Ontario Society for Crippled Children had been in Trenton last month and that she, Miss Gillies had accompanied the nurse on several visits to local homes.

Miss Gillies addressed the Home and School Association at St. Peter's School last month on the subject of immunization and will address the RCAF Officers' Wives Club this month. The RCAF club had donated several, baby layettes, she said and had offered to assist the branch in any way. Miss had told the club she quite often went into homes where the children were in need of warm clothing, and the club had immediately gathered together a large bundle of such clothing which Miss Gillies is now distributing when she sees a need.

WILL REMAIN

James F. Cox, the chairman of the Trenton Memorial Library Board for a number of years, has accepted a council appointment to remain at his post for an additional three years.

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Cox commented that the circulation at the library had increased from 70,000-books in 1963 to 127,000 in 1964.

Mr. Cox said the present board was looking forward to further library expansion within four years and was setting aside governmental grants for this purpose.

Unfortunate Phrasing

Politicians, even the best of them, seem to lack imagination.

At the official raising of Canada's new maple leaf flag at the Peace Tower in Ottawa on Monday, Prime Minister Pearson said: "If our nation, by God's grace, endures a thousand years, this day, the 15th of February, 1965, will always be remembered as a milestone in Canada's national progress."

Imagination would suggest that a couple of hundred years from now, as few residents of what is now Canada will be able to say what day the maple leaf flag was first officially flown as there are residents of the United Kingdom who can describe the first use of the Union Jack.

Imagination would have suggested that it will hardly be by God's grace, but by reason of great ill-fortune, if our present political boundaries are not adjusted several times in the next ten centuries.

Imagination would have suggested some other phrase than "endures a thousand years."

True, Churchill used it in his "finest hour" reference—"Let us, therefore, brace ourselves to our duty and so bear ourselves that, if the British Commonwealth and the Empire lasts for a thousand years, men will say 'This was their finest hour.'"

But the first in our times to use the reference to a state enduring a thousand years was a certain Adolf Hitler, with his dream of a Thousand Years Reich.

And we know what happened to that.

What Does "Our" Mean?

The board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada has passed a resolution calling on church members to "petition our members of Parliament to vote for the abolition of the death penalty."

We do not agree with the policy advocated by the board. For the moment, though, we are not so much concerned with this as with the question whether the board's action is a simple exercise of the rights of any citizen, which requires no defence, or whether it is a piece of unwarranted ecclesiastical interference with the proper functioning of our parliamentary system.

The choice between the two verdicts depends on the interpretation one gives to one little word, "our." If, by this, the board, is merely referring to the common interest which United Church members share in each and every member of Parliament, as a representative shared with those of other faiths, then the board of evangelism not only has a right, but perhaps even a duty, to issue this appeal. If, on the other hand, the word "our" is meant to be limited to members of Parliament who are also members of the United Church, then the proposed course of action constitutes unwarranted pressure, a deplorable infringement of the principle of the separation of a church and state, the application of which has served us so well on this continent.

Backing by an Expert

Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky shares our low opinion of a proposal to lay a nuclear mine field along West Germany's Iron Curtain border.

When this proposal was first reported, we commented editorially, in words which were something short of revealing any enthusiasm for the scheme.

Marshal Sokolovsky was chief of the general staff of the Soviet army and air force from 1955 to 1960.

Such a mine field, he told a press conference, would present a possibility of accidental detonation, and accidental detonation would automatically lead to a world nuclear war. "In contemporary conditions one is not able to wait. That is why, automatically, a world nuclear war would start" if the mine field were detonated.

His argument, of course, applies with equal force to the use of a nuclear mine field by Russia, or any other communist country. We can, therefore, assume that no such field will be established by the Reds. This makes us feel somewhat safer; if Sokolovsky could convince authorities in the West of the validity of his argument—and it seems obvious—we should feel safer still.

The fewer nuclear bombs there are lying around loose, the happier we shall be.

No talker, however good, can create a good conversation if he doesn't listen to what the other person says.—Lord David Cecil.

The End Result Is Much The Same

Strictly Personal
Delinquents Like Ordinary Children

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Punishment works best with those who need it least. Would not every parent agree with this statement? Is it not true that the "good" or "normal" child responds to slight punishment, while the "bad" or "abnormal" child seems to get almost a perverse enjoyment out of punishment?

If this is so — and all observant parents will agree that it is — then does it not follow that our angry cries for "more severe punishment" of juvenile delinquents would be futile and stupid?

For delinquents are just like other children, only with more problems, more resistance to authority, more rage against society. And the greater the punishment we mete out to them, the more this enables them to rationalize and justify their hatred of the "outside" world.

The so-called realists sneer at the "coddling" of young punks," instead of giving them stiff sentences in jails or correctional institutions. But the real problem is that they are not "coddled" enough: they are customarily let off with fines or suspended sentences or put on probation — which does absolutely nothing to help them or to protect society.

It is absolutely true that our present system is inadequate to cope with juvenile delinquency; but only because the "realists" aren't realistic enough.

The delinquency problem is not merely a personal one; it is a family problem, a neighborhood problem, a community problem, and a psychiatric problem. All these elements are involved, but we would like to forget about them, and imagine that a tougher judge and a stricter sentence would somehow perform magic with the growing numbers of alienated youngsters.

This, to me, is idealism and utopianism of the wildest sort. Society needs to launch a massive attack against the environments that produce such behavior — against blight and boredom and disrupted families and social squalor and economic deprivation. These are the twisted, ugly roots of most delinquency: cutting off the branches is no solution.

But, of course, the price for such a massive attack is extremely high, and we are not willing to pay for it. It seems cheaper and easier to demand tougher laws and tougher judges and bigger jails; it is not, of course, in the long run, but mankind seems constitutionally disinclined ever to look at the long run, and pays dearly for its myopia.

The whole apparatus of delinquency and crime prevention is in need of a drastic overhaul. What possible good does it do to put a boy in jail if he comes out to exactly the same environment? True, a few of them will be chastened and "reformed" by the experience; but they are the ones who didn't need prison in the first place. The others — many more — will return as dedicated enemies of society.

Prostate Trouble, Piles Have Nothing in Common

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain hemorrhoids and piles. The door-to-door salesman who sold me a patent medicine said that since I had no pain, I must have piles. I have no indication of prostate trouble. I am quite an old man, but very stout. — H. C.

My friend, somebody has been deceiving you — and you aren't alone. There are but few among us, I'm sorry, who haven't been deceived a good many times in our lives. I've been fooled, and sometimes it cost me money, and sometimes it hurt my feelings, and sometimes it bruised my pride. It happens to all of us.

Your mention of prostate trouble makes me think that the person who sold you the medicine for piles gave you some fancy talk that doesn't mean anything.

Prostate trouble involves a muscular gland which has among other duties) something to do with passing urine. Piles (hemorrhoids is another name for the same thing) involves the rectum. They are more or less in the same territory in the body. But otherwise they have nothing in common.

I'm sure that the medicine vendor would have told you that if you did have pain it must be piles. All he wanted was to sell you his product.

Hemorrhoids, or piles, is a more or less common trouble. There are some rather sizable veins close in the rectum. For various reasons, these veins can become chronically swollen. Sometimes they cause itching. Sometimes they are painful. Sometimes they break open and bleed, especially after a difficult movement.

Whether you do hurt or don't hurt is not the main question. Some do and some don't.

You say you are "quite old." Being "very stout" may or may not have anything to do with the problem, but your age does.

If you were in your 30's or 40's or 50's, I'd recommend surgery to remove the piles or swollen veins, if they are really bothering you. But since you are "quite old," I suggest, unless you are having a great deal of trouble, some lesser treatment to keep you comfortable. In your case, there is no pain.

But the really important question is this: What is troubling you? Is it piles? Or is it something else? Rather than spend any more money on patent medicine, have a doctor see what is wrong, if anything, and tell you what to do about it.

If it is piles, he'll tell you what he will do. If it's something else, he will tell you. If it is piles, reading my booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," will help explain things to you. (To receive a copy, send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard there is a medication which will dissolve gall stones, but my doctor says there is no such thing. He recommends surgery. I have had X-rays which show stones and the size of a nickel, and also have had two recent attacks which required painkilling drugs. — Mrs. R.D.

Your physician is entirely right. There is no way to dissolve gall stones after two attacks, you should seriously consider surgery.

Dear Dr. J. J.: I won't say that it is impossible to transmit syphilis through drinking cups, towels or bed sheets, but it almost never happens. Look for a more logical explanation.

A Doctor Views Medicare

From a speech by Dr. Frank Turnbull of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Medical Association.

The doctors are in general agreement with sections of the Royal Commission on Health Services report which deals with medical education, medical research and mental health.

There are many other proposals in the report which we also favor, but as these call for primary consideration by other professions, we will reserve our comments until later.

There remain for discussion the recommendations that concern the provision of medical services. This is our principal area of concern.

One does not proceed very far in a study of Volume 1 before the medical philosophy of the author is made evident.

Because this philosophy is at variance with the opinion of most Canadian doctors, there has been a distinctly critical response among medical men all across the country.

The report implores its readers to study every sentence of semantic debate. If the author had followed his own advice in Chapter 4, and left out the abstract argument about social rights, the weight of evidence in the main bulk of the report would have supported his recommendations.

But Chapter 4 establishes the report as a polemic. It invites controversy.

I am constrained to pause and enter the lists for a brief moment.

Every sermon has its text and the text for Chapter 1 is a quotation from Aneurin Newsholme's book entitled Medicine and the State.

This quotation, in part, "The health of every individual is a social concern and responsibility."

Following this quote the report proceeds to examine the areas which are considered to come within public and group responsibility, under which is listed Prepayment for Health Services.

When Chapter 1 received its initial inspection by the medical profession, these abstract propositions were given a critical reception.

It was not long before our scientific friend the Right Honourable Newsholme, in the same book, could supply a text for the medical viewpoint. Which I now offer: "Although theoretically much can be said in favor of fairly general legislative parliamentary education, the balance of argument and advantage in medicine is definitely on the side of personal or familiar contributions when they can be made. Average citizens have not yet learned to use communal privileges with due regard to communal economy in the absence of a personal motive for carefulness." Fax vobiscum.

The year (1964) may eventually be named the Year of the Hall Report. In the annals of the Canadian Medical Association it is more likely to be recalled as the Year of the Great Debate.

The royal commission report has pushed the leaders of Canadian medical thought into an intense appraisal of their attitudes respecting the economics of medical care.

At intervals of five to 10 years since the war we have studied, debated, and then adopted, a series of principles which have guided our policies in medical insurance and related problems.

During the past two years three important committees of our association have made a searching study of prepayment of medical services. Interim reports from these committees have been circulated back and forth across the country.

As the viewpoints of the committees have been enlarged and consolidated, our doctors have become acquainted with the principal problems and with the new viewpoints.

The royal commission caught us with our principles down. Although it suddenly became necessary to make some preliminary observations about the report, Dr. Hlywiw was approved that reappraisal of our principles could not be delayed.

Consequently our plan to convene a special meeting of our general council in January 1965 (January 30, 31 and 30) to consider the reports of our special committees and to relate our conclusions to the royal commission report.

There are other aspects of the recommendations concerning medical services that evoke criticism among doctors. But this one item seems to demand a consensus of opinion.

The majority of Canadian doctors are now being paid for most of their medical services by some variant of a prepayment system which does not require the patient to make any direct payment to the doctor. He is paid entirely by a third party. This is not invariable, but it is the general rule.

Most of the patients and their doctors appear to be content. But weaknesses in this method have become gradually apparent.

Our most experienced observers are now inform us that the system, though basically the most satisfactory way of paying doctors, needs revision.

the debate about patient-participation.

Time and experiment will eventually indicate the best course.

In the meantime the rigid extreme positions of the royal commission is open to question.

Most doctors do not relish the thought of government control of medicine. We would recite chapter and verse of our distillusion about doctor-government relationships.

This might only illuminate our naivete in negotiations. It would also parade the curious rigidity and wilful confusion that has so often been apparent on the government side.

But we are realists and we know that our only business is the prevention and treatment of illness. Our worst fear is that we could become pawns in the game of politics.

To understand the reaction of Canada's doctors to the royal commission report, it is necessary to recall that provincial autonomy in matters of health, which was one of the conclusions of the British North American Act, has resulted in nearly different patterns of medical practice from province to province.

The socialization of medical services in Canada is not a fact of life that doctors face for the first time this year. It has been advancing at various speeds, in various ways, in all of the provinces of Canada since at least 1920.

In general, those provinces that have the most experience than the rest, and those that have been governed by parties of the left, have gone furthest in the introduction of government into medicine.

The attitude of doctors to government tends to reflect the temperature of their relations with their provincial government of the day. We are a conservative profession and this conservatism often involves not only resistance to change but acceptance of change after it has been made.

It seems logical for each province to build on top of its existing structure.

If governments, federal and provincial, are impelled to adopt recommendations of the royal commission report which entail a radical change in the economics of medical practice, there will be a strong reaction on the part of the doctors.

Good will, and above all, good communications, will be our only hope for a democratic solution.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Steps were taken at the Annual Vestry Meeting of Christ Church on Monday evening to establish a permanent memorial to the late Rector, Reverend George Wright. This will take the form of a low channel screen and will be in keeping with the new prayer desks and seats recently installed.

Action was also initiated to establish a Heating Plant fund. In the near future the present heating arrangements will have to be replaced, and as this will involve a major expenditure, it was considered expedient to commence the raising of funds now.

The financial report was presented for 1944 and is without doubt encouraging. During the year the mortgage was discharged, the interior of the Church re-decorated, and renovation of the Parish Hall is about to commence.

The Canadian Girls in Training of Bethesda with Joan Street United Church presented one of Barrie's lovable plays, "A Kiss For Cinderella" in appreciative audience last evening. The adventures of the wistful little waitress Cinderella and her big-hearted policeman captivated the audience, and the cast, all of whom played their parts with real understanding, and are to be congratulated on success they attained. The play was under the direction of Miss Sylvia Rose and Miss Robina Templeton. Miss Jean Gatchee acted as pianist. All those taking part received prizes for their splendid efforts. Between acts delicious home-made cookies were served from a booth by Canadian Girls in Training, under the supervision of Miss Helen Findlay.

N. S. and N. B. Premiers Ready to Discuss Union

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The premiers of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick announced Thursday that they intend to take the first steps toward a possible union between the two provinces.

A private - member's resolution introduced in the Nova Scotia legislature by Premier Robichaud of Kent proposed a study of the advantages and disadvantages of political union. It was passed unanimously. Meanwhile, Premier Louis Robichaud said he would introduce a resolution in the New Brunswick legislature next Wednesday calling for a similar study.

Mr. Stanfield said his resolution does not commit the legislature to any action, but merely gives the government authority to begin its part of the study, provided that New Brunswick does the same.

He said it "is clear that one legislature dealing with two provinces ... could not high degree of economic development."

Most of Canada's provincial legislatures were sitting Thursday except Manitoba's which will open Monday.

Some of Thursday's highlights:

Newfoundland — Premier Smallwood said the National Economic Council approved a grant of $350,000 toward the building of a $780,000 university laboratory in St. John's.

Prince Edward Island — The government announced that it plans an all-out effort to attract industry as the speech from the throne was read by Lieutenant-Governor, W. J. MacDonald.

Quebec — Resources Minister Rene Lavesque said a proposed mining act will sharply increase job safety provisions for Quebec miners by giving accredited unions the right to receive copies of all accident reports and to accompany mine inspectors during safety checks.

Saskatchewan — Both government and opposition unanimously backed a plan of member's bill introduced by George Lustig (L—Rosse) asking the federal government to withhold approval of railway abandonment applications involving branch lines vital to communities they serve.

Alberta — The speech from the throne outlined a plan of northern development proposing a road, air strips and expanded rail facilities.

British Columbia — A poster prepared by the provincial health department in a campaign against venereal disease was described as "pornography" by Lois Haegen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood).

Officer Given Good Care Says Hospital

WELLAND (CP) — The Welland County General Hospital board decided Thursday night that Inspector William Wright of the Welland police force received proper medical care in the hospital's emergency ward following an automobile accident early Feb. 7.

An investigation was called after Police Chief Donald McCarter complained that Inspector Wright was left overnight in the hospital without attention from a doctor.

The officer was struck by a car while trying to flag it down and was taken to the hospital by another police constable with suspected head injuries.

Chief McCarter said shortly after the incident that the nurse in charge notified the emergency ward doctor and was apparently instructed to give the injured man a pill and tell him to return in the morning for x-rays.

MAKES REPORT

In his report to the hospital's management committee Thursday, Dr. H. O. Singer, chief of the medical staff, said that the medical advisory committee was "satisfied that the patient under discussion (Inspector Wright) received adequate medical care and that the safety of the patient was never in danger."

The advisory committee also decided it was up to the doctor in charge whether a patient is seen immediately before admission.

The report said that "the facts show that Inspector Wright never did suffer from concussion and shock as stated by Chief McCarter."

However, it said the doctor involved "might have practised better public relations by coming to the emergency department to examine the patient."

Britain Confers On Ways to Help Trade

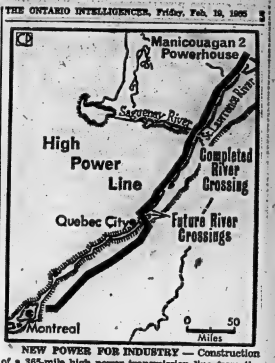
By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Britain is conferring with the Commonwealth membership on special ways of increasing trade within the 21-country partnership and a cabinet source said this will be a big subject when the prime ministers meet here next June.

He anticipated that trade expansion, with the possible use of special export incentives and other preferential treatment, may be actively pursued within the framework of the Commonwealth secretariat.

The secretariat must be formally approved by the prime ministers but it may start functioning in an informal way before the June meeting.

Concentration on Commonwealth trade will be Prime Minister Wilson's main response to the Conservative opposition's drive to get Britain eventually into the European Common Market.



WILL REDUCE TARIFFS

Next Monday the Labor government plans to announce a reduction of one-third—to 10 per cent from 15—in the extra tariffs imposed last October on most industrial goods.

Later, in March, the government will outline its first five-year economic plan. It will be a sort of modal or set of guidelines on how the British economy could be pushed to new heights by 1970 with government direction but without full government controls.

Still included in the administration's plans, the cabinet informant said, is the reduction of steel which he considered "very important." There has been speculation that the government would hesitate to push ahead with this plan because of the slim margin of three-seat margin in the 630-seat Commons and the warning by both Tories and Liberals they would fight to the death against nationalization.

There are indications that not all Labor members are in full support of the steel plan and pressure on Wilson to move ahead in this field could cause a party fragmentation or split.

NEW POWER FOR INDUSTRY — Construction of a 365-mile high power transmission line from the Manicouagan-Outardes power project to the Montreal industrial area is scheduled for completion later this year. Carrying 735,000 volts, the Quebec-Hydro line will be the highest-voltage long-distance power line in the world. First power will come from Manicouagan 2 powerhouse, one of a series of eight powerhouses in the project. The power line will make four river crossings between Manicouagan and Montreal. One over the Saguenay is already completed.

Susanna's Family Fare

NEAT TRICK

Dear Susanna: I have been an interested reader of yours for some time and the thought has occurred to me that you might appreciate hearing about one of my favorite tricks.

When making cookies or cake and you have to add a beaten egg to the creamed shortening and sugar mixture, scoop your measured ingredients to one side of the bowl. They are fairly stiff and stay put. Now break your egg in the other side. Tip the bowl up and beat the egg.

This way you don't dirty two dishes, and no egg is wasted transferring from one bowl to the other. — Mrs. E. Craig.

A saving of time, dish-washing, food and energy, all by breaking the egg in the same bowl. That's not a trick, Katy, it's a treat! —SUSANNA

REMOVING GUM

Dear Susanna: My twin boys share a bedroom and one of them was careless with a large wad of bubble gum (they will never tell me which one). It got trampled into their wool rug so badly, that I began to despair of ever getting it out. Someone told me to try carbontetrachloride, (from any drug store) and you will be interested to know that it almost seemed to melt the gum away. For your readers who may not be familiar with it, be sure to follow directions when using this cleaner and keep the area in which you are working very well ventilated.

Another rug tip for unruly carpets that keep turning up at the corners, is to press the edges thoroughly, front and back with a hot iron over a damp cloth. — Betty Jackson

Double your trouble, double your fun, with gum - chewing twins who won't say which one! SUSANNA

STILL SWINGING — Four women whose combined age approaches 300 years have been swinging together for 35 years and show no sign of letting up. They are the New Hamburg Indian Club Swingers who performed frequently in Ontario centres and recently made a tour of Western Canada. C.G.I.T. Across Canada Will Mark 50th Anniversary

The last week in February, 1965, Canadian Girls in Training across Canada will be officially celebrating their 50th anniversary.

In order to understand the beginnings of C.G.I.T., it is necessary to enter with imagination into the conditions that existed 50 years ago. Those were the years of the First World War. Years of war are always years of tragedy, but what was different from the sense of grim necessity with which we faced World War II was the idealism which characterized the thinking of Canadians during the First World War. People felt called to a life of devoted service to Canada both as a patriotic and as a religious duty.

It was during this period when young men by the thousands were offering their lives in any way their country, that there arose a demand among teenage girls for some organization in which they too could serve. There was little in the way of organized group work for the majority of girls, 12-17. There were no community centres, no extra-curricular activities in high schools. For many girls, C.G.I.T. was not only a program of Christian witness, it was their first introduction to organized recreation, to handicrafts and dramatics, to vocational guidance, and to many other interests and activities that are now part of the high school curriculum.

COMMITTEE FORMED

In 1915, a committee was formed composed of representatives from various denominations and the Y.W.C.A., to consider the interests and needs of teen-age girls and to set up a program for a mid-week meeting night. Had it not been for the Y.W.C.A. there probably would have been no C.G.I.T., for its representatives brought not only their experience in dealing with girls' groups, but also provided the financial backing for the first five years. After two years of intensive study and planning, a small booklet entitled "Canadian Girls in Training" was printed which presented the program agreed upon; and representatives of the committee, armed with the booklets and with the 4-fold programme — Cherish Health, Seek Truth, Know God and Serve Others — went directly to the girls across Canada. The response was enthusiastic, and the movement has grown throughout the years. One of the objectives of the 50th Anniversary is a membership of 50,000 girls across Canada.

LOCAL ORGANIZED

Belleville is believed to have had one of the earliest C.G.I.T. groups formed, possibly around 1917. Miss Robina Templeton, who lived on John St. and was a teacher of domestic science in the old high school, was a member of the original planning committee, and she organized her Sunday school class at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church into a mid-week group of C.G.I.T. An early group was also formed at Bridge St. Church, under the direction of Miss Nina Yeomans. Miss Templeton was a successful leader until her sudden death in 1943 was in the forefront of the movement in the Belleville district.

Many women of the district, with happy memories of their C.G.I.T. days, have in turn assumed their duties as leaders of 'as members of the Belleville Girls' Work Board which is responsible for such phases of the work as the annual camp at Quin-Mo-Lac, city-wide vesper service, rallies and leadership training courses.

From the beginning the movement has been inter-denominational. Each year a reduced budget, the Y.W.C.A. was forced to withdraw from the movement at the end of March, 1917, and the Anglican Church also withdrew. The C.G.I.T. is now sponsored by the United Church, Presbyterian, Baptist and Church of Christ (Disciples), at present, eight Belleville churches have active C.G.I.T. groups with over 150 girls in membership. These churches each have women representing them on the Belleville Girls' Work Board.

Groups patterned on this program have been established in other countries — in Canada and in Trinidad, B.G.I.T. in Berlin, Germany, in days of the Light in Northern Rhodesia, and others.

ANNIVERSARY PROJECT

This year, as their 50th anniversary project, after consultation with Dr. Nelson Chappel of the World Council of Christian Education, it was decided to raise a "love-gift" of $50,000 to be sent to the Christians in Indonesia to help in Canada's part in Conference Centre. This is the first overseas project of the C.G.I.T. Miss Lieta Salonen, who is Secretary of Christian Education in Indonesia, visited Canada during the summer of 1963 and spent 10 days at Camp Council at Quin-Mo-Lac (Moira Lake).

In Belleville, a 50th anniversary tea is being held at Bridge Street United Church on Saturday, Feb. 27th, with girls from all Belleville groups, their leaders, mothers, former members and members of the Belleville Girls' Work Board co-operating to make this a birthday to be remembered.

U. C. W. Meetings

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

Springing from a desire for more concentrated study, the units of Eastminster U.C.W. decided to meet together in this area of their work.

The first meeting of the Study Club was held in the Church parlors on February 16th. Trinidad and Tobago was the topic for the evening and if anyone came with the slightly fear that Church mission study might be dull, it was dispelled promptly.

From the time one entered to music in calypso time, until one left with his "sweet tooth" filled with Trinidad fruit and candy, everyone was entertained and at the same time taught.

Clothes, newspapers, paintings were displayed to examine. Steel dishes and mallets tempted all to try their hand at West Indian rhythm. Each of the women who took part in the program had posters, graphs, souvenirs or pictures to show, as well as describe such phases of Trinidad life as racial issues, education, history, geography, economics, flora and fauna, bird life and the church work there.

Often, it was learned, is the word for sailed butter, used in the candy recipes and Jump-up is Trinidian for their carnival that ends the day before Ash Wednesday.

The evening ended with a quartet, singing an original calypso song, written for the occasion, by one of the members and with the learning and singing of the Trinidad National Anthem. It was an evening that whetted the appetite for more serious study by each member to increase knowledge of these islands before the next study meeting.

Everyone is anticipating the visit of Rev. Geraldine Reid, a missionary to Trinidad, on Sunday evening, Feb. 21st at 8 o'clock. She will give an illustrated address on her work there. Dr. Swan, about whom an article appeared in this newspaper last week, will be one of a panel leading a discussion with Miss Reid.

Four Women, Total Age Nearly 300 Years, Still Active as Club Swingers

NEW HAMBURG, Ont. (CP) Meet some septuagenarian swingers!

For 35 years, four women (whose combined ages now total nearly 300 years) have been entertaining, Canadians as the New Hamburg Indian Club Swingers.

And their show business days are by no means over, even though the oldest member will soon be 78.

Beaming with enthusiasm, the exponents of this almost forgotten American Indian ritual make no secret of their ages.

Mrs. James Wiederhold is 77th (she insists on the three-quarters), Louise Ritz is 69, Mrs. Harry Hostetler 76 and Mrs. Elena Ritz, the group's pianist, 71.

They have made scores of appearances before church groups, women's organizations, senior citizens' clubs and fairs and conventions in the Western Ontario area around Kitchener.

And when Mrs. Hostetler and Miss Ritz recently travelled west they demonstrated their talents in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina and Vancouver.

They all learned to swing the one-pound basswood clubs in precise rhythmic patterns when they were in public school. Their act, about five minutes, is made up of 20 different movements, some repeated as many as 16 times.

PRIVATE IN ATTIC

Explaining how the group got started, Mrs. Wiederhold says: "One day I happened to find my old school clubs in the attic. At the time I thought if I could work up an act it might be fun for the Women's Institute. However, I really didn't think much about the clubs then.

"During a conversation with Miss Ritz about two weeks later I mentioned the clubs. Coincidentally, both she and Mrs. Hostetler had learned to swing clubs at school. In a few days we had our act together and it hasn't changed since then."

Mrs. Hostetler says she believes club-swinging is an "excellent way to lose weight" but cautions that it would have to be done every day.

And Miss Ritz says she has found that rheumatism in her shoulder has been relieved since she became a regular swinger again.

PROVIDE MUSIC

Before Miss Ritz became pianist, Mrs. Wiederhold's husband Jim and his orchestra provided the music.

"It has made a nervous wreck out of me," he says jokingly. "Whenever Mrs. Wiederhold lost control of a club it always seemed to come straight at me: But with these clubs around the house it has surely eliminated family scraps."

The women don't limit their activity to club-swinging. All attend weekly dances in Kitchener, 22 miles east of New Hamburg, and they bowl twice a week.

"A few years ago Miss Ritz and I even went skiing," says Mrs. Hostetler. But she got started to look for higher hills went home."

Their ambition: To appear on the Ed Sullivan television show.

WONDERFUL LIFE

HALIFAX (CP) — Patricia Mowatt, 19, has a "wonderful" summer ahead of her. The pretty Dalhousie arts student has been chosen for the third time to play with Canada's National Youth Orchestra, which will spend four weeks in rehearsal in Toronto before launching its annual two-week tour. Miss Mowatt, a violinist, says her previous engagements with the orchestra were the most "wonderful of my life."

Mr. Kenneth Pierce of Elliot Lake attended his brother. David Youmans, usher of the bride and Ernest Stokes of Scarborough were ushers.

The bride's mother present from Algonquin, Elliot Lake, Marmora, Havelock, Peterborough, Scarborough, Marmora and Cordova Mines.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The young couple will reside in Cordova Mines.

GIRLS KNOW WORTH

MONTREAL (CP) — Merida Perez, who set up a women's placement agency here in 1964, said in an interview that today's business school graduates are more vocal and usually have a healthier sense of their own worth than the subdued job seekers who came to her in the 1940s.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Holds Valentine Tea

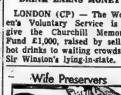
Last Friday afternoon the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Women's Missionary Society held a delightful St. Valentine tea in the church parlors. The event was scheduled for the previous Wednesday but due to inclement weather conditions on that day was postponed and proved to be a most successful event and was convened by Mrs. H. Elvidge with co-convener Mrs. F. Parsons.

Mrs. J. Darrell and Mrs. L. Sutherland, wife of the minister, received the guests at the entrance to the hall which was appropriately decorated for the occasion in colors of red and white with Valentine hearts and cupids at various strategic points. The tea table was most attractive with its dainty lace cloth centred with an arrangement of red and white 'mums and flanked with silver candelabra. The small guest tables were covered with white cloths and centred with crystal vases holding red 'mums.

Inviting guests to the tea tea room were Mrs. O. J. Reed and Mrs. N. Hutchinson, wife of the minister of Colonsha Presbyterian Church, Mrs. H. McKay and Miss L. Burnside. Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were Mrs. J. Craig, Mrs. V. Weir, Mrs. W. M. Barlow, Mrs. W. Mastin, Mrs. R. Strachan and Mrs. E. Pigden.

Mrs. C. Adams assisted by Mrs. J. Browning was in charge of the various kitchen duties and were assisted in the replenishing by Mrs. F. Boudy and Mrs. J. Mills.

The various sales tables, with their Valentine cloths or motifs were laden with their respective goods and an innovation this year was one table completely devoted to pot holders with some having matching aprons. This was in charge of Mrs. J. Robertson. The home cooking, always a drawing card, had an abundance of tasty goodies with Mrs. D. Cane and Mrs. H. Yorke in charge. The candy table with its supply of sweets in assorted Valentine containers was conveyed by Mrs. B. Sine and Mrs. E. Fraser.



The Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society was responsible for the miscellaneous table with Mrs. F. B. Sherlock and Mrs. Hisner in charge.

Treasurers for the event were Mrs. F. Bennett, Mrs. G. Miller, Mrs. H. Diamond and Miss J. MacIntosh.

At the end of the card playing a generous and delicious lunch was provided by Mrs. M. Dales and her committee.

Principal R. Fairman drew the tickets for the three door prizes which were presented by Mr. Max Stier to Mrs. G. Maybee, Mrs. N. Armstrong and Mrs. S. Armstrong.

PRIZE WINNERS

Mr. Stier also presented the bridge and euchre prizes, which were awarded as follows: Euchre—high lady, Kay Jones; high men's, Mary Thibandeau, playing as a man; low lady, Barbara Boyr; low man, Pat Plante, playing as a man; most lone hands, Mr. George Greatrix. The theme was a gymnastic motif which symbolized the use of the gymn equipment, which will be purchased for both schools with the card party proceeds.

Appreciative thanks were expressed to everyone who helped make the event such a success.

QUEEN MARY — PRINCE CHARLES

The regular meeting of Queen Mary - Prince Charles Home and School Association was held in Queen Mary School with a large attendance.

Mr. Parks announced that the annual bridge and euchre held in March would soon be advertised in the paper and on the radio. Mrs. Goetler reported five new members.

The Home and School Council will hold a meeting in the Harry J. Clarke School on Feb. 20th, at which all are welcome.

Mr. Ken Parks presented the two sets of picture story study prints, purchased by the Home and School.

Mrs. Anderson accepted one set for Queen Mary School. Miss Beatty accepted one set for Prince Charles School, and both voiced appreciation.

Mr. Wright, principal of Queen Mary, introduced the guest speakers.

Mr. J. M. Coustins, Inspector of Belleville Public Schools; Mr. Frink, principal of Queen Victoria School and Mr. Salter, teacher at Prince Charles School, took part in a panel discussion on the new approach to mathematics.

This subject concerns pupils of the primary, junior and intermediate divisions.

The important purpose of modern mathematics is to view things as a whole rather than just to gain knowledge of a few topics. Pupils must know the "Why" as well as the "How" of computing skills.

Mr. Gunsolus thanked the speakers for an informative evening.

Refreshments were served at the close.

Ann Landers

Many Have Overcome Terrors of Stage Fright

DEAR ANN LANDERS — How can a person overcome stage fright? I guess that's what you'd call it although it has nothing to do with the stage. When I have to recite in class — or worse yet if I must give a prepared talk — I perspire and shake all over.

I am 16 and in high school. Ever since I can remember I've had this trouble.

Yesterday the teacher called on me to answer a question. My heart began to pound so loud I was sure everyone in the room could hear it. My mouth felt like it was stuffed with cotton and my lips moved but no voice came. After what seemed like an hour, the teacher called on someone else.

ANN LANDERS

I hate to think of going through life scared to death to open my mouth. Will you please tell me how to overcome this horrible fear? — MOUSEY.

DEAR MOUSEY — First, know your material cold. If you are well prepared and confident, you won't be such a nervous wreck when the teacher calls on you.

Next, practise speaking aloud at home, before the mirror. Get accustomed to the sound of your voice. Memorize and recite both prose and poems, and ask a member of your family or a friend to listen to you.

Third, force yourself to get on your feet and speak out. In time the fear will vanish. I know it can be done because I have done it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going with a boy 19. We have both dated others but we prefer one another's company so we are now dating steadily, but not steady.

Buddy and I have grown up in the same block. Our parents are friends and we go to the same church. I thought I knew all about Buddy but I learned by accident that he had dated a very cheap girl. I decided to speak to him about it. He said he was ashamed of himself and finally stammered, "A fellow has to have two girls — one he can be proud of and wants to marry, and one for sexual reasons."

Maybe I am simple-minded, but I don't get it. I've discussed this with some of my friends and was surprised to learn that they think Buddy is right. Is he? — RESPECTABLE.

DEAR RESPECTABLE — Buddy has a low opinion of sex.

In our society, sex belongs in marriage. I hope Buddy gets his thinking squared away or he may turn out to be an alley-cat type of husband — unable to find satisfaction with a respectable woman — his wife, that is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been reading your column for years and have never seen my problem in print.

I'm scared to death to be alone at night and I'm no kid, Ann. I've been married 10 years and have two children. My husband must travel in his work and he is out of town about one-third of the time. I'm just fine when the children are at home, but when they are away at summer camp, or visiting relatives, even for one night, I'm a nervous wreck. I toss and turn and imagine I see faces at the windows. The wind sounds like a human voice wailing and every shadow looks like a ghost. When morning comes I'm exhausted and can't do my housework.

I've talked to my husband about this and he says I am a silly goose. I know he is right but it doesn't solve my problem. Can you help? — MRS. PETRIFIED.

DEAR PET — Have chain locks put on your doors. And make sure your windows have secure locks. Keep the porch lights on all night, and keep a light on in the hall outside your bedroom door. If this doesn't solve your problem get a dog — and a big one — with a loud bark.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPORTS TOURNAMENT

The bowling and euchre teams will be going to Bancroft to compete in the sports tournament being held there on Saturday. The special euchre held Thursday proved so popular it has been decided to hold one the first Thursday in every month.

VALENTINE DANCE

Last Saturday the hall was gay with red cupids and hearts for the Valentine's Dance. Prizes were won by several couples.

Refreshments were served at the end of a most successful event. Zone Commander Hope Begley made her official visit to the branch and addressed the members. They were informed that the Zone Rally will be held this year at Wellington on May 27th. President Betty Hodge expressed thanks and presented her with a table lamp to commemorate her visit. At the conclusion of the meeting fried chicken was served.

Guests at the head table included president W. Kirby, Comrades B. Blair and F. Hodge of the men's branch, Zone Commander J. Rashotte was unable to attend.

READER'S FRIDAY COLUMN

QUESTION:

I wonder if you could give me a simple recipe for stuffed spareribs? . . . Mary A.

ANSWER:

BAKED STUFFED SPARERIB (serves 3):

NOTE:

Some cooks recommend allowing 1 lb. spareribs per person. You will have to use your own judgment. I served these amounts to 3 and thought it quite sufficient — especially since they cost $1.68.

2 lbs. spareribs — lean, narrow, meaty strips, if slice, white bread, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, grated rind half lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon rosemary or thyme or sage, ½ teaspoon accent.

Cut rib in half crosswise to make 4 pieces for 6 "rolls". Cut crusts from bread and cut bread into ¼" dice. Melt butter, add onion, lemon rind, salt, rosemary and accent and stir until onion is soaked but not at all brown. Remove from heat and stir in bread dice. Put ¼ of the stuffing on each strip of ribs. Press down. Roll up from widest end, because tapering ends lap over outside better. Tie with string, sprinkle with salt and bake in greased medium roasting pan, uncovered, at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours, turning once.

FRIDAY Dinner Menu

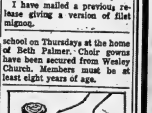
QUESTION:

Please forward to me a couple of recipes for beef tenderloin which utilize it to the greatest extent. In my cookbooks there is very little information pertaining to this cut of meat . . . Mrs. H. P.

ANSWER:



I'm glad you asked, for it is years since, I have given any information on this luxury cut of beef. Your request will make many a reader envious.

ROAST TENDERLOIN OF BEEF:

Properly, beef tenderloin should be "larded" with pork lard with a larding needle. Since so few kitchens have this piece of equipment I will ignore it.

A beef tenderloin usually weighs between 3 to 5 lbs., and one end tapers. Fold tapered end under to equalize the thickness. Lay strips of bacon over (or spread generously with butter) and tie with string. Place on rack in roasting pan. Do not cover or baste. Roast at 300 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes and immediately reduce heat to 250 deg. Fahr. and roast for 20 to 30 minutes in all. Difference in time depends on weight of tenderloin. It will be cooked rare at 20 minutes, if you want your tenderloin "medium", roast it 10 to 15 minutes longer. Season on the inside when transferred to preheated platter. Often served with a border of leaf mushrooms as an accompaniment.

You Can Expect Nothing From a Pig But a Grunt

DEAR DORIS — My brother (17) calls everybody names, even my mother. Real dirty ones. He swears at my dad also. I think my dad has just given up on him.

We will all be sitting in one room. He will sit there and make noises in his throat, burp, and other rude noises. He will then look around and see if anyone is joining in with him and laughing.

He just said to my mother, and I quote: "I got to swear so that I don't push your G—d—face in."

Some people say that it is just a stage that he is going through. But how much do we have to take? — SIS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SIS — You can't expect anything from a pig but a grunt. Your dear brother underrates himself. In his struggle to grow up he is picking the wrong means of mastery. It would serve him right if he were made to stay in his own room and swear at his own growling reflection.

The cure lies in good discipline; and some encouragement when he does something — anything! — friendly and useful.

DEAR DORIS — I am troubled with my red cheeks. People always ask why I have such red cheeks and this makes me embarrassed. If I use powder I have a painted look. Could you please help me? — ROSY.

DEAR ROSY — If you have the skin condition called "rosacea", in which there is an unusual redness of cheeks, and forehead, you'll need to see a doctor. In this case blood vessels are dilated, skin is oily, pores are enlarged.

If your medical man gives you a clean bill of health, and the roses are natural, you can tone them down with a pale foundation cream and powder, well blended in. A bright lipstick in clear red will help draw attention to the lips.

Then be glad you don't have to cope with the pale, insipid look which is the bane of so many otherwise attractive young ladies.

TAKE WINTER IN STRIDE — Winter in Moscow is an invigorating time of the year. People wear extra clothes and outdoor activity goes on dispite the elements. There is occasional grousing about snow removal, but generally Moscovites take the season in stride. In this picture, office workers and shoppers go about their business in a storm. (CP Photo)

Muscovites Like to Stroll In Any Season But There Is Bounce to Step in Winter

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The air has a tangy crispness. A thin haze hangs over the rooftops. Smoke curls lazily across a dull blue sky.

This is Moscow on a typical winter day.

The Russian capital seems to come into its own in winter-time. Under a mantle of clean, white snow, the harsh contours of square apartment buildings are softened. The people seem more alive. In the evening or on weekends they emerge from their homes and tramp the side-walks and parks, savoring the invigorating northern air.

Muscovites like to stroll in any season, but there is a bounce in their step, an air of excitement and expectiveness you see only in winter.

Outdoor construction work continues in the coldest weather, and you can see women and men in extra layers of clothing laying bricks in below-zero temperatures.

Meat buying and selling of market produce moves indoors during the winter months, but a handful of impertinable men and women stand in the cold selling fish or pussy willows. And in unheated sidewalk kiosks, heavily - garbed women still sell books, newspapers and periodicals.

REINDEER RIDES

For recreation people go skating in the parks or skiing in Lenin Hills. In Gorky Park, near the city centre, the extensive network of walks is flooded for skating. Small children skim down ice slides, some on pieces of cardboard, others on the seat of their pants.

In one park youngsters are treated to rides in sleighs drawn by reindeer. And there are brief but exciting troika rides around a half-mile track for the whole family. In either case the price is the equivalent of 36 cents a person.

From a traffic standpoint Moscow appears to cope with winter reasonably well, though you hear complaints similar to those that are voiced in some Canadian cities when snow-removal operations misfire.

"The removal of snow was badly organized at Gruzinski Street," grumbled the newspaper Evening Moscow after the first really heavy snowfall of winter, in the second week of January. "Many zek (work teams) were not prepared for the first snowfall. Small snow-removal machines didn't work."

Twelve inches of snow fell over a period of three days and the newspaper said "Moscow never knew such a snowfall."

14 BELOW ZERO

What had been an unusually balmy winter suddenly turned tiger as temperatures plunged at night to 15 below zero. A thousand pieces of heavy equipment — including automatic snow - loaders, snow - blowers, tractors and sand-throwing machines—went into action.

D. I. Panov, chief of the city department responsible for snow removal, boasted that "traffic didn't stop during the snowfall," but there were many tieups and numerous minor accidents on slippery streets.

Much of the snow was carried by 2,000 trucks to be dumped into the Moscow and other rivers but plenty remained. Instead of being worn away, as might be the case if traffic were heavier, it endured, and a week later many streets were still treacherous.

However, Moscow's normally relaxed parking regulations weren't visibly stiffened, and on many streets snow-shovelling crews considerately left parking spaces between mounds of snow they were piling up for removal by trucks.

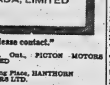
CANADA'S OWN CAR

Studebaker '65



First with transistorized ignition

It's winter. Starting the car is a real grr . . . grr . . . grr . . . grind! Now you tell yourself that you should have kept the engine tuned up.

But with Studebaker, winter is no grind. Studebaker has transistorized ignition as standard equipment on its Daytona Sports Sedan and optional on all other models. Transistorized Ignition, by Studebaker, means faster, easier starts — even in the coldest weather. Just as a 200 watt lamp gives more light than a 60 watt, so Studebaker's transistorized ignition delivers more fire-power than conventional systems. Plugs and points last longer too. Studebaker ran a test-car for over 40,000 miles. When examined, points were still like new (see your Studebaker dealer for proof).

Studebaker Transistorized Ignition is ideal for shop-and-go driving too. Helps your engine stay in tune longer. Doesn't waste gas.

Aside from the convenience, just think of all the money you could save on tune-ups and replacements. Enough to buy a transistorized radio. Come to think of it, that's another transistorized item that starts as easily as Studebaker — and keeps its tune . . .

. . . but it hasn't got wheels.

Minimum

based on 44-hour work weeks.

Federal imposition of a $1.30 rate would cause "adverse employment consequences and adverse industry consequences so that, instead of making the pace of change more rapid, we would be making it more difficult in the future to establish standards."

Mr. Knowles argued that $1.25 an hour is below the recognized line separating poverty and subsistence levels. He said $1.30 is a "reasonable" figure, one advocated by the Canadian Labor Congress as an absolute minimum for working men.

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) backed the Knowles amendment and got into a hot exchange with Liberal backbenchers who said he had helped scuttle NDP minimum wage bills during the Conservative regime.

SAYS WAGES FROZEN

He said the labor code freezes wages by its rigid control of hours of work. This would force workers to resort to moonlighting—taking a second job.

Another NDP amendment, moved by Tom Barnett (Comox-Alberni), sought in effect to close the bill that welfare funds seek permission of the minister for hours beyond the 40-hour weekly maximum and eight hours of overtime.

He proposed that such applications be made jointly by employers and the employees affected.

Mr. MacEachen said his department would look after the welfare of the worker when studying such applications. He opposed the amendment, saying it would put unnecessary restrictions on this section.

The amendment motion was turned down, 79 to 52.

QUOTES HOWE

William H. A. Thomas (PC—Middlesex West), quoted the late C. D. Howe, then Liberal trade minister, as stating repeatedly in 1950 that eastern feed mills would not be brought under federal jurisdiction by an amendment to the Canada Grain Act then being debated.

He argued it is wrong to contend that local feed mills come under federal jurisdiction.

Labor Minister MacEachen said Mr. Howe has been accused of many things "but he has never been accused of being a constitutional authority."

Expert opinion held that the amendment of 1950 brought local feed mills under federal jurisdiction.

INCLUDED MILLS

Mr. MacEachen also pointed out that the Conservatives themselves, when in power, had included local feed mills when they passed an act establishing minimum annual vacations. There had been no suggestion then that these mills shouldn't be covered.

If the local mills were left out of labor code coverage it would leave this entire field beyond legal control in the matter of labor standards. Provincial laws wouldn't apply, either.

Mr. MacEachen said it would be a good thing for rural wage standards to apply the minimum wage to feed mills, if the wage section would result in some hardship for mill owners it could be deferred for up to 18 months.

An amendment was passed to allow exceptions to the code's rule of one day's rest in seven. The minister said some workers, notably lake sailors, must of necessity work longer than seven days.

ARTHURIAN BATTLE

SPETTISBURY, England (CP) — Dorset county farm worker Fred Mace has discovered what is believed to be the site of a battle fought by King Arthur 1,500 years ago. Mace accidentally unearthed two skeletons which, together with other evidence, make local archeologists think there is a cemetery nearby that may contain up to 3,000 men.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have been offered an unusual investment opportunity in apartment real estate. I am reluctant to go ahead with it unless I can assure myself that my name will not become publicly associated with the deal.

The property is in one of the slum areas of the city, and as my name is a highly regarded one in the community, I should hate to have it tarnished by being referred to as a slumlord. I am reluctant even to discuss it with my attorney. I wouldn't go into this at all, but the profit as return on investment is so great I would be a fool to pass it up. Someone is going to do it, after all.

Could you explain to me the best way to set up the purchase so as to conceal my identity? If you cannot give me a confidential reply, please sign me — Anonymous

ANSWER: The common device used when one purchases questionable literature (that might embarrass him) is the "plain brown wrapper." The plain brown wrapper for squeamish slum-lords is purchase through a corporation. The corporation is a device, title to the property can be held in the name of anyone.

It being revealed to the public that you are the beneficial owner of the property.

The real estate broker handling the sale can make these arrangements. Even though you are reluctant to discuss this with your attorney, you will find his advice valuable.

Incidentally, you might take the trouble to inspect your new property. Your chances of a big return on your investment is so attractive.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We were recently approached by a very young salesman selling insulation. He told us that insulating our walls could result in a great deal on our heating bills, and add to our comfort.

We were under the impression that the house had insulation when we bought it, but don't know for certain. We don't want to spend the money if we don't have to. Is there some way we can find out whether or not we need insulation? — (Mrs.) B. V. M.

ANSWER: The simplest way to determine how well insulated your walls are is to hold the flat of your hand first against the exterior wall of a room, and then against an interior partition wall. If there is an appreciable difference in temperature between the two, you will probably benefit by installing insulation.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The water in my house had such a bad taste I had it analyzed. They found it had a high copper content, and my doctor said it was not only distasteful, but could be bad for my health! I am sure this comes from the copper pipes we have, but I have hesitated to replace them as it costs so much. Is there anything else I can do? — O. W. T.

ANSWER: You have established what is known in formal circles as "study." The water has copper in it; the water comes through copper pipes; therefore, the copper is coming to you from the pipes." This is a logical deduction, but it doesn't happen to be true.

The copper content in your water is copper salts picked up as the water percolates through the ground. The amount of copper from your pipes is so insignificant as to be unmeasurable.

The installation of a combination filter and water softener unit will give you water of these undesirable compounds.

Outline Plans for Next Year's High School Enrolment

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — Bayside, Batawa and Glen Miller grade eight students and their parents were represented at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School Monday evening by the principals, Mr. Sterling, and the Sidney Township School inspector, Mr. Dunsmore.

Mr. Sterling began his remarks with comment on the high school he built on Dundas Mer Road beginning in April. Mr. Musgrove, from Moira Secondary School will be the new principal. However, the school will not be ready in time to accept the graduating students next September. The subsequent overload of pupils in B.C.I.V.S. will be accommodated in staggered school hours. The maximum capacity for BCIVS is 1140 and at least 1500 students are expected to enroll. The first session for 750 students will be from 8 a.m. to 2.10 p.m. The second schedule takes in 900 students and they will attend school from 9.10 a.m. until 3.10 p.m. The last schedule will include 750 students from Frankford, Batawa, Bayside and Middleton Park, and they will attend school from 11.10 a.m. until 5.00 p.m. There will only by forty minutes for lunch hour and a ten minute break in each period. Lunch periods are only tentative, but 11.10, 11.50, 12.30 and 1.10 are possible hours.

READS PAMPHLET

Mr. Sterling read a pamphlet obtained at the recent Canadian Education Showplace in Toronto stressing the need for more education to cope with the changing times. He reviewed the five-year program for the benefit of the students and parents who must fill in application forms for grade nine.

Mr. Sterling suggested that students registering in these five-year courses have an average in Grade eight of 70 percent. The four-year programs are geared to university or teachers' colleges and have simpler courses in English and Mathematics and there is no French, Sterling, and the Sidney Township School inspector, Mr. Dunsmore.

PLAN HIGHWAY LINK

Eleven African nations are to share in a road-building project which will link Algeria's Mediterranean coast with sub-Sahara nations such as Mali and Niger.

State Medicine

vincial and perhaps at regional levels. These would be composed of representatives of government and the professions, and a wide selection to represent the public's interest.

The work of the operating commissions would be co-ordinated by a federal committee, working with a federal advisory council, and there would be a federal - provincial conference of health ministers meeting at least once a year.

AREN'T DEFINITE

The Hall commission made no definite recommendations about the organization of medical care at the municipal and local level, preferring to leave this to local groups to work out among themselves. They probably would spring from local health units, area hospital planning bodies, and groups of doctors working in joint practice.

This plan would leave doctor-patient relations and local hospital authority virtually untouched.

"The changes that we envisage," the Royal Commission said, "are based on the maintenance of a close relationship between those who require health services and the full freedom of choice on the part of the patient and of the physician."

All the commission does is that a health service commission would pay the doctor's bill, instead of the patient. The report said this might even have a therapeutic value for the patient, as he "would be relieved of worrying about the financial problem."

Under the commission's proposals public health care for all Canadians. "It would not be state medicine.

SETS 1971 DATE

The commission bared its recommendations for the financing of having the plan in operation in 1971. Patients would be responsible for 50 per cent of medical prescription. The rest of the costs would be paid by the two senior levels of government.

Total cost was estimated at $468,000,000 per year on top of what Canadians are expected to be paying for their health services in 1971 — $4,000,000,000 through all forms of assessment and all levels of government.

To supplement provincial revenues for their share of the medical care costs, the Hall commission recommended in its 500,000-word first report last June that there be provision for levied to conduct lotteries if they wished. They might also charge for premiums for the plan.

To prepare for 1971, the Hall commission recommended crash programs of training grants to provide more teachers of medicine, dentistry, medicine, more pharmacists in the Atlantic area, improved library facilities and research institutions, and more people in the para - medical field — psychologists, dietitians, radiography, electrocardiography, prosthetists and the like.

"This is of the essence in the development of certain health services such as the implementation of crash programs in the education and training of health personnel," the 135,000-word second report said.

WILL TAKE SEVEN YEARS

"We visualize that the implementation of the program may take seven years so that by 1971 Canadians will have all of the health services which scientific genius and human skill can create."

The report also said:

"Although it is said for good health care that services be coordinated . . . it is not possible or desirable to specify in detail how such co-ordination should be carried out.

"What is required is that it be extended to all areas of Canada and that physicians, hospitals, public health authorities and voluntary agencies everywhere participate in the development of co-ordinated programs."

Throughout the report run this theme:

"No profession is nationalized. No professional person is turned into a state employee. No practitioner is coerced into working in a specific region or occupation or prevented from practising his profession in accordance with his training, experience and professional ethics.

WANTS EXPANSION

"Instead what we have recommended in the area of medical care is a continuation and an expansion of the medical care prepayment plans operating as a service contract basis that have been developed so successfully by Canadian physicians and those associated with them."

The first report contained 200 recommendations; the second 56.

In addition to Mr. Justice Hall, who was chief justice of Saskatchewan when appointed chairman of the commission, the other commissioners were:

Dr. D. M. Baltzan, Saskatoon; D. F. Firestone, Ottawa; Alice M. Ollard, Montreal; Dr. C. L. Strachan, London, Ont.; Dr. Arthur F. Van Wart, Fredericton, and Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon of Toronto, Senator McCutcheon resigned when he was appointed to the Senate and the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1962.

The report was unanimous except for one reservation by Dr. Baltzan. He said that if a patient wished to pay his doctor directly he should be able to claim the amount from the health services commission.

In a foreword to their second report, the commissioners said they are pleased with steps taken since their first report.

Sunday School Lesson
'The Eyes of the Heart'

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Sight is one of the greatest gifts His can bestow. To be able to see the world around us, the beauties of nature, the faces of people, this is a blessing beyond the power of words to describe. Perhaps only those who have been denied sight can appreciate fully what it means to be able to see.

Some things, however, cannot be seen with physical eyes. They must be seen with what Paul called "the eyes of the heart." (Ephesians 1:18) They must be perceived spiritually. That is, they must be experienced by faith.

The materialist believes only in what he can see. The religious person believes some things can only be seen by faith. The materialist reduces man to a collection of animated atoms. The religious person believes there is more to life than molecules. There is purpose, meaning, love, faith, and hope. The two things that make life worthwhile are precisely the things that cannot be seen, with the naked eye.

The Communist argues that because we cannot see God, He doesn't exist. The religious person replies that we cannot see love either, but we can see its evidences on every hand.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 21: "Jesus, The Christ," Matthew 16.

Of course, we cannot see God. God, as Jesus said, is Spirit (John 4:24), and must be spiritually perceived. But we can see evidences of His power in the lives of the saints. We can experience the joy that faith in Him brings. We can tremble at a word from a person who is not there when no God. When men no longer see God, they no longer see man as a spiritual being. Without God, man becomes merely a creature of the state to be treated as the state sees fit.

The need for spiritual perception is illustrated in Matthew 16. Jesus pointed out that men can look at the sky and predict the weather, but are not able to "interpret the signs of the times." He warned His disciples against the "leaven" of the religious leaders in power, meaning that the house had insulation when we bought it, but don't know for certain. We don't want to spend the money if we don't have to. Is there some way we can find out whether or not we need insulation? — (Mrs.) B. V. M.

The maximum capacity for BCIVS is 1140 and at least 1500 students are expected to enroll. The first session for 750 students will be from 8 a.m. to 2.10 p.m. The second schedule takes in 900 students and they will attend school from 9.10 a.m. until 3.10 p.m. The last schedule will include 750 students from Frankford, Batawa, Bayside and Middleton Park, and they will attend school from 11.10 a.m. until 5.00 p.m. There will only by forty minutes for lunch hour and a ten minute break in each period. Lunch periods are only tentative, but 11.10, 11.50, 12.30 and 1.10 are possible hours.

READS PAMPHLET

Mr. Sterling read a pamphlet obtained at the recent Canadian Education Showplace in Toronto stressing the need for more education to cope with the changing times. He reviewed the five-year program for the benefit of the students and parents who must fill in application forms for grade nine.

Mr. Sterling suggested that students registering in these five-year courses have an average in Grade eight of 70 percent. The four-year programs are geared to university or teachers' colleges and have simpler courses in English and Mathematics and there is no French, Sterling, and the Sidney Township School inspector, Mr. Dunsmore.

Community leaders attended the annual meeting of the Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. last night. The guest speaker was Maurice F. Strong, chairman for the movement's World Services Organization (centre.) Pictured with him, left to right: Mayor Jack Ellis, W. S. Wills, president; Mrs. Freeman Burrows, D. G. Diamantides, general secretary.

The presentation of Leader's Fellowship awards highlighted the Association's dinner meeting. John Deacon and Don Templeman shown with H. M. Watson (centre) were two of the three members of the local "Y" organization to be honored.

'Y' Positive Instrument Against Communism Says Speaker at Annual Meet

By building leadership through its world service organization the Y.M.C.A. is a positive and effective instrument to play a major role against the spread of communism guest speaker Maurice F. Strong told the annual meeting of the Belleville Family Young Men's Christian Association last night. Mr. Strong is chairman for World Services, National Council of Y.M.C.A.'s of Canada.

In a world rife with economic and political tension the "Y" movement is growing Mr. Strong told the gathering. "We are working in 12,000 associations in 83 countries and our influence affects some 3,000,000 people" he said. Our World Service program is releasing the talents and ideals of people everywhere, he continued. Mr. Strong pointed out that the Y.M.C.A. pioneered in providing world service. Its success is due to its ability to adapt itself to conditions it has to contend with, he said. He paid tribute to the Belleville association's record in World Service work. "You have been long demonstrating your enthusiasm in this vital aspect," he said.

The Y.M.C.A., carries Christ's gospel into action, he explained. "One thing alien to communism is religion which has become a major factor in the Ideological struggle." Mr. Strong who is a Canadian business leader and director of 25 companies said he found a new purpose in life from his fellowship in the "Y" organization.

The meeting was held at the Y.M.C.A.'s new modern building on Victoria avenue.

MEMBERSHIP UP

In presenting his report "Y" president W. S. Wills noted that local facilities in the new premises had been used 64,105 times while the membership had increased from 1954 to 2,139. He called for the public to continue its support explaining that there is still a big job to be done. He moved a vote of thanks to organization including the Ministerial Association, The Ontario Intelligencer, CJBQ radio station, the Kingston TV station and the Belleville United Appeal for their contributions to the movement's success locally.

In his remarks general secretary D. G. Diamantides said he considered the move to the new location was a wise one and was aware of the responsibilities connected with the expansion. Calling the local branch's progress a "new era" in "Y" services in Belleville he told the gathering they could expect more to come. The next step is a health club he said announcing that the second phase of construction was now under discussion. The directors are giving consideration to adding a gymnasium to the present building.

Mayor Jack Ellis brought greetings from the city council. Gerry Sherman presented a cheque for $500 to president Wills on behalf of the Y's Men's Club. The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Freeman Burrows who said Mr. Strong is interested in human relations and does something about it.

STATEMENT APPROVED

Don Templeman read the financial statement which was approved.

H. M. Watson acted as chairman and introduced head table guests. He presented Leader's Fellowship awards to John Deacon and Don Templeman. Mrs. Theo Wheeler who earned a similar honor and was listed to receive an award, was unable to attend.

Elected to the Belleville Family YMCA's board of directors for three-year terms were: Mrs. Freeman E. Burrows, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Jack R. Glover, Rev. M. G. McFarlane, Harry Fitzgerald, Jack R. Sisson, Charles Wilson and V. L. Lewis.

The directors will elect the next president at a future meeting.

'Y' President's Message

"It is with appreciation and pride that I view my association with the YMCA over the past year. The year 1964 has been a significant one, and I believe a successful one for your Belleville Family YMCA. It was during this period that we moved into our splendid new building; it was also during this period that we had the most spectacular membership increase in our history".

"Before considering the local picture I want to take a moment to refer to our world-wide organization. This is particularly important in this present age of political and economic strife. We sometimes lose sight of the fact that we are a part of a World Alliance of YMCAs, existing in over 83 countries, today consisting of 12,000 autonomous Association in over 83 countries. This is an organization dedicated to democratic principles and the building of good character in our youth based on the teachings of Jesus Christ. Further it makes no distinction as to race, color or creed. It is an organization that can exert a strong influence for good throughout the world".

"The influence our local association can exert can also be great when we consider our growing membership. During the year 1964's individual persons, either alone or in groups, used the facilities of the Y over 64,105 times. This attendance was made up by regular Y members, special event groups, groups under other auspices and special individual services. The membership increase has been particularly gratifying as evidenced by the following figures:

Total number of different members registered in 1963, 1,854. Total number of different members registered in 1964, 2,139.

"It is always the objective of the Board of Directors to keep membership costs low. Our single membership rate for a boy or girl is $12.00. The family membership rate is $35. This works out to considerably below our per capita cost which was estimated in our old building at $36.00 per member. The membership cost to the Y is higher now but it will require another year of operation to determine the exact amount. Like many other organizations increased costs of operation will present a problem for the future."

"I want to gratefully express my thanks to a number of groups who have contributed so much to the success of the 'Y' program over the past year. My thanks to our General Secretary and his hard working staff and to the volunteer leaders and instructors. I shall also thank the members of my Executive, the Chairman of the Standing Committees and all other members of the Board. The untiring efforts of the Y's Men's Club and the Y's Mowettes Club are not to be forgotten. Our thanks also go to the National Council of the YMCAs in Canada for their help and guidance. We also thank our sponsors and thanks to the following for their co-operation over the past year: The Ministerial Association, the Ontario Intelligencer, CJBQ, CKWS-TV, and last but certainly not least the Belleville United Appeal."

"We are particularly grateful to the Belleville United Appeal this year for the tremendous campaign they put on. Through our representative, Jack Ireland, our YMCA Board and our regular "Y" members contributed over 100 canvassers to the campaign. Our YMCA board member, Charles Wilson, took it upon himself to invite 14 industrial executives to his home to explain to them the importance of the United Appeal Campaign to the community. It is only by co-operation that we can put the United Appeal Campaign over in Belleville."

"There is still a big job to be done here at our new building. We need a gymnasium and we need help to develop our outdoor sports area. Let us all give the Belleville Family YMCA our full support in the future. (Advt.)

Former Drug Addict Speaks To High School Students

In the afternoon, Mr. Colado, spoke to some 230 students, teachers and clergy and told of his former life.

He began by saying that he was brought up in a Christian home, that he went to church only because he had to. "I did not believe what I heard though." He became a member of a New York gang known as the Dragons. It was in this association that he took part in gang wars and brutal beatings. From this he began to take narcotics which lead to heroin. Within two months of his first injections of heroin his need graduated from $5 to $50 worth per day. He could not afford it so he became a sneak thief.

Mr. Colado went on to say that in his 15 years of addiction he spent eight years in hospitals or prisons. He was given up as a hopless case by doctors. But he was led to the church where he discovered a peace and joy which satisfied. Coming under the ministry of Teen Challenge, a ministry began and conducted by the Rev. David Wilkerson, and author of the "Cross and the Switchblade", he committed his life to God. After a period of time in "kicking the habit," he began to accept the teaching of the church and Bible.

Now he desires to train himself so that he can help others who have fallen in this addiction habit. He desires also to help young people and those who seem to take the church for granted. After graduation, Mr. Colado plans to work for Teen Challenge in a city.

In the evening over 125 persons heard Mr. Colado's testimonial giving further details of the gang life. Following both meetings young people gathered around him and asked numerous questions.

The Clark sisters, also from the Bible College, sang inspiring numbers.

These special services were sponsored by the Madoc Ministerial Association.

PM and Dief Cross Swords In House

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker clashed angrily in the Commons Thursday over Veterans' Minister Teillet's financial dealings with an unidentified beauty counselor in Winnipeg.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that Mr. Teillet has "admitted" he received money from the "beauty shop promoter" to exercise influence.

Howls of indignation came from Liberal benches and Mr. Pearson shot up to ask: "Is the right honorable member (Mr. Diefenbaker), making a charge?"

"I will not be brushed off with that kind of nonsense," the Conservative leader shot back.

Mr. Pearson said the opposition leader should "withdraw his suggestion." Mr. Diefenbaker replied that the government seemed to be very touchy about the subject.

RAISES ISSUE

The issue was brought up by Joseph Slogan (PC — Springfield), who asked whether the prime minister had met Mr. Teillet to discuss the case or exchanged correspondence on the subject. He asked whether Mr. Pearson had sent a copy of his "true politics" to the veterans minister.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton said he wanted to study the wording of the question before allowing it. If Mr. Slogan wished to make a charge against the minister, he should spell it out.

After the uproar died down somewhat, Mr. Teillet said there never had been any suggestion outside the House that he had been guilty of "political influence peddling." He could prove he had done nothing wrong.

The minister told Stanley Korchinski (PC — Mackenzie) he never wrote to Mr. Pearson about the beauty shop affair.

The Winnipeg Tribune Jan. 20 quoted a St. Boniface businessman as saying he gave Mr. Teillet financial help to run for Parliament in 1962 and to help expand the man's business into other provinces.

It identified the man as Pierre Gerrard, at the time president of the Franco-Canadian School of Hairdressing Academy. It quoted Mr. Gerrard as saying he was seeking political influence.

"He didn't get it," the newspaper added, "but he paid Mr. Teillet sums of money during the 1962 election and for some months afterward in the hope that he would."

It quoted Mr. Teillet as saying he had agreed to act as a business consultant for Mr. Gerrard, had received financial assistance in his campaign and accepted payment while an MP, but had ended his connection with Mr. Gerrard prior to his appointment to the cabinet.

The Tribune quoted Mr. Teillet as estimating he received between $1,000 and $1,500 from the school. It said the school's records show a total outlay of just under $2,000.

Mr. Teillet was quoted as saying he had agreed to act as a business consultant and gave no undertaking other than as a businessman. "There was nothing illegal about what I was doing."

KINGSTON (CP) — The Cataraqui Region Conservation Authority approved construction Thursday night of a wildlife sanctuary running for two miles along the Cataraqui River in Kingston and also creating a 3,200 - acre wildlife lake on Buell Creek, just north of Brockville.

The committee which authorized $6,000 for completion of engineering reports for the project, said construction would start later this year. No estimates of cost were available.

The authority has jurisdiction over 27 municipalities and townships in a 1,300 - square-mile area between Napanee, 20 miles east of Kingston, and Brockville.

Manned Space Flight May Get Back in Orbit in April

WASHINGTON (CP) — Manned space flight by the United States may get back into orbit in mid-April if everything jells.

So far it hasn't. The Gemini program of 12 launchings, designed as a blastoff pad for reaching the moon by 1970, has been running about 18 months behind schedule.

The U.S. hasn't had a man in space since Air Force Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper exceeded 34 hours aloft in May, 1963.

But all that can change in April, when it is hoped to dispatch the first U.S. double team for three orbits around the earth.

The second of two unmanned shots, completing tests on the 6,900 - pound Gemini capsule, two months ago splashed down 19 after tribulations including two computer failures at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and a bolt of lightning.

PLAN 18 SHOTS

The April launching would be the first of 10 manned space tests culminating in space sojourns of up to two weeks, plus the first man-manoeuvres outside space capsules.

The program also envisages rendezvous with satellite pods to be worked into solid contact with the main space vehicle. From this would flow guidance for the huge Apollo program to come, in which three-man moon crews will be launched by huge Saturn V rocket engines.

With luck, Gemini could get off three manned flights in 1965. Another could be launched No. 3 in the program—could come April 19 or it could be a bit earlier. The two-man team is headed by Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Crissom, one of the original astronauts.

There have been 28 astronauts carefully selected and toughened for Gemini and their training stops the day before they take off.

Dutch Vessel Sinks in Atlantic

THE HAGUE (Reuters)-The 5,703-ton Dutch ship Sophocles sank in the northern Atlantic today and three of its crew members are missing, the owners declared.

Its owners in Amsterdam, said that 4½ hours after a fire broke out in a hold it spread all over the ship, which then capsized and sank.

The Sophocles was bound for Rotterdam from Aruba, in the Antilles Islands, with a cargo of fertilizer.

An earlier report said the crew was being taken aboard another Dutch ship, the Ulysses.

Downtown Merchants Want Present Store Hours

Ronald Keel New Head

Belleville's downtown merchants want the present store hours to continue, but opinion is divided on whether stores should close at 5.30 p.m. five days a week.

Last night at their annual meeting the Belleville Downtown Merchants' Association voted to have the recently approved City of Hamilton store closing law adopted in Belleville — but with the present Belleville store hours.

This was for Friday night opening and stores closed on Wednesday afternoons.

The meeting saw Ronald Keel as the Downtown Merchants Association president. Jack Ireland as past president, Jerry O'Connor, vice-president, Bryson Leslie, secretary and Stan Albert as treasurer.

USE ALL FEES

Earlier in the meeting members voted for the downtown merchants association to continue as a body, and for the association to continue promotion of the downtown business area.

It also decided to consider reduction of membership fees as be a means of encouraging a larger membership participation. The downtown merchants and for 100 per cent use of fees for Association work.

In the past a percentage of membership fees has been turned over to the local Chamber of Commerce.

Last night's meeting at the Hotel Quinte saw considerable discussion on store closing hours.

Many members felt the shopping trend was toward Thursday night opening as well as the present late closing on Friday evening.

WANT PRESENT HOURS

But the majority wanted present store closing hours to continue, this despite the fact the meeting was warned that Belleville Plaza merchants were determined to get Thursday night opening for all stores in their group.

As the present grocery stores stay open both Thursday and Friday nights.

There was also considerable discussion on whether stores should close at 5.30 or 6.00 o'clock.

Irv Shulman and Cleo Collins said the 5.30 closing was a mistake with Mr. Shulman claiming the 5.30 closing was "forcing factory workers away from downtown."

He claimed these workers did not have time to shop after getting out of work.

Mr. Colling said store hours should be uniform and that merchants should stop confusing the public by different closing hours.

He said that Monday closing — or closing on any day — was a mistake.

Retiring president Jack Ireland said there was a feeling that there had to be some change in Belleville's store closing hours.

"We can go along and wait for our present by-law to be broken, or we can ask for the by-law to be changed to take care of present shopping needs," he said.

Douglas Duminie favored adoption of the Hamilton by-law providing for six days open with two nights late closing.

The meeting went along with the wording of the Hamilton by-law, but with the retention of present store hours.

Small Papers Said Voice Of Province

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's smaller-city newspapers were urged Thursday to establish their role as "the real voice" of the province.

Philip S. Robertson, publisher of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder and president of the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association, told executives from some 80 newspapers at the opening session of the association's annual meeting that forceful and continued promotion is necessary to impress this on national and metropolitan agencies.

"We are the grass-roots market and have no quarrel with the metropolitan markets," he said, "but wish to be recognized for what we are—the real voice of Ontario."

He reported that the association's member papers had enjoyed a moderately successful year but had been hit by rising of production costs. Canadian newspapers had spent $31,000,000 in capital expenditures last year, a good portion of which was in the dailies.

The Ontario dailies were keeping abreast of changes in industry technology, coping with revolutionary and rapidly changing production methods.

Mr. Robertson said that labor must also be made to realize its responsibilities and that it is equally concerned with the newspaper industry's survival in the face of competition from radio and television.

In an address, Premier Robarts reaffirmed his government against criticism that it has relied too much on financial provisions and other investigation bodies.

Government "cannot function properly unless it is able to call upon the experts in every field of activity for assistance, regardless of whether they are in private business or in the public service."

The press had a responsibility to the people to point out the weaknesses, rogues and failures of government and to advocate new programs and policies.

"The citizen himself, however, must be prepared to take an active interest in the political process and be prepared to serve his fellow citizens as a member of advisory boards, commissions and other bodies as they are developed."

Mr. Robarts said the greatest change in the press in the last 100 years has been in its role as an independent and objective critic of government. No newspaper is immune to the crowd of "my party, right or wrong."

The program for the two-day meeting includes discussion of virtually every phase of newspaper management. Among participants were E. J. Mannion and A. W. Gosbee, Thomson Newspapers Limited; W. J. Stewart, St. Thomas Times-Journal; J. R. Meakes, Sudbury Star, and J. C. Anderson, Kitchener-Waterloo Record.

Haste Imposed by Favreau Upset Method of Probing Charges Inquiry Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Haste imposed by Justice Minister Favreau was responsible for his upsetting methods of investigation the RCMP normally would have followed in checking allegations against ministerial aides.

RCMP Inspector J. P. Drapeau told the Dorion inquiry he was in favor of setting a trap to obtain the truth in allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered a $20,000 bribe last July by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to then immigration minister Tremblay.

The trap was impossible because "the minister (Mr. Favreau) had said he wanted these people interviewed with no time wasted."

Rene Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party, suggested the "higher brass" was not interested so much in having a thorough investigation as in obtaining statements from the ministerial aides involved.

Insp. Drapeau said he was called into the case Aug. 19 and he immediately interview Denis and two of Mr. Favreau's own aides who were alleged by Mr. La montagne to have been trying pressured him by telephone to drop opposition to bail for Montreal businessman Lucien Rivard. The aides were Andre Letendre, Mr. Favreau's executive assistant, and Guy Lord, his special assistant.

WANTED BACKGROUND

Insp. Drapeau said he wanted background on the three men—"to prevent bad telephone calls"—but he said he thought he wasn't time because of the minister's decision to adjournment before reconvening in Montreal for the summation by lawyers.

RECEIVED COMPLAINT

Another RCMP witness this week was Insp. Raoul Carriere of Montreal, who received the initial complaint from Mr. Lamontagne and forwarded a complete report at the specific request of Commissioner McClellan.

Another was Supt. J. A. A. Thivierge, also of Montreal, who indicated on the report to McClellan that the allegations by Lamontagne were probably true. He based this on his knowledge of the Rivard case and his 32 years' experience.

Insp. Drapeau made suggestions, especially by Mr. Drouin, that the investigation should have been conducted by investigators of the Montreal RCMP because they received the complaint.

Reasons given again this week has been that several key figures were in Ottawa and that the Montreal detachment was extremely busy with preparations for the Expo visit.

Insp. Drapeau, who was sent to Montreal to conduct the second stage of the investigation, normally is in charge of a subdivision charged with guard duty on Parliament Hill and at government House. He had not conducted a criminal investigation in about three years.

Parliamentary Notebook

He told a nation-wide television audience Wednesday there is no secret to the success he want to see "this party as a reactionary one.

The two-week campaign had Liberals so worried that the strategy for Lester B. Pearson was revised.

Although his government has had returned a political observers agreed the losses would have been greater had Mr. Diefenbaker not campaigned so effectively..

The memory of that campaign returned this week when Mr. Diefenbaker, now opposition leader, lashed out at his critics within the party.

He told a nation-wide television audience Wednesday there is no secret to the success he want to see "this party as a reactionary one.

"I have been told . . . in the last few days that if I remain as leader of the Conservative party, support for the party by certain interests will end.

"My friends, they believe that they will succeed in that way. I will follow the will of the people. Will it be the will of the people or those that are all powerful?"

Sources close to the opposition leader indicate he is hoping for a large public response to his statement so he can ignore the opposition to him within the national executive and the Quebec wing.

Mr. Diefenbaker doesn't want to quit, but sources say he would consider retiring if there is little or no response to his appeal for support from the public.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Ask Red Kelly and Camille Henry the name of their favorite big game in their National Hockey League personal safaris and they'll chorus "The Montreal Canadiens."

Both the redhead and the half-pint sharpshooters of the Leafs and Hawks have blasted their elephant guns at the Habs with telling effect.

In fact Toe Blake's buccaneers have helped both Kelly and Henry reach the charmed circle of 250-goal getters. The M.P. crushed the gate last month while the slim Jim of the Hawks, made the grand entree on February 11th.

The major difference between Kelly's record feat that of Henry (besides the number of games it took for each to score 250—Kelly, 1,163 and Henry, 697—is in power-play goals.

The swooping 145-pound falcon of the Hawks is acknowledged as one of the greatest power-play specialists in the history of the NHL and almost half his goals have been scored with the opposition shorthanded.

In fact of his 248 goals with the New York Rangers, 153 were potted while the Blues held the advantage. Kelly has a total of 67 power-play goals in his 250.

In shooting down the cage lions of the Habs, the hunters broke about even. The Leafian scarel-top has 53 Canadiens' scalps hanging at his belt while Henry's trophy room boasts 52.

But they picked their individual hunting grounds. Kelly liked the French-Canadian atmosphere scoring 27 of his 53 in the Montreal Forum.

The blue haze of Gotham's Madison Square Garden and the roar of the Blues' faithful gave the lich to the Henry trigger finger when the red-shirted Habs were in his sights.

Thirty-one red lights flashed behind a Canadiens' goalie in the Garden when Camille squeezed the trigger.

The patchwork Hawkling in the race for his 250-goal target picked the hostile atmosphere of the faraway places to carve the majority of notches on his trusty hockey Colt. He fired home 132 on the road.

The member from York West preferred to loose his goal-getting shafts in the home hunting grounds. He has blinked 135 red lights in Detroit's Olympia and Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Incidentally both Kelly and Henry joined two others in being the only winners of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy to score at least 250 goals. The other two are Billy Mosienko, a former Chicago star, and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit.

In fact the redhead is one of only two defencemen ever to win the Lady Byng Trophy for gentlemanly conduct—the other was Bill Quakenbush, a former Detroit and Boston great.

"When the Last Great Scorer" is made and the hockey historians archive the greats of the National Hockey League, "Red" Kelly's name should be well up on the list.

He joined the Red Wings directly from junior hockey and most of his time at Detroit was as a defenceman, although he occasionally played left wing in his later years for the one and only "Jolly Jawn" Adams.

The former tractor-riding tobacco farmer from Simcoe scored 162 goals while on the Detroit defence, potating out his ability as a rushing defenceman and demonstrating why he was able to convert to forward when he joined the Leafs.

"Red" doesn't leave his hockey behind him when a practice or a game finishes. He knows the game demands the best in a player and has always given that to his club.

Once at the Eggert cottage in Rosemere, where "Red" was a summer weekend guest, I saw him dance for two hours "straight" in a bathing suit on the lush lawn.

"Didn't know you liked dancing so well," remarked a friend over the top of a "tall one."

"I don't," Red tossed over his shoulder without missing a beat. "I do this to keep my legs in shape."

After Punch Imlach put Kelly on the same line with Mahovlich (before his M.P. days) he would skate for sometimes as long as two hours after a practice, combining with the Leaf's Big "M" in passing and shooting plays.

Sasky Schoolboys Tops, One To Go

—Finish Today—

By DON ANGUS

FREDERICTON (CP)—Consistent pressure curling by Dan Fink's Regina rink has put Saskatchewan on top of the Canadian Schoolboy Curling championship with one round to go. And it will take more of the same today to keep it that way.

Beaten only once in nine starts of the 11-rink round-robin competition, Fink needs a victory over Ontario in the 11th round at 9:30 a.m. (8:30 a.m. EST) to sew up Saskatchewan's ninth victory in the 18 years the event has been held. Defeat would send him into a certain playoff.

Playing for that possibility are Doug Dobry's Viking, Alta., quartet and the Stuart Campbell Edgewater (Iron Bridge) water, N.S., tied for second place with 7-2 records and drawn against each other in the final round. If Fink falters against Paul Savage of Toronto he'll meet the Dobry - Campbell winner for the title later in the day.

Tony Richardson's New Brunswick rink from Moncton was through for the year at 7-3 with a final round bye, assured of a third-place tie with the Dobry-Campbell loser and possibly with either both of Ontario and Northern Ontario, skipped by Wayne Stenkl of North Bay, who meet into the last round with 6-3 records.

The six way 4 brackets were composed of British Columbia at 4-5, Manitoba at 2-7 and Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Quebec, tied with 1-8 records.

Besides the featured Saskatchewan-Ontario and Alberta-Nova Scotia clashes, today's final draw sees Northern Ontario against Newfoundland, B.C. against Manitoba and P.E.I. against Quebec.

Defeats West German Team

Chelsea Is Glamor Club of Cup Tie

By DOUGLAS NICHOLSON

LONDON (Reuters) — Chelsea's superb performance in beating the West German Nomical Side at Dulsberg earlier this week has made it the glamor team of Saturday's fifth - round English Football Association Cup ties.

Manager Tommy Docherty's calculated risk of giving his talented youngsters such a tough workout only five days before the cup tie against Tottenham has paid off brilliantly. League-leader Chelsea will go into the match against its London neighbor boosting with confidence. The club has not been beaten by any side in any competition since Dec. 19.

Chelsea's ultimate aim is the unique triple of winning the league championship, Football League Cup and Football Association Cup. Victory over Tottenham, until recently masters of English soccer and Football Association Cup winners in 1961 and 1962, would prove it is well on the way.

Tottenham has a bad away record but the best home figures in the first division. On its own ground it has won 13 out of 15 league games; away it has won only one of 8.

Leeds, second in the first division, won promotion only last season from the second division. It has never reached the Football Association Cup final, but hopes for victory over third-division, Shrewsbury.

NOT IMPRESSIVE

Manchester United was not impressive in beating Burnley in last Saturday's first division match. Burnley, trailing 1-3, fought back impressively and nearly forced a tie.

Third - division Peterborough, fourth - round conquerors of first - division Arsenal, will be watched by a capacity crowd of 33,000 when it tackles Swansea, second-finalists last season.

Second-division Crystal Palace faces a stiff task against first - division Nottingham Forest. With all tickets sold there will be a capacity crowd of 42,000.

Wolverhampton Wanderers are at the bottom of the first division, and their cup opponents, Aston Villa, only two places above them, but this battle between near neighbors should attract 50,000 fans to Villa Park.

Leicester has a good cup record, but its poor away form points to a win for second division Middlesbrough, though the margin may be close. Liverpool, which have gone 19 games without defeat, should account for Bolton Wanderers.

Juniors Face Tough Test Here Tonight

Les Douglas' rough and ready Kingston Frontenacs will supply the action in a nine o'clock fixture at Memorial Arena.

Group playoffs are slated to get under way for the "B" squads next weekend so both Douglas and Belleville coach Gordie Bell hope to have their clubs flying at top peak in tonight's battle. After all, it could be a preview of the group finals.

First of all, however comes the semi-finals, with the "B"'s likely tackling Peterborough Don Bye. There is a slim chance that the locals will meet Kingston in the semi-finals, a head-on affair, but it is doubtful.

In order for this to happen, the Frontenacs would have to lose tonight's game here and their final interlocking one with Toronto's Metro group while Peterborough would have to win three, all against their opposition.

Belleville threw its score into Peterborough before bowing out in the semi-finals last year and the Don Bye brass would just as soon avoid the "B"'s right now if they could. Belleville and Peterborough split four games down the middle this year.

Kingston, on the other hand, has won three starts against the Bellevue, something the locals hope to change tonight. If goalie Wayne Hunt continues his fine play and his mates turn in a hustling performance, the "B"'s will make it plenty hot for the Frontenacs.

HEADS BREEDERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Donald A. McIntyre of Finch, Ont., has been elected president of the Canadian Standardbred Association of Canada, it was announced Thursday. W. C. Mann of Peterborough was picked to serve on the executive committee.

Riteways Win 5-1 Victory At Cobourg

Belleville's Riteway novices, playing before a packed arena for the first time in their young hockey careers, won a 5-1 victory over the host club at Cobourg's "Young Canada Night" last evening.

A number of games in various divisions were played and two Toronto Maple Leaf players, Bobby Baun and Eddie Shack, were on hand to present autographed hockey sticks to the most outstanding player on each team.

Jim Richardson was the winner from the Belleville entry after scoring two of the Riteway goals. Peter Smrke, Mike Hayes and Danny Laponcette were the other marksmen. Grant Goegan and Mark Coates were the stars for each. David Smith, Smrke and Lupenette one apiece.

Cobourg's lone scoring play saw Holland score, aided by Stevenson and Robinson. That was the final tally.

This was the 13th annual "Young Canada Night" held here and as always it was a most decided success.

Waterloo Defeats Ryerson

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Don Morris, a first-year student from Barrie, scored all of his team's goals as Waterloo Lutheran University Golden Hawks defeated Ryerson Institute Rams of Toronto 4-2 in an Ontario Intercollegiate Hockey game Thursday night.

Amos scored two in the first period and two more in the second. Bob Stevenson scored both Ryerson goals.

The game was the last of the season for both clubs. Waterloo Lutheran finished in second place while Ryerson was third.

Laurentian University of Sudbury was first with a 9-0 record.

Quinte Hockey League

Horlocks edged Ter-Haar Dachers 3-2 and SACO topped Rossmore 5-1 as the Quinte Hockey League completed its regular schedule last night.

Three-of-five playoff series, between SACO and Horlocks and between Ter-Haar and Rossmore will start next Thursday night. SACO finished in first place, followed by Ter-Haar, Horlocks and Rossmore.

Horlocks scored at a goal-a-period pace to win over Ter-Haar. The Dachers netted their marker in the first period.

Don Stewart, Bruce Seames and Gary Little tallied for the winners. Rob Burrows, Bill Hill, Bob Wannamaker, Jim Campbell and Stewart had assists.

After a scoreless first period, SACO moved ahead of Rossmore 2-1 in the second and added three without reply in the third.

Doug Hallam, Dick Knapton and Gary Genereaux scored SACO's first three goals and Ken Forsythe iced the cake with a final pair. Don Forsythe saored three assists, K. Forsythe, Jack Gilby, Art Deline and Genereaux one each.

Ron Archer was the Rossmore marksmen, aided by Doug Reid and Bernie Boulter.

One hundred wrestlers from the district schools took part in the championship events. The consensus of coaches was improved calibre of the sport made for closer competition.

Steakl, battling to retain the title won for Northern ontario last year by Bob Ash of Kirkland Lake, was involved in a couple of cliff-hangers Thursday that cost Nova Scotia a clear shot at the championship.

In the eighth round, he forced Fink to squeeze his last rock through a narrow opening for a 7-6 victory in one of Saskatchewan's toughest matches of the tournament.

Then, in the 10th round, Steakl's perfect takeout curled around a Nova Scotia guard to remove Campbell's shot rock for a last-end three that defeated the easterners 6-4 and cost them their share of first place.

WINS CLOSE ONES

Meanwhile Fink was continuing to win the close ones, knocking off Alberta, the other co-leader at the start of the day's play, with an 11-8 victory after trailing 8-4 with three ends to go and coming up with a three in the ninth end to subdue B.C. 9-7 in the evening round.

Campbell's Nova Scotians, the only victors over Saskatchewan since the start of the tournament, stayed in the—running Thursday by defeating Newfoundland 8-5 and New Brunswick 11-7. Dobry's Alberta foursome walloped P.E.I. 15-6 in the morning round and needed a perfect last-rock draw to edge Manitoba 5-4 in the evening.

In other results Thursday, New Brunswick downed Manitoba 8-4 and B.C. whaled Quebec 9-8 in the seventh round. Ontario trounced Quebec 14-3, Northern Ontario whipped Manitoba 8-5 and B.C. defeated Prince Edward Island 6-3 in the fifth end. New Brunswick also drubbed Newfoundland 10-3 and Ontario nipped P.E.I. 5-4 in the 10th.

Kingston Aims For Place Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First and fourth places in the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League were decided Thursday night, but Kingston Aces and Hull Volants will have to scramble to decide which team gets the nod in the battle for second.

Morrisburg clinched first place with a 6-1 verdict over the Volants in Hull, dropping the Quebec club to third place in the percentage standings.

And at Cornwall, Ottawa Senior Montagnards blanked Lancaster Doogers 4-0 in the game that decided fourth place. Lancaster went into the game with a better record, but it was a must game for both clubs, with the winner being assured of the fourth and final playoff berth in the six-team league.

Canadian Football League

Player Cut Doesn't Make Sense-Hayman

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The Canadian Football League decided in Ottawa last weekend that it didn't want any part of a scheme to set it up as a farm operation for the filthy rich and talent-loaded National Football League in the United States. But that doesn't mean to say the nine-team CFL isn't bush.

The CFL executive decided to trim team rosters to 32 players from 33 by agreeing to sign 14, instead of 15, imports. The reason, said commissioner C. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, was a matter of economics.

Could be, but it doesn't make sense to at least one club official, Law Hayman of Toronto Argonauts.

"So," said the Argonaut managing director this week, "what differences does it make?

"I figure it might save a club $12,000 a year. But what is this when you consider that the normal operation of each of the nine clubs in the CFL will level out to about $700,000 a year?

"I'm more concerned with the quality of playing on the field than in the possible saving of $12,000. Whether this will improve or diminish is something that will be determined when the schedule starts."

BACKED BY BOMBERS

His was against the move and, he said, he was "strongly opposed" to the CFL ruling that limited each club to three naturalized Canadians, effective this season. Teams with more than three U.S.-born players who have played five seasons in Canada and have taken out citizenship papers must carry the others as imports.

Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers are the only clubs now beyond the limit.

Hayman said that team general managers were told by the CFL to come up with agreement on roster personnel. "But we couldn't constrain anything, so it was thrown open to the CFL executive and they openly determined the question."

Hayman said there was lots of talk about it by general managers. "There were resolutions, amendments, amendments to amendments and so on and, from the conversation, it appeared to me that only Toronto, Vancouver and Calgary were against cutting down on roster strength and naturalized Canadians."

The Blue Bombers pulled a surprise. "They were one of the strongest supporters of the cutdown." Hayman said he didn't know the Bombers' reasoning although it could be economics because the once-powerful WFC team was a loser all around in 1964. Bombers won only one game in 18 and attendance was down.

Ellis Tops at Bogota

BOGOTA (AP)—Wes Ellis, a slender pro from West Caldwell, N.J., smashed the tournament record Thursday by firing a seven-under-par 65 for a two-stroke lead in the first round of the Bogota Open golf tournament.

His 35-30 put him in front of Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo who had 35-34—67.

Bob Gajda, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and Cliff Brown of Nashville, Tenn., tied for third with 69s.

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg and Bill Wakeham of Victoria, B.C., each shot 72s.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., shot a 38 on the first nine holes and 35 on the back nine for a 73 total, the same as Adrien Bigras of Ste. Dorothee, Que.

Al Huestis of Toronto, Raymond Hunt of Le Soreil, Que., Henry McIlree of Toronto and Eric St. George of St. John's, Nfld., all had 76s.

Ken Jacobs of Concord, Ont., shot a 39 on his first nine holes and ended the first round in 77 strokes. Phil Brownlee of Toronto, James Morton of Montreal and Franco Siriani of St. Basil-le-Grand, Que., had 78s. Bob Breen of Woodbridge, Ont., shot a 37-41—81.

Americans Shade Aces 6-5

QUEBEC (CP) — Rochester Americans blasted in four goals in the third period to edge Quebec Aces 6-5 Thursday night after trailing the eastern division American Hockey League leaders 3-3 at the end of the second.

Jim Pappin led the Rochester attack with two goals. Don Cherry, Dick Gamble and Bronc Horvath also scored before Al Arbour scored the winner at 18:50, the last of three consecutive Rochester goals within 10 minutes.

Brothers 3 Help Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Announcers at Cornell University hockey games identify players by last name only, except when Ferguson is involved.

Three Ferguson brothers — twins Dave and Doug, 20, and Bob, 19 — are skating for the Cornell hockey team. They're all sophomores.

This togetherness began in Birsay, Sask., where the brothers played high school and junior hockey.

Coach Ned Harkness has some trouble telling the twins apart because he identifies his players by their physical appearance and pays little attention to numbers. Each of the Ferguson is five feet, eight inches and all are in the same weight class.

At times, Harkness has had the brothers skating on three different lines. Sometimes there have been two or three together. Doug plays centre and Bob and Dave are wings.

They are among the team's top scorers, Doug with 48 points on 22 goals and 24 assists in 20 games; Dave 32 on 11 goals and 22 assists, and Bob 12 on three goals and nine assists.

The brothers have helped Cornell to one of its best seasons since hockey was revived in 1937 on artificial ice. Thus far, Cornell has won 14 games and lost six.

The Fergusons were fired to Ithaca by the combination of Cornell's rekindled interest in hockey and the reputation of its agricultural school.

Dave had to ease up early in the season after suffering a mild concussion in a game. He still wears a generously padded helmet.

Like most Canadian boys, the Fergusons got skates practically with their first shoes. Their father, David, long has been interested in hockey in Birsay (population 150), where he is a wheat farmer.

The twins worked on the family farm a year after high school, waiting for Bob to catch up so the three could enter Cornell at the same time.

North Shore Hockey League

Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League fans got a little bit of everything in last night's two games played at Wellington.

Proctor Silex exploded for nine goals and whipped Demorestville 9-2 in one contest.

It was a different story in the other game. Melville Shoreliners nipped Albury 3-1 in a close, well-played affair.

Melville never trailed but it was tight all the way. Scores by periods were 1-0 and 2-1.

Eldon Carson, Rod Canning and Dave LaRue fired a goal apiece for Melville. Wally Istead potted the lone Albury goal.

There were ten penalties assessed, including a misconduct to Albury's Les Moreau.

Proctor Silex led by scores of 2-0 and 7-0 before Demorestville finally got a goal in the third. That was scored by Jim Ryford.

Don Duffy led the winners with a four-goal output. Rod Courtney netted a pair and Bob Heffernan scored one marker and helped on three others. Ralph Irvine had a goal and assist and Earl Foster got the other goal.

Only three minor penalties were given in this game.

Phillips' Rink Wins Seniors

TORONTO (CP)—Alfie Phillips' undefeated foursome from the Toronto Granite Club won the southern Ontario senior men's curling championship Thursday by defeating Roy McMillan of Ottawa Rideau 10-8.

Phillips, with Bill Leak, George Cowan and Cec Forsyth, will go to Port Arthur next month for the Canadian championship bonspiel for men 55 years and older.

Earlier Thursday, McMillan defeated Clark Keswick's Belmore rink 8-5 to earn a try at Phillips who earned a bye Wednesday after defeating Keswick 13-4.

McMillan moved into a 4-0 lead against Phillips after the first end, but Phillips rallied to lead 5-7 after eight. The Ottawa rink scored twice in the ninth to tie the score.

Then Phillips, with his opponents lying two, drew the four-foot circle with his final rock in the last end to edge the Ottawa foursome 10-9.

HELP FOR DEER

COMOX, B.C. (CP) — An RCAF helicopter search and rescue unit from this Vancouver Island location has saved the life of a deer stranded on slippery ice on a lake. John Scoby, a parascience expert, carried the exhausted animal to shore.

The Eyes Of Dads Are on Them

QUEBEC (CP)—In Quebec hockey circles they're wondering if Howe will make a stronger showing this year than Geoffrion, or if lack of experience will upset both rookies.

Howe's personal trainer has sized up the Detroit youngster's weakness as he's assailed in the enemy zone.

"And a forward can't hesitate," says Gordie Howe of Mark Howe, his nine-year-old son who plays for Detroit Roosterialls, one of 79 Peewee hockey clubs which gathered in carnival - celebrating Quebec City today from Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime provinces and the United States.

The NHL superstar has another son, Marty, also a Roosterall, in the week-long tourney. Coach Boom Boom Geoffrion of the American Hockey League Quebec Aces also has a son taking part.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP-AP) Only one of the four title battles in the North American figure skating championships starting today is expected to be a close contest between Canada and the United States.

Petra Burka of Toronto is a slight favorite over Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., in the ladies' singles, but the other three events — men's singles, pairs and ice dancing—figure to be repeats of last week's U.S. championships at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Miss Burka, an attractive 18 - year - old brunette, placed third in the winter Olympics and world championships a year ago, and is one of the leading contenders for the vacant world title this season.

The 1966 world meet will be in Colorado Springs March 3-6.

MEN START IT

The three - day competition started with the compulsory school figures in the men's singles. The school figures in the other three events are scheduled Saturday with the free-skating in all four categories slps set for Sunday afternoon in the War Memorial Stadium.

Canada has dominated the competition since 1960, but the Americans are expected to do better this year.

Canadian champions Donald Knight, of Dundas, Ont., in men's singles; Paul and Suzan Huchbergard of Agincourt, Ont., in pairs, and Kevin Lethbridge of Willowdale, Ont., and Carole Forrest of Scarborough, Ont., in ice dancing are ranked no higher than third in pre-competition comparisons with the American team.

Knight, 17, said he doesn't know how he compares with Viscouti and Allen, (the top Americans) "but I'll be doing my best to win."

Canada in the men's singles are Jay Humphrey, 16; Vancouver, who finished third in the Canadian championships, and veteran competitor Dr. Charles Snelling, 27, of Welland.

George Peppard Holds Out And Gets Far Better Deal

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sometimes a movie star's life is not as rosy as it seems from an exterior view. Case in point: George Peppard.

A year ago the capable young actor seemed to have the world in his grasp. He had been starred in The Carpetbaggers, a film with great box-office commercial potential, and his life and career were considered in salutary shape.

The real situation?

"I hadn't worked in six months, I was falling deeper into debt, my mother died, and I was undergoing a divorce," Peppard now can view that dismal period with some perspective. He hadn't worked because MGM wouldn't allow him to, because he balked at reporting for a movie, Operation Crossbow. He was also rankled by his contract, which was signed before he became a box-office star.

He held firm against the studio, despite mounting debt. The outcome?

"I ended up having to do three pictures, instead of six under the old deal," he said. "I made Operation Crossbow, but MGM added performers like Trevor Howard, Johnny Mills, Richard Johnson, Lili Palmer, as well as Sophia Loren to the cast."

Now he is able to cash in on his popularity. The cash is good: $350,000 per picture, plus a percentage. He is enjoying the first of such fees at Warner Brothers in The Third Day, with the romance of his life, Elizabeth Ashley. After a 10-day vacation in Hawaii, he reports to Africa for Joseph E. Levine's The Sands of Lainari, then returns to MGM for Maxwell Weil Roll Along.

The impression he carries came from the resounding success of How the West was Won, in which he and Debbie Reynolds played the only continuing characters, and especially from The Carpetbaggers. He shrugs off the critical knocks the film received.

"Some of the reviewers seemed angry because we didn't make a Citizen Kane," Peppard remarked. "We never meant to be that. It was a melodrama and as such, quite well done, I thought. I understand the worldwide gross may be as much as $30,000,000. You can't argue with that."

PLAYERS FINED

ROCHESTER, N.Y. Scores Four For Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A big win Thursday night considerably brightened the playoff chances of Montreal Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

At the same time, the seventh - place Hi-Hos chewed into full six points behind Montreal when they lost 8-5 to the tail-end Hamilton Red Wings.

Oshawa Generals came from behind to down Peterborough Peter 7-5 in the only other game played.

The scoring feat of the night belonged to Real Lemieux of the Wings, who scored four goals against Kitchener and had a fifth disallowed. Another Disallowed

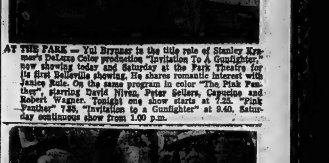
GALT (CP)—Woodstock Athletics playing coach Ted Power moved into a threatening position in the intercity Hockey Association's senior scoring race as the five clubs moved into the final week of play.

Power, a former winner of the Ecclestone Trophy which goes to the top scorer, still holds fourth place in the race but trails leader Dave Lucuk of Dunlop Rubber by 12 more points. Both teams have two games to play.

Lucuk leads by two points over linemate Joe Malo. Lucuk has 24 goals and 44 assists for 80 points while Malo has 26 goals and 32 assists. The other member of the high - scoring Guelph line, centre Don McGregor, is third with 57 points.



McGregor and Power are tied for the league assist leadership with 40 each. Woodstock right winger Art Sullivan, fifth in league scoring with 50 points, is the goal scoring leader with 27.

The race for goaltending honors is just as close. Dunlop's Boat Hurley lost the lead and then regained it during the last week as the only competition. Dave Dryden of Galt Hornets, remained idle through illness.

Hurley stopped Welland Blacks on one goal Tuesday to lower his goals-against average to 3.02 from 3.31. Dryden's games and wrest the lead from Dryden. Oakville Oaks had scored 15 goals in their only outing in two starts to knock him into second place for a few days.

Perry Mason to Be Moved Against Bonanza Next Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Perry Mason was busily condemning his old adversary, District Attorney Hamilton Berger, Thursday night. But behind the cameras, CBS was deciding whether to pit Mason against another familiar enemy—the Cartwright men of the Ponderosa.

It is expected that CBS will move the eight-year-old courtroom drama into the 9 p.m. schedule next season to compete with NBC's Bonanza.

The first people of years, Bonanza, languished in the shadow of Perry Mason on Saturday nights.

Then NBC moved it to Sunday evening, where for the last few seasons it has been one of the two top Nielsen-rated television shows. Later, CBS moved Perry Mason into Thursday night where the competition with Dr. Kildare has proven tough.

WANT SIGHT TESTS

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Thirteen members of the House roads and highways committee —all wearing glasses—voted 13 to 1 Wednesday in favor of a bill to require compulsory eye examinations of drivers at their 40th, 50th, 60th and 66th birthdays.

'WAC' Bennett

A Political Wizard Marks Magic Milestone

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP) — To his opponents he's a dictator; to his supporters a premier in the grand manner.

But few in either camp question that William Andrew Cecil Bennett is endowed with political magic.

Now nearing 65, the one-time Conservative party stalwart who has become a master showman and confounder of political foes has just passed a milestone.

On Feb. 15 he eclipsed the 1215-year record of Conservative Sir Richard McBride as the longest - reigning premier in British Columbia's history.

Sir Richard served from June 1, 1903, to Dec. 15, 1915. Mr. Bennett, as MLA since 1941 except for a brief 1947-48 period when he tried his political hand federally and lost, has been premier since Aug. 1, 1952.

His 1215 years places him 12th among provincial premiers. The record of 26½ years was set by George Murray of Nova Scotia 1896-1923. And Mr. Bennett's Social Credit counterpart in Alberta, Premier E. C. Manning, has already piled up 21½ years.

For the occasion Mr. Bennett's political friends and foes —and there are myriads of both —are attending a series of testimonial dinners. The first, in Vancouver Feb. 17, made him a freeman of the city.

BITTERLY ATTACKED

Whatever the secret of his durability, it's clearly not an ability to steer clear of political controversy. Few administrations of recent years have been surrounded by as much polemic.

Critics have declared he embraces a political philosophy he doesn't understand, but the premier says B.C.'s kind of Social Credit is the original brand with a "businessman's touch."

It is, he insists, at times more liberal than the Liberals, more conservative than the Conservatives and as socialistic as the CCF-NDP—"we take the best of them all."

He has weathered political storms that might have sunk a lesser politician.

In 1958, Robert Sommers, then lands and forests minister, was convicted and sentenced to five years for bribery and conspiracy. Less than two years later Mr. Bennett called an election and won a substantial majority.

It was in 1858 too that he seized the strike - threatened Canadian Pacific Navigation - owned Black Ball ferry system. The government eventually broke the service and used it as the basis of a still - growing provincial ferry fleet.

TOOK OVER UTILITY

After his 1961 expropriation of the big B.C. Electric power, transportation utility and the passing of legislation barring court action on the takeover price, one newspaper said Premier Bennett had "gone berserk" and was suffering "dementia politica."

The then chief justice of B.C., Sherwood Lett, ruled the B.C. Electric takeover constitutional in invalid, but after long negotiations the premier made the deal legal by getting acceptance of a final price of $197,900,000, some $37,963,600 more than the figure originally set by the government.

Mr. Bennett has often repelled suggestions that he take the national Social Credit leadership. But while choosing to remain in provincial politics, he has never hesitated to make his views known on national matters.

He has spoken in favor of making Canada into a country of five provinces instead of 10. He has advocated lowering tariffs. As early as 1956 he was calling for national health insurance. He has proposed that the Yukon or part of the Northwest Territories or both join B.C. in return for a vast communications-road network in the North. And he has urged abolition of the Senate.

SOUGHT BANK CHARTER

Reporters reminded Mr. Bennett about his abolish-the-Senate stand when he went to Ottawa to urge the Senate to approve a charter for the Bank of British Columbia, but such thrusts don't upset the pragmatic premier. Turned down by a Senate committee, he now proposes legislation to permit B.C. funds to be invested in Canada's chartered banks.

Premier Bennett has had running feuds with such political figures as Howard Green, E. Davie Fulton and Arthur Laing and has continually sparred with Ottawa over tax-sharing agreements.

Mr. Laing, former provincial Liberal leader now federal minister of northern affairs, once called Mr. Bennett a "demagogue, a dictator, a teller of falsehoods; a phoney, a fraud, a power - drunk and described his Social Credit party as a "nest of crackpots who believe in voodooism."

To all outward appearances, this sort of thing doesn't penetrate the premier's political armor, though at times he has made blanket indictments of his opponents.

"I am most critical of persons and publications who are willing, in my opinion, to sacrifice even the welfare of their own province to bring this government to heel behind the powerful interests they serve," he said.

DEBT IS ISSUE

As finance minister since 1954 he has been heaped with opposition abuse for his financial policies and his claims that the province is free of net debt. Critics have scorned his public bookkeeping methods by which the debts of such government entities as the Pacific Great Eastern Railway become "contingent liabilities," not direct provincial debt.

Two personality characteristics stamp the almost perpetually smiling premier, whose favorite phrase is "my friend."

Politically he is tenacious, flamboyant and given to histrionics—he has held two public bond - burning ceremonies to mark the end of provincial debt and the end of tolls on highways and bridges his government built.

Socially and at home the non-drinking, non-smoking, churchgoing premier is actually a shy, retiring man whose strongest word is "mariarkey."

His political tenacity showed in his dealings with Ottawa on the Columbia River treaty. He eventually won federal agreement to a policy of power export—although in 1956 he himself had declared that not one kilowatt of Columbia power would ever be sold to the United States.

That was before he began pushing a gigantic $800,000,000 power development on the Peace River in north-central B.C. The first Peace power, due in 1968, will be surplus to B.C.'s needs.

BORN IN N.B.

W. A. C. Bennett was born Sept. 6, 1900, in Albert County, N.B., of United Empire Loyalist stock and attended his first political meeting at 12. As a boy he marched in a torchlight procession to mark the defeat of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Today a bust to the Liberal statesman graces his legislative office in Victoria, along with one of Sir John A. Macdonald.

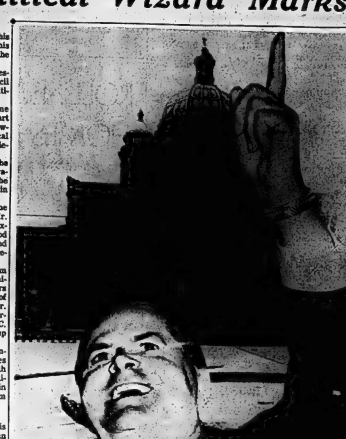
He moved to Edmonton as a young man and went into the hardware business. In 1927 he married May Richards, a B.C. native born in Kaslo. Two years later they settled in Kelowna, B.C.

Mr. Bennett built a chain of hardware stores along the Okanagan Valley and made a fortune, explaining later that he wanted to make money so that he could take up public life without being "anybody's yesman."

The business now is operated by the Bennetts' two married sons. There is also a married daughter, and the premier is a grandfather eight times over.

Mr. Bennett's first political success was in 1941 when he won the South Okanagan riding for the provincial Conservatives. He was re-elected as a Coalition government supporter in 1945. He made two unsuccessful tries at wresting the Conservative leadership from Herbert Anscomb.

DEFEATED IN 1948



In 1947 he made one of his rare political miscalculations, accepting the Conservative nomination for the old federal riding of Yale. He lost to a CCF candidate in the 1948 federal election. But a year later he was back in the legislature as the Coalition member for South Okanagan.

In March, 1951, he attacked the Coalition in a legislative speech and crossed the floor to sit as an independent. Before the year was out he had joined the fledgling B.C. Social Credit movement.

He took the party into the 1952 provincial election and scored a stunning upset, winning by a single seat over the CCF. His minority government was later defeated in the legislature but he scored a victory at the polls in 1953 and has dominated B.C. politics ever since.

"I always aim for the bull's-eye," he once said.

His followers proclaim—and his critics reluctantly admit—that he seems to have been hitting it pretty consistently.

SETS OFFICE RECORD — W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia has become the longest-reigning premier in the province's history. The 64-year-old former Conservative is a master showman and flamboyant opponent of what he says is Social Credit with a "businessman's touch." In this picture, the premier in typical platform pose is superimposed on the provincial legislature buildings. (CP Photo)

Organized Recreation Was Subject of Talk at Meet

PICTON (Staff) — Lloyd "Red" Doran and Don Maddocks both of Belleville last night attended a meeting of the recreation committee in Picton. The meeting chaired by Dr. Lloyd Dockrill discussed many points concerning the advantages of organized recreation in the area and possible need for a recreational director, who would be responsible for supervising a coordinated recreational program.

Presented to the meeting were the following thoughts presented in point form in hopes that it might inspire and stimulate thought and discussion.

(1) The World Health Organization has defined health not only as freedom from disease but rather as a state where a person can function maximally both spiritually and mentally. (2) Adequate recreation is necessary for a person to function properly both physically and mentally. (3) Good citizenship depends upon healthy responsible citizens in all age groups and all walks of life. (4) With advanced labor bargaining and automation, shorter and shorter working hours give us more time for leisure time. (5) If leisure time is used in an indolent manner poor physical condition and mental stagnation must result. (6) The Federal Government is sufficiently concerned to have established the National Physical Fitness Council also the Government of the Province on Ontario has taken steps to establish the Community Programs Branch as part of its Department of Education.

RIGHT OF ALL

(7) Taking part in some form of recreational activity is not only the right of every citizen but might even be considered a duty in the broad sense of the term. Leisure time belongs to the citizen and everyone has the right to employ his or her time as he sees fit. (8) Recreational activities will vary not only with the individual but from age group to age group. Recreation in its proper concept embodies both physical and intellectual outlets varying from hockey, baseball and track and field, sports through playground activities, square dancing and the recreational arts such as ceramics and weaving to the production of and appreciation of fine art, music, literature and the dramatic arts. (9) In the larger urban centres there are more arenas, playing fields, museums, playhouses, libraries, night school courses and privately-operated recreational outlets than in the small communities.

Yet it is in the large centres that we find the professional staffs organizing municipal recreation. In the small community such as ours there are many programs in operation under the auspices of volunteer groups but one finds the lack of coordination and in many cases conflict in timing and participation. Also much of the effort expended by volunteers involved could be put to more productive use in the community if they were employed in their own fields of endeavor. Recreation is becoming big business and requires professional management. Professional recreation directors are being trained and are available at reasonable salaries. The role of the recreation director is not one of interference with established programs.

ASSIST IN PLANNING

The director's job is to assist in planning and co-ordinating a well balanced community wide program. He is to the recreation committee what the town foreman is to the streets and proprietion committee has had the erty committee. (10) This recreation committee has had the service of very capable citizens over the past three years but it has not produced a co-ordinated community recreation program.

Members of the committee who attended the meeting included Mrs. George Elson, newly-elected member of Picton's town council, Herb. Collver, Jesse Mason, Jack Colden, Dave Lockwood and Dr. B. Earle Taylor.

New Grader At $19,215 Is Approved

PICTON (Staff) — Chairman (Reeve) John Fox presented county council with the monthly Road Committee report at their regular meeting this week.

The tender of Wilson Automotive for installation of a grease and oil system at the new county garage was accepted, subject to the approval of County Council at a price of $2,679.37 plus sales tax.

It estimates of No Bell Telephone Co. for moving poles on County Road No. 15, was adopted at a cost of $2,000.

It was recommended by county council that as the use of rust inhibitors has not proved 100 per cent effective, this county go on record as not being prepared to use same at this time and that the department be asked to investigate whether automobiles could be economically built to stand the ravages of salt—our annual winter complaint.

The tender of the L. W. Manufacturing Co. Ltd. for a model No. 666 grader was accepted, subject to the agreed price of $19,215.68 subject to the approval of county council and the Department of Highways.

Recommended raises for the county road foreman and all hourly rate employees of the county was passed. The county road foreman will receive an annual salary of $8,800 in 1965 and the hourly rate for employees will be 5 cents more per hour effective January 1, 1965.

The Road committee report and the Weeds' Study report were adopted as read.

In a report prepared for the county council by F. W. Jennings, County Assessment Commissioner, it was shown that the four assessors are working full time measuring buildings on all properties. This has become a necessity of the basic groundwork for accurate assessments.

The Department of Municipal Affairs is providing training courses in the use of the manual and all new assessors will be thoroughly schooled as soon as the course can accommodate them.

All assessments are to be based on market value, this being established by the media of sales over the past few years. This will make it necessary to list and examine all property sales made in the county over the last two or three years.

Mr. Jennings also advised that a representative of the department would be able to come to Picton to meet committees or council and answer any questions that may come up or that are now in need of further answers.

Records are being kept to date, property transfers are being completed, complete assessments on buildings that now have only partial assessments, assessments on new buildings, and completion of the population census for this year so that we can return the rolls on time and look after other details.

Boards Will Discuss New School

PICTON — (Staff) — Members of Prince Edward Collegiate Board and members of County Council will hold a meeting at the Collegiate, Friday, February 26.

Topic will be the type and location of additional secondary school facilities.

A delegation visited the Ontario Department of Education, in Toronto on a fact finding trip last week, and these facts will be presented to this meeting. It is expected the Department will be represented at the local meeting.

In considering most desirable action, chief factors are, which will provide the best educational facilities, a new school or an addition to the present collegiate, and the expenditure of the taxpayer's dollar. The matter of government grants available in both instances, is also an important factor.

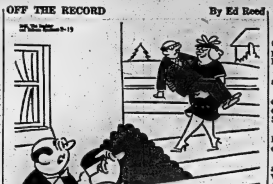
Will Honor Scout Week By Services and Events

PICTON (Staff) — For Canada's 275,000 Cubs, Scouts and Rovers, February 21 to 28 promises to be their busiest week of the year—it's Boy Scout Week. Under the direction of some 32,000 volunteer adults, members of the 12,000 packs, troops and crews will first honor Scouting's founder, at "Baden-Powell Sunday" church services on February 21.

Special events highlighting the rest of Scout Week will be hundreds and hundreds of father and son banquets and open house meetings, plus winter hikes and camps in keeping with this year's theme, "Fit for Adventure." Tuesday night in Picton some one hundred gathered at Picton's United Church to attend the first of a long series of Scouting events planned for Prince Edward County.

The banquet was well attended by parents and the fathers and sons were served a delicious turkey dinner by the Ladies Auxiliary. Ross Greenfield, chairman of 3rd Picton Group Committee, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening, and introduced Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, minister of Picton United Church. Mr. Zufelt welcomed the Scouters and their fathers and urged that the church now had a good Scout and Cub movement but urged the fathers to give greater support to their son's Cub activities. As the movement needs, he said, is personality for it to come alive. He welcomed volunteers to aid in Scout work, on committees and continue their interest in Scout work.

Mr. Zufelt said: "We in the United Church can be proud to be host to such an organization as this." Tribute was paid to Scouters, leaders and assistants. Cubmaster Doug Taylor and assistants Doug Platt, Floyd Fudge, Gordon Walmsley, Bruce Wallace and Gary VanWark. Scoutmaster Bill Woodley and Jerry Vetzfelt also were accorded thanks for their work in Scouting.



Guest speaker for the evening, Queen Scout Dennis Calnan was introduced by Mr. Zufelt. He provided an interesting talk illustrated with color slides of the American 50th Anniversary Jamboree at Colorado Springs. The Jamboree lasted two weeks and was attended by 350 Canadian Scouts.

Toast to the fathers was given by Stephen Walmsley and in reply Gary Harris proposed the toast to the sons.

Earlier this week the Prince Edward County Scouters Club held a meeting with 25 to 30 leading Scouters attending. Ann Campbell demonstrated pack ceremonies to the group and District Scoutmaster Ron Scott demostrated troop ceremonies.

District Commissioner Bill Gassira conducted an investiture of Hilda Sowers and Russell Foster to assistant Cubmasters to First Milford troop. The meeting closed with refreshments provided and served by 3rd Picton.

Double Shuffle In South Viet Nam

Military Halts Coup Attempt, Turns On Khanh

Votes No Confidence, Ouster Is Imminent

SAIGON (AP)—Loyalist military leaders in South Viet Nam today defeated an attempted coup against Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, then apparently decided to dispose of Khanh themselves.

Highly informed sources reported that 15 young generals met civilian Premier Phan Huy Quat this afternoon at Bien Hoa air base, 12 miles north of Saigon, and in effect, voted no confidence in Khanh. Khanh's ouster appeared imminent.

The coalition of generals was headed by Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, who now appears to be the most powerful man in South Viet Nam.

The air force commander, Brig. - Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, stood out in the emerging power structure as the second most powerful man.

Thi and Ky met reporters late today and Thi said: "Up to this moment, Khanh is still commander-in-chief. In the near future we will talk more about it."

FLYS TO MEETING

Thi flew from his headquarters in Hue early today to meet Ky at Bien Hoa. He brought with him several representatives of a student agitation group that played a large role in anti-Khanh demonstrations in the past.

Khanh had also flown to Bien Hoa early today and conferred with the loyalist generals. But it was not learned what happened or where he went from there. He was believed still in the country.

Asked about Khanh, Thi replied vaguely: "He is on an inspection tour in the 2nd Corps area."

While the political manoeuvres continued, a military spokesman said South Vietnamese forces may have made the biggest capture yet of weapons and ammunition destined for the Viet Cong in the war against that Communist guerrilla force.

Military authorities said the haul resulted from the sighting and sinking of a Communist gunboat in a cove 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

FIND ARMS CACHE

Ground forces fought their way into the area Friday and found a big ammunition dump and arms cache.

Unconfirmed reports said a Ranger company discovered a multiple ammunition dump that might run up to 30 ton. Hid-

Holiday Season In Stores

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirsty Quebecers, forced to scrimp, scrounge and bend the law to get a drink for the last 75 days, flocked in holiday season numbers Friday to the province's re-opened liquor stores.

Unable to buy a bottle legally since Quebec Liquor Board employees went on strike Dec. 5, provincial residents were quick and enthusiastic in their response to the strike's settlement.

There were lineups outside many QLB outlets awaiting their 30 a.m. EST opening and, once inside, parched customers went at their business with a happy vengeance.

Board employees said they were selling their wares "by the hogful," with some satisfied patrons heard leaving the stores with songs like Happy Days Are Here Again on their lips.

"It was as H New Year's Eve was just around the corner," said one busy store worker.

FOLLOWS SIGNING

All the happy hubbub followed formal signing early Friday morning of a new three-year contract between the QLB—a government agency which sets as Quebec's sole wholesale and retail liquor distributing agency —and its 3,200 employees.

The new agreement, approved overwhelmingly in votes held Thursday among the employees, provides for an $18-a-week pay increase over three years for QLB workers, who previously averaged $57 a week. The first $8 increase is retroactive to February, 1964.

For the government, it meant at least a chance to recoup some of the $10,000,000 lost while the strike carried through the busy Christmas and New Year's holiday.

For some Montreal hotels and restaurants, the resumption of bar service meant an end to lean days that had led to layoffs among waiters and barmen as well as a sharp dip in profits.

Nelson Vermette, manager of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel whose many bars had been reduced to swank beer taverns, said his hotel had put in an immediate order "in excess of $100,000."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some light snow is expected to spread into eastern and southern sections of Ontario today ahead of a storm. Accumulations are not expected to be large, in most places no more than one or two inches. Much colder weather will sweep southward through Ontario on Sunday behind the storm.

Labor Code Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the three major bills occupying this tag-end of the current parliamentary session — the national labor code—was brought to its final stage Friday, raising some hopes that the session may end in another two weeks.

But no one was making any bets. The two other major bills —the massive Canada Pension Plan legislation and the opting out formula—are almost certain to raise a strong Opposition storm.

The Conservatives have already given notice of plans to battle the pension plan with a series of amendments that, if adopted, would drastically alter the scheme. Since the plan was already negotiated with the provinces, the government is unlikely to accept major changes that would result in a new round of federal - provincial talks.

Both Prime Minister Pearson and Government House Leader George McIlraith have expressed hopes that the current session would end in three

Ranger VIII Crashes, Returns 7,000 Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — VII. Ranger VIII returned more than 7,000 close-ups of the moon today and scientists said they should be at least as good as the historic first batch of photos from its predecessor, Ranger VII.

The insect-shaped spacecraft crashed at 1:57 a.m.· PST (4:57 a.m. EST) into the Sea of Tranquillity, a dusty plain tabbed as a possible landing site for astronauts five years in the future.

A rousing cheer from a crowd of 300 at the Jet Propulsion laboratory, which made and guided the Ranger, went up at the moment of impact.

Later, at a press conference, the Ranger project director, Harris Schurmeier, said: "The video signals look excellent, and the pictures probably will be at least as good as those from Ranger VII."

Actually, laboratory experts expected them to be better, due to technical improvements and more favorable lighting of the lunar surface.

Scientists turned on Ranger VIII's six cameras 10 minutes earlier than originally planned and, as a result, expected to get nearly double the 4,316 shots obtained last July 31 from Ranger

The early turn-on, 23 minutes before impact, came after scientists determined that Ranger VIII would sweep across the moon at a slightly lower altitude than Ranger VII. Said Schurmeier: "The idea in both cases was to turn on the cameras as soon as we figured we could start getting pictures equal to those taken with earth-based telescopes."

Ranger pictures in the final seconds before impact are rated about 2,000 times better than photos through earth telescopes.

Impact occurred only 15 miles from the target point selected when the craft was launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Wednesday.

Location was given as 2.58 degrees north latitude and 24.77 degrees east longitude.

The lab's director, Dr. William H. Pickering, said signals indicated some "very rugged terrain" as Ranger VIII made its death dive. "We expect to be able, by calculating from the angle of the sun, to figure the heights of mountainous areas."

The finding was not, however, unexpected. The mountains are not in the area tabbed as a pos-

65 Jobs Affected In Talks

EDMONTON (CP)—The immediate issue before the Freedman royal commission on railway run-throughs directly affects 65 jobs, but both company and unions involved are considering the over-all implications of a CNR proposal to extend some train crew runs to almost double their current distance.

This may be one reason commissioner Mr. Justice Saffuel Freedman of the Manitoba Appeal Court expects he will need a longer period to report to the federal government than was at first hoped.

Originally, Prime Minister Pearson had hoped the commission could report within three months of its formation last November. Mr. Justice Freedman said this week he expects to hear evidence at least until mid-April and will take up to two months after that to prepare his recommendations.

The commission was established after CNR employees across the country "booked

113 Survivors Ferried Out Of Disaster Area

Hope Some of Missing Will Be Found Alive

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Survivors of a wilderness mining camp crushed by a snow slide prepared to return home today while an army of searchers attempted to locate 27 of their fellow workers.

The tons of snow that slid off a glacier and buried the Granduc mining camp 30 miles north of here early Thursday left three known dead and 17 injured.

Officials at the scene in northwestern British Columbia hoped some of the missing would be found alive despite the crushing weight of snow as deep as 18 feet.

Clarence Moore of Dawson, Man., a miner, was buried for 24 hours before rescuers dug him out. He said he slept off and on while waiting to be saved.

About 113 survivors were ferried by air and sea from the copper - mining operation 550 miles up the coast from Vancouver to the nearest hospital at Ketchikan, Alaska.

ARRIVES IN PORT

The Taku, an Alaska ferry leased by Governor William Egan and outfitted as a rescue and hospital ship, travelled some 500 miles in two days to pick up six survivors of the disaster. The six had been brought to Stewart by mission by aircraft, after being ordered aloft to Chickamin River, farther north.

The Taku arrived at Ketchikan early today after spending almost two days at sea to discover that almost all the survivors of the Granduc Camp had already been evacuated.

Aboard the Taku was Lt.-Col. W. H. V. Matthew of the Canadian Army's Western Command, co-ordinator of search operations, who was surprised to learn that American authorities had completed the evacuation almost without the aid of the Taku.

While the Taku did manage to pick up a few survivors by mistake, it carried almost a score of reporters who had hoped to interview an estimated 100 survivors who were to be picked up by the ship.

Before the Taku reached Ketchikan it was ordered at least four separate times to change direction and proceed elsewhere.

U.S. Coast Guard ships and helicopters, at first based in Ketchikan, handled almost the entire evacuation.

One survivor hacked his way clear of the slide with a meat cleaver. Another survived in an air pocket behind the door of a crushed building. Two brothers worked their way out of a buried mine tunnel and heard the muffled groans and pleas of men suffocating in the snow.

Negroes Issue Ultimatum

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Negroes have issued an ultimatum to Selma's public safety director, Wilson Baker, in their civil rights campaign here: "Meet four of our demands by Monday or we will return to the streets."

The ultimatum came Friday night after Baker, with the aid of a Negro clergyman, halted an attempted night march by an estimated 300 Negroes. Baker arrested one of the Negro leaders, Hosea Williams, but released him after the Negroes returned to the church from which the march began.

Meanwhile, in Marion, 30 miles to the west, Negroes also walked out of a church to demonstrate, but turned back when ordered to do so by the police chief. In a similar situation 24 hours earlier, violence erupted, leaving one Negro shot and eight persons, including three reporters, beaten.

The scheduled march at Selma Friday night was designed primarily as a protest against the Marion violence.

LISTS DEMANDS

The four demands issued to Baker were listed by Williams as:

1. State that he (Baker) would endeavor to hire Negroes as policemen.

2. Try to confer with the "power structure" (white leaders) of Selma to attempt to establish lines of communication between whites and Negroes.

3. Agree to help in working out something to expedite the registration of Negro voters.

4. Agree to help in a drive for better paved streets and other facilities in Negro neighborhoods.

Baker indicated to reporters that he could not answer the demands.

EXPECT ANSWER

Williams said Negroes are expecting an answer to their demands by Monday. If they receive no reply, street demonstrations will resume.

Baker, the highest - ranking city law enforcement officer, was flanked by white-helmeted policemen as he met the would-be demonstrators near the church steps. He told them their march was "potentially dangerous."

He said through a loudspeaker: "For your own safety, please return inside the church."

Williams refused to order the return and tension was heightened when he was arrested. But Rev. Lewis Anderson, using the loudspeaker, pleaded with Negroes to return to the church and they did. Williams then was released.

SAYS IT'S VICTORY

Williams, who hailed the confrontation with Baker as a "great victory," said no further demonstrations are planned during the weekend.

Dr. Martin Luther King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Nobel Peace Prize winner, will address a mass rally here Sunday night.

King has directed the civil rights campaign here. It is directed primarily at upgrading Negro voter registration. More than 3,000 Negroes have been arrested during the campaign, most of them Dallas County Sheriff James G. Clark.

Eerie Cries For Help Came From Miners Trapped In Snow

ABOARD TAKU — (CP)— Stories of desperate bare-handed struggles against suffocating, smothering snow were told Friday by survivors of the Granduc Camp mining disaster.

Some told of eerie cries for help from miners trapped beneath the snow and the frantic efforts of men with no tools to reach them.

Twenty-five were still missing at nightfall Friday in the wilderness copper mining camp in northwestern British Columbia. Three bodies had been found.

The glacial avalanche tumbled without warning as the morning coffee break neared for the estimated 140 miners at the camp.

"It was like soap," said one of the survivors picked up by this rescue vessel, leased by Governor William Egan of Alaska.

"You can forget about them," said another, speaking of 25 miners still missing. "Oh, yes, they're dead," added a third survivor.

But Col. W. H. V. Mathews, army co-ordinator of the Granduc rescue, refused to give up hope.

"It would be crazy to go in there with an attitude of no hope."

Among the six survivors aboard ship were two brothers from Quebec, who thought they were doomed when the slide struck.

"We are trapped . . . we may never get out of here alive," Jacques Ritchie, 21, of Ville Marie, recalled telling his brother Gus.

They had been working deep in a tunnel when tons of snow closed off the entrance.

But they were not trapped. They found a way out through a crack in the snow, emerged where the campsite had been.

It was gone, except for four buildings.

There was "twisted steel and wood scattered as far as the eye could see," said Jacques.

"Most of the buildings were levelled—just like a field," said Gus.

"We heard muffled voices shouting, 'Help, get me out of here.'

"We dug in the snow with our hands where the sounds seemed to come from, but then the voices came from somewhere else."

Another man, identified only as McLeod, "was badly injured with an arm and part of his face protruding from the mess of steel and snow," said Gus.

"The brothers eventually freed McLeod.

They said a dozen men who went into the coffee shop for the morning break never "came out alive."

Harry Hansson, 32, a Swiss immigrant, was just approaching the coffee shop when the snow came down.

He was pressed between two buildings, but he was left with a breathing space and managed to dig himself out, only to find two men trapped near him.

Carpenter Karl Kunz, 40, of Vancouver, was just thinking about his morning coffee when the slide struck, pinning him in the office where he was working.

The estimated 60 survivors aboard the Taku were to be taken to Ketchikan, Alaska. The 100 uninjured miners were to be flown to Vancouver today by a chartered Britannia turboprop which was expected to land at the RCAF field here between 1 and 3 p.m. PST.

61.25 Pc. City Assessment From Residential Properties

Belleville is a city of homes! At least the big share of assessment in the city is residential totalling 61.26 percent, as compared with 38.75 percent non-residential.

Total residential assessment in the city is $63,683,810, which with non-residential assessment of $40,398,630, adds up to an over-all taxable assessment figure of $103,971,240.

The city assessment commissioner's report shows that the percentage of residential assessment in Belleville is gradually growing and is now at its highest. Back in 1954 the residential assessment in the city was 55.52 per cent. In 1957 it dropped to 53.98 of the total and last year at 61.26 was the highest in the city's history.

Back in 1943 when the city's population was 13,943 Belleville's assessment was $11,949,416. The per capita assessment was $706.39 and the tax rate was 37 mills.

By 1956 the city's population had risen to 31,594 and the assessment had climbed to $31,039,665.

Then in 1959 with annexation the population jumped to 39,052, and the assessment climbed to $36,343,496.

PROPERTIES REASSESSED

Following annexation a process of re-assessment of all properties was undertaken and the re-assessment figures went into effect for 1964 taxation. Under re-assessment the assessment figure was: 1962 from $31,961,865 in 1963 to $60,948,450 in 1964 and the assessment per capita increased to $3,127.

This year the assessment figure for 1965 taxation is up to $103,971,240.

A recapitulation of property types shows there are 6,136 one family dwellings in the city, 617 two-family dwellings, and 181 three-family dwellings. There are 144 apartment buildings and 1,364 apartment units in the city, including 398 apartments over stores.

There are 608 commercial buildings, 48 industrial buildings and 833 businesses.

There are 41 churches, 14 public schools, three secondary schools, four separate schools, including Nicholson and three other schools and colleges.

CITY IN 1878

Old records show Belleville was incorporated as a village back in 1836 when it was comprised of but 613 acres.

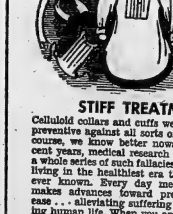
It was incorporated as a town in 1850; became a separated town ten years later and in 1878 became a city.

The city now takes in 5,937 land acres and 1,718 acres of water for a total of 7,655 acres.

The first white residents in what is now Belleville were two monks back in 1665; the United Empire Loyalists arrived in 1784 and the first store was opened by a William Bell in 1787. The first industry was a sawmill and lumber mill in 1790 and the first bridge across the Moira (lower bridge) was built in 1804.

The first train passed through Belleville in 1856 and the first ferry to Prince Edward County ran in 1858. The first municipal building (city hall) was built in 1873.

Police Chief's Action Is Confirmed



KINGSTON (CP)—The Kingston police commission decided Friday that a statement unforgivably prevented a newspaper photographer from taking a picture of police investigating an alleyway scuffle will forfeit three days of his annual leave.

The commission upheld disciplinary action taken Monday by Detective Vincent McQuaide by Chief Robert Nesbitt after the detective pleaded guilty to violation of the Ontario Police Act.

Robert Owen, executive director of the Kingston Whig-Standard, asked the commission to take action after photographer Frank Pisech was prevented from taking the picture.

Temple Speaks On Hours Bill And Railroads

In the House of Commons on Tuesday, Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South, spoke on a bill respecting hours of work and railroads, which includes clause 5 of which provides for an 8-hour day and 40-hour week maximum for persons covered by the bill.

"Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Temple, "I wish to direct my remarks to subclause 1 of clause 5 of the bill in so far as this part affects railroaders, and when I refer to railroaders I have particularly in mind the running trades including engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors.

"The men in these trades are paid on a mileage basis rather than by the hour. There is a good reason for this arrangement. It is very difficult to estimate how long it will take a train to run from a certain point to another point, because this depends on whether it is a passenger, an express or a manifest train. All of these factors might affect the time element and because of better lighting and the speed at the time they were taken.

Today's shots were snapped near the famous shadow and thus were expected to have more contrast and better definition of detail because of long shadows cast by mountains, rocks and other features. The shadows covered several square miles of surface or too small for Ranger VIII to detect."

CRASHED IN MARE NUBIUM

Ranger VII crashed in the Mare Nubium, the "sea of cloud," which later was renamed Mare Cognitum (Sea that has Become Known). It is about 1,200 miles west of the Sea of Tranquillity.

Tranquillity is lighter than Cognitum. Scientists believe this may mean its surface is smoother and thus more favorable for man's landings, planned later in this decade. Findings of the Ranger probes, in which another shot is slated for next month, are expected to help in design of moon-landing equipment and selection of the unmanned landing probe.

Field of vision for Ranger VIII's cameras ranged from an area of 300 by 900 miles at camera turn-on, down to an area the size of a city lot in the final seconds.

27 Said Dead From Food Poisoning

LISBON (AP)—Twenty-seven children, Europeans and African, died Friday after eating food poisoning after taking supper in the Lar das Crianças Orphanage in Lourenço, Angola, the Portuguese ANI news agency reported today.

The agency reported many others are on the danger list.

The orphanage is run by a Roman Catholic Sister of Mercy in the Sao Paulo district of the Angolan capital.

An inquiry has been opened to determine the cause of the poisoning, but the agency said it is believed to have been caused by beans that may have been treated by mistake with insecticide.

shin location for a manned landing.

The first six shots in the Ranger moon-probe series failed to achieve their missions.

Ranger VIII's cameras were turned on when the craft was 1,350 miles above the lunar surface streaking in at about 4,400 miles per hour.

Ranger VIII's 224,000 - mile voyage took 66 hours and, except for a late-hour decision to run its cameras 10 minutes longer than originally planned, was virtually a duplicate of Ranger VII's flight.

Running the cameras longer enabled Ranger VIII, sweeping from left to right across the face of the moon, to take pictures of huge craters and a mountainous area west of the broad plain around the target point.

A team of five scientists was expected to disclose late today just how many pictures Ranger VIII obtained and give some idea of what they show about the lunar surface.

Scientists expected Ranger VIII's pictures to be superior to those of Ranger VII because of slight technical improvements in some of the cameras and because of better lighting sick" to protest the railway's run-thoroughs, scheduled to take effect Oct. 25. Train service was disrupted, but the men returned to work. The railways agreed to postpone its action when a commission was appointed to investigate the problem.

65 Jobs

The railway wanted to run four freight trains, crews of 206 miles from Edmonton to Biggar, Sask., and eliminate Wainwright, about mid-way between, as a crew turnaround point.

It wanted to do the same with two passenger and one freight train crew for the 244 miles between Hornepayne and Armstrong in Ontario. This would send Nakina, Ont., as a turn-around and terminal point.

The CNR said implementation of the plan would mean 13 jobs would be abolished at Biggar, 50 at Nakina, and none at Wainwright.

Mr. Justice Freedman has said he will hear evidence not only on the run - through facts, but also on their justification and their implications for railway workers, their families and the communities involved.

The CPR attitude is not involved in the dispute and should not be called on to give evidence. But the commission has said any recommendation from him could be a precedent for the entire railway industry.

The CNR says run-throughs among other technological changes, are a must if the railway is to increase its efficiency and compete effectively with other forms of transportation—chiefly trucks.

Railway workers view the run-throughs as a thin edge of the wedge. They fear they will eventually will be a wholesale reduction in rail service. They point to Toronto, where commuter figures showing a drop in railway employment in Canada to about 100,000 by the end of 1957.

For many, as one sociologist pointed out to the commission, long runs mean the end of the line. They know they'll find it hard to adjust and they fear serious effects on their family life.

Towns like Nakina, Biggar, Melville, Sask., and Smithers, B.C., which consider themselves primarily railway towns, fear drastic effects if the railway curtails employment. Most see no alternative industry or employment. Some have told the commission they think the railway should take some responsibility for seeing that the towns' prosperity continues if rail employees have to move.

Still now, briefs from boards and chambers of commerce have been based on future effects of run-throughs.

Labor and management are expected to consider in detail the key issue — working rules, safety conditions, and the effects on the railroad and on the small - town economy — when the commission moves back to Winnipeg March 9.

113 Survivors

"We crawled up over the snow," said Gus and Jacques Ritchie of Ville Emard, Que., "and were amazed by what we saw.

"No more mechanic shop, no more garage, no more coffee shop. Everything was just chunks of wood, steel and tin.

"Then we heard the moans. We started to dig in the area where the sound was coming from and we heard another 12 moan.

". . .No sooner had we got there when we heard more groans from where we just came. We were all confused and realized there were people buried all over the place."

A snowfall of more than 16 feet preceded the slide, the third slide disaster in British Columbia this winter.

The ramp was part of a $65,000,000 project to haul ore from the mine to Canada's mill site. The line eclipsed out almost every building and piece of the equipment, including at least one locomotive.

The 17 injured men—five in serious condition — were being treated in hospital at Kitimat.

Canadian Army troops, veteran mountaineers and hardrock miners formed the backbone of the search corps that was using long, thin probes in an effort to discover buried men.

The disaster was complicated by continuous storms of mixed rain and snow that made flying — the only practical means of moving in and out of the remote site—extremely dangerous.

John Dryborough of Winnipeg, president of Granduc Mines Limited, was assisting in rescue operations.

The uninjured and walking injured at Ketchikan were to be flown to Vancouver, and their homes, today in several planes chartered by Granduc.

Meanwhile, Al King, vice-president of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union (Ind.), said the union would not permit its men to return to Granduc until all danger is past.

U. S. Officials Relax After Revolt Collapse

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington officials breathed easier today with word from Saigon of the collapse of the one-day military revolt in South Viet Nam.

At one stage in the confused proceedings Friday, some feared the coup attempt by a small group of dissident officers might flare into a shooting conflict.

The outbreak of any serious fighting between the feuding military leaders could have undermined speedily the U.S.-backed campaign against the Communist guerrillas and paralyzed the U.S. position in South Viet Nam.

Administration spokesmen were withholding comment for the time being and watching for what political settlement might ensue in the aftermath of the collapse of the brief insurgency.

Regardless of the immediate outcome, the affair underlined again the instability in South Vietnamese leadership, which has plagued the effort to stamp out the Red Viet Cong.

MAY STIR DEBATE

There was also a prospect that the incident would add fuel to the debate over U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

President Johnson is committed to continue U.S. aid to South Viet Nam in the face of what the U.S. government describes as aggression from the Communist North.

Some critics say the United States should negotiate a settlement with the Communists and pull out of South Viet Nam.

Commission Will Be Asked For Decision

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said in the legislative assembly he will ask the Quebec civil service commission to decide whether an executive assistant violated the law in a statement Wednesday about the case of Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio.

He made the statement Thursday after Revenue Minister Kierans had disclosed in the assembly that his executive assistant, Charles Denis, was the source of a published report about possible income tax repercussions in the Dupuis case.

Mr. Kierans said Mr. Denis had been misquoted. Mr. Denis had said that the department had sufficient information to warrant assessing Mr. Dupuis on $10,000 of income presumably unreported to the provincial revenue department.

Mr. Kierans said Mr. Denis had simply said that there was sufficient information to warrant examining the possibility of assessing Mr. Dupuis on the unreported income.

The statements of Mr. Lesage and Mr. Kierans were made after Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson sought adjournment of the house to discuss a possible censure motion against the revenue minister. Mr. Johnson said that if matters of personal income were allowed to be made public without censure a disastrous precedent could be set.

Mr. Lesage said he would submit Mr. Dupuis' case to the civil service commission for a ruling on whether there had been a breach of the law.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

FRIDAY, FEB. 19, 1965

The Commons gave approval in principle to the labor standards bill covering pay and work hours for some 500,000 Canadians.

Proposals for three major changes in the bill were voted down.

A motion by Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood- to limit employees to any possible increase allowed the telephone monopoly.

This was among future business on tap for the Ontario association, explained to elected heads of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties' municipalities at a regional meeting in the Hotel Quinte last night.

Host Mayor Jack Ellis—an association executive officer — said later Bell already had made representations to the federal government seeking a seven per cent increase in earnings and boosting its profit structure from $38-millions to $117 millions.

"This would mean an increase in rates. We are going to object very strongly," said Mayor Ellis.

Belleville city council Monday voted to contribute toward cost of the brief.

16 TOWNSHIPS REPRESENTED

Represented at last night's meeting were the seven Prince Edward County townships and the nine southern townships of Hastings County.

The session was one of a series of similar meetings across the province in which the association executive discuss the organization with elected local heads.

It counts every city but one in the province and a vast network of towns, villages and townships.

Its membership represents five of Ontario's six million people and as such is a powerful influence on senior government, Trenton Mayor James MacDonald told the meeting.

Discussion at the meeting ranged through a wide choice of contemporary municipal problems not the least of them education issues.

WANT MORE AID

"It's one of our strongest aims to get 90 per cent assistance in education," Mayor Ellis said. "We feel the province should be sharing in the cost of education to a greater degree."

Former Long Branch reeve Marie Curtis, association secretary-treasurer also stressed benefits to be gained by smaller municipalities through membership in the organization.

A recent example of this, the meeting was told, was the acquirement of provincial assistan.- for small townships' snow clearance programs.

Inspired by the problems of one township, the association drew up a brief and successfully presented it to the Ontario cabinet.

Rivard Makes New Bid to Gain Freedom

MONTREAL (CP) — A new habeas corpus bid for freedom by Montrealer Lucien Rivard was taken under advisement Friday.

Rivard is seeking to avoid extradition to the U.S. on charges of conspiracy in the smuggling of narcotics.

Mr. Justice Pierre Badeaux of the Quebec Court of Appeal gave no indication when he will bring down a decision in the new habeas corpus proceedings.

Rivard is a central figure in the Dorion inquiry into accusations that a ministerial aide offered a bribe in an attempt to have Rivard freed on bail.

Rivard's original habeas corpus bid was rejected Jan. 29 when Judge Francois Caron said that in view of evidence presented he saw no reason to reverse previous decisions favoring extradition.

Twenty Said Missing in Landslide

SANTIAGO (AP) — Twenty persons are believed missing as a result of a landslide that hit a mining village near Puerto Montt 600 miles south of Chile's capital, Friday.

Ricardo Concha of the Chilean Air Force said he flew over the area and saw several houses washed by a mass of earth, rock and snow that tumbled down a mountainside into Lake Cabrito. The houses were covered by water that had risen from the lake.

Police said it will take some time before rescue parties reach the area.

The newspaper El Mercurio says earlier reports that an earthquake or a volcanic eruption caused the slide were not correct. Heavy rain was the cause.

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has been advised that it is the winner of the 1964 Lowest Accident Frequency Award, for utilities with 60,000 employee man hours, or under in Ontario. The award is given annually by the Electric Utilities Safety Associa.. of Ontario.

Trenton's utility manager, James Page will accept the award at a Toronto electrical convention on March 3.

At a commission meeting in Trenton on Thursday, the members voted to sign a petition for sewers in the McNichol Street area. Nineteen of the 27 area owners had signed. The PUC owns two lots on McNichol Street.

The commission also voted to pay a progress payment of $12,741.88 to H. Carr-Braint and Sons, for work on the equipment garage near the Victoria Street pumping station. Work is almost completed, with outside painting to be postponed until spring.

The commission was advised that sub-payments would move into the Murray Township area where a water storage pond is to be built to determine the quality of the soil, where the commission proposes to build a retaining dam for the pond. Cost of the tests will be $2,200., if they should be completed within two weeks.

Present at Thursday's meeting were commission chairman, C. A. Baker, Commissioner Charles Hilton, Mayor James MacDonald and Mr. Page.

Saskatchewan Presents Record Spending Budget

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Saskatchewan government Friday presented a record spending budget to its legislature—the third record-size budget to be handed down in provincial legislatures across Canada this year.

Premier Ross Thatcher told the Saskatchewan House spending in the fiscal year starting April 1 would reach $220,700,000 but higher revenues would provide for a small surplus. At the same time he announced a $14,300,000 cut in provincial taxes.

Earlier, British Columbia and Ontario announced record budgets, but neither government made significant tax changes.

Main Saskatchewan tax cut was a reduction in the sales tax to four from five per cent. Tobacco taxes, however, were increased.

LAYOFFS IN ARGENTIA

All provincial legislatures except Manitoba and Prince Edward Island were in session Friday. Other highlights:

Newfoundland — Premier Joseph Smallwood told the legislature drastic reductions in operations at the United States naval base at Argentia, Nfld., are expected to affect about two per cent of Canadian civilian employees there.

Nova Scotia—Finance Minister G. I. Smith tabled public accounts for the year ended March 31, 1964. The province ended the year with a balanced budget but made up a $1,000,000 surplus and transferred $1,673,000 from its hospital reserve fund to pay sinking fund instalments and tax-sharing adjustments for the previous overpayment by the federal government.

New Brunswick — Daniel A. Riley of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission denied reports that the 1963 information was being withheld about the Mactaquac hydro-electric project on the St. John River.

Quebec—The case of Yvon Dupuis, who resigned as federal minister without portfolio in connection with allegations that he accepted a $25,000 gift in 1963 to help promoters obtain a Quebec race track franchise, flared into a bi-political issue.

Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson claimed Premier Jean Lesage had called Mr. Dupuis in connection with the case. He asked Rosaire Beaudoin Liberal Pinard to explain his role in the case. Mr. Lesage denied making the call.

Ontario—Robert Nixon, Liberal education critic, said the future of proposed junior colleges is Ontario appears in doubt because of a feud between the government and the heads of existing universities over whether the college course should be "terminal" or provide entrances to advanced ye at regular universities.

Alberta — A government was introduced in end the quirement that a patient obt a certificate of oral health fr a doctor or dentist before a d tal mechanic can fit him false teeth. Dental mechan say the section has been u against them by dentists.

British Columbia — Indus Minister Ralph Loffmark a a comprehensive governm medical care plan would "the a wet blanket over the econo of the province" and bring o nomic growth to a standst He suggested B.C. follow Alberta government plan of s sidizing private medical ins ance plans.

Battle of the Banks

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia is determined to have the province invest in a bank. The Liberal Government at Ottawa is just as determined to prevent him from doing any such thing.

Premier Bennett first proposed that his government invest in 25 per cent of the stock of a new Bank of British Columbia. Later he said the government might buy into an existing chartered bank.

Hon. Walter Gordon, Federal Minister of Finance, blocked that move by announcing that the Bank Act, up for its decennial revision, would provide that no individual or corporation could own 10 per cent or more of a bank's outstanding shares. Just to make the point plainer, he added that no government or government agent will be allowed to own any shares at all in a chartered or savings bank, and that, while any individual or corporation now owning more than 10 per cent of a bank will be exempt from the new legislation, if any government buys shares in a bank before the new limitations the shares will be declared non-voting stock.

It is easy to understand why the Federal Government does not want a provincial government putting a bank in its sock when it takes a swing at federal efforts to control and regulate the national economy. Still, one cannot help wondering whether the reaction would have been so prompt if it had been Quebec, rather than British Columbia, which had ambitions in this direction. (Quebec seems to be the only other province, outside possibly of Alberta, which might embrace such a policy.)

The difference between British Columbia and Quebec, it may be argued, is that the former has a Social Credit government, and only the seventh son of a prophet could guess what a Social Credit government might decide to do with a bank in its hip pocket. The rule, though, should apply to all, and will apply to all. The rule may have done the Liberals a good turn by forcing their hand before the authors of the "quiet revolution" in Quebec could voice a like demand.

A Timely Move

Prime Minister Lester Pearson's decision to drop the pension age from 70 to 65 is a timely and logical answer to those critics of the Canada Pension Plan who have protested that it will do nothing for those now in the older age group.

Properly understood, the Pension Plan was never designed to have this effect. It is a compulsory savings plan for the employed, with payments related to contributions. That it has some social value no reasonable person will deny; that it is a cure-all for the problem of maintenance in old age no sensible person will suggest.

It will, however, eventually come reasonably close to providing an adequate security for the great majority, if it is tied to Canada's universal old age security pensions. The government has had the good sense to do exactly this and some time ago announced that the $75 universal pension, due to start at 70, could be drawn at 65 if the recipient agreed to accept a reduced amount to compensate for the increased number of years the pension was paid. The Government has now had the additional good sense to realize that, by requiring the amount of pension to be reduced for earlier payment, it could inflict a heavy penalty on those most in need of help, for whom the old age security pension would form the largest portion of their total income.

The logical move might appear to be to make the individual old age security pension payable in full at 65 at once, but the Government face opposition to the whole Canada Pension Plan on the basis that the economy cannot stand the strain. It is natural that it should seek to avoid building up the initial cost, and so the decision to lower the age limit for the $75 pension a year at a time is a reasonable compromise which ought to be generally acceptable.

In Ottawa 'House-work' Takes Preference Over 'Home-work'

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With but one thing uppermost in their minds domestically, Honorable Members now have been occupied four days with their "House-work" here on The Hill as distinguished from their "Home-work" back in the constituencies.

And apart from wondering about the explosive situation ahead, what seems to be filling their thoughts and dominating their over-the-coffee-cups chatter is the question of an election.

You can almost hear the cerebral cogs and wheels clicking as they calculate the odds.

There is a most direct relation between their "Home-work" and their "House-work."

And it could be just this — what they heard in their six weeks around their ridings about this particular Parliament — that has heightened the concern of their speculation as to who among them might be likely to survive the election so many seem to expect.

The "heart" of this survival becomes a critical question, and so they have been examining the differing opinions of two political pros, Trade Minister Sharp and National Liberal Organizer Keith Davey as to how best turn this most important MP trick of winning re-election.

HORSE AND BUGGY

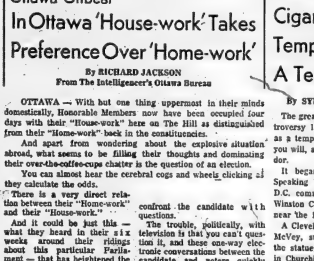
Strategist Davey, who does much of the Liberal campaign planning, has contended that, in this electronic age, public meetings and platform speeches are poor box-office politically, packing low ballot-voltage.

Holding an election rally in a big school auditorium, says Davey, is like driving a horse and buggy.

The way he sees it, many, if not most voters, would rather watch the prime minister or any other of the National leaders on television than troops through the snow of winter, the rain or heat of summer to a rally in their riding where the constituency candidate or some lesser political light is trying to shine.

If meetings there must be, counsels the Liberal National Organizer, let them be small, cozy, intimate gatherings on a we're - all - friends - together neighborhood scale, tea or coffee parties, fashion shows or some other social event into which politics are insinuated very, very casually.

In rebuttal, strategist Sharp, who actually fights the campaigns, contends that the public political maw is more sensorial than ever, even indispensable in this impersonal electronic age.



While voters do not exactly trample each other to death in stampeding to public rallies, the meeting does get them selectively vital - to - success home - city newspaper coverage and is read by thousands who perhaps have not bothered to flick on the TV or, if they have, others were watching The Hillbillies or Hazel.

Let's face it, suggests Mr. Sharp, who on the political stage can compete with The Beatles or Jerry?

TOO IMPERSONAL

No candidate can convey what Mitchell Sharp calls the favorably correct personal impression unless he presents himself, in person.

Even if the voter does not always turn out for election meetings, he likes to know that he could, if he wished, and there confront the candidate with questions.

The trouble, politically, with television is that you can't question it, and these one-way electronic conversations between the candidate and voters quickly breed boredom.

Well, are the worried and wondering Parliamentarians going to be trying out these theories this spring?

Prime Minister Pearson thinks not — if it can be avoided — but can't be sure.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker firmly believes that it will come in the next few months, as unavoidable as spring, or, at the latest, summer.

New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas, prepared for, and personally positive of politically profiting by it, calls the campaign for May and June.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, instinctively knowing that the two splintered splitter groups may be liquidated, hopes that everything will hold still, and will be doing his best to provide what glue he can for this unstable Parliament.

And Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, smarting, says confidently that it can't come too soon for him.

Cigar Fad Tempest in A Teapot

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The great Churchill Cigar Controversy last month struck me as a tempest in a teapot; or, if you will, a hurricane in a humidor.

It began when the English Speaking Union in Washington, D.C. commissioned a statue of Winston Churchill, to be placed near the British Embassy.

A Cleveland sculptor, William McVey, submitted a model of the statue, with a plump cigar in Churchill's hand. The Washington chapter of the ESU was horrified at this "esthetic lapse" and ordered the cigar removed. At this swirling, members of the ESU around the country are being polled on their preference.

If Churchill himself had been polled, I suspect he would have booted down the whole idea of a statue in his memory. The ancient Romans were a marmoset people; the modern Americans are not. Statues in public places are, quite literally, for the birds.

The park near which I live has a number of traditional statues, of Shakespeare, Mozart, and such immortals. No one pays the slightest attention to them, except children who use them for games and amiable defacement. Not one passerby in a thousand knows or cares who the statues represent.

The best memorials, as I have said before, are those which add to the pleasure of the living, not those which commemorate the dead. A school, a library, a park pavillion, a hospital wing — these project the memory of great men into the future, rather than transfixing them in the past.

In Connecticut some years ago, I was delighted to visit an "endowed" skating pond, which the family of some local citizen had built for the town. In New York's Central Park, another such project consists of a cheese-and-chicken shelter, usable all year round by the elderly retired men who meet in the park daily.

A statue should be a work of art in its own right, not a representation of a paunchy gentleman, with or without a cigar in his hand. What Churchill represented to the British people, and to the world, cannot be reduced, not augmented, by a stone figure. The body was absurd; his spirit noble.

As a young man, Churchill possessed a dreadful stammer, which it took him years to overcome. How much more fitting for the ESU and other groups who would memorialise him to donate an annual sum for research and treatment in speech defects of children, where such funds are so badly needed. The pigeons already have enough clinics of their own.

Continuous Diarrhea, Amoeba Likely Suspect

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Suddenly I found myself with diarrhea. My doctor said there were amoeba. I followed through on a 21-day course of medicine, expecting that that would be all there was to it, but I have had two added courses since.

Will you tell me something about this parasite, or amoeba, and can it be controlled? — G. A. S.

The amoeba is a parasite that is too small to be seen with the naked eye but can be readily seen through a microscope.

A good deal of diarrhea is taken for granted, and attributed to "something I ate," or "intestinal flu." In both such instances, it is a fairly brief episode. (Allergy to certain foods is possible, too.)

But when diarrhea continues, it is time to look for some other cause, and amoebiasis (a-me-bay-a-sis) is a likely suspect. This is common in the tropics and can break out in epidemics in non-tropical areas if food or water becomes contaminated with the parasite.

The amoeba can take from three weeks to three months after exposure before it has multiplied in the intestinal tract. Then comes dysentery or diarrhea not necessarily any fever, but abdominal cramps and sometimes blood in the stool.

The amoeba can migrate to the liver and cause cysts.

Some people harbor the parasite without themselves being "carriers". In some southern areas as many as 10 to 20 per cent of the people have been found harboring the amoeba. They can contaminate water supplies, food, through handling fruit and vegetables which in turn are eaten without being cooked. Cooking destroys the amoeba; if a water supply is of doubtful safety, boiling before drinking will protect one from amoebiasis.

Treatment (courses of medications which drive off the parasites) is effective, but more than one course of medications may be required.

Diarrhea is one of the problems which threatens travellers. Typhoid-paratyphoid vaccination will protect against diarrhea from the paratyphoid germ but there is no vaccination or other preventive for amoebiasis other than avoiding the amoeba.

So, particularly, in tropical areas, the wise traveller uses boiled or bottled water, and eats cooked rather than fresh fruits or vegetables in areas where the amoeba is common.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could the following be hernia or what? Man of 65 notes right testicle seems to be slightly enlarged or thickened for some months. There is a lump right behind the testicle. No soreness, just an enlarged feeling. — M. W.

It could be a hydrocele (collection of fluid in the sac) which is common and not too difficult to correct. It could be a tumor. Or it could be a normal variation which you didn't happen to notice before. I rather doubt if it is a hernia, but it should be examined rather than trying to guess from your description. A good as it is. Consult your doctor.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

Feb. 20th, 1940

Canada has been going through something akin to an industrial revolution as our scientists and engineers have won high marks in highly competitive international research. It has cost money, five times as much annually as was spent in 1926. And it was because the money was made available for the scientists that much of our progress has been possible.

During the years in which we were niggardly with money for science, there was nothing to keep men of research ability in the country. Because we were niggardly, the National Research Council declares in its annual report that we have had a migration "which has robbed Canada of some of its most brilliant scientists."

The Council report contains an impressive review of discoveries which have been made in the Dominion in recent years, of development and improvements in older discoveries and current research which will be of great importance to man when completed.

Mr. Charles E. Hanne, M.P. for West Hastings, was honored at a banquet tendered to him by friends at Hotel Quinte. Mr. A. Bernard Collins acted as chairman. Two ministers of the Dominion cabinet were present, the Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Justice and the Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor.

Money Talks, But!

Money still talks, but in these days of inflation it takes a sizeable wad of it to say something important.

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

You're growing old when you can remember that "going like 60" was another way of expressing excessive speed.

Your Car

More Than Speed Limit Involved

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Sensible, safe driving involves much more than obeying speed limits. Allowance for road and compliance with all signs and signals, constant alertness, sound judgment and a safe car are more important than your m.p.h. rate.

The smart driver, for example, really knows how to cope with old man winter's threats. On slippery roads, he accelerates gently, gradually and takes all curves and turns slowly. He maintains a steady, safe speed . . . a pace which assures minimum traffic signal stops and starts on a slick passing on slippery highways, he accelerates gradually before moving into the passing lane — rather than risk skids, swerving or traction loss by a sudden burst of speed while abreast of the other car. And, when badly-iced roads exist, he displays a true wisdom . . . he leaves his car in the garage.

L. A. asks: "When the engine cannot be started, could this possibly be caused by some automatic transmission malfunction?"

Only when the neutral safety switch operation is defective.

From C. M.: "No matter how far nor for how long my car is driven, a high charge rate is always shown on the ammeter. So far, I've had regulator replaced and just three days ago, a new battery."

You've just about narrowed down the possibilities to a ground in the generator or wiring.

H. B. writes: "At high speeds, my '58 sedan burns off oil very fast — but at medium and low speeds, oil consumption isn't half as bad."

Worn piston rings may be at fault. They allow combustion gases to blow into the crankcase and increase oil pressure. At high speeds, pressure build up can force oil vents, filler pipe, dipstick opening, bearings, etc.

H.P. asks: "If a very rich carburetor mixture causes engine miss at city and idle speeds, is it logical to assume that a lean mixture will cause missing at high speeds?"

Actually, either extreme can cause missing at all speeds.

U. S. Deeply Involved In Fighting in Laos

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—The United States is more deeply involved in fighting in Laos than many official reports indicate.

U.S. jet-fighter bombers regularly hammer military installations, bridges and other targets in Laos. The raids often involve up to a dozen or more jet aircraft. Some pilots have flown more than 30 combat missions to Laos in two months.

The targets usually are connected with infiltration along the Ho Chi Minh trail, winding from North Viet Nam through Laos to South Viet Nam.

However, it is believed many of the strikes also are against the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces trying to crush the Laos government with major help, including ground troops, from Communist North Viet Nam.

On the ground, handpicked members of U.S. special forces are carrying out long-range target spotting patrols in Laos in an attempt to ferret out key links in the Ho Chi Minh trail for aerial bombardment. Much of the trail is invisible from the air, lost amid jungle trees.

Results from the patrols are reported good. No Americans are believed to have been captured or killed.

Under the 1962 Geneva accords, the United States is supposed to maintain a hands-off policy in Laos. Washington has increasingly ignored the accords in face of what it considers violations by North Viet Nam, supposedly providing arms and troops to the Pathet Lao.

The United States, working through South Viet Nam, is helping support at least one government force in Laos.

The 33rd Royal Lao Battalion operating on the border near the Communist supply centre of Tchepone receives supplies through The Sahn, a U.S. camp near the frontier. Supplies are flown from government bases in southern Laos to The Sahn airstrip, then sent overland across the border into Laos.

Some U.S. military sources question the worth of risking c major incident because of support for Laotian government troops. But this force has destroyed a number of bridges used by North Vietnamese in their trek south.

Treasurers, comptrollers, individuals:

Guaranty Trust will pay 4½% interest, calculated daily, on your idle funds — and they remain available on demand.

We have discovered that many idle or surplus funds of companies and individuals earn little or no interest!

Now you can put such funds to work at a high rate of interest in a Guaranty Trust Savings Deposit-Receipt Account.

Here's how this new type of account works:

Minimum deposit: $5,000. Maximum deposit: $150,000.

Funds may be withdrawn at any time on demand. Interest at 4½% is calculated on the minimum daily balance existing from day of deposit. However, funds must remain with us for 30 days to earn this interest.

EXAMPLE: If you deposited $10,000 on October 1st, it would have earned $35.03 interest by November 1st. That is 31/365th's of $412.50 (4½% annual interest on $10,000).

Deposits are recorded in a special pass book. Withdrawals are by a Guaranty Trust official cheque (your pass book must be presented).

The Savings Deposit Receipt Account is a unique concept of Guaranty Trust. It gives you, or your company, the opportunity to earn 4½% interest on idle or surplus funds—while letting them remain available on demand.

A SUMMER IN SPA

"And may the Lord hold you in the hollow of His hand." — from an old Gaelic blessing.

• • •

"One summer, my husband took the chaplaincy of 'the oldest Anglican church in Europe' in Spa, Belgium, for a term of six months," recalls Mrs. George Beamish, 208 John Street, of the quarter century before World War II, when she and her husband, the Archdeacon, former Rector of St. Thomas' Church, lived abroad.

"In a letter dated May 2, 1928, at Spa, to my family in Belleville, my husband writes, in part:

"The church was built in 1876 and is something of the style and size of Christ Church in Belleville, but about three-quarters as large. It will seat about 400 and is beautifully furnished with marble and mosaic fittings a lovely pulpit, chancel and altar. Also brass candles (two) and vases. Everything is good. There is a nice little pipe organ too.

"The Kaiser worshipped in it every Sunday at 10 A.M. when his headquarters were at Spa. (His lived at Chateau Neu Blois about two miles east of Spa). There are two or three acres of grounds surrounding the church, which is under the great wooded Cliffs (to the north side) towering about 400 feet above.

"Spa is in a defile or cup, surrounded by great hills and springs and waters form a lovely little river right through the town. The walks and drives are wonderful. The hills have terraced winding paths. You can be in deep forest in five minutes from here. (The forests of Ardennes which is the setting in Shakespeare's "As You Like It" is near by.)

"Our hotel (which serves a four course dinner at one, and a three course supper at six) is in the centre of the town. It is only about eight miles to Malmedy and some 15 to the German frontier.

"The Casino is a very fine building and the Bath House is also very imposing. The Squares and Island-stands are prominent. In the season (which will begin on Whitsunday, May 13th this year and cothinue till the end of September) there are bands, concerts, morning, afternoon and evening.

"The town of Spa gives 1200 francs toward my pay and the Belgian Government allows over 7000 francs as grants to the English Church at Spa. The rest comes from the collections.

"There are three English families resident here. Mr. and Mrs. Koop (he is a Dutch-American, she is a Canadian and a daughter of the late J. M. Langmuir of Toronto, manager of the Toronto Trust Co.), Madam Devivier, an English lady, is the church warden. Her husband, a Belgian, owns one of the big expensive hotels here, "Hotel de Laeken".

"I had service last Sunday at 8:30, 11 and 3:30 . . .

"Spa was known 300 years before Henry VIII's doctor came for the cure," says Mrs. Beamish, "in it's heyday, all the royalty of Europe came to take advantage of the eight kinds of water, for their health. It received tremendous public ity, when Peter the Great of Russia, took the cure in 1717, drinking 12 glasses of water daily, slept in a tent, walked everywhere — and became a healthy man again. In fact its name, Spa, came to be adopted in our language meaning 'watering place' as you may know.

"No, I didn't take any of the waters, being in superb health myself. Yet, because everyone kept insisting, 'You must take a meal-bath!' I did — but never again. Terrified lest toads or frogs might surface the m o d which went in which I was subm ersed made me panic. No, one did; but one mud - bath was enough for me.

"While many visitors, of course, take the "cure", others come to holiday or few days in like a second home. The English were particularly fond of it, which went far to building the English Church."

While we were talking with Mrs. Beamish she showed us a beautiful Christmas cards which she had received. It bore a real-ie blessing. We have quoted part of it, for today's column a n d shall give the remainder next week, when Mrs. Beamish concludes her account of Spa, in Belgium.

Mary please wish you to send your names and addresses when you write. Mail is so heavy the column is not long enough to give all answers here. U.C.W. Meetings

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

"Christian Love" was the theme for the general meeting of College Hill U.C.W. held in the Social Hall Wednesday evening. The president, Mrs. D. Watson welcomed the members and visitors to the first meeting of 1965. Thanks were extended to her executive of the past year and all for their loyal support.

Mrs. Belcour read the minutes and Mrs. A. Greenwood, the treasurer, her report. Mrs. Dickens read the proposed budget which was approved by the members. Mrs. Thomas reported on the recent luncheon catered for and contacted members for assistance at the turkey dinner to be served in the Church February 24.

Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Vesey based on the U.C.W. Purpose under headings Christian Witness, Study, Fellowship and Service. Mr. Vesey gave a talk on the "Purpose".

Buzz groups were formed by the leaders, Mrs. L. Riley, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. A. Dickens. Each group reported and a discussion followed.

The members remained in groups for a contest conducted by Mrs. Vesey with Mrs. Kerr at the piano. Old familiar songs were played and the group guessing the title were asked to sing their reply. Group two won the contest.

Refreshments were served by the Afternoon Unit and a social hour enjoyed.

Ann Landers

Cold Grandparents Miss A Great Deal in Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife and I have been married two years. Our little girl is one year old. She walks already, says a few words and is a darling child.

ANN LANDERS

My wife's parents are fine, intelligent people in their early fifties. When we invite them to our home they are cordial but we've never been invited to their home for a meal.

Not once have they picked up our child or played with her. They show no interest in their only grandchild either. Last week I was so hurt by their actions I asked my mother-in-law for an explanation. She said, "We raised our children, educated them and now we are through. We want nothing to do with baby sitting or diapers. We have earned peace and quiet and we want to spend our leisure time with our friends."

Is something wrong with them, or is it us? — BWD.

DEAR BWD — Did you ask your mother-in-law to do diapers or sit with your child? If you did and she refused I would not criticize her.

But in-laws who have never picked up a grandchild do not sound normal to me. Such a lack of warmth is beyond belief. These people are to be pitied because they are missing life's sweetest rewards.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — When are homemakers going to assert themselves and receive the credit they deserve?

If I tell a friend at dinner that I have had a hard day he says, "Doing what? I wish I could stay home and loaf around like you do."

One evening I said something about "our money" and he yelled, "What do you mean our money? When did you last earn a dime?"

If it weren't for the children I'd chuck it all and go back to work. I could have a few dollars to call my own. My husband makes me feel like a beggar. Whenever he hands me a few dollars he makes such a big deal out of it you'd think I was a charity case.

Several months ago a friend of mine had a nervous breakdown. My husband said, "What did she have to worry about? She had a beautiful home, a nice husband, three swell kids and no job!"

Say something, will you? I'm — FROTHING.

DEAR FROTHING — The housewife is either the best-paid or the worst-paid woman in the world, depending on the man she's married to.

If her husband is an ignorant, insensitive slob (like yours) she is the worst-paid. If her husband is a thoughtful, understanding guy (like mine) she's the best-paid.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Regarding the vexed veterinarian who criticized you for calling him a "vet":

When my wife and I lived in London, we always took our dog to a You-Know-What in Kensington. It was an embarrassingly posh establishment. The waiting room was filled with chauffeurs and pedigreed pooches. Among the patients were the King's (now Duke of Windsor) Corgis. We paid our bill in guineas (and that's real money.) No one ever thought of calling the man anything but a vet and he didn't mind at all.

Here in Connecticut, however, the man who takes care of our hound looked down his nose when I called him by the popular abbreviation. He hastened to tell me he is not a vet, but a doctor — and would I please call him "Doctor!" I responded, "I presume your fees are tax deductable,'Doctor!" He had to admit they were not, but now I call him doctor just the same.—HARTFORD, CONN.

DEAR HART — Here's your letter and the subject is closed. After I printed the last one I received a deluge of mail from ex-servicemen who wanted to know what was wrong with the word vet. I pass, Brother.

• • •

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoint and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kinettes Hear Talk Re School Board

TWEED

The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Kinette Club was held at Motel Tweedsmuir on Monday evening. After a delicious dinner the president, Mrs. Marlene Speed, now welcomed a guest, Mrs. V. Smith of Kingston.

The guest speaker, Mr. Thomas Kelly was introduced by Mrs. Jeanette Whitefield, Mr. Kelly is chairman of Tweed and Stanerford High School Area Board. Mr. Kelly spoke on the workings of the board, how they are appointed and how long they serve. Mr. Kelly pointed out the need for ladies on the board and hoped in the future some ladies would mak themselves available to be part of the board.

A question and answer period followed which proved to be most informative. Mrs. Shirley Smith expressed appreciation to Mr. Kelly on behalf of the club.

Community Nursing Registry Hears Report From Director

The annual meeting of the Belleville Community Nursing Registry was held Tuesday evening at the Ministers' Hall, Belleville General Hospital, following a tasty supper.

A large audience listened with interest as Mrs. I. Campbell, Director of the Registry, submitted a her report saying "Twenty-two years of skilled nursing service has been given to Belleville and the surrounding districts, mostly at Belleville General Hospital by the members of the Community Nursing Registry.

During these years of Nursing Service, we have accepted the ethical and moral responsibilities of our profession. Nurses in private practice must have special guiding principles of conduct so that they may be worthy of the public's faith and confidence in the important service rendered to society.

POLICY CHANGES

This year we have been forced with the problem of making changes in the policies of Belleville Nursing Registry in regards to the office personnel staffing. To be receptive of drastic changes causes concern, first to the membership and secondly, how a change will affect our service to society within our own community.

Mrs. Doris Morrison, past assistant director, has been greatly missed since last October when the Board of Directors and membership deemed it necessary to discontinue the position for another type of coverage. Mrs. Morrison's congenial personality and quiet efficiency endeared her to membership and public alike. Her duties for four years were discharged with a competent and courteous relationship to all departments.

The clerical duties of this office compelled us to use the Telephone Answering Service after 5 p.m. until 8 a.m. five evenings each week, and full time Saturday and Sunday.

In making the adjustments last October, we no longer are able to alternate the calls for the Victorian Order of Nurses, The V.O.N. has been associated with our Nursing Registry since we organized in 1943. Needless to say cutting our ties with these ambassadors of good health was difficult to accept.

Previous telephone coverage also included the Canadian Cancer Society, and the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society. We deeply regret having to sever our connections with these organizations of community betterment.

TABULATED CALLS

The tabulated calls for private duty were 897. Fourteen of these were accepted as part time homes. 234 calls were unfilled due to lack of membership resulting in a depleted call board.

General duty and ambulance requests were filled when possible. There were six practical nurses placed in homes. Calls were accepted and filled for industry in Batawa.

TOTAL MEMBERSHIP

Total membership at present includes seven single nurses and 13 married nurses. There were three resignations in 1964, one accepting a position in a doctor's office, one resigning due to ill health, the third to stay home with her family. There are three associate, and three new members.

New members are Mrs. G. Barrett from Napanee, Mrs. M. McAlpine from Marysville and Mrs. R. Jackson from Redeemerville. Appreciative thanks were expressed to Mr. S. Johnston, Administrator of Belleville General Hospital, and to Miss D. Smith, Director of Nursing, for their kind guidance; also to the Board of Directors of the Nursing Registry for all their help; to the president, Miss Joan McDonnell, who has been most faithful in executing her duties, and to the general membership for their splendid spirit of service and responsibility without which the aims of the nursing service to the community could never have been fulfilled.

CLOSING REMARKS

In closing the speaker said "If we co-ordinate and direct our efforts, success in all our activities is assured, as we are bound in unity to be dedicated to the profession of nursing the sick."

YWCA Goes To Young Mothers

TORONTO (CP)—Since young mothers can't always come to the YWCA, it now takes the Y centres across Canada, goes to young mothers.

They foster neighborhood relax - and - learn groups under such names as Take-a-Break in Toronto, Y Neighbor in Winnipeg, Mother's Day Out in Edmonton.

In the two hours, one day a week, mothers meet in someone's living room while their children are cared for by trained babysitters in another home. Usually someone from the Y is also hired to teach a craft and encourage the development of new interests.

In a new group in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, members learned gift-wrapping between Christmas. Now they are trying copper tooling.

Doreen Huyer, Scarborough YWCA director, says she hopes the next stage will be a demand from members for guest speakers and discussions. She says the ideal situation occurs when each member is leading so actively that she no longer needs the group and it disbands.

Mrs. Huyer says the program is organized on the theory that women housebound with only toddlers to talk to reach a point when they lose their self-confidence.

Not all of the programs involve children. The Ottawa Y has a program for wives of members of the diplomatic corps. A Weston, Ont., group studies other countries. In Winnipeg members plan their own programs, and in one area, discussion groups started them working for a library, which they got.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickard, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. (Bud) Trill and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Riley left today from Malton Airport for Nassau where they will spend a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. John Ellis is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

U.C.W. Meeting

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

9th SIDNEY — Mrs. Cameron Sine, president of Scott's United Church Women, presided at their meeting held Saturday, held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Earl Dafoe. There were 13 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Alton Sine presented the program. There was a reading outlining one's responsibility and two sheet book reviews of pertinents facts from Lloyd C. Cripple in a Wheel Chair Looks for New Interests

DEAR DORIS — After an active life, I find myself at 69 confined to a wheel chair. My wife is gone and my children grown up and married. I live with a daughter.

She pampers me, but I feel like a fifth wheel. What can a person in a wheel chair do to make life worth while? — CRIPPLE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CRIPPLE — Would it surprise you to know that more than one woman in a wheel chair is doing all her own housework? And that a man I know keeps books for seven firms from same position?

Take your pick: bargain with your daughter to head up the dishwashing brigade, with a grandchild doing the putaways. Or take on two pen pals, also cooped up, to share happy memories with. Or take a correspondence course in shorthand writing, and hire yourself out to your community drama group.

Occupational therapists have a way of helping a handicapped person accomplish such miracles; will even design special tools for you. The O.T. department in your local hospital of your rehabilitation centre can steer you to the help you need to get started at something you'll enjoy.

DEAR DORIS — My pastime is putting together my family tree. My problem is getting the facts from places in the U.S. and Canada.

One relative lived and died in Topeka, Kansas. To whom would I address a letter, and what about costs involved in having someone look up this information?

I am a teen-ager and must express appreciation for your interest in youth and your advice. — KENNY.

• • •

DEAR KENNY — Building up the branches on a family tree is great sport. But don't be surprised if you find persimmons as well as peaches among the fruit!

Births and deaths are recorded in vital statistics departments, care of the provincial or state capital buildings where your ancestors have lived. Costs, if any, are usually small.

You might also explore old church parish books and school records; especially if the opportunity presents. Hard for a personal visit. Then there are professional genealogists who will help out here and there.

DEAR DORIS — How can I get in touch with a newly formed group of Executive Housekeepers? As I understand it, this group was formed for the purpose of further study of the job training, etc. I am in a like position and would like to become a member. — ZELMA.

DEAR ZELMA — The B. C. Chapter of the National Executive Housekeeper Association of America is their first branch in Canada. This is becoming a semi-professional group and establishing standards. Members must be employed as executive housekeepers or assistants supervising ten or more of a staff.

To learn more about joining or forming a branch, write to The Secretary, B.C. Chapter of the etc., c/o Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver 1, B.C.

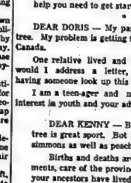
Isolated and Colorful Penang Is Tribute to One Man's Faith

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE



PENANG ISLAND, Malaysia — North from Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian Airways Friendship swung over the ugly sand wastes of Ipoh's tin mines, past the centre of the Malay Peninsula's mask mountain range, and swiftly downwards across the narrow arm of the Straits of Malacca pointing towards the City of Bengal and separating Penang from the nort hwest coast of Malaya.

Isolated, small and colorful, Penang is something of a cross between Nantucket and Catalina, with some British Bermuda thrown in. It is cool, accessible, lined with miles of virgin beach, a free port, and colored by a history that is the story of one man's faith.

Sir Francis Drake sailed down the straits in 1579, but never stopped. Then Captain Lancaster landed in 1591, found little but oysters, and departed. Only recently Cornwallis, the ubiquitous pirates, and Chinese fishermen inhabited the place until 1786. Then, after 12 years of siege, a retired Royal Navy man named Francis Light succeeded in making a deal with the Sultan of Kedah and the East I n d i a Company for rights here. He married a Portugal Malay girl, founded George Town, but died of a tropical fever at the beginning of its prosperity as the major port it is today.

A Lift for Living

God Would Cease Being God If Man Could Control Earth

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

In his address at the Federal convention at Philadelphia in 1787, just before fixing his signature to the Constitution, George Washington declared: "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair." Then he added, "The event is in the hands of God." While Washington believed that man should crave freedom, declare rights to freedom, and fight and die for freedom, he saw that the final outcome of all man's strivings was in better hands than man's own. Washington saw that man's welfare and destiny rested in man's seeking and doing the will of God and not in getting God to do man's will.

It is good for all of us to be occasionally confronted by events that are plainly out of man's control. Perhaps one reason why some of us feel overawe mixed with our uneasiness when a winter storm ascends upon us is that storms are events beyond man's command and mastery. Just now, outside the window where I sit writing, light wanes and a cold wind whips the wider night. Whirlpools of snowflakes, whipped by a northwesterly gale, are cascading as they will outside. Driven by growling winds, snow piles in low mounds around my study window, heaping high on the sloping skirts of balsam, hemlock and spruce. There crouch the big evergreens, where nestle the gnomes of mice. Frost - bitten foundations of our house are blanketed by billowing drifts.

CHANGES MAN'S PLANS

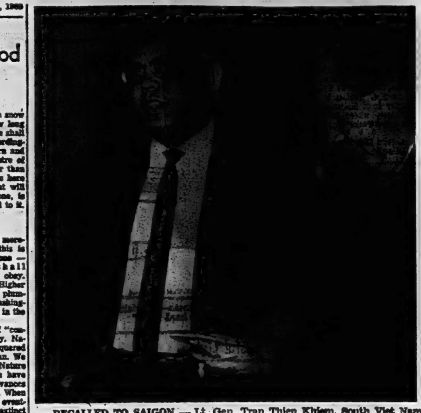
Now a radio announcer begins to announce that changes in future makes in man's plans. Meetings scheduled for this evening are being postponed or cancelled. "The Cub Scouts will not meet with Mrs. Brown because of the storm." "The Ladies' Auxiliary will postpone tonight's meeting until next Tuesday." "The Men's Club . ." "The West Side Association . ." and so it goes. This wintry onslaught covers much of the nation.

It is good to be reminded that this is not a man-centred universe, that something bigger and more awesome is going on, other than tidy arrangements for man's convenience. My wish for a bright and sunny winter's day will not change the direction of the wind or diminish the forces of the storm. And, thank God, my prayer that this blizzard will stop instantly, because I want to take a trip tonight, will likely be unavailing. If my letters could control the weather, God would cease being God. If He were honor-bound to answer all such prayers, whims and wishes concerning blizzards, floods, testings and temptations, and all else we wish to avoid, man would control God and thus manage the universe. God would be slave to man's wishes.

Thank God that God remains God! And since He is God, the answers to our prayers must be His answers, not our answers thrust upon His lips. They must be His answers, in His time, backed by His wisdom and His concern for our needs. Neither our flimsiest fancies, nor our easy comforts, nor our pleasant conveniences are His great concerns. Our characters and eternal destiny are. An unwanted hardship may build more soul, and testing may strengthen more moral fiber, than endless pleasantness an easy life can afford us. Storms have a rightful place in this kind of a world.

Again, a hammering gale frees us from our egocentric trap, because it shows us how inadequate are all man's boasted technological triumphs and infinitely varied inventions. Our audacious intention of mastering Nature seems strangely dimmed by a snowstorm sweeping out of the Northwest. Tonight we are doing what man always has had to do, at last, if he would to survive; we are adjusting to Nature, which is our secularized way of saying "adjusting to God."

We are learning which way the wind blows, how much snow can be expected, and how long the storm will last. And we shall prepare for the siege accordingly. In short, we shall learn and obey. We are not the centre of everything. A force bigger than we are, a power that was here before we came, and that will be here when we are gone, is expressing itself. We bend to it. We obey.



WE SHALL OBEY

If we are to progress, or merely exist, in this world, this is how it will always be done — through obedience. We shall learn Nature's way and obey. We shall discover the Higher Will and follow it, having plumbed the meaning of Washington's trust, "The event is in the hands of God."

All of man's tall talk of "conquering Nature" is empty. Nature has never been conquered in its skirmishes with man. We but discover more about Nature and obey the "more" we have learned. All scientific advances are made in this manner. When we disobey, and cease eventually, if ever, become extinct the triumph will not be attested by the boasts and claims of man. Nature. Scientists will succeed because they have bowed humbly over the "more" we have rescope slides and charts and records, and they have watched how closely we work. They will learn the conditions under which certain diseases flourish and the conditions which discourage or prevent them. Then, obeying Nature's laws, they will press forward in the war on disease. Nature will not be conquered, but some higher secret will be disclosed and some yet unknown law will be obeyed. In science, as in obedience.

A snowstorm reminds us of our real place in the world. We are not its master! The storm is in the hands of God." We are not Creator, but His servants. The chief aim of the soul is to learn the Higher Will and to do it.

Obedience is power.

RECALLED TO SAIGON — Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, South Viet Nam Ambassador to the United States, is interviewed Friday by Spencer Davis, Associated Press staffer, at the Vietnamese Embassy. A full-scale operation against Communists in the area had continued despite the coup. It included a regiment on the ground supported by a navy patrol craft, two patrol craft escorts, a landing ship, a 20-man diving team and aircraft cover.

Khanh had personally launched the ground operation. But he was reported to have arrived at his headquarters at Cap St. Jacques, 40 miles southwest of Saigon, within an hour after the coup started.

During the coup crisis, the balance of support among the Khanh against the coup backers because of widespread military objections to the qualifications and platforms of the plotters.

DIDN'T WANT REBELS

Many of the officers who supported Khanh against the uprising, however, are believed to have done as less to support Khanh than to prevent the rebels from moving in.

The short - lived coup failed when military leaders of the abortive revolt capitulated as loyalist forces moved into Saigon and took over the capital's strategic points.

The rebel leader, Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, who earlier had denounced Khanh as power-hungry, made a final broadcast from a radio station just outside Saigon.

"The reason for our act yesterday was that we wanted to help the people and the military command . . . if Gen. Khanh does not think he can solve our problems, then he should resign."

With the coup thwarted, Saigon's airport was reopened and communications with the outside world were restored.

Labor

weeks. By putting the labor code legislation through all its working stages this week, the Commons seemed to be launched on such a schedule.

THINK IT UNLIKELY

Conservative sources, however, thought it was unlikely the hope Canada Pension Plan could get through the Commons this session, and the spring set formula, allowing provinces to have certain federal - provincial programs, is highly contentious.

With a series of amendments by Labor Minister Alex Mac-Eachen pushed the labor code through committee stage with few hitches. It came to a deadclamping conclusion about 5 p.m. Friday, and third reading finally — hopefully — will come Monday.

The bill provides for a $1.25 hourly minimum wage, an eight-hour day, 40-hour week, two - weeks annual vacation and eight paid statutory holidays.

It was an earlier amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) that resulted in the number of statutory holidays being raised to eight from seven. But three other opposition efforts to make changes in the bill were turned back Friday.

Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) proposed an amendment that the vacation period be increased to three weeks after five years of employment. He said managerial and office employees usually get three weeks' vacation while employees in the factory usually get two weeks. He said it was wrong for any class of employees to accept such vacations for themselves and refuse it to other classes of workers.

BARGAINING IS BEST

Mr. MacEachen said the Liberal party thought collective bargaining was still the best method of determining vacation arrangements beyond the minimum standards. The government, he said, has already been accused of leaving the field of employer - employee relations by providing for two weeks.

The legislation will directly affect some 800,000 employees under federal jurisdiction.

Another amendment that was rejected came from Mr. Knowles, who asked that industries being granted a deferment for the implementation of the 40-hour week be made to reduce the work week within that period to 44 hours. He said, the deferment could go on indefinitely.

John Lovey (PC — Bruce) proposed an amendment that would exempt all privately-owned grain elevators, feed mills and seed-cleaning mills in Eastern Canada from provisions of the code. The feed mills in Western Canada are included because most cases under the Canada Grain Act. One of the aims was that passed off the longest arguments Friday concerned handicapped persons. Under the bill, employers can seek a special permit from the labor minister to employ handicapped persons at less than the $1.25 hourly minimum.

HAVE OBJECTIONS

Several opposition members, particularly New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas (Burnaby - Coquitlam) and Robert Muir (PC — Cape Breton North and Victoria) said this could lead to handicapped persons considering themselves inferior, and employers considering them as second-class workers.

Mr. MacEachen said it is a fact that all things being equal, employers would hire a non-handicapped person first. The clause was intended to help the handicapped find employment with employers where they otherwise would not.

In arguing for a deadline of three years by which the 40-hour week would be in effect, Mr. Knowles said that the way the legislation stands an industry could go on indefinitely postponing implementation of the 40-hour week.

If three years was considered too short a transitional period, he would agree to four years. But a deadline was needed.

Mr. MacEachen, noting that originally an 18-month deadline had been provided, said representations had been made that this requirement would be impossible to meet by some industries.

For example, some ship owners worked a 54-hour week and to change to the 40-hour week would require additional staff and larger ships.

To meet such situations, the government had inserted a change to permit the cabinet to excuse companies from complying with the 40-hour week requirement but only after a public inquiry.

Lines on Life

God Cannot Be Father to Men Who Are Not Brothers

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

"He's not heavy, he's my brother!" This legend beneath a poster showing a small boy carrying another lad who had been hurt is a good reminder of the meaning of brotherhood.

Human beings are remarkable. They alone of all creation have been endowed with the faculty of intellectual memory. And what a powerful instrument this is. Too often we remember only what we choose to remember and are forgetful of what we should remember.

If every group in this country would remember how, at some point in its history, it was maligned, misinterpreted, and persecuted, it might learn how to live more happily with neighbors of different colors or creeds. There is no majority anywhere that sometime has not felt what it means to be in the minority.

The catacombs are eternal reminders to the Christian of his own minority status in the pre-Christian Roman world. For a Christian to persecute others because of their differences, or their small numbers, also caricatures out of their own martyrs.

The blasted synagogues and the ashes of six million Jews who went to their doom in Hitler's Europe serve as a grand reminder for all Jews that the wages of hatred is death. No Jew can afford the immoral luxury of hating. Wars beget wars. So, hate begets hate.

The consequences of monotheism have not yet dawned upon the minds of most men — believers among them. To pray to One God is to affirm that all of His creatures are united under Him in one commonality of humanity. That is why Christians or Jews who claim the universality of God blaspheme Him, not so much by words of heresy, as when they defame or revile the personality of their neighbors.

Man does not exist apart from fellow man. God cannot be a Father to men who are not brothers.

Jews have suffered much at the hands of the intolerant and the arrogant. Christians were crucified throughout the lands of the Roman Empire. All the more reason why more of us should not stoop to be conquered by the instruments of hate which have caused us hurt.

There's a text that sums all of this up very neatly, and it runs like a refrain through the Bible. It calls upon us to remember. Remember what? "Remember that you were slaves in the land of Egypt!" Every group has once been slaves. Every group longs for freedom. And there can only be freedom when there is liberty and justice for all.

This is why every one of us — Catholic, Protestant, and Jew — needs every one of us — Catholic, Protestant, and Jew.

When we learn not to hate, we grow in strength, in confidence, and in moral stature.

FAID $50 TO SAVE A NICKEL

Recently, in one of our courts a man was fined $50 after pleading guilty to evasion of tolls at a toll station on one of our great Thruways. He had dropped two nickels into the toll basket, instead of the required 15 cents.

Poor gains often result in poor losses. Trying to save the almighty "nickels" of thoughtfulness, consideration, and kindness, we often lose good friends. Others of us lose advancement in our careers because we won't spend that little extra effort when the occasion requires it. Still others, trying to save an old worn-out tire will wreck a car and endanger life.

We can refuse to spend our money. We can refuse to give of ourselves to others in terms of thoughtfulness, tolerance, understanding, patience and kindness. We can refuse to give of our best in our daily vocations, by talking "short cuts" . . . or . . . by doing no more than the absolute minimum required of us. But the result is always that we lose more then we gain. We can be so intent on "saving" ourselves, that we lose the best things life has to offer to us.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "There is that which withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty." (Proverbs 11:24)

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

SPEAKING OUT

The northern and other ranges of the Tweed Forestry District, where the deer and other wildlife play during the hunting off-season are becoming slaughter playgrounds for "man's best friend" and sinister hybrids.

Brer Wolf who never misses a chance to sink death-dealing fangs into a buck, doe or fawn has been blamed for a lot of murdering depredations that should not be placed at his door.

The common or garden dog, sometimes a farm or family pet, often develops, it appears, a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde complex: a lovable guy at home, but a deer-killing menace on the loose.

Friend Bill Bittle, wildlife head of the Tweed headquarters of the Lands and Forests Department comes out with a hard-hitting statement not in defence of the wolf but placing some of the blame of deer-slaughter where it rightfully belongs.

"Many sportsmen complain," says Bill, "about wolves being a menace to deer, but if the truth were known, dogs that are left free to roam are a worse menace than wolves."

"This is evident in the southern section of the district," Bill says, "there are more dogs at large than there are wolves."

Adding to the double menace is a result of fraternization between the dog and the brush wolf. This is a hybrid, a canine gangster that is "Murder Incorporated" as far as deer are concerned.

This sinister half-breed, mixing killer and homing instincts is able to cope better than the original Simon.

Says Mr. Bittle: "They quite often have two litters a year, instead of one and it's becoming more difficult to control their numbers."

"They prey on farmers' livestock as well as the deer herd. Some are shot or trapped, but there is no beauty to wolf skins and in many cases it is most difficult to distinguish a dog from a wolf. Quite often carcasses are forwarded to the department's research laboratory at Maple for positive identification."

"Hover," the farm collie and "Tige," the family pet, if left untended for any length of time, develop a yen to get together and roam the range in search of excitement.

They form their own infant and once a deer-chase is started other dogs from the area team up—and then it is only a matter of time.

"This is not hearsay," says Mr. Bittle. "Department conservation officers have checked several complaints and have found the culprits to be dogs."

Conservation officers have a difficult task in proving ownership of the dogs. It is not always easy to catch them and a more distasteful task to have to destroy them, he says.

The dogs and their Al Capone counterparts do not head vocation in order to survive. They simply like the chase and kill for the sheer hell of it. Officers have picked up deer that have dropped from exhaustion after being chased for a long period of time by a pack of farm dogs or pets, says Bittle.

Efforts are made to revive the deer but as a rule to no avail. They never seem to recover.

"Many, perhaps most of the farmers are sportsmen, but they just fail to see the importance of keeping their dogs tied up or under control," says Mr. Bittle. "People who have dogs would help to conserve deer and many other types of game, if they would only see to it that their pets wasn't one of the many that destroy needlessly."

And Mr. Bittle emphasizes to dog-owners, "Just remember this—dogs do become wild and kill to exist. They do interbreed with wolves and multiply. And they will kill deer."

Some years ago litters of half-dog, half wolf pups were found in the Shannonville area. Some of them grew and became a menace to stock.

They originated, the story goes, from a timber wolf captured by an American who was transporting the animal to his home, when it managed to escape in that part of the district—and was welcomed by the females of the dog species with open paws.

Central Ont. AAU

Urges Meet Boycott

TORONTO (CP) — Informed sources said Friday that the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada has recommended to its affiliated clubs that they boycott the Canadian indoor track and field championships at Hamilton on Saturday, March 20.

One source who declined use of his name said the move was taken at a meeting of the branch executive in Toronto Wednesday night. More than 40 clubs from Ottawa to Sault Ste. Marie are members of the branch.

The source said action was taken because sponsors of the Hamilton meet have not adhered to rules and regulations set by the AAU. We said the Hamilton sponsors discriminate against athletes who are not members of clubs.

Hamilton sponsors discriminate Ralph Adams said the boycott won't come off.

He said Jenny Wingerson, "can run, certainly, and so can other unattached athletes." "I am sure this can be settled amicably and really it is just a technical misunderstanding. We have already been in touch with members of the central branch about this."

Title Trail Tough For Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens will enjoy a slight benefit from the schedule as the current National League pennant race heads into its last five weeks.

The Canadiens, who won the NHL title last season on the last night of the schedule, trail the league - leading Chicago Black Hawks by four points right now. But the Habs have three slight advantages over the Hawks:

Montreal has played two games less than Chicago and although games in hand are not necessarily points in the standings, it was an "extra" contest on the final weekend of last year's schedule that enabled the Canadiens to outdistance the Hawks.

The Canadiens play nine games at home, eight on the road. The Hawks have seven home games remaining, eight in other cities.

Montreal plays more games against weaker opposition than the Hawks. Montreal meets Boston three times and New York on five occasions. The Hawks play the Bruins four times, New York twice.

But don't forget Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings, just 0.5 back of the Hawks trail. The Leafs, too, have played two games less than Chicago and the Wings have three games in hand.

The Leafs have a similar schedule to Canadiens with nine games at home and eight on the road. Seven contests are against the Bruins and Rangers. Detroit has nine home games and the same number of road fixtures, including eight against the weaker clubs.

It all points to another wild final weekend with two added starters, Detroit and Toronto. The Leafs and Wings came out of the picture last season when the Canadiens edged the Hawks by one point, beating Boston 5-1 Saturday and New York 2-1 Sunday while the Hawks edged Boston 4-3.

The schedule winds up the same way this season. The Hawks are idle again on Saturday night, Montreal plays host to Boston and then visits New York. Detroit and Toronto play a home-and-home weekend series.

That's all in the future, however. What concerns the four contenders' coaches at the moment is a full schedule of six games this weekend.

New York Rangers play at Detroit this afternoon while the Bruins, minus injured Bobby Hull, visit Toronto and Boston plays at Montreal in the evening. Hull may be back in action Sunday when the Bruins travel to Chicago, Montreal plays in New York and Toronto at Detroit.

BCI Teams Top Napanee

By DAVID TEMPLER

In COSSA basketball action at Napanee last night, BCI's triple victory ensured all squads would play in the two games playoffs next week. BCI's seniors, in first place will play the Quinte Saints a two-game total points series for the honor of going to the C.O.S.S.A. finals at Ottawa.

The senior Collegians, last night defeated Napanee 58-48. Murray Swan playing a good all around game led the victors with 15 points. Ron Walsh scored 13, Doug Perkes (10) and Don MacCormack (5) played well defensively. The other scorers were Mott (7), Seddick (5) and Gallo (5).

For Napanee, Moore collected 11 points and Bob and Don Stinson scored nine points and nine points respectively.

In the junior game, BCI started slowly. The Collegians held ed by five at the end of the first quarter. But after the second quarter BCI never looked back. the final quarter Napanee was outscored 23-8 leaving no doubt in the 78-52 decision.

For Napanee the high four were Smith (19), Robbins (11), Forbes (9 and Tailor (8).

David Cass led the bantams with 23 points in defeating the 53-12 effort. For BCI Drum and Shea, rebounding well, scored 16 and 12 points respectively.

Ron Saylor Rolls 1,295 4-Game Record

Ron Saylor, one of the city's top Duckpin bowlers, turned in a record-shattering performance in Quinte Classic League play at the Bowl O'Drome last night.

Saylor set an all-time record for the league with a tremendous 1,295 four-game total.

His high game in the four-string was 394 and his average worked out to just one pin short of 324.

Seven 100 plus strings have been rolled in the league on previous occasions but none closer to the total.

Saylor appeared to have a 1,300 score in the making when he rolled a 394 in the eighth frame of his final game — and took a head pin.

"Everyone in the league was pulling for him to reach that 1,300 mark," said Classic secretary Bill Hardrick, "and the way he was bowling he certainly deserved it."

Minor Hockey

Tyke and novice games provided the action in Belleville Minor Hockey Association play at Memorial Arena Friday evening.

TYKE

The Leafs, with Peter Crawford again providing the scoring punch, handed the Wings their first defeat of the season. Claude Landry netted two and Michael Hebden one for the Wings.

Canadiens blanked the Rangers 3-0 with another fine individual performance. Bruce Sutherland scored all three goals.

Bruins topped the Hawks 4-2 on two goal efforts by John Ashley and Bruce McIntyre. Rick Sweet and Roger Chapman scored for the Hawks.

NOVICE

Maroons won a 3-0 shutout over the Canadiens. Larry Kirby, Peter Molaski and Brad Shepard fired one goal apiece.

Barons defeated the Leafs 5-1. Larry Wright pulled two goals with one each for John Edwards, Blake Reeves and Kenneth Hodgson. Stewart Beardman was the lone leaf scorer.

Only Canadian Victory

Abbie Sets Mark At New York

NEW YORK (CP) — Abigail (Abby) Hoffman, 18 - year - old Toronto runner, made the last 100 yards count Friday and bettered her own Canadian indoor record for the half-mile.

Miss Hoffman, a wiry blonde with close-cropped hair, ran the event in 2:11.6 on the opening day of the two-day U.S. Amateur Athletic Union indoor track and field championships.

The University of Toronto student overhauled front-running Antje Gielchfeld of West Germany in the last 100 yards. Miss Gielchfeld finished in 2:11.9, the mark set in January in Toronto by Miss Hoffman. Mrs. Mary Szabo of Hungary, who holds the world mark of 2:10.5, was third in 2:12.1.

Miss Hoffman's performance was the only Canadian victory in Friday's session.

But two other Toronto residents came close.

Dave Ellis chased Billy Mills to an American record in the three-mile run but finished eight yards back of the part-Indian

First in Three Years

Juniors Trounce Kingston

By GARRY ALEXANDER

(Staff Sportswriter)

Shorthanded but determined, the Belleville Bruins ended a three-year drought here last night against the Kingston Frontenacs.

The "B"s downed the Frontenacs 6-3 in one of the best and exciting games of the exciting OHA Eastern Junior game here of the season.

Belleville's win came in their last scheduled game of the season. The "B"s will wait now which of the two Quinte Saints they will meet in the playoffs.

The tough fight it out against Toronto Metro clubs in interlocking play was a key factor in determining their opposition. It was Belleville's first win over Kingston in three years.

Kingston leads Peterborough by four points but has only one game left to play while Peterborough has three.

Belleville was trailed last night and with goalie Wayne Brant again in a starring role, turned back everything the visitors could throw at them.

The winners led 2-1 and 3-2 before a torrid final period when the Frontenacs turned to a body attack with plenty of rough stuff thrown in. The "B"s played it smart and let the losers take all six of the penalties.

Kingston outshot the winners in every period, 40-31 overall, and drew 10 of the game's 13 penalties. That total included a game misconduct to Belleville's Larry Zimmer midway through the second period which left the club with only 11 players. Kingston's Bob Bruce and Gary Lavallee also picked up misconducts late in the contest.

Brant, who was trailed last night by Bob Boyle, Glenn Sproat, Bob Bruce and Gary Lavallee also picked up misconducts late in the contest.

Carl Boomhower shoved Belleville ahead to stay at 16:45, completing a play with Stewart and White.

Steve White made it 3-1 at 14:43 of the second on a play with Boomhower and Harold Townsend.

Play was fast, rough and end to end when Jim Sprott cut the lead, assisted by Convery, at 17:30.

Colligan raced in alone on Lee and Dulmage counted 12 and 11 points for the losers, while for Quinte, Goodfellow, Bellamy, Easton and Perfitt had 11, 10, six and six, respectively.

Senior Game

Quinte (79) — Meddings 34; Valyear 13; Byiama 10; Medved 7; Reppard 9; Wright 4; Moon 2; Mulligan 2.

Picton (62) — Murphy 12; Runnels 11; Hobson 9; McCormack 9; Bentley 7; Aarnaud 6; Fennee 6; Steel 1.

Sweep Three From PECI

Quinte SS In Playoffs

By ROBERT SNEJDELLA

Quinte Secondary School wound up the regular season play in the Bay of Quinte Senior basketball league with a triple-header sweep over Prince Edward Collegiate. The Quinte seniors' 79-62 victory gained them a berth in the playoffs against BCI, the first game of which will be played next Tuesday.

The Juniors and Bantams, who scored 36-31 and 39-35 wins, respectively, are through for the season.

A Quinte all-court press kept Picton on the defensive during the senior contest. Fine rebounding by Tony Meddings and Bob Valyear gave the losers, bearing in 12 points. Other Picton scorers were Fennoi, Fyfe and Runnels with six apiece and four points.

Bob Moon bagged 8 points to lead all Quinte marksmen. Larry Seeley scored seven, Doug Dickey had six, and both Rod Reid and Phil Buddle netted five.

The bantam contest was close throughout, and the game was only decided within the last minute of play.

Lee and Dulmage counted 12 and 11 points for the losers, while for Quinte, Goodfellow, Bellamy, Easton and Perfitt had 11, 10, six and six, respectively.

CFL Will Re-Open New Rule Debate

Many Players Object

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With varying degrees of enthusiasm, Canadian Football League clubs appeared there willingness to live with new CFL rule restricting them to 34 United States imports plus three naturalized Canadians of U.S. origin.

The rule, passed by CFL owners at their annual meeting in Ottawa last week, provides for a reduction of one in the number of U.S. players formerly permitted. There was no previous restriction on the affecting naturalized players.

It was passed by a 6-3 vote, with Toronto Argonauts, Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions casting the negative ballots. Calgary president Patrick M. Mahoney, who took over as the CFL's new president at the meeting, said Friday he plans to re-open the matter at the league's next meeting in June.

The move also was strongly opposed by a number of players who have taken out Canadian citizenship and there were indications a court case may be raised in Ontario under that province's Human Rights Code which prohibits discrimination by employers on the grounds of place of origin.

Of the eight CFL clubs, only Toronto Argonauts currently have more than three naturalized Canadians on their roster. Under the new rule, two of them would have to qualify under the American quota to remain with the club.

Lew Hayman, Argonauts general manager, said his club was forced to go along with the new rule rather than face a more drastic cut in the import quota.

DEFENDS NEW RULE

Sam Berger, president of Ottawa Rough Riders and immediate past president of the CFL, defended the new rule as an attempt to equalize player strength and denied accusations that of the affected players that it was discriminatory. He also said it would help the league become financially solvent.

President Ted Workman of Montreal Alouettes said the rule will improve the quality of the game.

"Some clubs are inclined to keep Americans longer than they normally would if a player is eligible for citizenship, instead of using promising Canadians," he said.

But Grant, coach and general manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, described the naturalization bylaw as part of an acceptable package of changes in connection with team rosters.

Herb Capozzi, general manager of the Lions, said his club will abide by the new rule "until such time as the clubs decide to rescind it." He had threatened earlier to seek affiliation with a U.S. league if the CFL continues to adopt restrictive policies.

B.C. RELOW LIMIT

"Our coach has been advised to play his player selection with the new rule in mind but it does not appear it will have any effect on our club," Capozzi said. Retirement of backfielder Ny Bailey and lineman Kenny Barnes at the end of last season has brought B.C. below the limit of naturalized players.

Hugh McColl, president of Edmonton Eskimos, said the new restrictions were necessary but his coach, Neill Armstrong, felt the loss of the 18th import might hurt a club with injury problems.

McColl disagreed. "That 18th man was a bench-warming insurance policy anyway," he said. "And the premiums were pretty high."

Fullback Johnny Bright and tackle Roger Nelson are the only naturalized players on the Edmonton roster.

Ken Preston, general manager of Saskatchewan Roughriders, said the new rule puts all CFL clubs on an equal footing.

"It is essential that the league remain competitive," he said. "It will run into serious difficulty if two or three of the richer clubs begin to dominate proceedings."

Jerry Williams, new coach of the Stampeders, said the new rule will hurt the league and will not result in greater savings.

"If certain individuals aren't ready to spend money then they should get out and let somebody else run things," he said.

Defeats Ontario

Saskatchewan Schoolboys Win Title

FREDERICTON (CP) — Finishing with a flurry of accurate shooting, Saskatchewan's Danny Fink and his Regina rink won the Canadian schoolboy curling championship Friday.

Fink's crew crushed Ontario 12-2 in the 11th and final round of the round-robin hospital to give Saskatchewan its ninth championship in 18 years.

The Regina foursome wound up with a 9-1 win-loss record, their loss defeat coming from the Nova Scotia rink skipped by Stuart Campbell of Bridgewater. In the final round, only Nova Scotia and Alberta—playing each other—held any hope of getting a crack at the title, and then only if Saskatchewan was defeated.

But Fink and company—mate Ted Runtz, second Ronald Jacques and lead Larry Lechner—piled up the points and by the time the eighth end was over Campbell and Doug Dobry of Viking, Alberta's skip, knew there would be no extra-round player.

Alberta edged Nova Scotia 8-6 and took second place with an 8-2 record. Nova Scotia, Northern Ontario and New Brunswick all tied for third place with 7-3 records.

Saskatchewan took an early lead over Paul Savage's Toronto rink and Fink's superb curling permitted Ontario to count in only three ends.

Fink's best throw of the match came in the eighth end when Ontario was shot stone with the Regina mate's rock lying two. On his final skip rock, Fink curled past two guards, shoved Ontario out of the house and left himself with shot stone and count counters.

The Saskatchewan boys and their coach agreed that Nova Scotia was the toughest team in the hospital. Fink said "we curled well but they just curled better. There was nothing we could do to stop them from beating us."

It was Saskatchewan's first championship since 1963 when Michael Iankowich's rink from Speers won it.

In other matches in the final round, Northern Ontario defeated Newfoundland 10-7, British Columbia defeated Manitoba 6-3 and Prince Edward Island defeated Quebec 6-3.

Ontario finished sixth, British Columbia seventh, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island eighth and Newfoundland and Quebec were tied for last place.

AAU's Pete Beach Speaks Out

'No Interest In U. S. Track Squabbles'

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The running fight between the Amateur Athletic Union and Canadian Athletic Association over control of track and field in the United States doesn't interest Pete Beach "one little bit." That's what he says.

"We don't care what they do down there," the track and field committee chairman of the AAU of Canada said in an interview in Toronto. "We have no interest at all whatever in their squabbles."

But Beach and his committee are nevertheless vitally concerned, because there are about 60 Canadian track and field athletes aglut to colleges in the U.S. This is set forth in a memorandum Beach issued to all members of his track and field committee a couple of weeks ago.

"No Canadian in the U.S. can take part in competition in the U.S. unless it is an AAU-sanctioned meet," Beach said in the interview. And in his memo he told committee members to find the names and location of athletes of their provincial branches who may be at school in the U.S. and make them aware of the facts.

"In this way you can assist them in protecting their international eligibility."

His memorandum pointed out that, according to the International Amateur Athletic Federation and the International Olympic Committee rules, a man can only one recognized body governing a specific sport in any one country."

The memo added:

"The body in the United States recognized as the governing body for track and field activities is the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Insofar as the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada is concerned, we have our own specific responsibilities to our competing athletes.

"(a) We must abide by the rules and regulations of the International Amateur Athletic Federation of which both Canada and the United States are members;

"(b) We must strictly protect the international eligibility of all our Canadian athletes."

The memo added that any Canadian athlete who competes in meets in the U.S. not approved by the A.A.U. of the U.S. will "incur suspension and will be barred from international competition until such suspension is lifted."

"Canadians attending school in the U.S. come under this ruling."

Beach and other track officials in Canada aren't particularly worried about a track and field federation being organized in this country in opposition to the AAU.

"It may come about, but not for a long time," one official said. "One stumbling block is money and, as everybody knows, track and field in Canada has no money.

"I can't see where we will have a hurry about a battle for control of track here such as they are having in the U.S. The thing we've got to make sure of is that our athletes in the States aren't caught in the middle and thus face the possibility of suspension and not being able to represent Canada in the Olympic Games."

Six Pros Will Go Overseas

TORONTO (CP) — Six National Hockey League players —three each from Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings—will go to Europe after the Stanley Cup playoffs in April to show Europeans how Canadian pros play the game, it was announced Friday. Eventually, promoters of the plan hope an international professional - amateur league will be set up.

Larry Regan, former Toronto Maple Leaf forward and now a coach at Innsbruck, Austria, said the big leaguers would conduct a 16- or 18-day clinic at Innsbruck. Regan is one of the co-sponsors of the clinic.

The pros are goaltender Terry Sawchuk of the Leafs defencemen Marcel Pronovost of the Red Wings and Tim Horton of Toronto, centre Alex Delvecchio of Detroit and wings Gordie Howe of Detroit and Ron Stewart of the Leafs.

"We haven't approached the pros or Runny Ahearne (president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, governing body of amateur hockey in the world) but we think that in a couple of years an interlocking schedule would be set up with the top European clubs such as Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden against teams from the Central Professional, Western and American leagues.

"The European people wouldn't lose their amateur status and they still would be free to compete in Olympic and world hockey competition," he said.

Regan said he expects about 100 players from Austria, Sweden and Germany will take part in the clinic, along with coaches from other European countries.

Regals Grab Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Regals have clinched first place in The Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

Their 4-1 win over the cellar-dwelling Welland Blacks Friday night let them five points ahead of Galt Hornets, who lost their last chance to overtake the leaders when they were defeated 6-5 by Woodstock Athletics. Guelph has one game left to play and the Hornets have two.

At Guelph, Jack McIntyre scored two first-period goals, but the Regals weren't able to add another one past Welland's Lynn Zimmerman until the last four minutes of play. Then Dave Lasnick and Jim Smith rounded. SCORES FOR WELLAND

Bob Maxwell got the Welland goal in the second period.

In the final home game for Woodstock, the Athletics took a 4-0 lead in the first 14 minutes and Galt returned to score two goals before the period ended.

Woodstock marksmen were Jake Smoke, with two, and John Hartig, Merle Klinck, Ron Ryan and Bernie Lawrence.

For Galt, Pete Kowalchuk, Larry Pfaff, Ron Brsin and Ron Smith scored.

Three Tied For Men's Title

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP-AP)— The free-skating ability of three teen-agers will decide who wins the men's title this weekend at the North American figure skating championships.

U.S. champion Gary Visconti of Deerfield and Canadian titleholder Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., practically ended in a tie in Friday's compulsory figures. Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., was a close third.

The figures, 90 per cent toward the over-all title, but there is so little separating the three that any one could grab the crown in Sunday afternoon's freestyle finals.

A standing-room-only crowd of just under 8,000 is anticipated for the final day at the War Memorial Auditorium. Three-fourths of the seats had been sold Friday.

The Sunday program also includes the finals of ladies' singles, pairs and ice dancing. The compulsory rounds of all those events are scheduled today.

ARE CLOSE

Visconti, a 19-year-old freshman at Macomb Community College in suburban Detroit, and Knight, a Hamilton-born 17-year-old high school student, could hardly be any closer.

Each has two first-place votes, two seconds and one third for ordinal placement scores of nine. The difference between the two is Visconti's 10.3 edge in total points, 711.6 to 701.3. Allen, 16, who lost his U.S. title to Visconti a week ago, is third with one first, one second and three thirds. He has 12 ordinal points and 685.2 points.

There is no chance that the other three skaters in the field of 16 can win the medals. Dr. Charles Snelling, 27, of Welland, is fourth; Tim Wood, 17, of Delhi, Ont., is fifth and Virginia Humphrey 20 and 592.4.

The Canadians did not like the ice surface here, according to Knight's coach, Sheldon Galbraith of Toronto. He said the Canadian skaters are unaccustomed to heated arenas, such as the auditorium here. Galbraith said the ice was "slick" and "too fast," disturbing the tempo of the Canadian performances.

Petra Burka of Toronto is the leader in ladies' singles, while Ronald and Vivian Joseph of Highland Park, Ill., are the leaders in pairs and Kristin Fortune of Northridge, Calif., and Dennis Sveum of Sun Valley, Calif., are the ones to beat in ice dancing.

Donald McPherson of Stratford, who won the North American men's title in 1963, has turned professional.

'It's About Time We Wed' Stays Star of ABC Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"We've been living together for two years. It's about time we got married."

Inger Stevens made this statement about her television series, The Farmer's Daughter. For nigh unto two seasons she has been playing Katie, the winsome housekeeper for Minnesota Congressman William Windom in the ABC show, and their relationship has caused raised eyebrows among the more literal television watchers.

"Yes, we've had a bit of mail asking when we were going to get married," Inger admitted. "It seems to have upset some of the viewers that Katie has been living under the same roof with the man she obviously loves. She gets a kiss from him now and then, and on one show he even carried her upstairs in his arms."

TO WED

Katie's integrity will be upheld later this season with an engagement to the handsome congressman.

"She'll have to move out of the house, of course," said Inger. "It's the right for her to stay there as long as they weren't engaged. Now is would be proper."

It may be a long engagement. At least the public will wed until next season—if then.

"I think the producers plan to wait and see what the mail reaction will be to the idea of a marriage," the Swedish-born actress remarked. "Maybe people won't like the idea."

Swedes Defeat Canucks

GOTEBURG, Sweden (CP-AP)—Sweden's national hockey team defeated Canada here 4-1 Friday. It was the Canadians' first setback in three European exhibition games.

The Canadian team, composed largely of players from Winnipeg Junior Canadiens, last year's Canadian senior champions, had defeated Finland 2-0 and 4-3 in the previous games. The team plays two more exhibition games in Sweden and then goes on to Moscow for a three-game series.

DOESN'T LIKE DEAL

MONTREAL (CP) — H. R. (Ted) Hill, president of Montreal Alouettes, said Friday he isn't satisfied with a contract offered by McGill University for rental of McGill Stadium for the 1965 season. He said the contract calls for rental of the stadium, minus 4,000 choice bleacher seats Mc-Gill wants to remove to make way for a climber running track. Alouettes want the seats to remain where they are along the 50-yard line.

University of Toronto Blues Monday ousted visiting University of Montreal Carabins get in the way of their title drive.

The Blues, leaders in the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Hockey association since the season opened, cancelled the Carabins' 7-2 victory over University of Guelph Redmen Friday night with a 4-1 win over University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Toronto assured itself of at least a tie for first place. Winners in 14 of 15 games this year, they need only a tie in their last game to clinch the title. The Carabins, with 12 wins in 14 games, have a game in hand over Toronto but will need two victories even to close on the Blues.

In the only other league action Friday night, University of Waterloo Warriors scored twice in the last six minutes to tie Queen's University Golden Gaels 5-5 at Kitchener.

Says Expo Won't Go In 1967

WINNIPEG (CP) — If financing cannot be found for the Pan - American Games, Canada's World's Fair will not be ready in time for the 1967 centennial and will be staged in 1968.

"I'll make you an even bet that Expo 67 won't go on in 1967," Riley said. "The only thing Canada is going to have in 1967 is the Pan - American Games and it looks like we can't afford the $1,000,000 needed to put them on."

The meeting was held to inform the subcommittee of plans for the Games. Riley and Mr. Metrio decide if it should become financially involved.

The games society estimated the cost of staging the games at $5,000,000 with an estimated $2,077,000 deficit.

To date, federal, provincial and city commitments amount to $2,220,000, leaving about $857,000 uncommitted.

Cat, Skunks Figure In Rabies Outbreak

REGINA (CP)—There's more to a skunk than sometimes meets the nostrils. In Saskatchewan, the striped fur bits has been more fatal than the distinctive attribute.

And that athletic looking stray cat may be a killer. Don't pick it up.

Rabid animals have been a factor in outbreaks of rabies in the province during the last three years, Dr. L. C. Fredeen, deputy health minister, in a statement.

Since the disease outbreak was detected a year ago 35 persons have been bitten, scratched or clawed by animals. Two deaths have been reported, but anti-rabies injections had to be given in each case.

Dr. Clarkson said stray cats and skunks appeared to be the chief carriers and both had spread the outbreak to cattle and other farm animals.

He cautioned residents against approaching any animal which behaves in a strange or unusual manner. Children should be warned against picking up such animals, he said.

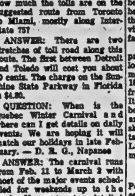
The outbreak in Saskatchewan, which has moved westward from the border with Manitoba, has prompted Alberta officials to try to prevent the movement of rabid animals from province from Saskatchewan. This work in 1963 will be undertaken with a similar program involving rats. Alberta claims to be rat-free.

The severity of the outbreak in Saskatchewan has prompted the government to initiate a rabies control program, involving destruction and trying south of the Qu'Appelle River to the Alberta border westward from the Saskatchewan - Manitoba border to a line running from Prince Albert to Swift Current.

Each municipality has been issued with a supply of smoke bombs, strychnine and poison for animals while they are in dens or under old buildings where air space is limited.

Health department fieldmen are also to use a new heavier-than-air type of gas-driven dart gun and specially-treated eggs.

Dr. Clarkson said he was concerned particularly because in spite of extremely cold weather, which normally curtails animal activity, the occurrence of rabies was still being noted.



AREN'T ALL GUARDED

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer said Friday that not all armories are under 24-hour guard to prevent acts of sabotage by Separatist groups. He made the statement in the Commons after Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) suggested that such guards now could be removed in the interest of taxpayers.

SPORT IN GOOD SHAPE — Scuba diving is growing in popularity among girls in the Vancouver area. Among the most enthusiastic are Mrs. Peter Hartman (left) and Sonja Glasgow. Scuba Diving Is Growing In Popularity Amo ng Girls

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scuba diving has gone co-educational on the Pacific Coast.

Equipped with the best in scuba and snorkel livery, women are joining expeditions to favorite sea haunts, shrinking from none of those wiggly, crawly things that every good ocean offers.

Daring has nothing to do with it, says Sonja Glasgow, 30-year-old mother of three and perhaps the most enthusiastic among a dozen girls who have seized on the sport.

She has been in the water at least twice a week, week in and week out, for six years. Few challenges go unanswered by her, and she is pondering a couple right now.

One is to form a women's team for an underwater hockey league operating in a Vancouver pool.

MAY TRY OCTOPUSES

The other is to enter an annual west Coast Hunt for octopuses.

"Not too many women have gone on the octopus grapple, she mused recently as she pulled the last shirt from a washer, finishing her work for the day at a North Vancouver cleaning firm.

"Now that would be a lot of fun, wouldn't it?"

Sonja will inevitably find out. She has an ideal background for the pursuit, which stalks divers to the Strait of Juan de Fuca from as far away as California.

Two-man teams frighten the octopuses out of their lairs, and the winner is the team that brings the biggest one back.

"They come 40 to 50 pounds around here, some of them much larger," said Sonja. "They're quite docile. You force them out with copper sulphate, then you grab them in the pouch at the side of the head."

Sonja and her friends prowl bays near Vancouver, always armed with spearguns. They go after everything that moves, and they've become seafood connoisseurs.

URCHINS UNSAVORY

"We try anything once. Ling, rock cod, octopus, abalone. I must say I didn't like raw scallops and sea urchin omelette."

Sonja, who is separated from her husband, has children seven, nine and 10. They go along on expeditions, although she doesn't want them diving until they are 15 or 16.

The group usually starts diving in scuba outfits—form-fitting, self-contained underwater breathing apparatus. Once their compressed-air tanks are used up, usually in an hour or so under water, they switch to snorkels, which are simple breathing tubes for shallow underwater swimming.

Last year at a contest off Vancouver Island, Sonja speared an 86-pound skate, a ray-fish that flashes a dangerous, razor-sharp tail.

"I had never seen one before and I didn't know I could be cut," she said. "It took me down three or four times. I would just get a breath of air and down it would go again. When I landed it I couldn't even pull it out myself."

The skate measured 49 inches by 68 inches. She is waiting on a check with the Underwater Society of America to determine whether it is a world record.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Newly-retired Husband Pens A Love Letter to His Wife

By THOMAS COLLINS

A letter from a newly-retired man to his wife:

Dearly Beloved:

In coming home with my pension, to live with you for 24 hours a day, I do what I wanted to do the day I married you and what I've wanted to do these 40 years since. I didn't marry you so that I could work. I worked so that I could marry you and live with you.

In these 40 years I figure that 100,000 hours of this pleasure have been taken from me — that's about how many hours I've been away on the job since we married. In the retirement years that stretch out before us I intend that we live so fully that I get some of that pleasure back.

If I could, I would have it that I come home to you as the pretty fellow you married, with wavy black hair on top — with any sort of hair on top; with a waistline a belt would go around; with feet and legs that still could chase you around the dining-room table. I don't come home to you with any of those, but I come with a deeper dedication to you than the pretty young fellow could have had. I come with affection that has been 40 years in the-making.

AN EXPLANATION

I am beholden to you for many things: that I am alive at 65, because you made me wear the overshoes and petted me through my illnesses; that I held my job until 65, because you kissed me off to it every morning and home from it at night . . . except for that night in 1946 when you threw the frying pan at me; that no matter what difficulties I had at the company I kept my pride, because you always told me I was right when everybody all the way down in the office boy knew I wasn't; that you never worried me about other men — not too much that is: that you never spent more than I could make.

What I have — insurance, pension, savings, everything — is certainly half yours. Or more. You have earned it.

I think you are much like our sterling knives and forks. The more I use you and the older you grow, the lovelier you get.

I could not find another woman at this stage of my life who could bend to my peculiarities and bear to live with me. I could not hire a young maid who could serve me as well as you do, who could suit me as well, or who would work for the half of my pension you get.

I'm afraid you are stuck with me for the 20-odd years I expect to live. And I'm glad you are.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

With that off my chest, I'd like to suggest to you a couple of things:

I was considered a fairly important man at the company. Don't make me a flunky at home. I'll do any menial task you do . . . just not all of them, at your bidding.

I get the morning paper at 9 a.m. and the afternoon papers at 3:30 p.m. I like to read them in peace, then hear the TV news. Will you please serve (a) breakfast and (b) supper at some period except just at these times.

And for Pete's sake stop rattling around the living room while I'm enjoying the papers and TV. There ought to be some other time of day to dust and run the vacuum cleaner.

You have many women friends drifting in for visits. Will you please make them understand that you are their hostess but I am not their host. That I don't have to greet them, sit down with them, or say good-by, but can go on about my affairs.

And on this subject, will you please stop the notion that I can be chauffeur for all your maiden friends who don't have cars. How did they get around before I retired?

Finally, we have two fine, vacant bedrooms since the children grew up and left. I would like one of these, bed and all, as my own private hideway. Not as My private bedroom — I prefer you — but as a place to steal a nap, accumulate junk and stuff, throw things on the floor, or escape for some peace and quiet.

Give me these things, give me a little time to adjust, and I'll be the finest fellow you ever retired with.

Devotedly,

Your loving husband.

Hope Revived As Miner Lives 3 Days In Snow

Launch Frantic Search For 13 Missing Miners

STEWART, B.C.-(CP) — The "miracle" recovery of a miner who lived for more than three days encased in snow and ice has touched off a frantic search today for 13 other men missing at the nearby Grandue mining camp, buried under an avalanche Thursday.

Finnish - born Einar Myllyla, 32, was found in a pocket of air under six feet of snow Sunday. He was lying on his stomach and covered in rolls of plastic sheets. His hands and feet were frozen chalk white.

Rescue leaders said his recovery alive was a miracle.

At least 14 bodies have been recovered from the glacial slide which obliterated the wilderness camp 30 miles north of this coastal settlement at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Stewart is about 500 air miles up the Pacific Coast from Vancouver.

Two of the dead were brothers, Rodney L. and R. Blake Rose of Vancouver. It was not known if Franklin Rose, also killed in the slide, was related to them.

CONDITION SERIOUS

Twenty injured men, including Myllyla, have been taken to hospital in nearby Ketchikan, Alaska. A doctor at Ketchikan said Myllyla's condition is serious and the bachelor carpenter would probably have to have parts of his hands and feet amputated. More than 100 men escaped uninjured.

Rescuers went into round-the-clock efforts to find the missing men beneath heavy, wet snow despite threats of more slides and the bachelor carpenter surrounding Grandue.

Myllyla spoke coherently when he was found. "Don't give up hope," he said as he was unravelled from the plastic sheets.

He airlifted to hospital at Ketchikan, Alaska, he said he "thought the most wonderful things" during his 69-hour ordeal.

Charge One After Eight Picked Up

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCMP is to forward a report to the FBI on a series of raids in Montreal and suburban St. Laurent by a special police squad, in connection with an alleged plot in the United States to blow up the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

The special squad picked up eight persons in the raids and seized some papers and magazines. One of the eight, Joseph Jean Dagenais, 25, was charged with illegal possession of a revolver.

Police also picked up Danielle Decloe whose sister, Michelle, was arrested in New York last Tuesday along with three men on charges of conspiracy in the alleged plot. Miss Decloe, who was questioned and then released late Friday night, was said to have left Montreal to go to New York. Two others also were released after questioning.

Det.-Sgt. Claude Desautels, acting head of the special squad, said 35 policemen took part in raids on some 30 houses and haunts of Quebec separatists.

He said he and his men were looking for dynamite "and any other possible connection we could find" in connection with the U.S. case.

APPEARS IN COURT

Dagenais, arrested Friday, appeared in court and was remanded in custody pending a hearing this week.

The raids began Thursday night and ended Saturday.

Miners Spilled Unashamed Tears In Greeting Families After Disaster

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tough hard-rock miners and construction men from the southern Alberni wilderness spilled unashamed tears Saturday night as they greeted their families after the Granduc mining camp disaster.

They told of the horrors of the crushing glacial slide that obliterated the camp, burying some 30 fellow workers and injuring 17 more.

"I'm all right; I'm all right," cried one miner, as he came running down his cheeks, as he hugged his wife.

The scene was repeated many times as the 110 able survivors arrived by chartered turbo-prop aircraft from Stewart, B.C., Alaska. The injured were still in hospital at Ketchikan.

One woman later sat alone in a corner, weeping silently.

The survivors of the slide at the northwestern British Columbia mine told of the groans and screams of men dying beneath tons of crushing weight of up to 10 feet of snow; of finding some men alive and feeling others dead and lifeless; of living on chocolate bars while digging with bare hands in the snow, before Thursday morning's slide and of the rumbling mountains after the first one.

Innis Kelly of Vancouver, a Pacific Western Airlines radio operator, was the first to tell his tale.

"It was noiseless, not a sound. It was like watching a huge white wave with bulldozers and cats and men rolling on the top of the crest.

"When it was over the men were just gone. Just gone, that's all."

Kelly patched together a radio transmitter—using bulldozer batteries for power—and sent distress calls for 18 hours, not knowing whether anyone was receiving them.

Between calls, every 15 minutes, he helped look for buried men.

"It was just terrible. Everybody in my bunkhouse . . .

"The night shift, 35 men, were sleeping. They were buried alive. We got some of them out . . . they were crying and healing their heads against the timbers trying to get free when we found them."

Ralph Lovatie, 59, of Edmonton, spent more than five hours buried alive in the snow.

"I didn't hear anything. First thing I knew I woke up underground with 10 or 15 feet of snow over my head.

"I guess I was knocked out for a while. I had some air but I could hardly move. Everything, my feet and hands, were all numb, and the snow was mixed with a lot of water.

"I just stood there, hollering for help and praying, and I was sure I would get out. I didn't give up hope. And I made it."

The survivors also told of three days of snow that preceded the slide.

"It didn't stop snowing for a minute—not a whole three days," said Alfred Wiegand, 34, of Merritt, B.C. "The night before the slide we heard a small one come down in the mountains. It didn't come near the camp, but we were a little scared.

"Then the next morning it came down. And all that day and that night the slides kept coming down from the mountains but not over the camp.

"You could hear the mountains rumbling all night."

The survivors gulped chocolate bars, the only food, and dug in the snow with their hands — their power equipment was buried. Dozens of men were found. Some were not.

House Nearing Close

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospects look a tiny bit brighter for Prime Minister Pearson's forecast of three weeks to wind up the business of the current parliamentary session and clear the decks for a new one.

The 25-minutes labor standards bill was the first item of business brought before the Commons when it sat Tuesday after a two-month break. By Friday the bill was given second reading, approval in principle, and awaits only the formality of third reading, probably today.

However, the labor code was considered the least contentious of the legislative items Mr. Pearson said he hoped to clean up in a three-week sting rounding off the session.

Still to come are the Canada Pension Plan and a formula for provinces who choose to stay out of federal - provincial tax-collecting.

TALK OF THREE MONTHS

Some opposition MPs have been talking about three months as a more likely figure than three weeks to clear up the legislative hangover.

What former Conservative health minister J. Waldo Monteith called the "fifth edition" of the pension plan came before the House during the week with the government announcement on reducing to 65 from 70 the age of eligibility for the old age assistance payments.

The eligible age for the payments would drop a year for each year until 1970, when all persons age 65 would get the assistance payment, currently $75 a month.

Although this step met general support in the Commons, Mr. Monteith and other Conservative MPs served notice at a press conference they plan to battle for other revisions in the plan when it comes before the House.

The opting - out formula has also run into opposition and could play a part in stretching out the session past Mr. Pearson's three weeks.

Second Blizzard in Four Days Hitting the Prairies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As residents of the Maritime provinces today dug out from under one of the worst snow storms of the season, the Prairie provinces were bracing themselves for the second blizzard in four days.

Storm conditions across Canada during the weekend contributed to a rash of traffic deaths and accidents.

There was little hope of respite for the Prairies as blizzard warnings were posted in southwestern Saskatchewan for a storm moving in from southern Alberta and gaining momentum.

Three persons died in a wind-whipped fire Saturday as winds up to 68 miles an hour buffeted Manitoba, stranding motorists and curtailing air and ground traffic.

The fire in Lac du Bonnet, 70 miles northwest of Winnipeg, destroyed a bakery shop and three adjoining business buildings. Michael Baldesa, 34, and his two pre - school children, Michael, 2, and Veronica, 5, were burned to death.

Northwestern Ontario took the brunt of the storm after it moved off the Prairies Sunday night. Winds up to 40 miles an hour piled drifts in southern sections of Ontario most of the weekend snowfall, was hit by a cold front Sunday night with temperatures falling to 10 degrees in Montreal and zero in Quebec city.

Cape Breton Island was caught under 15.6 inches of snow during the weekend. At least four coaches in Nova Scotia were blamed on the storm.

Harshest hit was the Sydney-Glace Bay area. The storm

Erhard Weakens Position By Cutting Back Aid

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard has weakened his position in the Middle East by cutting back West Germany's development aid program.

He has been outbid in the United Arab Republic by his arch-enemy, Communist East Germany's president, Walter Ulbricht. He could find himself in the same position in other Arab-bloc countries.

East Germany offered the United Arab Republic $78,000,000 in loans, with the understanding the deal would be signed by Ulbricht on a visit to Cairo. Erhard has only about $50,000,000 available this year for new development aid projects.

When West Germany threatened to cut off development aid to the UAR if the Ulbricht visit comes off, President Gamal Abdel Nasser showed no alarm. He has now agreed with the plans to receive Ulbricht.

This looks like a major diplomatic defeat for West Germany.

Insecticide Rubbed on Heads Kills 28 Orphans in Angola

LISBON (AP) — Insecticide applied as a hair disinfectant is believed to have killed 28 orphans in an orphanage at Angola during the weekend, Portuguese police said here today.

Angola is an African colony belonging to Portugal.

Police said beans eaten by the children on Friday night was not the cause of death as previously supposed. It was found that all the victims had their heads treated for lice after eating supper. The alcohol with which they were supposed to be rubbed was in a can beside which stood similar cans containing a potent insecticide, police said.

After the children's heads had been rubbed, they became dizzy, vomited and choked.

Khanh's Exile Sought

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP)—New military activity around Saigon airport revived tension today as South Viet Nam's new junta tried to force Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the ousted armed forces commander, to go into exile.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that the "young turk" generals who toppled Khanh already had begun squabbling. One report said the 1st Corps commander, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, and the air force commander, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Ky, were contending for power.

The Armed Forces Council announced earlier today that Khanh had consented to quit his command of the armed forces after failing to rally sufficient force to keep him in power.

Khanh was staying at Dalat, a mountain resort, 200 miles northeast of Saigon. The council sent three emissaries to try to persuade him to leave South Viet Nam.

The military leaders conferred throughout the night behind locked doors at Saigon airport. The airport was reopened to traffic at dawn, but 10 more troops from anti-aircraft guns around the airport headquarters building and drew up recoilless rifles at entrances to the field, indicating that the crisis was not over.

(Reuters news agency said a Kyodo news agency dispatch received in Tokyo said columns of troops loyal to Khanh were advancing toward Saigon late today.

(The dispatch said the columns were expected to reach Saigon's outskirts by tonight. It quoted observers in the city as saying the situation had again become "very grave.")

Reports that troops were moving on Saigon Sunday night produced confusion and alarm here, but reconnaissance planes dropping flares on highways in the city Sunday night reported no significant troop movements underway.

The South Vietnamese Air Force warned it will bomb any troops moving on Saigon.

A Reuter unconfirmed report said the 5th Cavalry unit of about 50 tanks might still be loyal to Khanh.

Despite all the alarms and threats, there had been no shooting since the latest upheaval began Friday.

The generals of the Armed Forces Council ordered the ouster of Khanh after crushing an attempted coup against him Friday. Sunday they stripped him of his title of commander-in-chief, named Maj. Gen. Tran Van Minh "temporary acting chairman" of the council, or chief of the armed forces, and voted to send Khanh into exile.

Walk Softly; Carry Big Stick Is Advice to Moon Travellers

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The first man on the moon should walk softly and carry a big stick.

So says the head of a scientific team studying more than 7,000 pictures beamed to earth during the final 23 minutes before the Ranger VIII spacecraft crashed into the face of the moon.

Dr. Gerard Kuiper, chief of the five - man team, said he has said the photographic bonanza indicates the lunar surface may be a frothy dust and foam of lava that might hide dangerous tunnels and caverns.

"There could be very tricky and treacherous stuff," said Kuiper, of University of Arizona. "Many parts of the moon might be hard enough to support considerable weight, but an explorer could not assume that he would be safe everywhere.

"It may be that the first astronauts would be wise to carry long poles to probe the surface ahead of them to be sure it wouldn't swallow them up."

As with the 4,316 photos relayed last July 31 by Ranger VII, the same five men disagreed among themselves over what the new, high - quality photos showed, but agreed that they were not surprised.

Ranger VIII's six television cameras returned sharp close-ups of lunar mountains and plains in the final minutes of its death plunge into the flat, cratered, dusty floor of Tranquility, 15 miles from its original target. Its impact point was 1,000 miles east of where Ranger VII crashed in the Mare Cognitum.

Kuiper said he saw evidence that much of the moon's surface is covered with three to six feet of loose, lava-like material, similar to cavern-marked lava areas on Hawaii. He surmised that the material is volcanic overflow, a thin crust of solidified foam.

But Ewen Whitaker, Kuiper's associate at Arizona, said he felt the surface—which he to ok photos of many lava—would uphold the weight of soft-landing manned spacecraft.

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at La Jolla, Calif., said, showers of their bottoms a "whilish button" which may be the moon's solid core beneath the dust.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, another team member, said he doesn't believe pictures can reveal the surface's strength but added that the photos did show the surfaces of the seas where Rangers VII and VIII crashed to be "substantially the same."

The United States hopes to land astronauts on the moon in the Apollo spacecraft within five years.

Malcolm X Dies After Being Shot At Public Rally

Suffers Dozen Wounds, Young Negro Charged

By MALCOLM STEPHENSON

NEW YORK (AP)—A 22-year-old Negro today faced a homicide charge in the assassination of Malcolm X, a black nationalist leader.

Malcolm X, 39, died in a volley of shotgun and pistol fire as he started to address a rally of his Muslim splinter group in an upper Manhattan ballroom Sunday.

A homicide charge was lodged early today against a man identified by the FBI as Talmadge Hayer, 22, also Thomas Hayer, a Negro from Paterson, N.J.

Police said at least five persons were believed involved in the killing—as Malcolm X was reported preparing to identify assassins he charged had been seeking his life.

It could not be learned whether Hayer is a Black Muslim.

Leaders of the sect—which has three wives and 11 children X of plotting his death—denied any knowledge of the killing. Malcolm X had been ousted in 1963 from the Black Muslim sect headed by Elijah Muhammad of Chicago and founded a rival group.

BLAME SITTER BREACH

Police called the assassination—in which Malcolm X suffered more than a dozen wounds—an outgrowth of the bitter breach between the organization of Afro American Unity headed by Malcolm and Elijah Muhammad's Black Muslims.

A dozen Muslims, whose spokesman said they were not followers of Malcolm X, got in touch with police today in an effort to arrange a Muslim funeral for him.

The unidentified spokesman for the Muslim delegation told reporters Muslim rites require that the man should not rise and set twice on the body of a dead Muslim."

Malcolm was shot on the stage at a rally in the Washington Heights section, north of Harlem. His wife, Betty, 35, awaiting the birth of their fifth child, was in the hall.

Malcolm had risen to address a gathering of 500 followers and sympathizers, then a commotion apparently broke out in the rear of the second floor ballroom. It drew bodyguards away from Malcolm and in the direction of the disorder.

Under this cloak of confusion, three men with revolvers and a sawed-off shotgun raced down

27 New Cardinals Created

From Reuters-AP

VATICAN CITY (CCP)-Pope Paul created 27 new princes of the Roman Catholic Church at a secret consistory today, bringing the membership of the Sacred College of Cardinals to 103 members, highest in the history of the church.

The new cardinals include two from North America — Archbishops Maurice Roy of Quebec and Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore—three from Communist nations, three middle East patriarchs, and prelates from Africa and Asia.

This give the college its widest international representation in history, 41 countries now are represented.

After the formal creation of the 27 new cardinals from 22 countries, Pope Paul and 36 members of the college met in the Apostolic Palace's consistorial hall. The Pope announced nominations of the 27 Jan. 25, but approval of the order cardinals was required.

They were the first cardinals he has named in his 26-month-old reign. He has said he will name more after the Vatican ecumenical council ends later this year.

After the secret consistory, papal messengers fanned out across Rome to give formal notification to 26 of the new prelates waiting at four Catholic establishments in the city.

RELEASED BY REDS

The three cardinalis from Communist lands are Archbishop Franjo Kepar of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Josef of Prague, Czechoslovakia, and Josef Slipyj, primate of Ukrainian Catholics.

Archbishop Beran came to Rome last Friday after 16 years of confinement in Czechoslovakia. He will remain in Rome. Archbishop Slipyj has been living in Rome since he was released from confinement in Siberia two years ago.

They were the first prelates from Communist lands to be named.

Polygamy in Moslem World May Be Fast Dying Out

By ALY MAHMOUD

CAIRO (AP)—Time may be running out for polygamy in the Moslem world.

"God originally permitted polygamy to help Moslems solve many problems that could not be solved otherwise," says Sheikh Abu Zahra. "But a Moslem was required to have strong reasons to commit polygamy. Lust is not a sufficient reason."

Moslems generally are permitted four wives.

Abu Zahra, professor of Islamic law at Cairo University, is spokesman for a group that advocates new interpretations of the Koran.

"Polygamists will be surprised and dismayed when doomsday strikes," he said. "God will tell them then that they have been abusing his laws and they will end up in hell. So I warn you—get rid of your extra wives."

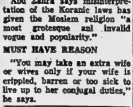
Abu Zahra says misinterpretation of the Koranic laws has given the Moslem religion "a most grotesque and invalid vogue and popularity."

MUST HAVE REASON

"You may take an extra wife or wives only if your wife is crippled, barren or too sick to live up to her conjugal duties," he says.

As of now, Abu Zahra's theme amounts to no more than an individual belief, given much prominence in the local press. But if his views are adopted by the conclave of Al-Azhar, Islam's most respected religious seminary, some 17.6 per cent of Egypt's married population may face the charge of adultery.

It is unlikely that President Gamal Abdel Nasser's socialist government will adopt such far-reaching views overnight, and polygamists should be safe, as far as state laws are concerned, for the time being.



Actually, polygamy has long been an economic impossibility for most people in Egypt. Prices are skyrocketing and costs of marriage and support are more than most people can afford.

Consequently, polygamy is most widespread among those who can't afford it. Educated Egyptians appear to be more cautious.

The Nasser administration recently moved to the threats of overpopulation and branded polygamy as one of many factors responsible. Official figures indicate Egypt's population will more than double within the next 20 years.

Nasser has not directly attacked established religious rules, but has named a special committee to solve the problems of over-population.

A Quinte Curling Club rink led Bill Splaadl, Al McCallum, Ron Bevin with Mac White as skip won the primary event at the Cobourg Curling Club over the weekend. The game that put them into the fours played on Friday night against Mal Stoddrom of the RCAF was a classic. The score was three to one in favour of the Quinte rink and Stjostrom missed a tie by a quarter of an inch.

In the semi-final game White's rink defeated Fred Brown of Cobourg 9-4 in eight ends and in the evening match defeated Cliff Titford and his rink from Ajax 17-3 the game being ended after eight ends of a ten-end contest. The winning rink members each received an electric carving knife.

On Saturday the C.N.R. was in charge of the clubhouse when they staged their friendly matches with Quebec and Montreal curlers. There were four rinks from Montreal, three from Quebec and five from this terminal. This was a mixed rink competition and a fine social and enjoyable time was had by all.

Plans are nearly completed for the TriQuinte mixed spiel that will be staged on three rinks starting a week from Wednesday and running through until Saturday. It is expected that eighty rinks from the district and outside points will compete. Ross Rook, of the Quinte Curling Club is general chairman of the spiel and stated that the draws in this event will be played at the local rink on the Saturday night. Three trophies and accompanying prizes will be competed for with the Alexander Vending Machine Company as one of the sponsors. In order to complete the draws within the three days a number of the local rinks will start play on the Wednesday at all three rinks.

Ice on Bay 18 Inches Thick

Ice on the Bay of Quinte lost-es in thickness at this time of year to about 18 inches, fisheries operator Herb McCabe.

Presently the ice is 18 inches thick in most places, thinner than in other years, due to the spell of continued thawing early in the month, he said. In other years bay ice would be two feet thick after a long cold winter ran into late February.

Fresh Fish To Cost More

Don't expect to pay any less for fresh fish from local sources.

The retail price, 20 per cent higher than last year, is the result of supplies curtailed by low water and pollution a spokesman at the Bay of Quinte Fisheries said today. Carp, Perch and Mudcats are some of the varieties available now.

Little Chance of Sharing Cost of Children's Aid Worker in North Hastings

Children's Aid Society would experience difficulty in trying to sell the services of a proposed full time caseworker in the northern part of the county to other agencies, according to society director Bruce Kerr.

Mr. Kerr reporting to the regular meeting of the society said he had contacted the four other children's aid societies serving the area adjacent to north Hastings and had learned that in light of impending amalgamation of the Haliburton, Victoria and Peterborough Societies, there appeared to be little or no likelihood of the local society selling services to other agencies — a measure which it was hoped might serve to reduce the cost.

The council of the County of Hastings asked the society to consider the proposal recently in the northern district.

The matter is not closed, however, since Mr. Kerr plans to meet the finance committee of Hastings County Council in the near future for further discussion on the subject.

The president, Dr. S. C. Ross, announced that agreements in respect of school attendance communication services to the Belleville Public School Board and the Bay of Quinte District High School Board had been signed for the year 1965. For the past several years the Society has provided this service to the two local boards with each board meeting in full the cost of the monthly bills.

S. L. L. B. MacQuarrie spoke of the work done to date by his committee on Family Counselling Services and stated that consideration was now being given to ways and means of financing. He felt that it was imperative that action be taken immediately or else the project would, in all probability, be shelved for another year.

CARE FOR 148

Bruce Kerr, the local director, reported 148 children in the care of the Society at the end of January, and that the 742 fewer days' care had been provided in the first month of the period in 1964. He said that the court had established the Society's rate for children this year at $3.10 per day. However, the actual cost of services in 1964 had been $2.94 per day and the difference between that and $3.10 was a deficit which the Society had to absorb. Provision for a number of years and was unable to pick up by reason of the steadily declining number of children in care. He said that unless the Society's intake increased substantially, the deficit would not be recovered in 1965, even though the rate had been increased for that purpose. Increased boarding home rates, clothing costs, medical costs, etc., upped the expenditure annually and therefore, the Society's income by which was predicted on the costs of the year previous, did not keep pace.

Said Mr. Kerr, "Deficit financing is difficult to explain — let alone understand. I have reason to believe the present method of computing our costs is to be replaced by another at the current sitting of the legislature. Let us hope it is not so complicated."

HENRY IRWIN (JOHN) (Girling)

Following an illness of six years' duration Henry Irwin (John) Loy died at the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. He was in his 83rd year.

Mr. Loy had been a resident of the Huntingdon for 13 years. He lived in Toronto before moving to this district.

Born at East Lawrencetown, Nova Scotia, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Loy. He was a mechanic by trade.

Surviving are his wife the former Goldie Conley; one son Innis Loy of Florida; five brothers Percy of Franklin, Mass, Clifford of Halifax, N.S., Murray of Calgary, Alta., Edgar of Gladstone, Man. and Gilson of East Lawrencetown, N.S. A sister predeceased.

Mr. Loy was Presbyterian by faith.

Resting at the Duffin Funeral Home at Stirling. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

HERBERT O. WALKOM

Funeral service for a former school teacher, Herbert Orvel Walkom, was held in the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Saturday.

The service was conducted by the Rev. H. M. Davis, minister of Bethel United Church, who also officiated at the graveside in Belleville cemetery.

The pallbearers were: L. A. Kells, John M. Cousins, Kenneth Bird, Kenneth Harnden, Martin Mumby and Claris. John Parrott and H. R. Frink.

Active bearers were: Robert Horwood, Lawrence Mooney, Don Lockyear, Merritt Hackett, Robert Moorcroft and Gordon Anderson.

JOSEPH FREDERICK KOSIR (Slatan)

The funeral of Joseph Frederick Kosir, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kosir of Batawa, was held from local society last undertaken a project of this nature, chiefly because the Local Involved but he was of the opinion that in light of present day cost of caring for a child at a ward of the Society, he had no alternative but to implement the program.

Mr. Kerr said these families, if admitted to ward care, would cost the Society $2,000 unless the city of Belleville as much as $8,000 to $10,000 a year—a figure he thought on the years and years. It is quite possible that one family alone could save the Society $5,000."

He said that representation had already been made to the city by the Society at present at last year's level and that an increased allocation would be justified by the increased costs. Services to unmarried parents, the investigation of complaints alleging ill-treatment or neglect, private adoptions, etc., are handled by another member of the staff. Thus at the present time the Society is in fact supplying the services of one social worker full time and a second at least half time.

Mr. Kerr said that the Society does not create social problems but that the people expect an adequate service and that the Society must attempt to meet the demands that are made of it. If it does not act promptly and work effectively it is subject to criticism and criticism. The only answer is to increase the working staff—and to look to the community to pay for it.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to discussion of the forthcoming annual general dinner meeting to be held at Belleville on March 4th. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Ernest C. Arbuckle, Director of the Family Counselling Services of Peterborough. The meeting is open to the public.

Mazinaw Lake Cottagers Are Queried Regarding 41 Highway Re-location

Owners of private cottages on Mazinaw Lake north and south of Bon Echo provincial park are being asked whether they approve of the Ontario Department of Highways proposal to re-locate a four-and-one-half mile section of 41 highway and turn back sections of the present roadway to the local townships.

The proposal of the highways department is to by-pass the main use area of Bon Echo Park and turn over to the municipality portions of present Highway 41 now serving private cottage sites.

The re-alignment of the highway in the proposed location and closure of old 41 highway through the park area is said by the Department of Lands and Forests to be extremely important to the future administration and development of Bon Echo Park.

SEVERAL DANGEROUS CURVES

Because of ever increasing truck and other traffic and the sub-standard condition of the present roadway it is now necessary to rebuild either in the present location or along a bypass route about one mile west of the existing road.

The section of highway under consideration involves several extremely dangerous curves and grades and is situated in heavily used park area as well as being close to a built up cottage area along Mazinaw Lake.

The proposed new location of the highway and closure of the present road would not only provide fo rthe orderly development of the overall park plan but would make for good traffic control through one main park entrance.

Long term planning by the Department of Lands and Forests for its Bon Echo park includes existing use of the park area on both sides of the existing through highway.

500 CAMP SITES

Established about five years ago, the Bon Echo Park now has about 400 camping sites, with plans providing for an increase to a maximum of 1,000 camp sites within the next 20 years.

"There is no suggestion that camp sites, would be increased by this maximum next year or in the near future," stated District Forester J. M. Taylor of Tweed.

The camp sites would only be increased if there was a need for them, keeping in mind any possible danger of lake pollution.

Mr. Taylor said his department was conscious of possible over-utilization of the area, but at the same time noted 1,500 would-be campers were turned away from the park last year.

about 20 miles east of Peterborough.

Sunday night a two-car collision on 33 Highway just south of the 401 underpass north of Brighton, sent two persons to hospital for emergency treatment and caused property damage amounting to about $350.

War Supplies Agency Said In Bad Shape

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The War Supplies Agency, part of the emergency supply planning branch of the department of national defence, exists only on paper and is in "chaotic" shape, Judge John Kennedy said Saturday.

The agency is responsible for control of production, distribution and pricing of supplies in Canada in event of attack.

Judge Kennedy, a retired Peterborough County judge, spoke to members of the agency at a Zone 4 conference at nearby Rockhaven.

At present, no one has power to carry out emergency measures that would have to be taken in event of a nuclear attack, he said. All that exists are documents in draft form, undated, with black spaces and unsigned.

He called "fantastic" a plan whereby in event of an attack a message would be sent from WSA national headquarters to regional directors and then to zone officials.

"The only practical strategy of nuclear warfare is to attack without warning and it is most improbable that in the event of an attack, any message would ever be sent from national headquarters," said Judge Kennedy. .

Three Killed In 3-Car Collision

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Three persons were killed and two others injured Saturday night in a three-car collision on Highway 7, about seven miles east of here.

Staffing New Colleges Will Be Problem

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Unless a crash training program is launched to provide specially-trained teachers, proposed community colleges in Ontario will be ready to open before they can be staffed, says Harold Dean of Toronto, deputy general secretary of the Ontario secondary School Teachers' Federation.

Mr. Dean said Saturday Education Minister William Davis is committed to the idea of community colleges. Serious thought must therefore be given to staffing them.

Since community colleges are envisaged as independent in course content from universities, they cannot be staffed by university professors, who are in short supply anyway, he said.

Each community college would be designed to fit the needs of the community it represents.

"Conceivably, specially-trained secondary school teachers could provide the instruction the community colleges will provide," he said. "But even now for secondary schools, there are not enough to these teaching specialists to go around."

On National Unity

A very interesting and valid comment about national unity was recently offered by Senator Wallace McCutcheon.

"The time will have to come—it is perhaps overdue—when the government of Canada will insist that there are positions that are not up for sale or rent or trade, that there are limits, that there are things that are permanent, matters that are inviolable, that while many things are flexible, some are not, and that there are values that are not thrown into the pot to be played for with the other stakes," he observed.

What Senator McCutcheon means is that ground rules and guide lines will have to be established on behalf of the whole country in respect to the dealings between the federal and provincial levels of government. In order to do this, he notes, it will also be necessary to establish exactly what long-term changes are considered to be realistic, necessary and desirable. . .

Senator McCutcheon is careful to point out he is not proposing a cultural division of the country.

"I suppose the people in Quebec are growing tired of hearing the question: 'What is it that Quebec wants?' And they cannot be blamed if they wonder where Canada stands, what the rest of Canada wants, as much as the rest of us wonder where they stand.

"Somebody, some federal government, some national party—and I think it should be ours—owes it to Quebec and to Canada to go to Quebec and tell them what Canada wants, what we want for all Canada, exactly what role we envision for Quebec, what contribution Quebec can make to Canada, and what Quebec can derive as a province by being part of Canada."

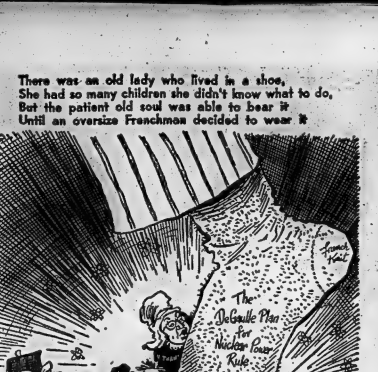
Logical Step

Hon. William Davis, Ontario's Minister of Education, has announced that text books will be supplied free next year to students in Grades 11 and 12.

It is the next logical step in making "free education" mean what it says. One more step remains—to extend the policy to Grade 13. The sooner that step is taken the better. It may well come next year—the government lost no time in extending the policy of free text books in the secondary schools, for it was initiated for grades 9 and 10 only last year.

The only critics of the policy are likely to be those parents who have just completed shepherding their offspring through high school, paying all the way for books, many of which, in recent years, appear to have been changing from year to year for no other reason than to provide job opportunities for text-book authors and profits for book publishers. Incidentally, the government apparently intends to end this plundering of texts—it is granting school boards $20 a pupil to cover the cost of texts this year, but curbing the grants in half in 1966 "after school boards build up a stock of books that will not have to be replaced." Some out-at-elbows parent, who had to buy a completely new set of books for each youngster in a large family, might like to ask government officials how come this evident change in policy could not have been effected before.



Responsibility Shifted

Individual Christians, says Dr. John Carman, have shifted the "good neighbor" responsibility of their faith from themselves to secular agencies.

A good case can be made out in support of the contention by Dr. Carman, who is director of a medical college at Vellore, India.

At the same time, in fairness it ought to be pointed out that this shift has not been entirely voluntary. This modern state has made itself responsible for many endeavors which used to be considered the realm of private charity. In doing so, it has deprived citizens, through taxes, of the funds which they might otherwise have donated to charity.

The reason behind this state intervention has been the contention that private charity had not properly cared for the needy and the under-privileged and that the state can do a better job, spreading the cost more equitably. Whatever one may think of this contention—and on the whole it appears to be borne out by the facts—one ought to recognize that it limits the ability of some individuals to support charitable organizations.

To Your Good Health
Hardening of Arteries Often Hard to Detect

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

Dear Dr. Molner: Six months ago my husband, at age 49, was a victim of myocardial infarction "due to arteriosclerotic heart disease." He seemed to be well and healthy hours before his death. He had been examined thoroughly several months before.

What are the symptoms of this hardening of the arteries? Can it be helped if known in time? Shouldn't the internist who examined him have diagnosed this?

Can the disease be inherited? I have three young sons and would like to protect them from it. — Mrs. W.

Arteriosclerosis, (hardening of the arteries) can be extremely difficult, not to say impossible, to detect in some cases — and about the most important cases are those involving arteries of the heart and brain.

Then plaques or patches, of fatty material form on the inner lining of the arteries. This can cause no symptoms, give no clue at all. As long as sufficient blood passes through, the patient is totally unaware of the presence of these patches.

Then the artery becomes very much more narrowed at some point where the plaques have been building up. Then a thrombosis (clot) forms. Possibly heavy and unaccustomed exertion plays its part. That is why strenuous sports are regarded as dangerous for people not used to exercise.

There may be no advance warning, when these fatty patches are building up in the arteries, and no way of knowing, in certain cases, that an artery may have been reduced in size at some critical point.

There is no practical way, as yet, to see what the inside of such arteries look like. That is why we have to rely on the experience of an apparently healthy man stricken without warning with a heart attack.

That is why the most skilled and careful internist at times has no chance of foreseeing the peril.

Besides this, there are some statistical individuals who experience what they think are "minor" episodes of discomfort. Lesser heart attacks are passed off as "indigestion or gas."

In other cases, however, the approaching danger can be recognized. There may be suspicious heart symptoms. A cardiogram may be slightly off normal. The blood pressure may be elevated. If the patient is overweight, that also raises suspicion — although, of course, thin people can have heart attacks, too.

In short, sometimes you can see direct indications of approaching heart trouble. Other times you can't be that certain, but you can detect patterns which put you on guard.

Tomorrow I'll answer the other questions, whether anything can be done if advance warning is detected, and whether heredity is a factor.

Dear Dr. Molner: I must have missed your column about coconuts. Could you tell me again how to "make my own?" — M. J.

A 10-to-25 - percent solution of aluminum chloride, which you can get in most drug stores. You can get the stronger solution and dilute it with water or with toilet water.

Weaker solutions are adequate for some people. Others need the strong one. On some skins, the strong one may be irritating. So experiment to find what's best for you.

The way to use it: Dab it on, then let it dry.

Today in History

Feb. 22, 1965 . . .

A force of British and Canadian soldiers under Lt.-Col. George Macdonell crossed the ice on the St. Lawrence River and captured Ogdensburg, N.Y., 152 years ago today—in 1813. The raid, during the War of 1812, was in retaliation for an attack on British-held Brockville.

1732—George Washington was born near Fredericksburg, Va.

1819 — Polish composer-pianist Frederick Chopin was born.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — a Zeppelin bombed Calais, killing five citizens; German bombarded Reims while the Allies made notable gains along the River Aisne; South African troops occupied Garubub in German Southwest Africa; the first unit of Canadian pals' way troops was authorized.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—bombs set by the Irish Republican Army exploded in London, with eight injured; in the face of advancing Russian might, Finland rallied up men to 46 years of age for active service; Romania called up 200,000 reserves to join the 1,400,000 men already under arms.

Peculiar Ways Of Weighty

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The comic strip which showed Dagwood Bumstead ordering a "dietetic plate" at an Italian restaurant was not exaggerated. North America is diet-obsessed in many peculiar ways.

Weight consciousness takes ludicrous forms.

Skim milk is used to wash down hamburgers smothered in onions and swimming in cooking oil.

Low calorie soft drinks are used to dilute formidable quantities of liquor.

Saccharin tablets sweeten coffee into which has been poured heavy cream.

Non-fattening beer is considered by many to be a suitable companion for peanuts, cashews and potato chips.

The woman who takes little butter and gravy thinks nothing of tackling a mountainous strawberry shortcake.

The man who thinks Metrecal is the greatest invention since television feels he must add "body" to his dietetic repast — say, a big, juicy steak.

Salads are a favorite dish of those in search of slimness — especially when doused in French, Italian or Roquefort dressing.

The moral: you, too, can have your cake and eat it, provided you use a low calorie mix.

Fine Tribute Paid Bethune

Montreal Star

The National Film Board's production of the life and times of Dr. Norman Bethune should set at rest the conspiracies or books have succeeded in doing, more than the beauty of an individual. It showed also the beauty and courage of nonconformity in a society that prefers to remain undisturbed.

BETHUNE, IN A SIMPLE life-story of his zeal, was an advocate of socialized medicine. His conception of the role of his fellow doctors would be considered quite mild today, but when he spoke—a generation ago—this was a voice of madness or blasphemy or radicalism.

It was also the voice of poetry, of innovation, and of questioning. It belonged to an artist needed individualists, especially men and women who could see in advance the significance of events in Spain or China or other places being shaken, on behalf of the world into experimental crucibles.

CBC viewers who saw the Bethune film must have speculated on how he would fit in to today's society.

Where would he aim his attack? At our tendency toward parochialism? At our newly-found affluence and comfort and values that place intellectual attainment far down the list of desired commodities?

Almost certainly he would not be Communist because of his temperment, which demanded individual expression, nor his sense of restraint, would allow him to be confined by rigid rules.

BETHUNE, WITH HIS compassion, the searcher, the Galileo, the rebel, the unconventional kind of man we say we needs, yet fails to appreciate.

The film Bethune, in its exquisitely sensitive portrayal, has made us wonder who, in our present age, will merit similar attention from a future generation looking back for signs of smotherdom and achievement.

Strictly Personal
When Facts Quarrel With Acts

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Several readers have asked me to explain and clarify the phrase, "cognitive dissonance," that I used in a recent column. It was first introduced by Leon Festinger in 1957, and has since received much respectful attention from behavioral scientists of all schools.

The term indicates a conflict between incompatible beliefs or attitudes held at the same time by the same person. Sometimes these beliefs are unconscious, and sometimes they are conscious; what is important is the way we handle the "dissonance."

In a simple example, given by Prof. Edwin Boring, the Harvard psychologist, consider the man who likes to smoke and occasionally tries to do so, even though recent studies convince him that smoking may lead to lung cancer.

Confronted with this dissonance of attitude, he can do one of four things: (a) change his behavior by stopping smoking; (b) change his cognition, by ridiculing the cancer scare; (c) suppress or ignore the dissonance, by refusing to read anything further on the subject; or (d) doing something in between like rationalizing to himself that the cognition ("I know smoking is bad for me, but driving a car is just as dangerous") and my smoking, I'll get fat or nervous, which is just as bad").

"Any serious decision," he notes, "made to resolve a doubt when no additional knowledge becomes available, creates dissonance." When 50-50 evidence changes to 60-40 evidence, you may decide to act on that percentage, even knowing that there still exists a 40 percent in back of the 60 percent.

Man must inevitably operate in the face of uncertainty in belief and attitude. Few important decisions are clear-cut and certain in all their consequences. Our job is to cope as best we can on the basis on what we know, even though such knowledge is partial and incomplete.

Faced with the smoking problem, for instance, we may either stop smoking or not stop; the evidence is not for stopping is at least 60 percent. If we refuse to stop, however, it is immature and self-defeating to change our cognition, suppress the dissonance, or rationalize and distort the evidence. We must accept the fact that a dissonance exists, and remain ready to change our behavior when the odds become large enough to convince us that it should be changed.

Dissonance is hard to live with, for most of us like to be consistent in all we do. The cost of distorting or suppressing knowledge is low, but we pay. We cannot wait for certainty or resolve conflicts; by the time the experiment is concluded, the experimenter may already be dead.

Between delegations appearing before the council and discussion of business brought before the members, the regular session of the city council on Monday night continued past the midnight hour. Two extensions of one hour each was asked for and granted in order that all business on the agenda could be completed. A lengthy discussion took place on the merits and demerits of the scrapper for the heavy duty truck, that may be purchased and which will be used to clean the ruts from the road, and also be used for other periods of the year. No report was received from the committee that went to Owen Sound to witness the operation of this equipment and no decision will be made until the report of that committee is received.

Now Lost Ball Will Cry Out

(By Frederick C. Klein in the Wall Street Journal)

While glancing through a recent issue of Sports Illustrated the other day we came across the following in a story about what's in store for sportsmen of the not-too-distant future:

"Texas Instrumentshas specialized about designing an unlosable golf ball that would contain a tiny transmitter that would send out signals from the wildest rough. It would be impossible for a golfer to damage the transmitter no matter how vicious his swing—after all, it was built for impact on the moon."

Having lost countless golf balls, the idea struck us as a fine one. We barely hit the ball hard enough to damage the cover, much less some tiny transmitter inside, so we could see our pro shop bills dwindling.

Yet later thoughts produced some questions that dimmed our enthusiasm a bit. How far example would a golfer pick up those "signals"? Granted, a lot of us ride the course now instead of walk. But even so, mightn't the receiving equipment, possibly including a head set, prove too bulky?

If the signal could be heard by the unaided ear, wouldn't all those golf balls beeping away on weekends make courses sound like angry traffic jams?

How would we distinguish the cry of our golf ball from others? Imagine slicing a shiny new Titleist deep into the woods, then hacking your way through only to find some driving range remnant that happened to sound like your ball.

Further thought on the matter proved even more disturbing. Because virtually everything that the airways requires the Government's approval, would we have to register our golf balls with the FCC?

But the most distressing possibility that occurred to us was this: Suppose we hit our ball into a place where it could be heard, but not recovered, say into a gopher hole. Think of the sleepless nights we'd spend, haunted by the plaintive beep of that little ball, pleading in vain to be rescued from that dark hole.

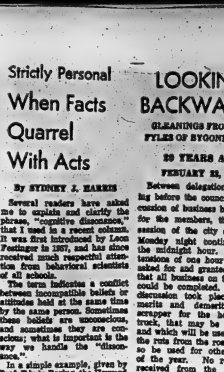
Jail No Cure For Addiction

Montreal Star

No progress has been made in a quarter century in our effort to wipe out the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs, says the Permanent Central Opium Board.



The difficulty of the Board's work is quite easy to understand. There are two pieces for opium, the legitimate price for authorized purposes and the black market price for illicit production, and to the poor farmers in the underdeveloped opium poppies are raised, the black market temptations are very hard to resist.

The boom in air travel, and the impossibility of making thorough searches of baggage make the operations of the smuggler easier.

There is an important implication for Canada in this confession that the illicit traffic cannot be suppressed at either end. The method of dealing with addicts differs from country because we know that addiction as so difficult to eliminate as the traffic.

The practice we have followed, of simply jailing addicts, is useless and vindictive. Drugs can even be smuggled into jails and narcotized fails. Even the best treatment in special institutions for the purpose is pathetically inadequate. Discharged patients generally fall back into their old ways soon after release unless they have got rid of the personality weakness that tripped them up in the first place.

We have a narcotic-addict population several times that of Britain which is several times our population. Britain, unlike us, goes to no trouble, officially, to control addiction. Addicts are recognized as needing medical care, and they are allowed to secure the treatment they need without police interference. The only treatment by a medical practitioner is small, infinitesimal beside that of buying illicit drugs in the underworld of North America, and the patient's life is not disorganized by the means he, or she, must resort to in obtaining the money for drugs and the need to conceal the condition. Take addiction itself out of the crime category and the impulse behind many other offences is removed.

No Appeasing Hard-core Separatists With Flags Says Liberal Spokesman

OTTAWA (CP) — Some federal Liberals are hoping the negative and violent reaction of Quebec separatists to the raising of Canada's new flag will dispel the notion held by many English - speaking Canadians that the issue was raised to appease extremists in that province.

There is no doubt the vast majority of Quebecers wanted a distinctive flag and that Prime Minister Pearson had this in mind when he proposed his maple leaf flag last spring.

The prime minister's proposal was interpreted by some MPs as an attempt to satisfy those who are prepared to separate the province from the rest of Canada.

But Liberals are interpreting the events of the last few days as proof that there is no appeasing the hard-core separatist with flags, money or increased bilingualism.

When Premier Lesage presided at flag inauguration ceremonies in Quebec City Monday, about 15 separatists stood by shouting "down with the maple leaf," "Quebec to Quebecers" and "down with colonialism."

In Montreal, four separatists were arrested for burning the new flag during a demonstration. A spokesman for the group said removal of the fleur-de-lys in favor of the maple leaf was an insult to the residents of the province and a "subtle symbol of Canadian colonialism."

WANTS TWO FLAGS

Union Nationale Leader Daniel Johnson said at the Quebec flag-raising ceremony he hoped one day to see the fleur-de-lys and the maple leaf waving side by side on the Parliament buildings in Ottawa "as the symbols of the two cultural communities that work together in our country."

As the emotions of the flag debate abate, resentment against the government in many parts of English-speaking Canada is lessening. But MPs returning to Ottawa from Western Canada report they detected some bitterness towards the Pearson government and Quebec.

The flag was not responsible for all of this, they said. Besides the long-standing suspicions and prejudices—the product of differing races, languages and religions—there are other contemporary issues that cause ill-feeling.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has taken strong stands against the formulas to permit provinces to opt-out of federal-provincial shared - cost programs, and for amending the Canadian constitution.

The complexity of these issues make the flag a more convenient rallying point for opposition to the government's policies on federal-provincial relations and towards Quebec.

It is for this reason that many Liberals hope the actions of the separatists are noticed in other parts of the country. They argue that the separatists have shown the government is fashioning its policies not to win the separatists, but to help the moderates and what the Liberals consider their legitimate aspirations for change.

London Police Press Search For Murderer

LONDON (Reuters) — Police were questioning an unidentified man today in their hunt for London's Jack the Stripper sex killer.

Scotland Yard murder squad headquarters investigating the strip - and - strangle killings of seven London prostitutes in the last 15 months also said they were looking for another man in connection with the slaying of Bridie O'Hara, believed the killer's latest victim.

Police said the other man was seen leaving a West London bar with 2-year-old Bridie last Jan. 11, the date she disappeared.

Her body was found last Tuesday in a west London alley. Like the other murdered prostitutes, she was found naked and strangled.

QUESTION TWO MEN

Two other men have been questioned as police stepped up their hunt for the killer who has London's "good-time girls" taking second looks at all their customers.

During the weekend, police raided an empty basement apartment in the West London area where the bodies of most of the victims have been found.

They took away part of a bed for laboratory tests.

Police also visited an undisclosed address in the area and left with a life-sized wax figure of a woman, partly clothed in pyjamas and a blouse.

An intangible but significant bond links millions of youngsters across the world Today.

They are the members of the boy scout and girl guide organization who today mark "Thinking Day."

The annual event falls on February 22 -- the birthdays of the Baden-Powells, founders of the twin youth movements.

The event calls on the young members to be mindful of each other and to reciprocate messages of friendship.

In Belleville, it also sees the beginning of Scout week.

Yesterday a number of packs marked the occasion with special church services.

Feared 65 Miners Trapped

TOKYO (Reuters) — Sixty-five miners were feared trapped more than 1,150 feet underground in a coal mine in Hokkaido, Japan's main northern island, following an explosion today.

The blast was believed caused by gas.

Rescue workers rushed to the Hokkaido Coal Mining Company's pit at Yubari, about 25 miles west of Hokkaido's main city, Sapporo.

A miner coming off duty was quoted as saying he had seen one body lying across a truck underground.

"Of course I didn't file the last four years, Mr. Bingler, and I might've known you'd find me before I was rescued."

Ann Landers

Replaying Records No Sign Of Flipping Lid

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother holds your up as an authority on everything. Your word is what counts in our house, so please settle this argument.

I am almost 18 years old and I love to listen to records. If I like a certain record very much I play it over and over — maybe four or five times in a row. My mother says it is abnormal to play the same record over and over anyone who does it is over the edge of the roof.

Do you believe that? My mother is right about this? I need an answer — L. F. BUFF

ANN LANDERS

DEAR L.F. — No. I do not believe that a person who plays the same record over and over is wacky.

I have played certain records (of which I am especially fond), four or five times in a row, and I'm all right. I'm all right I'm all right I'm all right.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Whoever wrote those immortal words "Heaven will protect the working girl," might have known what he was talking about, but the working girls this side of heaven are the ones who need the help today and you, Ann Landers, are our Patron Saint.

Your column has dealt with the catty office manager, the ungrateful sex pot who can't spell and calls herself a secretary, the lecherous boss, the cigarette moocher who goes from desk to desk, the coffee bum who never pays, the bummer, the whistler, and the gum popper. Now will you please say something about the knuckle cracker?

The world's champion knuckle cracker sits behind me and she is driving me crazy. I have told her (as my mother used to tell me) that knuckle cracking is bad for the fingers and that over a period of time it will cause arthritis. My aunt got arthritis from cracking her knuckles, so please stand behind my story. Thank you. — CRACKING UP.

DEAR CRACKING — Sorry, I can't stand a story that has no validity.

Frequent knuckle cracking over a long period of time can irritate the margins of knuckle bones and cause the knuckles to grow larger, but this doesn't bring on arthritis.

Why don't you tell the girl what my mother used to tell me — that if you don't stop cracking your knuckles they will get so big a young man will be able to slip a ring on the appropriate finger.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I married a girl my mother did not approve of. I thought she'd change her mind after we gave her some grandchildren but it was wrong.

My wife is in the hospital now with our fourth child. Twice last week I asked my mother to stay with the kids so I could go to the hospital to see my wife. She said she was too tired. Tonight she said, "Ah right, I'll come but just for a little while."

As I was leaving the house the youngest boy climbed up on his grandmother's lap. She told him to get down because he was wrinkling her dress.

Why is she like this? What can I do to get her to be more patient and loving toward our children? — DISAPPOINTED SON.

DEAR SON — Patience and love come from within. If your mother doesn't feel warmly toward your youngsters (and obviously she doesn't) you can do nothing about it. She dislikes the children because she dislikes their mother — which is unfortunate.

My advice is to leave her alone. Don't ask her for favors and don't impose the children on her. When people are put in a spot where they feel forced to help they resent it and such pressure worsens the relationship.

Unusual Marriage Mart Running Into Problems

By IAN McCAUSLAND

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP)—Africa's most unusual marriage bureau is running into problems. It cannot keep pace with the demand for eligible young African damsels.

The problems were highlighted when Kazid Orphanage and Convent, which runs the bureau, advertised, 17 miles east of Lusaka to claim a bride.

However, of the convent's 70 local graduates only four or six have nowhere to go. The rest return to relatives in their home villages where marriages have been planned for them.

"Only serious bachelors are considered," said Father Clotti. "They are asked to send a letter of recommendation on moral standards from their parish ministers."

If Father Clotti is satisfied, the bachelor is invited to the mission to meet the girls.

If all goes well, a marriage is arranged according to the customs of the girl's tribe.

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: You may be planning a gift for the young men in your life and if it is to be a shirt (dress or sport) you can give him an extra thrill by making a money tie to attach to his present. Plant a dollar bill lengthwise, pin it in the middle and attach it to his shirt to resemble a bow tie. Even a boy who is a teener will be delighted. — Mrs. M. Scholtz

Now there's the answer to running short of money on dates! Just give the waiter your tie!

RINGO

Dear Susanna: If you ever intend to give an informal party for a large number of people, and are worried about the furniture being marked, I know an easy way to make a great quantity of pretty coasters with practically no expense involved.

Just save up the lids from plastic containers. Cottage cheese ones are a good example. Now cut a circular picture from a birthday card or other greeting card — colorful wallpaper is fine. Make it fit the centre of the lid so that it covers all the top inside surface. Apply a little glue to keep it in place. — M.R.

This might sound like the dullest idea in the world — but it isn't — it's about the cutest!

We made dozens of them for a large teenage school party and their function as coasters for pop bottles and glasses was a fabulous . . . glue also looked most attractive scattered about on the tables, desks and other furniture. Just make up a couple and see! — SUSANNA

BOILED VERSUS BAKED POTATO

Boiled versus baked or top-of-stove cooking versus oven is a constant hot mild controversial topic between two relatives of mine.

Letters from some of you come requesting recipes for vegetables that may be baked. There are two or three reasons for the request: conservation of oven heat when meat is roasting and improved flavor of the vegetables and conservation of their vitamin and mineral content.

Today I am giving you a recipe for Potato Logs that are to be baked — not French fried. I almost save time by not French fry vegetables when I am getting a dinner on the table. It is such a comfort to push a baking dish full of vegetables into the oven — for they require only a minimum of watching.

I served the potato log, with Cohoe Salmon with Egg Sauce and Codfish au Gratin, both of which I thought were extra good, but the potato logs stole the show.

POTATO LOGS — BAKED (SERVES 6):

3 or 4 large potatoes (when cooked, drained, mashed or beaten must measure 3 cups well-packed), 1 egg, 1 teaspoon green onion flakes, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup milk, fine cornflake crumbs.

Wash and pare potatoes and cut in quarters and cook in a minimum of salted water, covered, until very tender. Drain well and mash or beat until perfectly smooth. Add all ingredients but crumbs and beat well until smoothly blended. Use approximately ¼ cup of mixture to make each of 12 logs. Drop each log in fine cornflake crumbs on counter and deftly roll over and shape into logs. Roll all over with crumbs. Let stand 15 or 20 minutes to dry and firm up. For this number I melted about 2 tablespoons butter in each of two 9" pyrex pie plates (generous 4 tablespoons in all) in the oven and placed the rolls in the melted butter and turned them over once to coat them. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 45 minutes until crisp and golden. Serve directly from dish in which they are baked. These are particularly appropriate to serve with fish which is accompanied by a sauce.

NOTE:

If desired, this potato mixture may be shaped into 24 balls and baked at same temperature as logs but for a little shorter time.

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN B. CARKNER

Carkner – Smith

White mums formed the background setting in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, for the recent wedding of Ann Rosina Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Basil Smith, Belleville, to Allen B. Carkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Carkner, Ottawa. Venerable Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Don Davenport, who also accompanied eight choir boys in appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was dressed in a floor-length bridal gown of white silk peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice with elbow-length sleeves and a Vieneese lace-trimmed neckline adorned with tiny seed and shell pearls with this design carried out along the front panel and around the hemline. Two bulterfly bows accented the back of the graceful skirt which flowed from unpressed pleats at the waistline. Her elbow-length veil of silk illusion fell from a headdress of petals and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white and mauve feathered carnations.

The maid, of honor, Miss Barbara Dick of Toronto and the bridesmaid, Miss Beverly Smith, sister of the bride, Belleville, were dressed in two-piece, effect dresses consisting of ankle-length violet coloured velvet skirts with white lace over-blouses. Each carried a nosegay of white carnations mingled with dainty violets.

Mr. Fred Smith, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while Mr. Glen Carkner and Mr. Keith Carkner, brothers of the bridegroom, were the ushers.

Following the wedding a reception was held in St. Thomas Parish Hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a dress of imported green brocade with a white carnemlia corsage. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a mink shade crepe dress with a corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip to the Laurentian Ski Lodge the bride chose a navy blue three piece suit with matching accessories and a deep red satin hat to match a corsage of deep red roses.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at a cup and saucer shower held at the home of Mrs. W. Anderson of Trenton, at a kitchen shower held by Miss Barbara Dick, her maid of honor, in Toronto, and at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Ine K. Smith in Belleville. A rehearsal dinner was held for the bridal party by the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ine K. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs Carkner will reside in Ottawa.

Youth Column

At 17 She's Old Hand At Canadian Politics

OLDS, Alta.-CP) — Shirley Pickard, 17, won't be old enough to vote in an Alberta election for two years but she's already deeply immersed in political activity.

The five - foot - tall former cheerleader was elected president of the Olds-Didsbury Liberal Association in December.

It's a remarkable responsibility for one so young, but Shirley is about as far removed from being a political novice as a 17-year-old can be.

With the instinct of a professional, she has enlisted the support of Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, the former Calgary mayor, and Alberta Liberal leader David Hunter to participate in functions planned during her year in office.

"The first thing I want to get off the ground is a real membership drive," Shirley says. "We've got to do a good job of public relations. We'll use dances, boonspiels, picnics, anything that will catch the attention of people and get them involved in our association work."

Miss Pickard has her work cut out for her. The constituency is a Social Credit stronghold in provincial politics and the Liberals didn't have their own candidate in the last election.

HELPED IN CAMPAIGN.

Shirley, the youngest member of the association—she won't get the provincial vote until she's 19 and has four years to wait before she can vote federally—is a secretarial student at Olds Agricultural College.

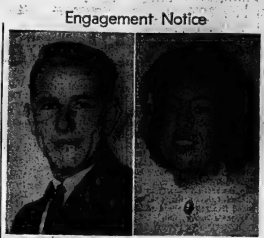
She says she became aware of the opportunities for young people in politics during the Ontario Liberal leadership race last summer.

"My brother-in-law, Gordon Sullivan, was campaign manager for Robert Nixon, MPP for Brant, in that race. I was down there and helped him out. It was thrilling and positively the most exciting thing I had participated in.

"When I got home I decided to take a more active interest and try to encourage more young people to do the same."

She says her parents are in favor of her political activity, "though they never disclose to me what their political beliefs are."

Lloyd Pickard, her father, runs a cattle sales management service in partnership with Curtis Clark, whose son Robert was elected Social Credit member for Olds-Didsbury at 21 in a byelection Nov. 30, 1960. Mr. Clark was re-elected in the 1963 general election and is the youngest member of the legislature.



"I've talked about politics with Bob and he is happy to see that I'm interested and involved, no matter what party I'm working in," Shirley says. "He agrees that more people in their 20s and 30s should be participating in political affairs."

Shirley, who also teaches Sunday school, is busy trying to interest an older brother and sister and two younger sisters in politics.

She likes dancing and heads the social committee at the college in this town 50 miles north of Calgary.

"Things are pretty busy working on the committee, organizing Liberal constituency projects, trying to graduate in June and working part time, but everyone is being so helpful that it's fun, too."

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Horlock, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Joanne Marie Yvette, to Gary Leonard Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wood, Belleville. Wedding to take place in Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, March 27th, 1965, at 12 noon.

Miss Whitton Draws Cheers From Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa, said Saturday the greatest challenge to a teacher is to instill a sense of purpose in children.

"We must remember there must be a struggle and purpose tice in life," she told a dinner meeting of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario.

The child's mind must be prevented from slipping into an easy attitude of acceptance, Miss Whitton said.

Teachers must "offer a strong counteraction to TV, radio, records and comic strips by appealing to children in other fields."

Miss Whitton drew applause twice during her speech—when she said teachers were paid too little and when she recommended that teachers be given more control over their practice.

Mom's Boss, She Sets Rules For Indulging in Fads

DEAR DORIS — Re: Should 13-year-old girls wear nylons: the trend today is, "Well, the other girls can wear them, why can't I?"

Indeed it is difficult these days, but I refuse to try and keep up with others. I have to work and support three children and keep up a home.

DORIS CLARK

I feel letting the children have their own way can lead to trouble. I'm not able to be home when the children need me. However, Mom's boss. My daughter wants to wear nylons. Fine. (1) Must be earned. Say odd jobs around the house must be done. (2) If she gets an allowance, contribute towards them. (3) To be worn only for church or special occasions. My daughter uses them with care and washes them after each wearing. She wears leotards or cotton stretchies for school or other activities.

The boys do their chores, and one has a paper route. Now they buy or contribute to buy a pair of new shoes for Sundays or white socks which is the fad here. I feel if they have to contribute or earn these things they appreciate everything more and take better care of things. If they know you will buy them anything they ask (sometimes demand) it is soon discarded.

There are many times I could write you and let off some "weight" but shoulders are broad!! Usually something is in your column to make things O.K. again. — A FAITHFUL READER.

Before you buy the wagon you think is best read this:

A station wagon leads a dual life. First, you have to think of it as a car for normal use. Second, as a 'family carry-all'. Either way, you should ask a few questions.

Is the interior roomy or trimmed? Ford wagons are finished to the same high standard as Ford cars. Is the back seat comfortable and full-width? Ford wagons have seats with the head room, leg room and comfort of a sedan — and they're not cut away for bulky wheelhousings.

How easily can you fold down the back seat? On Ford wagons you can do it with one hand. When you fold the back seat down, is there a gap between it and the back of the front seat? Ford seats fold down flush with little or no gap — so parcels can't fall through to the floor.

Is there a hidden compartment for valuables? Ford and Fairlane wagons give you a large underfloor compartment. And you can lock it for extra security.

Can you get at the spare wheel easily? All Ford wagons carry the spare upright behind the rear wheel housing. Can you use all the load space? Big Ford wagons will take a 4 ft. by 8 ft. plywood sheet lying flat on the floor.

Will the rear window stay clear in mucky weather? Big FORD wagons have built-in air-deflectors to circulate air across the glass and help keep it free of snow and dirt.

Dual facing rear seats you can't compare — they're a Ford exclusive on Country Squires and Country Sedans. Just one of the many practical, useful ideas that Ford features for people who like the wagon idea.

So before you buy your next wagon, take 20 minutes. Walk into a Ford dealer. Take out a Ford, Fairlane or Falcon wagon for a test. Compare it thoroughly. If you are like most people, you'll be convinced Ford is best. In fact, 3 out of 5 who try a Ford, buy it.

1965 Ford Country Squire Wagon... featuring exclusive dual facing rear seats.

1965 Fairlane 500 Wagon... almost 100 cu. ft. capacity and very modestly priced.

1965 Falcon Squire Wagon... the "tote-all" performance compact.

Before you buy be sure. Come and take a test drive

By GEO. E. CARTER, Sports Editor

If you are Yankee fan and happen to visit Gotham's Shea Stadium some spring, don't weather, "To the Victors go the Spoils" within earshot of Ole Casey.

The grimlad conductor of the New York Mets might bend a willing ear and cranse a few facial wrinkles if you murmur Leo Durocher's classic "Good Guys Always Finish Last"—and paraphrase it with "Last Guys Always Finish Best."

The Mets, thus far permanent lessees of the National League's janitor apartment, have been the butt of baseball jokes with their lowly individual and collective won-and-lost records.

Mention that fact to the Ole Perfesser and he'll lean back, emit a few cackles and point to the respective figures of his non-twinkling stars and the habitues of mighty Yankee Stadium.

He'll show you that the refugees from the National League pasture fields outdrew the proud Yankees by 440,000 cash-paying pewsters last season.

And with thhe former Yankee great, Yogi Berra, and one of baseball's greatest southpaws, Warren Spahn in Mets uniform this year, that figure is liable to explode to unheard-of proportions.

The Yankee brass knows it. They know that Yogi was one of the most popular figures in Gotham, and fans as a whole don't shed their loyalty spots overnight.

And canny old Casey knows that the firing of Berra and the accompanying revulsion of how the Yankees acted as a club on the inside, will send the fans cascading through the Shea Stadium turnstiles.

The Yankees' front office knows this too—and they have been doing something about it.

Imagine, if you can, a powerhouse machine like the Yankees sending out some of their star-performers of the necropolis to drum up box office business.

That, miesdames et mesieurs, is exactly what the gang with more pennants on its halyard than a sea-going battlewagon on review did this winter.

They sent Al Downing, the lil ole harmonica rascal Phil Linz, and pitchers Hal Reniff and "Spud" Murphy all equipped with sales pitches designed to help the Bombers in their box-office battle with the Mets.

According to Downing the venture met with disappointing degrees of success. The salesmen contacted personnel directors of large firms who send employees to the ball park for a free ball game.

Some of them told the crusaders, "The Mets outdrew you last year—and they'll do it again."

"Never heard of Yankees doing this before," said some. "Guess the Mets have got you fellows on the jump. Get Yogi back—and we'll talk business."

It wasn't all this way. The Bronx pitchmen got in some good sales work which will likely up the figures at the Stadium but will in no-wise decrease the Shea Stadium faithful.

Meanwhile the Ole Perfesser sits in his office and chuckles. He didn't have Berra and Spahn last year—and look what happened at the gate.

He believes the magic words: "For the Mets: Spahn pitching, Berra catching," will be the heavy that will bring the Yankee fan flies to Shea Stadium in swarms.

And who knows? The end of the 1965 season may see his Mets finish second from the bottom. That would be something in itself.

Habs Shave Hawks' Margin To Three

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens chipped one point from Chicago Black Hawks' National Hockey League lead after a fall weekend schedule.

Detroit Red Wings won both their games and pulled into a third-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the scoring race, Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks pulled five points ahead of his team-mate Bobby Hull.

RALPH BACKSTROM

Canadiens trounced Boston Bruins 6-3 Saturday in Montreal only to have New York Rangers come from behind Sunday and tie the game 2-2 at 19:59 of the third period.

Detroit won their seventh and eight home ice victories in a row, their longest string since 1955-56, defeating New York 2-1 Saturday and beating Toronto by the same score Sunday.

Black Hawks bounced back from a 4-3 loss in Toronto Saturday to blast Boston Bruins 7-4.

The two top - sided defeats formally eliminates last-place Boston from the Stanley Cup picture. With 14 games left the injury - wracked Bruins are 29 points from the nearest playoff spot.

Ralph Backstrom assisted in four goals as Canadiens defeated Boston Saturday. John Ferguson scored twice, Claude Provost clicked with his 22nd goal and Claude Larose his 30th. Jean Beliveau and Bobby Rousseau were the other Montreal scorers.

Ed Westfall and Murray Oliver scored for Boston.

LOSE 2-0 LEAD

Montreal was leading New York 2-0 Sunday on goals by John Ferguson and Henri Richard until Don Marshall got Rangers on the score sheet at 11/14 of the third.

Rangers tied it after pulling goalie Marcel Paille in the final minute. Doug Robinson, prone on the ice, managed to put the puck to rookie Red Sullivan just inside the Montreal blueline.

Sullivy took two long strides then blasted a long shot which Robinson deflected past a startled Charlie Hodge.

Detroit defeated New York's first-period goal Sunday by Don Marshall before Ted Lindsay scored to 12th goal of his comeback.

Delvecchio later scored back to take turns on defence after Bill Gadsby pulled a rib cartilage and left the game, joining Detroit defencemen Gary Bergman, who had a knee injury.

New York cut the margin to 3-2 in the second with Rod Gilbert's goal of the season.

On Sunday, Detroiachie again scored the Detroit winner, their 7-point-a. Again, Red Wings outshot the opposition 2-1 on this occasion by Bob Pulford, before drilling in three consecutive goal. Bruce MacGregor and Paul Pontegrave scored the other Detroit goals. George Armstrong scored Toronto's marker with a three-footer at 12:38 of the third period.

Leafs were behind 2-1 to Chicago after the first and 3-2 after the second before a passing drive to the third.

Frank Mahovlich, Dave Keon and Andy Bathgate scored before rookie Peter Stemkowski clinched the crappy pennies with Mahovlich and scored his game-winning goal at 12:26 of the third. Chicago scorers were Eric Nesterenko, Doug Mohns and Pierre Pilote.

Terry Sawchuk had to stop three sizzler breakaways for his victory.

Chicago recovered on home ice Sunday, assembling Boston in a fight-filled battle.

Hawks had plenty of firepower Sunday. Bobby Hull's offensive for the second game in a row and his ninth in Chicago's last eight became of stretched opponents in both knees.

Mikita opened the scoring with two unassisted goals which along with two weekend games assists gave him 72 points in the point parade, five more than Hull. Other Chicago scorers were Nesterenko, Chico Maki, Pilote, Doug Jarrett and Dennis Hull.

The stick - swinging brawl broke out in the middle of the third period when Mohns, Boston's Orland Kurtenbach started clashing at each other. Ted Green of Boston and Mikita joined the scrap and Brian Ray Fleming and Al MacNeil of Chicago then fought for nearly a minute and a half.

Mahns and Kurtenbach were given majors and tossed out of the game for deliberately attempting to injury. Teammates MacNeil were given majors while Mikita and Green drew minors.

Hawks were without rookie centre Fred Stanfield who underwent an appendectomy early Sunday after becoming ill on the train coming from Saturday's game in Toronto.

Ina Hansen's rink from Kimberley, B.C., winners in 1962 and 1964, the 1963-quit competitively this season, and Mable DeWare's 1963 championship quartet from Moncton was defeated in the New Brunswick finals. Joyce McKee of Saskatoon, 1961 champion skip, was eliminated early, in Saskatchewan's zone playoffs.

Sweden Defeats Canada

Petra Brilliant In NA Title Win

U.S. Wins Three

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP-AP) — A brilliant exhibition in free skating gave Petra Burka of Toronto the women's title today and prevented a United States sweep of the 1965 North American figure skating championships.

Miss Burka, Canada's Woman Athlete of 1964, overcame a bad compulsories performance Saturday by Peggy Fleming in the school figures to end with six ordinal points and take one of four titles.

PETRA BURKA

U.S. skaters won the other three titles and placed second in all four events in their finest international showing since the 1960s. The Canadians had swept the titles last year at Vancouver.

Miss Burka finished the women's singles event with six ordinal points based on judges' placements. The 16 - year - old Miss Fleming, from Pasadena, Calif., had 12.

A capacity crowd of nearly 8,000 looked on as Gary Visconti of Detroit won the men's singles, Vivian and Ronald Joseph of Highland Park, Ill., captured the pairs and Lorna Dyer and John Carrell of Seattle skated off with ice-dancing honors.

The 18-year-old Miss Burka, who won a third-place bronze medal in the 1964 Winter Olympics, had been favored in the women's singles event. Considered to be among the best women's free skaters in the world, she captured the 1963 Canadian senior women's crown. It was the second year in a row she won that title after having been Canadian junior women's champion in 1963.

Last year's singles Scott Ethen Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J. was second with 11 points and Janet Knight, 17, of Toronto, Ont., had 14 for third. Dr. Charles Snelling, 27, of Wallaceburg, Ont., fourth with 20 and Jay Humphrey, 18, of Vancouver, was sixth with 29.

Knight, 1965 Canadian senior men's singles champion, seemed to have a good chance to take the title after holding a slight lead after the compulsory figures phase of the competition Friday. He had nine ordinals then, the same as Visconti, but had a slight lead in total points. The earlier event counted for 60 per cent of the over-all title.

But Visconti came on to win the title with his free-skating ability Sunday.

Other Canadian champions entered in their events:

FINISH THIRD

Carole Forrest and Kevin Leithebrige of Toronto, Canadian 1965 senior dance champions, finished third in the dance event with 13 ordinal points compared with six for the winning team.

Lynn Matthews and Bryon Toepfing of Toronto were fifth in this event with 24 points while Gail Snyder and Wayne Palmer of Toronto were sixth with 30.

Canada's 1965 senior pairs champions, Susan and Paul Hnatkengard of Toronto, were given 13 ordinal points in the second group. The winners showing, the Josephs had six.

Alexis and Chris Shields of Toronto were fourth with nine while Faye Strutt and James Lester of Vancouver placed sixth with 30.

Other Canadians in the women's singles were Valerie Jones third with 14 points, Roberta Laurent fourth with 25 and Karen Magnussen sixth with 35. All are from Toronto.

Kingston Sweeps Three Of Four

Peewees Lone Winners In Playdowns

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

KINGSTON — Rattling back from a first-period 1-0 deficit, Bellville Bruins dumped their Kingston counterparts 4-2 here Saturday noon and with the victory earned a spot in the next round of the OMHA playdowns.

The triumph was the only one gained by a Belleville club in the four games played here.

Kingston ousted Belleville bantams, midgets and juveniles. All four two-of-three series were swept in consecutive games.

The bantam Oddfellows lost a penalty-riddled 8-1 decision; the midget Oddfellows were whipped 13-3 and the juvenile s 5-0 whitewashing.

Rollins are expected to meet the winner of a Peterborough-Cobourg series in the next round of peewee play.

PEEWEE GAME

Both teams turned in sparkling plays in the first heat but fine work by goalies Paul Muldoon and Rusty Foster kept the first tally empty until 14.10 of the 15-minute period. Barry Brook gave Kingston the 1-0 lead on a close-in play with Ken Mackmore.

Belleville needed just 1.10 of the second to tie. Brian Cousins jamed the disc home with Bill Buchanan assisting. Mario Venetti put Rollins ahead to stay at 3.00. He grabbed Fred Stickle's pass and sunk a long backhand drive. The winners appeared to add another shortly after but referee McMillan overruled the goal judge and it was 2-1 at the end of the period.

Terry Meagher gave Rollins a 3-1 lead at 8.05 of the third. He shot his first of two goals into the open side of the net on a power play with Buchanan at 6.40. Meagher carried in alone and beat the goalie with a high shot for his second.

Kingston still fought for the win and at 11.10, with his team short a man, Dave Shephard put one in off Muldoon's pads. Joey Fowler got an assist.

Excellent positional play throughout the game by the Lional Botty-coached squad was a key to their impressive victory on the big ice surface. It was a sound team effort. Five minor penalties all went to Kingston.

BANTAM GAME

Kingston bantams took a 3-0 lead in the first period and play began to roughen up in the scoreless game. Referees Brian Wilson and Fred McMillan appeared to let a lot go, calling only three minors, all to Belleville.

It was one big rash of penalties in the heated third while Kingston outscored the Oddfellows 2-1. There were 17 penalties assessed during the game, 12 of them in the final period. Belleville got ten of the total.

Oddfellows finally beat the Kingston goalie, after it was 5-0, when David House scored with the teams playing five apiece at 17.45. Dennis McCormack drew an assist.

David Gilmour scored two Kingston goals with one each for Murray Douglas, Barry Toner and Mike Raven. Joe Brown earned three assists.

MIDGET GAME

Kingston scored ten goals in the third period after leading 3-1 and 5-1 by periods in another game marred by disputes and at times by strange penalty-time arrangements.

Belleville drew 10 of the 16 penalties in this one, refereed by Don Wilson and Horace Decker. Oddfellow coach Lou Sparks said after the game that the team would be lodging a protest.

Scoring the Belleville goals were Larry Moore, Bob Beecher and Ray Summers. Dave Duval and Cliff Scott got single assists.

JUVENILE GAME

Kingston coasted to six goals in each of the first two periods and a final pair in the third against a game but outclassed "Travellers" squad.

Belleville's hopes were dimmed when goalie Paul Smith suffered a neck injury early in the game. He continued to play after a brief rest but Kingston's team was just too strong.

Referees D. Wilson and H. Decker called 24 penalties with the winners getting six.

Spud Apps Jr. each sparked Kingston's attack with four goals and two assists. Linemate Terry Landon got three goals and one helper while Chris Seale, third man on the line, drew five assists. Leo Lavallee and Doug Percival each scored twice, Carl Nelson, Earl Routley and Dennis McCulloch once apiece.

Two students from the Ontario School for the Deaf, Bruce Ullett and Bill Gregory, were as good as any on the Belleville team.

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's Valery Brumel failed in his announced quest of the indoor high jump record Saturday, settling for a winning seven foot, two inches, in the wind-up of the two-day U.S. Amateur Athletic Union indoor track championships.

Brummel, the Olympic gold medalist and holder of both the indoor and outdoor marks, had announced a determined try at his indoor 7-4 standard. He missed only once enroute to 7-3, then failed badly on each try at that height.

Abigail (Abby) Hoffman, 18-year-old Toronto rumer, finished third in the women's 440-yard run in a time of 57.2 seconds. The event ended in a tie for first place between Janell Smith of Fredonia, N.Y. and Norma Harris of New York, who finished in 56.5.

Miss Hoffman won the half-mile in the Canadian - indoor record time of 2:11.1.

Ronson Scores 3 For Reds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Len Ronson, the player Montreal Canadiens developed themselves in the seven-man Plante-Worsley deal of two years ago, climbed a step out of the pit of anonymity Sunday night.

This season, he drifted to Providence Reds who promptly sank into the cellar of the American League's eastern division. And on Sunday night the Reds 4-4 themselves playing Rochester Americans, who lead the western division by a country mile.

The 27-year-old left winger rose to the occasion by scoring three goals, one of them the winner, and setting up a fourth as the Reds' Islanders emerged with a 6-5 victory that barely preserved their faint hopes of a playoff berth.

Ottawa led 43-30 at half-time. Claude Maranda, with 22, and Doug Chambers, with 21, were the top scorers for Ottawa. Bob Nathan, with 20, led Mike Barkun, with 25, led the losers.

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP)—Macdonald College edged, visiting Royal Military College 4-3 Saturday in Ottawa-St. Lawrence hockey action.

QUALIFIES FOR TOURNEY

SAN JOSE (Reuters)—Costa Rica beat Trinidad 4-0 in a qualifying match Sunday for next year's World Cup soccer tournament in England. The home team had 1-0 at half-time.

Vicenzo Wins at Bogota

BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) — Veteran Roberto de Vicenzo was locked in a three-way tie when he started, but breezing in with a four-stroke lead over the last nine holes of the Bogota Open golf tourney.

De Vicenzo, who owns a dozen international titles, shot a blistering four-under-par 36 over the front nine of the Los Lagartos course Sunday, then coasted in with a 68 for a 274 total, a four-stroke lead and the $3,000 first prize.

He had started in a tie with Al Besselink and rookie Willie Scholl of The Bahamas. Besselink had to settle for a par on the final round, however, and Scholl went to a 74 and a 278 for third place.

Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg, only Canadian to finish in the money, salvaged $205 for a 72-68-76-76—292.

Queen's Ousts McMaster

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McMaster University's loss was Queen's University's gain, Saturday Pond proved it Saturday afternoon.

Queen's Golden Gaels virtually eliminated McMaster Marlins from the Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association hockey playoffs with a 6-4 victory—mainly on the strength of Pond's performance.

The slightly-built centre, who played for McMaster last year but decided to go to Queen's last fall, scored two goals, including the winner, to dim the Marlins' post-season hopes.

In the only other game, Laval University Rouge et Or downed last-place University of Guelph Redmen 9-5 to move into a fifth place tie with the Marlins at 13 points each, five back of fourth place University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Riteways Win Over Trenton

A single goal in the final period gave Belleville Riteways a 3-2 win over Trenton on Saturday in the first game of their OMHA novice playdown series in Trenton on Saturday.

Belleville will then carry a slim one-goal margin into the return encounter here Wednesday night, at seven o'clock. The series is a home-and-home, goals-to-count affair, with the winner tackling either Napanee or Gananoque.

Mac Hunter's Riteway boys jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first period Saturday but Trenton netted an unanswered pair of their own in the second heat.

Peter Smirke won it for Belleville with his goal at 12.30 of the third period, assisted by Grant Goegan.

Danny Lapenceta and David Smith had scored the earlier Riteway markers, both on solo efforts.

Belleville collected four of five minor penalties.

Fred Astaire Celebrating 60 Years as Pro Dancer

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fred Astaire is celebrating his 60th year as a professional dancer—and still doesn't puff after a fast routine.

Some people call Cary Grant the movies' youngest looking leading man but all Cary, at 61, has to do is look and act handsome.

Astaire, at 65, has to outdance youngsters—and does.

If there is a recipe for eternal youth and external stardom, Astaire has it. And what is it?

"Very simple," answers Astaire. "I constantly train to avoid having to go into training.

"I smoke little. I never diet but I always eat moderately. My waistline stays the same. I get enough sleep—not always at night but always via catnaps. I always keep myself ready to go when the band plays."

Astaire is touchy about questions on his age. He doesn't deny he was born on May 10, 1899, but couldn't care less.

HOW DOES HE?

"It's sort of a newspaper gimmick these days to be age-conscious. I admit it's nice to hear: 'How does the old boy do it?' and 'How does he keep from falling apart?'

"But," says Fred, "the truth is I feel better now than I did in 1918 when my sister and I did our first Broadway show with Ed Wynn."

In 1904 when Teddy Roosevelt was president of the United States, Fred and Adele Astaire and their mother left their native Omaha for New York City.

Adele was a child prodigy dancer and as Fred recalls "I just sort of tagged along." He was 4½ at the time.

Mother enrolled the children in dancing school in New York. After few recitals a vaudeville scout saw them. At age 5, Fred Astaire lost his amateur standing when he and Adele played a split week in Keyport, N.J.

Prophetically, the youngster was wearing white tie and tails on that historic opening in Keyport.

"We played the bride and groom stop a wedding cake," recalls Fred.

To this day no one wears top hat, white tie and tails better than Fred—and no one hates them more.

"Believe, me, the suave, carefree, debonair Astaire is a myth," he says.

The one word that best sums up Fred is gentleman. That doesn't mean he's a softie. He will fight—but always politely—for what he believes in.

RETIRES OFTEN

Astaire is a very shy and retiring fellow. Especially retiring. At the moment, he hasn't danced professionally since a television show a few months ago. But he never uses the word retire anymore.

His first announced retirement came in 1932 when Adele left the act to get married. The two had played every city and hamlet on two continents and had co-starred for Ziegfeld and all the great musical comedy producers of the '20s.

"I honestly didn't think the public would buy me as a single," says Fred.

There have been about a dozen announced Astaire retirements since then but everyone knows, including Fred, that he will die with his dancing boots on.

What's the secret of the Astaire style? "No secret," says Fred. "Just practice, sweat, rehearsal and worry."

Pictures of Moon Shot Missing at Conference

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's cliff - hanger of the weekend was the press conference on CBS and NBC Saturday evening to show the first moon pictures from Ranger VIII.

The two networks cleared a half hour of air time—but the pictures were missing.

For precious minutes, Dr. William Pickering, director of the Pasadena Jet Propulsion Laboratory, tried to fill up the time.

Finally, we saw the pictures—and found that they looked to our uneducated eyes exactly like the earlier Ranger VII pictures.

Astronomer Gerard Kuiper's explanation of the pictures did not help much because of his dedication to scientific language and to Latin terminology.

The Sunday newspapers added considerably more interesting findings. Perhaps the two competing networks would have done better to wait, as did ABC, until they had something more meaningful and meaty to present.

Leading Stage Authority Holds Workshop in City

A busy weekend of stage workshops ended last night in Belleville with its participants exhausted — but exhilarated.

The sessions, which drew participants from across East Central Ontario, were directed by Norma Springford, leading Canadian theatre authority from Montreal.

For Mrs. Springford it was a return engagement to the city, inspired by the dynamic results of a similar workshop last fall for the Belleville Theatre Guild.

The Guild sponsors the sessions in co-operation with the Department of Education's Community Program Branch.

Results of course this past weekend apparently achieved even more rewarding results, according to participants.

Starting Friday night at St. Michael's Academy, moving later to Education Hall, Mrs. Springford kept up an unflagging pace for her weekend students. The topic, ranged from radio production to stage theory and practice.

The venue was unchanged, despite a threat to its entire presentation in the fire which destroyed the Loft Theatre.

WILL CHOOSE LEADER

Nurses on Trial For Aiding in Mercy-killings

MUNICH (Reuters)—A middle-aged—German nurse burst into tears and mother fainted when they went on trial with 12 others here today on charges of taking part in mercy killings during the Second World War.

Magda Hentzi, aged between 40 and 45, are accused of taking part in the Nazi euthanasia program, which claimed the lives of between 100,000 and 200,000 mentally or physically handicapped people.

Nine of the women are still nursing, and none is in detention. After each day's court proceedings they may return home or to their work.

The women shielded their faces with purses and scarves from cameramen when the trial opened. They spoke quietly with eyes lowered as they began to testify.

They are accused of the murder of patients in their cares at Obrawaide Mental Hospital in Pomerania, where at least 8,000 mentally ill patients were killed by injections or lethal doses of luminal or veronal under the Nazi "mercy killing"—program for persons deemed physically and mentally deficient.

The Obrawalde "mercy killings" took place between the middle of 1942 and January, 1943.

Fire Damages Clay's Home

CHICAGO (AP) — Fire damaged extensively the apartment home of Cassius Clay, world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay Sunday night, a few hours after black nationalist leader Malcolm X was shot to death in New York.

Clay was not in his third-floor apartment at the time, police said. Firemen said the blaze, confined to the second and third floors in a 30-apartment building on the south side, caused an estimated $6,000 damage. No one was injured.

Police and fire department arson squads were called to the scene and questioned Carl Elliott, occupant of the second-story apartment where Fire Marshal William Foley said the blaze broke out.

Foley said there was no possibility of arson, adding: "As far as I'm concerned it was a routine fire. We've had 1,000 like this."

USED 'ARSON' TAG

Earlier, Merlin Nugren, acting deputy police superintendent who was at the scene, said the fire was "arson" Later police reported the fire was accidental.

Arson squads continued their investigation.

Many Items of Business Discussed at Board Meet

SIDNEY TWP. — The February meeting of the Sidney Township School Board was held at the new school at Wallbridge. Edison Sine, Marsh Hill, chairman of the board, opened the meeting, and all elected representatives, Hugh Gray, R.R. 5, Trenton; Glenn Meyers, R.R. 3, Belleville; Ralph Armstrong, Batawa, and Glenn Stickle, Glen Miller, were present.

The secretary-treasurer, Lorne Hunt, R.R. 3, Belleville, reviewed past actions and pending declations.

Mr. Garnet May, ratepayer of Sidney township and sales representative for the Dunbarn Company, discussed the merits of grass purchasing of cleaning supplies for the 21 schools in the area in order to secure a bigger discount. It was decided that Mr. May be permitted to take a survey of the various school custodians in order to see what supplies were necessary. Mr. May told the school board of a training film for caretakers which will be shown by his company at Moira Secondary School on March 2 and 3 and an invitation was extended to those interested from Sidney Township schools.

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Mr. Larry Robertson and Mr. Robert Bannister from Peterborough asked that they be allowed to make a survey of a year's supply of school needs covering everything from books to pencils, rubbers, crayons and art equipment.

There was some discussion about how the new books would be stamped—with the name of the school or with the township school board stamp. Mr. Lorne Hunt will see the inspector, Mr. Dunsmore, about this problem. The new school board stamp was burned in the fire at Schwab's and the insurance company will be asked if the loss is covered. Mr. Lorne Hunt has ordered a new stamp. Now blind are to be purchased for use in the rooms at the new school at Bayside, R.R. 2.

Mr. Harold Johnson, caretaker of Johnstown school, requested a revision in salary. The secretary-treasurer will inform Mr. Johnson that the board will be reviewing all caretakers' salaries at the near future.

Mrs. Jean Watson of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers' Association sent an application form for 1965 membership. The Rev. John V. Mills of the Public Trustees Association of Ontario offered lowered membership fees. The School Township school board will join the Public School Trustees Association of Ontario. The members will receive copies of the helpful periodical, The Argus, recommended by Mr. Armstrong from Batawa. Membership in this organization will enable board members to receive district schedules of Public School salaries of teachers throughout Ontario.

A letter from the Workman's Compensation Board was read by the secretary-treasurer. All employees of the board must be covered. The fee charged is proportionate with the estimated year's salaries.

CONSOLIDATED RECORDS

Mr. Lewars, chartered accountant in Belleville has been consolidating records from the many school boards under the old system into one record for the area. Mr. Dunsmore, inspector for Sidney Township Schools, visited the Crown Lands deeded to Bayside School would provide enough acreage to cover any future expansion needs.

Mr. Denyas, principal of Ragsen School and chairman of the Sidney Township School committee requested a March meeting with the board to discuss salaries.

Harold Gilmour, chairman of the Frankford Board called the attention of the Sidney Township School Board to the overcrowded situation in the Frankford school. Mr. Armstrong suggested that this matter be referred to the Sidney Township Inspector, Mr. Dunsmore.

Mr. Lorne Hunt announced that a 5 per cent discount had been secured on the payment of taxes for the Bayside school farm.

The treasurer presented bills for telephone, hydro, fuel and supplies for the month of February and the meeting adjourned.

Negroes Generally Sorry Malcolm X Gunned Down

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Across the street from Harlem's black nationalist bookstore, little knots of people gathered to talk about the violent death of Malcolm X.

"I wasn't with him," said a tall, bearded Negro, "but it's a damn shame. Even the Ku Klux Klan doesn't try to kill (Dr.) Martin Luther King, and nobody could have worse than that. It's just black against black all over again."

"I'm with you, brother," said the other man. And that was pretty much the way Harlem took the death of the black nationalist leader.

There was a lot of talk about the Black Muslims, and their running feud with Malcolm and his followers. But nobody was really sure who had gunned him down as he stood on the stage of the Audubon Ballroom.

The tall, sandy-haired leader did not have a large following. It was estimated at several hundred at best. But he had a magnetic personality, and a lot of sympathizers.

"There weren't two dozen of his own followers in that ballroom," said one man who was there. "Most of them — and there were whites there too — were just like me. We like to hear him speak."

Most Negroes in Harlem did not subscribe to his belief that violence should be met with violence, and that whites were really "devils." But they would still fill to capacity the meetings where he frequently spoke.

BAD KIND WORDS

Even his enemies had good words for him Sunday night.

"He was no leader," said one man in the crowd. "He was just another black man trying to climb all over top of us. But he shouldn't have ended like that."

"There is something about the Muslims that is like the Mafia," said one Negro. "You can't resign. You can't be as black as the Muslims as Malcolm was and then quit, or oppose it, as he did."

Who would the Muslims or any Negro element want to kill Malcolm X?

"It must be understood," said a Negro intellectual, "that Malcolm X was making a fundamental change and that was that there was a possibility of coexistence of the races. Elijah Muhammad and the Muslims preach separatism. They were experiencing too many defections to the Malcolm camp."

Harold Epton, of the Progressive Labor Movement, said the notion of a fratricidal fight between the Muslims and Malcolm was nonsense.

"That has been built up over a long period so people would accept the idea, but the Muslims are non-violent and assassination is not their work," said Epton. "Rather, this is part of a larger, deeper plot with the power structure determined to kill its enemies. Malcolm X was dangerous to the power structure because he had begun directing his fire at the racist element in American life."

Epton in the past has described himself as a Communist.

deal beneath the snow.

MORE MEN ARRIVE

Despite a threat of further slides, more men were flown to the camp with lighting, stoves, tents, winter gear and probing poles.

The search shifted from a daylight only to a 24-hour operation beneath lights — while the snow piled higher on the twin Ladue glaciers and the surrounding mountains.

Dozens of men dug themselves out of the slide. Some survived in air pockets as long as 34 hours—but few thought anyone would live as long as Mytlyia.

The injured and about 110 who escaped unscathed were evacuated by plane and ship to Klechikan, Alaska. The uninjured were flown to Vancouver Saturday.

Saturday night a blizzard swirled into the area, virtually bringing to a halt rescue operations and piling more snow on the 12 to 18 feet covering crushed buildings.

By Sunday the blizzard had abated and rescue operations were resumed. At 4 p.m. they found Mytlya.

FLY BODIES OUT

By nightfall 34 bodies recovered from the snow were flown here to a temporary morgue.

At Grandoc weary soldiers were replaced with fresh troops from search headquarters. Reporters were unable to fly into the camp, but a photographer did manage to fly in for 30 minutes. He was ordered by RCMP to leave.

Officials said the danger of further slides was too great, as two special avalanche men were working behind rescuers with an eye toward snow-laden mountains.

There also were no means to accommodate persons not directly involved in the rescue. Only two buildings, unheated, were left standing. Army troops were using arctic survival gear, including tents.

Emergency radio was the only means of communication from Grandoc to Stewart. Here, a single radio-telephone circuit to the "outside" had handled 600 calls in three days—on an emergency, priority basis only.

Mines Minister Donald Brothers, his deputy and his inspector of mines flew to the area Sunday but were unable to get into Grandoc camp.

Says Ontario Developing on Splinter Basis

ORILLIA (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said Saturday it is impossible for every citizen to share in the province's prosperity because Ontario is developing on a splinter basis.

"In all fields affecting people . . . the Tory government has stood idly by while some groups have been left in the backwater," Mr. Thompson told a meeting of the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

Metropolitan Toronto had 61.3 per cent of industrial building in 1963, he said, but has only 32.5 per cent of the population. In contrast, the Georgian Bay region, with five per cent of the province's population, received only 2.1 per cent of industrial building.

"In Simcoe County, close to 30 per cent of families have annual incomes under $3,000. But, in York County, less than 30 per cent of incomes are under $3,000, and in Peel County fewer than 10 per cent of families earn less than $3,000 a year."

Funds must be made available to the Ontario development agency so it can work with regional development groups to attract new industry to Ontario, he said.

Mr. Thompson suggested a five - year program to assist municipalities with education costs and the establishment of a commission to study the province's 38 counties and districts to evaluate their roles as regional governments.

"In addition," he said, "government policy must be established to make available direct grants and loans to industrial and commercial companies" to enforce water pollution regulations.

then moved out into the Atlantic after catching a portion of Newfoundland.

The heaviest snowfalls occurred Friday and early Saturday, followed by winds gusting at 60 miles an hour at Sydney. Visibility was reduced and driving conditions were hazardous.

Police said poor visibility was a factor in two head-on collisions which killed four persons in northern Nova Scotia Saturday.

More than 100 cars were abandoned on the Sydney-Glace Bay highway and one bus that left Glace Bay Saturday morning on a 13-mile run to Sydney reached its destination at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Most bus services were disrupted in the Sydney area and in eastern New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island where highways were blocked for brief periods.

All highways were reported clear Sunday night.

Only provinces to escape the wrath of the last season storms was British Columbia where rain fell on the coastal areas and some snow was reported in the interior.

PISTOLS ALSO USED

Police Capt. Paul Glaser said Hayer shot Malcolm X with a shortened, double - barreled shotgun. Two pistols also were fired at him, but no information on who fired them was available.

Hayer and two spectators were wounded in a wild melee that followed.

Hayer, with a pistol wound in a leg, was held in the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital.

Police said Hayer was shot by Reuben Francis, 35, a Negro identified by police as Malcolm's secretary and bodyguard. Francis was arrested on charges of felonious assault and illegal possession of a pistol.

Police rescued Hayer from a frenzied crowd of Malcolm's followers.

The two other men wounded apparently had no part in the assassination or the melee that followed, police said. How the two men were wounded was not revealed immediately.

The two wounded spectators were identified as William Harris, 31, Negro, of the Bronx, in serious condition with gunshot wounds that punctured his abdomen; and William Parker, 36, Negro, of Astoria, Queens, in satisfactory condition with a foot wound.

made cardinals since 1963.

The 27th new cardinal, Bishop Angel Herrera y Oria of Malaga, Spain, was not in Rome. In accordance with tradition, he will receive his insignia from the Spanish chief of state, Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Also among the new cardinals was the second Negro elevated to the college, Archbishop Paul Zoungrana of Upper Volta.

The Middle East patriarchates are Maximos iv Saigh, Melchite patriarch of Antioch; Paul Pierre Meouchi, Maronite patriarch of Antioch, and Stephanos I Sidarouss, Coptic patriarch of Alexandria.

Others were the archbishops of sees traditionally headed by cardinals, as in Westminster, England, and Milan and Florence, Italy.

Ceylon and white South Africa were represented for the first time.

There also was an 83-year-old parish priest from Brescia, the Pope's home town. He was told he will carry on his humble parish work and has asked people to go on calling him "father" and not "eminence," the mode of address due to him as a prince of the church.

The occasion also pointed to a new role for cardinals. A movement is under way in the church hierarchy to provide the Pope with a means to help him run the church as it strives to develop an increasingly open orientation to the changing world and its problems. The enlarged college of cardinals could be the means of this change.

For the creation of his first cardinals, Pope Paul also decreed a series of changes that broke with precedent.

The traditional week - long round of ceremonies and pomp was drastically reduced and streamlined.

Among the 36 cardinals present at the consistory were Paul-Emile Leger of Montreal and James Charles McGuigan of Toronto.

With money, left Richard Stinson President students' council; Sandy Oram and Mepon Grawa. The event showed a profit. Some two hundred students and area residents attended.

Alice in Wonderland Theme Of Students' Council Dance

BANCROFT — Alice in Wonderland was the theme set at North Hastings High School, Bancroft, last Friday night. The formal dance, an annual affair, was sponsored by the students' council. Many residents and students of the area attended the occasion regalled in finery to match the fairyland setting.

The fantasy of story time was made very realistic by the use of canopy of multi-colored crepe decor, that hung over the dance floor in the large auditorium.

To further enhance the dreamlike stage was a wishing well centred under the canopy on the dance floor.

A wall of the area held a fourty-seven foot mural with life size characters of the Wonderland story. Spotlights played upon the fully colored mural designed by member Laurie Fraser and others of NHHS.

For those who braved the zero temperatures to attend, a warm reception was given by Principal and Mrs. Fred Beckley. Also in the reception line were council president Sandy Oram, William (Bill) Watson and Flemming Knudsen. Mr. Watson, a former student of NHHS, now attend Waterloo University at Waterloo, Ont.

Among those in attendance that evening were Reeve and Mrs. M. J. McAlpine.

During the intermission all guests visited the new cafeteria on the second floor of the school where refreshments, home-made salads and cold cuts were served buffet style.

Main event for the successful event went to Sandy Oram, president; Bob Gordon, vice-president; Flemming Knudsen, assistant vice-president; Pauline Windsor, treasurer. In addition some 35 other members of the council assisted with the decorating that took approximately three days to complete. A popular orchestra from Peterborough did the musical honors which continued on till one p.m. after the luncheon.

Rush Aid To Congolese Army Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Reinforcements of white mercenaries have been rushed to aid of Congolese Army troops staging a new attack on the town of Managi near the Ugandan border, a reliable source said Sunday.

The Congolese government has claimed the town is being held by forces of Ugandans and Congolese rebels. But Uganda denies any of its troops are involved and has countered with the charge that Congolese troops have violated its borders.

The source said other white mercenaries were being sent to reinforce a government detachment at Bunia, the only major airport in the region.

Sen. Robertson Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Funeral services will be held at Knox United Church Tuesday for Senator John A. (Pete) Robertson.

Senator Robertson, 52, collapsed and died of a heart attack Friday night after officiating at a ribbon - cutting ceremony in this town, 150 miles east of Winnipeg, where he was raised.

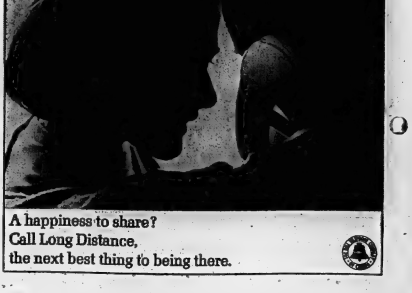
Group of Scuba Divers Frolics in Bay of Quinte

A group of Belleville district water enthusiasts turned polar bears yesterday in the Bay of Quinte — and their antics sent shivers along the spines of spectators.



Not that there was anything menacing in the situation. It was just coldly daring for onlookers to watch.

Cause of the shivers were scuba divers from Belleville, Trenton and other local groups who frolicked away the Sunday afternoon by smashing through ice beneath the Bay Bridge and scuba-diving in freezing water.

Idea of the exercise was to keep members of the clubs limbered and fit for the underwater sport which reaches a zenith in summer months.

The romp may not have been as cold as it seemed from the safety of the bridge. Actually, while one reading gave water temperature at 32 degrees the mercury had hit 31 degrees at ground level. However, a portable stove with piping-hot coffee and a tent were provided on the bayshore just in case.

As usual, winter or summer, the Bay always yields a trove of curiosities. Among them this time were a fishing rod an icebskate, a car rim — and a sidewalk ice-cream sign.

A happiness to share?

South Viet Nam General Agrees To Quit Country

Khanh Accepts Post As Ambassador at Large

SAIGON (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh has agreed to leave South Viet Nam Wednesday as an "ambassador at large," reliable sources reported.

The armed forces council deposed Khanh during the weekend from command of the armed forces, apparently ending his 13½-month tenure as the country's strongman.

Khanh tried to rally support, then flew to Dalat, the mountain resort 140 miles northeast of Saigon, and there were indications he was balking at leaving the country.

Three members of the armed forces council visited Khanh in Dalat Monday and apparently obtained his agreement to go. The official Viet Nam press agency announced that chief of staff Tran Van Don had signed the decree naming Khanh to a roving ambassadorship.

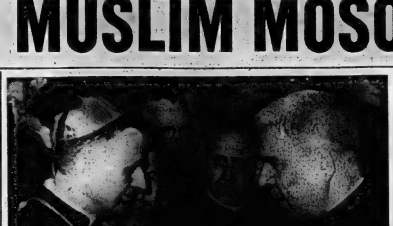
Son appointed Maj.-Gen. Tran Van (Little) Minh temporary chief of armies Monday. The appointment was countersigned by Premier Phan Huy Quat and endorsed by the national security council.

COUP FOLLOWS COUP

Khanh came to power in a bloodless coup last January that toppled Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, one of the leaders of the coup that toppled the late president Ngo Dinh Diem in November, 1963.

Little Minh also was one of the original plotters of the coup that toppled the Diem regime.

The ambassadorial appointment put Khanh in the same category as Big Minh, who has been traveling abroad since late last year as a roving ambassador at Khanh's orders.



On the military front, a U.S. soldier died when a Viet Cong terrorist threw a grenade into a command post 35 miles east of Saigon Monday. He was the 276th U.S. serviceman to die in action in Viet Nam since December, 1961.

Another American was seriously wounded in the incident. Both Americans were hurt in helicopter actions and in an ambush of a South Vietnamese column.

COMMANDS CHANGE

Meanwhile, the military council began changing command of key units of the armed forces. One of the major shifts reported was the appointment of Maj.-Gen. Chau Van Don, 41, to replace Col. Le Van Nhieu as head of the central intelligence agency. Khanh had put Don under house arrest last year but

16 Bodies Recovered At Mine

By STEPHEN SCOTT and WALTER HAYES

STEWART, B.C. (CP) — At least seven men still were missing today in an avalanche that buried the Granduc Mining Company camp 30 miles north of here Thursday.

Rescuers have found 16 bodies, five of them Monday.

Bulldozers rescued Elmer Myhaug, 36, Sunday after the cat-driver from Winnipeg had spent 39 hours beneath ice, snow and debris.

He was taken to hospital at Prince Rupert, Alaska, where a 12 other men injured in the disaster are being treated. More than 60 others who escaped injury were flown to Vancouver Sunday.

Lt.-Col. W. R. V. Matthews, army co-ordinator of rescue operations, said searching would continue at least until Friday. Snow up to 18 feet deep at the mountain - ringed copper mine was hampering searchers.

Roger Schmidt of Vancouver, a member of an eight-man mountain rescue team at the camp, said most rescuers were working in powder snow up to their knees—part of them wearing snowshoes.

Schmidt said searchers were also hampered by debris.

"You'd see a boot sticking out of the snow . . . you had to check it to see whether there was a leg in it."

S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the RCMP at Prince Rupert said there are some areas that have not been searched—areas where bulldozers cannot crawl, but where workmen are believed buried.

Myllyla was discovered by a bulldozer remodding a landing pad for rescue helicopters. He lay atop a piece of plywood broken by the force of the slide. Piled over him was snow compressed to two from eight feet by landing-100 helicopters.

Hospital officials said Myllya's condition was improving. He had suffered frostbitten arms and legs. He may lose some fingers and toes but that no major amputations were foreseen.

Federal Aid Is Wanted

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis called Monday for increased federal aid to universities, saying higher education today is a national responsibility.

Speaking in his role as minister of university affairs, Mr. Davis told the legislature he could think of nothing more absurd than the federal government considering a tax reduction because of a surplus while the country was faced with the serious problem of higher education.

The minister also said that Ontario universities are beginning to consider criteria other than completion of Grade 13 as requirements for university admission.

The University of Windsor will begin admitting students unconditionally this summer before results of Grade 13 examinations are known, Mr. Davis said. In mid-April, 1966, the University of Guelph will launch a trimester system and admit students who have not yet written their Grade 13 examinations.

Mr. Davis denied a suggestion by Robert Nixon (Liberal, Brant) that there was a feud in the province community over the proposed establishment of community colleges in Ontario.

Fifteen Weary Bargain-Hunters Drive Off, Maybe, in 99-cent Cars

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Weary bargain - hunters who spent up to 76 frigid hours outside an automobile agency drove home Monday in used cars for which they paid 99 cents.

Seventy-five of them were in line at 4 p.m. when Monarch Rambler opened its doors for its fifth annual, 99-cent, Washington Birthday sale. Seventeen cars, all models previous to 1960, were on the bloc.

Joseph A. Laszlo, 58, a machine operator, was the first person served. He had begun the long wait, which carried him through days and nights of wintry temperatures and even some snow, at noon Friday.

For the benefit of cameramen, Monarch President Budd Kessner ceremoniously handed Laszlo the keys to a 1957 Oldsmobile sedan.

A turn of the ignition produced no response, however, since the car had been unused for several months.

Laszlo, wearing a red cap and overcoat that bulged from the sweaters underneath, clapped his hands and suggested: "Let's give it a push." Jumper cables made that unnecessary, however.

Kessner advised his customer: "I want you to know this car has power steering and power brakes."

"Yeah, but a lousy battery," Laszlo said.

Duke of Windsor Suffering From Serious Eye Condition

LONDON (AP) — London newspapers reported today that the Duke of Windsor has a detached retina in his left eye. The Daily Express said it was considered certain that he would have an operation to fix the retina to the inside of his eyeball.

A spokesman at the London clinic said the 70-year-old duke had a good night and is "very comfortable." He said he could not confirm the diagnosis reported by the papers.

A friend said the duke's ailment is "serious but not catastrophic."

The former king and the duchess arrived from Paris Monday and the duke moved into a suite at the clinic. He probably will remain several days.

A few hours after his arrival the duke was examined by Sir Stewart Duke - Elder, an old friend who is his eye specialist and also surgeon-oculist to the Queen. Another examination was made today.

The duke will be 71 June 22. Doctors in Houston, Tex., removed a swollen section of an artery from his abdomen two months ago. He and the duchess returned to Paris early this month.

The duke's private secretary said: "The eye has been giving some trouble since last Saturday. Otherwise, the duke is in good physical condition."

Could Still Be Some Alive In BC Slide Says Rescuer

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Roger Schmidt of Vancouver, the first member of the mountain rescue squad to make it into slide-devastated Granduc, came out with his dog and his squadmates Monday.

At the site of the avalanche they left 33 soldiers, ripping through the snow with bulldozers to pick out the remaining bodies and — they hope — more survivors.

Sixteen men are known dead. Ten are unaccounted for. One man came out alive after being buried in snow for 75 hours.

"There could still be some more men alive in there," Schmidt said. "We know of cases where men have been dug out alive from under 30 feet of snow after being buried six days.

"The amount of debris in there is beyond description. There are 40-foot lengths of pipe; conduit, torn up by the slide, lying in 200 - foot - long piles.

"When I first arrived there I was working in powder snow up to my knees—even with snowshoes on. The dog was buried up to his neck. The dog was no help in locating bodies because of the amount of debris.

"He would sniff into the ground and come up with half a package of cigarettes in his mouth. Or he would smell something and we would dig down and find a piece of plywood or some other article that had human scent on it.

Pension Bill Debated

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons waded into the massive Canada Pension Plan bill Monday and quickly got into a spat over how much debating time will be needed to complete its study of the complex legislation.

Opposition MPs served notice that they have a long string of amendments to propose and will need ample time to do it properly.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at one point the bill "obviously will not be passed at this session" if delayed much longer.

"Don't say that," called out Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), an outspoken supporter of the contributory pension plan.

The House was to resume study of the bill today, still on the second of its 124 clauses.

The debate had been running along on general lines for about two hours when Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux called on leading opposition members to order for straying from the subject matter of Clause 2.

MUST BE LIMITED

He reminded them that committee stage debate must be limited to the particular clause. The bill was given second reading in December and now is in its final stage of major debate.

Conservatives complained that they should be allowed more latitude in this part of the debate, pointing out they had cooperated with the government in holding debate to 2½ days at second reading.

Gordon Churchill, Conservative house leader, appealed to Miss LaMarsh to let opposition speakers have full rein. The health minister said she was favorable to the idea but the rules had to be followed.

"I take it from the minister that she is not in favor of the co - operative attitude I suggested," Mr. Churchill, member for Winnipeg South Centre, said. "We will take full note of her remarks and carry on accordingly."

Earlier, J. Waldo Monteith (Prog-Perth) said there are "serious shortcomings" in the bill for a contributory pension plan. Highlights were those now on pensions and would leave out the poorest classes—those under $1,000 a year, in some level of $600 a year for employees and $800 for self-employed.

"This bill does nothing for those at the bottom rung in this country," he said. But it held "huge windfalls and bonuses" for those at the top income.

He took it for granted that a new graduated increase in the basic old age security plan announced last week by Prime Minister Pearson, will pass. It will supersede the present flat qualifying age to 65 from 70 starting next January when those who are 69 will begin to draw the $75 monthly pension. But Mr. Monteith asked for a report on the cost of the proposal. He said it could amount to $180,000,000 to $185,000,000 a

Patrolman Finds Gas-soaked Rags Next Door

Police Continue Search For Slayer of Malcolm X

NEW YORK (AP)—A Harlem fire, believed to be arson revenge for the slaying of Malcolm X, gutted today the black Muslim mosque from which he had been ousted as minister.

Several witnesses, including a policeman stationed outside as precaution against retaliation, reported hearing one or more blasts before flames shot into the sky just after 2 a.m.

On the roof of a five-storey building next door, investigators found a five-gallon tin which had contained kerosene or gasoline. Police said it was possible that home-made firebombs or the fuel could have been tossed from the roof through the barred windows of the mosque meeting hall.

Earlier, in the same building, a patrolman found a kerosene-soaked bag.

Police poured reinforcements into Harlem in an effort to block any further bloodshed or violence. They supplemented the extra force patrolling the almost all - Negro community since the assassination Sunday.

The fire injured a civilian passerby and five firemen, one seriously.

FEAR WARFARE

Both here and in Chicago, headquarters of Elijah Muhammad's Black Muslim faith, authorities had been on edge lest Malcolm's death touched off warfare within the black nationalism movement. He was shot down by assassins as he started to address his rebel followers at a meeting of his Afro-American group.

But Harlem appeared to accept the death quietly until the hours before dawn today.

"I heard the explosion," said an elderly Negro woman among the huge crowd at the scene. "I thought 'Oh, my God! This is it!' And I threw myself down on the floor."

The flames shot 50 feet above the four-storey Muslim building at 116th Street and Lennox Avenue.

HEARS EXPLOSION

Patrolman John L. Waterman, on guard outside, described it this way:

"There was a muffled explosion from the basement and every window on the fourth floor seemed to come down. Then the whole front of the whole floor was engulfed in flames."

The blaze was roaring out of control when the first of the firemen answered a three-alarm call.

The fire destroyed the fourth-floor meeting hall of the Temple of Islam No. 7, the power base for Malcolm X when he was heir apparent to Elijah Muham-

15 Trapped Where 46 Miners Die

TOKYO (Reuters) — Rescue workers today continued their search for the living and dead sealed in a coal mine in Hokkaido, northern Japan, by a gas explosion Monday that killed at least 50 miners.

Two miners still are missing, trapped some 1,700 feet underground. Seventeen others were in hospital.

Many of the rescued miners were suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning. The gas explosion raced through a newly-opened shaft in the mine, trapping miners in a chamber filled with the noxious fumes.

The number of men in the Yubari mine, 25 miles east of Sapporo, when the blast occurred was 172. Some 102 screambled to safety along just over a mile of shaftway to the pit heads.

The explosion wrecked the mine's system of communications with the surface and no contact with the trapped miners was possible as rescue workers wearing gas masks dug their way toward them.

Hisao Narita, 43, said smoke filled the shaft following the explosion.

The disaster was the second for the Hokkaido Colliery and Steamship Company in five years. In February, 1962, 42 miners died in a similar explosion at the Yubari mine.

More than 500 persons, mostly families and relatives of the trapped men, bundled against the severe cold as they waited to learn the fate of the missing men.

Heavy snow fell throughout the night and sober miners were busy on the pithead where the rescued and dead were brought out, steeped the area clear of drifts.

Snowplows worked constantly to keep the mile of road clear from the pithead to the mine hospital.

Britons Face Certain Tax Boost As Spending Increase Forecast

LONDON (AP) — Britons today faced the virtual certainty of higher taxes after Treasury Chief James Callaghan's forecast that government expenditure is heading for a big increase.

Commentators of all political shades predicted that drink, tobacco, consumer durables and perhaps gasoline all will cost more after the April budget.

These increases will be additional to capital gains taxes and increased income taxes already in the pipeline.

Callaghan told the House of Commons Monday the government spending for the financial year beginning April 1 will hit a record $7,134,000,000 ($21,412,000,000).

This is an increase of 8.9 per cent over the current year. He blamed nearly half of the increase on rising prices and part of it on projects inherited from the Conservative administration which the Labor party ousted in last October's general election.

Spending on welfare services, pensions, relief and education all will rise. Defence expenditure will rise less sharply, partly because the Labor administration has cancelled some aircraft projects.

In future years, Callaghan said, public spending should be held so that the average increase for 1965-70 is no more than 4¼ per cent a year.

"This," he said, "will mean a corresponding containment of the rise in the private sector expenditure."

Some members of the Labor party's left wing were quick to criticize increased defence spending.

Elsewhere the government met heavy criticism from The Times newspaper, which usually supports the party in power.

The Financial Times, independent business daily, took a less pessimistic view. It says:

"What matters to the economy is the real current expenditure of public authorities. This has risen on average by only 2½ per cent a year.

"There would be no great harm if this percentage were to rise: How the national income ought to be divided is a political rather than an economic decision."

Old Age Is Creeping Up On Some Of Britain's Proudest Ocean Liners

LONDON (AP)—Old age is creeping up on some of the proudest ocean liners ever born in the heyday of the luxury liner just before the Second World War.

First in line for retirement is the 35,000-ton Mauretania.

With hundreds of transatlantic voyages logged since 1939, the Mauretania is expected to be pulled out of service this year by the Cunard Steamship Company. She can carry 1,140 passengers and a crew of 600.

With a major refit now required, Cunard has decided the vessel can no longer be classed as economic.

Also on the retirement list is the Queen Mary, whose 81,000 tons have been plying across the Atlantic since 1936.

Again the question arises of economic operation. With competition from air travel, more and more passenger liners spend part of their time on joyride cruises. But the Queen Mary is too big to enter most ports on the cruise routes.

Now comes word of a project for the Queen Mary's replacement, called for the time being Q-4. Though "only" 58,000 tons, the Q-4 will carry almost as many passengers.

The Q-4 should be emerging from the John Brown shipyard in Scotland by 1968. The Queen Mary is unlikely to continue in service long after that.

Like the Mauretania, the Queen Mary sailed as a troopship during the Second World War.

The Queen Elizabeth, four years younger, is expected to continue sailing for Cunard for another seven or eight years.

Union Castle Line has two ships coming to the end of their passenger days. Union Castle operates between Southampton, England, and Cape Town and this summer is planning to speed up its schedule to 11½ days from 13½.

This is too fast a pace for two of its fleet, the Athlone Castle and Sterling Castle, both of which are to be withdrawn from service in the summer.

Difference Between Official Plan, Zoning Bylaw Shown

No municipality experiencing any degree of development should be without a plan. An Official Plan, a rational scheme intended to last 15 or 20 years. A plan that is constantly reviewed in the light of day-to-day developments and subject to major revision every three to five years.

Mr. G. Keith Bain, head of the Official Plans Section of the Administrative Division of the Community Planning Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs was outlining the function of his department at Monday's meeting of the Community Planning Association.

The qualities of a good Official Plan, the awful consequences of being without one, the difference between an Official Plan (which is the policy governing public action) and a Zoning By-Law (which is merely a regulatory device, an instrument to implement the plan), all were explained by Mr. Bain.

ORIGINATED IN STATES

The idea of zoning by-laws seems to have originated in the States, as a protective device for property owners. But zoning by-laws quickly become obsolete, and are hard to get rid of once you have them, Mr. Bain spoke with some interest of the city of London, Ontario, where a freezing by-law has been tried, so that anyone proposing a different use from the existing one in any area must go directly to the planning board and council to see whether his schemes will fit into the policy as outlined in the official plan; the by-law has to be amended for each decision, but at least there results a flexibility of standards in that rapidly growing district.

The planning philosophy of each municipality is its own. Council must decide for itself how big the town should be, and what type of expansion or redevelopment it should indulge in.

Development in itself does not necessarily mean progress, he suggested. Perhaps, for really expensive ones, every house that goes up is an economic liability to the municipality: it costs more in schools and services than it brings in taxes, and unless there is industrial development taxes must go up. It is difficult, but not impossible, to legislate for this. "We will not allow more residential development for three (or four or five) years, till industrial development catches up".

This was a highly specialized talk, with none of the attractive slides that CPAC has been accustomed to see; but the keen questioning—especially in regard to redevelopment that will be of importance to Belleville — showed the audience's interest.

In thanking the speaker, Mr. Bayliss of the Planning Board pointed out that Mr. Bain's talk had been eminently practical: the last three speakers addressing CPAC had discussed the aesthetics of planning, and he half discussed Mrs. Jacobs. The meeting followed Dessert-and-Coffee, and was held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte.

NEW EXECUTIVE

Elections produced the following executive in the coming year for the Belleville Branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada: chairman, Mr. Stanley C. Durrant; vice-chairman, Mrs. D.Cain; vice-chairman, Mr. Rodger Greig; sec.-treasurer, Mrs. D. Dibbery; program chairman, Mr. M. P. Weigand; and publicity chairman, Mr. C. D. Gray.

Before proceeding for the contest for designs for the Market Square, we should be being mailed out to all schools. The contest is open to everyone, not to CPAC in sponsoring it is simply to arouse interest in a potentially vital area of the city.

Science Fair, Hobby Show To Be Held

There is a great deal of hard work going into the Belleville Rotary Club's Science Fair and Hobby Show taking place in the local Armouries April 2-3.

To date some 50 local hobbyists have made requests for space. And many more can be accommodated according to the committee chairman.

High school students in Belleville contribute time and ideas to the science fair part of the exhibition. The reward is worth while since the winner has an opportunity of having his or hers exhibit judged on a national basis later in the year.

All told several hundred people are involved in this community effort. Instigators of the local interest hope to make the show an annual affair, it was learned today.

Want Hospital School Fenced

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)— A coroner's jury which heard evidence on the death of a 15-year-old inmate of the Ontario Hospital School for the Mentally Retarded Monday night recommended the school be partially fenced and more staff hired.

Francois Joubarne wandered from the school and died of exposure and exhaustion Feb. 7.

"I would say to the house that the university presidents support entirely the concept of bilingual universities," he said. No such feud existed between the university presidents and the university chairs department.

Mr. Davis said the province will make no grant to Waterloo Lutheran University to establish a school of social work because it is a sectarian institution.

However, he understood the university would receive federal help and would go ahead with its school of social work anyway.

The minister noted that Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson had said during the budget debate that several universities, including Lakehead College, had indication tuition fees will be increased because of what they considered inadequate governmental grants.

Mr. Davis read a letter from Harold Braun, president of Lakehead College, that said the $30 fee increase there was to bring fees into line with those of other Ontario universities and had nothing to do with the budget.

Mr. Braun's letter said a Canadian Press story Feb. 10 quoted him as saying the fee increase was due to inadequate provincial grants. This was not the case.

Rotarians Told of Strike On GTR Many Years Ago

Members of the Rotary Club heard the result of hours of research into an incident that kept Belleville in the newspaper headlines for five days, when the municipality was about to become a city.

Gerald E. Boyce, head of the history department at Moira Secondary School and president of the County Historical Association, retraced the course of the event known as the Grand Trunk Railway strike of 1876-77 which developed into a riot and was finally put down by the militia.

Engineers backed by other trainmen and sympathizers walked off their jobs after the railway company dismissed 65 enginemen two days before Christmas. "Engineers were being paid $3. a day in those times," he revealed. "Imagine their reaction and unrest when there was no other employment to be found."

Strikers went into action after the Grand Trunk feeling the pinch of a general recession reduced its working staff 20 percent. Locomotives on main line runs were brought to a standstill and fires extinguished. A train that left Montreal in the morning was stranded three miles from Cobourg. Passengers spent the night in the middle of snowstorm and virtually cut off from all outside communication.

Meanwhile, back in Belleville, strikers and sympathizers, some of them armed with pistols, gathered at the Grand Trunk station and by their presence intimidated the company's employees.

RIOTERS TAKE CHARGE

The local police department, weakened by internal troubles, was unable to cope with the rioters. Then on December 30, local magistrates headed by Mayor W. A. Foster called upon Lt. Col. James Brown, M.P., Commanding Officer of the 49th Regiment to provide a detachment to aid the civil powers. The detachment numbering 24 officers and 168 although armed was overpowered by the mob. Two companies of the 15th Battalion some 6 men and officers also failed to quell the violence. Finally the Queen's Own Rifles, about 200 strong, were called in from Toronto. No trains had moved in three days and the strikers could not be controlled.

The mob had grown to more than 600 termed in accounts at the time as "riotously disposed persons, yelling, pelting with stones, ice, bricks and bolts and otherwise opposed the soldiers." The Queen's Own advanced with fixed bayonets. Some of the rioters were wounded. Two soldiers became casualties. One of the strikers caught in the act of thrusting an iron bolt into an engine being coaled up was taken prisoner.

VICTORY FOR WORKERS

Following more unpleasantness management and strike spokesmen began taking settlement. To some extent the settlement was a victory for the engineers and firemen since railway general manager J. Hickson agreed to allow all men to resume work excepting those guilty of personal violence. The strike was settled. But commented a Belleville newspaper: "The question arises . . . as to . . . the utter helplessness of this county in the presence of even so comparatively small mobs. . . And the indifference shown by the government, which, notwithstanding memories of the last five days."

A Canadian historian summed up the G.T.R. strike in this way. "In a sense the fuss over the strike is unfortunate for at a time when industrial violence was rare and employers expected workers to be benevolent, it attracted great attention."

Women's Club Hears Talks On History

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club adopted an international theme for their annual candlelighting ceremony at last week's meeting.

A brief history of the local club was read by Mary Campbell, and the lighting of the candles was performed by several members, with Mrs. Campbell supervising the ceremony.

Mrs. Jean Webb, past president, read a letter from the International president, outlining the club's role in the development of world trade and improving conditions for women in foreign lands. This year is International Co - operation year, the letter pointed out, and the club members were urged to take active participation in furthering world understanding, with particular reference to women.

In keeping with the theme of the meeting, Eva Porter gave a talk on the plight of the Palestinian: Hazel Farley spoke on the vocational and teacher training centre for girls in Jordan and Verna Nelson spoke on the history of the various flags which have flown over Canada.

year by 1970. He also asked whether the royal commission on taxation is being consulted on the impact of the Canada Pension Plan on existing taxes.

The former minister said he believes pension benefits should increase as a pensioner grows older. Savings tend to decline and incomes from fixed pensions gradually lose their purchasing power. It had been suggested to a committee studying the Canada Pension Plan that there should be a 33 monthly increase in pensions paid each year.

Mr. Knowles said the bill had stood up "pretty well" to the criticisms levelled at it during weeks of study by a joint parliamentary committee.

However, there were serious gaps. The government should round out the pension package by providing $100 a month for everybody at age 65 under the old age assistance legislation.

OMB Rules In Favor of Land Owner

TORONTO (CP)—A man who has his land expropriated should have the same legal rights as the Crown in preparing for arbitration over the price to be paid for his land, the Ontario Municipal Board ruled Monday.

The board was examining a case involving expropriation of land belonging to Sun Oil Company Limited on Highway 5 in Oakville by the Ontario department of highways.

Under present laws, the department has the right to examine Sun Oil officials to obtain the basis on which Sun Oil will base its argument for a larger expropriation price. The department, however, does not have to give any information to the company.

Board Chairman J. A. Kennedy ruled that if the department did not make one of its officials available for examination, he would refuse to order company officials to appear before department lawyers.

Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton gave permission for such an appearance.

Fumes Ignited By Heater Sitting Nearby

TRENTON — Trenton firemen were called to the Trenton Community Gardens at 9.55 p.m. last night, where fire had broken out in a can used to hold gasoline for a piece of mobile equipment. The fumes from the can were ignited by a nearby gas heater. Damage was negligible, but Fire Chief Ellis has advised Gardens' personnel to buy a safety can for the gasoline. Most of the spectators at the hockey game in progress were unaware that anything was happening at the end of the arena, where the fire broke out.

In Washington, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (Dem., Mont.) told the Senate the squabbling among the "jealous generals" was making the U.S. efforts to aid their country more difficult.

Senator Thomas Dodd (Dem., Conn.) called for increased U.S. efforts in South Viet Nam; better liaison with leaders of various sectors of the South Vietnamese community; an improvement in South Vietnamese political warfare and propaganda; establishment of a "North Vietnamese liberation front" under which South Viet Nam could carry guerrilla warfare into the north; collective action by members of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization; and actions to hold key cities on the Viet Nam - Laos frontier through which he said Viet Cong guerrillas have filtered into South Viet Nam.

There were strong prospects in Saigon that bombing of North Vietnamese military installations by U.S. and South Vietnamese planes would be resumed soon. American policy-makers were said to feel that such bombardment would cut off support for the Viet Cong.

Old "In-and-out" Moves On and Up

After 38 years on Bridge St. the Belleville Liquor Store is moving.

This evening at six o'clock the store on Bridge Street will close and tomorrow, February 24th, re-open for business at its new location — at the corner of Station and Ashley Streets.

Store stock is being moved today and this evening. There will be no special opening ceremonies, according to store manager, James Matthews.

The new premises are the last word in liquor store outlets, featuring parking for approximately 40 cars, a roomy lobby for customers and a special display rack for wines.

The store is electrically heated and fully air conditioned. Basement storage space is provided for store stocks with a conveyor system for replenishing shelves.

The Liquor Control Board store opened in Belleville in 1927, in the quarters now occupied by Dr. A. C. Locke, at the north side of Bridge Street.

Then, in 1934 the store was moved across the street to the location where it has remained for the past 30 years.

But downtown traffic congestion finally prompted the LCBO to seek another location for construction of an up-to-date store with adequate parking facilities.

The Right Choice?

Leon Balcer, in the opinion of the Toronto Globe and Mail, "has finally made the right choice" in his decision to stay in the Progressive Conservative party, at least for a few months.

The Globe and Mail says that, in his drive to oust John Diefenbaker as leader of the Conservatives, Mr. Balcer "was gambling his political future, and that was his own affair."

This may strike some observers as off the mark. Mr. Balcer might conceivably be accused of playing it safe, of seeking to oust Mr. Diefenbaker in order to preserve a chance of retaining his own seat at Three Rivers at the next Federal election. We do not believe this is what prompted his action, but it is a feasible explanation. The suggestion that he gambled his future by opposing his leader will not hold water if we correctly interpret the hints we have been given of the trend of Mr. Balcer's thinking. It seems to us that Balcer believed that, if he supported Diefenbaker, he would have been dead anyway, unable to win a Quebec seat even though the Conservatives might be returned to power.

The Globe and Mail also says Mr. Balcer "was gambling the future of his party." In a sense this is true, but in the same sense it is also true that all Conservatives, by necessity, are gamblers these days.

The Conservatives are all power-hungry. There is nothing wrong with this. It is the way a political party should be. A party which does not want power is merely obstructing the process of government. There was a time when the members of power were so dim that one sometimes wondered whether any real hunger lingered in the Conservative ranks, but John Diefenbaker gave the Conservatives a taste of power and changed all that. Today's Conservatives will remember vividly what power feels like and they covet it. Good!

Wanting power, they face the problem of which leader is best equipped to give it to them.

There are divisions, but every Conservative who has been able to make up his own mind must, again of necessity, fall into one of four classifications.

He must like Diefenbaker's type of leadership and think that Diefenbaker is the man to lead the Conservatives back to the promised land.

Or he must dislike Diefenbaker, but still think he is the best available leader.

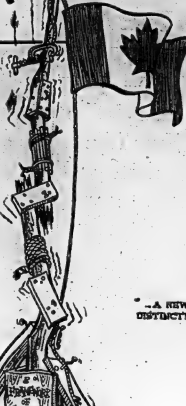
Or he must like Diefenbaker but consider him a poor leader.

Or, lastly, he must dislike Diefenbaker and think him a poor leader.

It is difficult to judge men and motives, but we suspect that Balcer falls in the last-named class. More important, though, we get the distinct feeling that Balcer is convinced in his own mind that Diefenbaker's attitude towards Quebec can do irreparable damage to the Conservative party in that province and, hand in hand, those hope of some Quebec support, the Conservatives, even if they regained power, could not hope to bring unity and concord in a nation faced with the threat of division along racial lines.

If we judge Balcer rightly, he did well to take a stand. Whether his judgment of Diefenbaker and of the reaction of Quebec to Diefenbaker is correct is another matter entirely.

Fast Diagnosis



Thursday afternoon the second and final report of the Hall Royal Commission on health services, appointed by the Diefenbaker Government and reporting to the Pearson Government, was tabled in the House of Commons.

Thursday evening a spokesman for the commission, speaking on the CBC news, expressed the belief that the recommendations of the commission would eventually be acceptable by the medical profession, pointed out that the report had taken three years to prepare and observed that such a report obviously could not be read, digested and analyzed overnight.

Friday the headquarters of the Canadian Medical Association released a 12,000-word "preliminary statement" on this report, criticizing the program the commission proposed.

The spokesman for the royal commission evidently underestimated the ability of Canadian doctors to make a fast diagnosis.

It is understandable that we should want to preserve demonstrations of our imperial past —but prestige is earned, not bought, least of all on borrowed money.—Lord Cromer, Governor of the Bank of England.

Hardening of Arteries Tends to Run in Families

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(SECOND OF TWO ARTICLES)

Dear Dr. Molner: If a patient (or his doctor) can detect signs that he may be a likely candidate for a heart attack, can anything be done? — Mrs. P. C.

Yes!

The danger is that something will occur to shut off the flow of blood through some part of the coronary artery. One of the biggest risks of this sort is that a clot will form, blocking a branch of that vital artery.

An attack, therefore, may be forestalled by the use of anticoagulants, to prevent formation of clots.

We'd best keep in mind that the anticoagulants, useful as they are, won't always work miracles. There are many "ifs" involved. Nor can anticoagulants be used as casually as you might take an aspirin.

The amount must be regulated; side effects must be watched; you can't keep on taking them indefinitely; and since they retard the clotting rate of the blood, care must be taken to see that they do not permit undue bleeding somewhere else in the body.

With skill, good judgment and good luck they may bring very excellent results, but they are not be guaranteed to prevent all heart attacks.

Some less drastic but extremely useful measures may in the long run be more important. One is the matter of overweight. Along with it is the presence of excessive quantities of lipids (fats — including cholesterol) in the blood. Weight reduction along with limitation of the amount of animal fat in the diet will do at least a double service. First, sheer reduction in weight takes a good deal of strain off the heart. Second, change in diet (we strongly believe) plays an important part in retarding the rate at which fatty deposits form on the artery walls.

Can hardening of the arteries (and most greater risk of both heart attacks and strokes) be inherited? The best we can say is that this condition, based on a tendency to have somewhat disordered metabolism of fats, seems to run in families.

This doesn't exactly mean that the trouble is inherited, but it is evidence that you'd best be careful.

Remember yesterday's letter in this column? A 49-year-old father died of a heart attack slamming from hardening of the arteries. His first three sons. Can they do anything to protect themselves? Certainly.

First, they should watch their weight. If they have any tendency to be "fleshy" now is the time to trim diets and waistlines. It is vastly easier to get into the habit of eating just enough, but not too much, early in life.

So is the habit of not eating too much fat, and especially animal fats. We all need fats, but substituting polyunsaturated (usually vegetable) fats, is a good practice.

Keep in trim by regular exercise, instead of being just a "weekend athlete."

And, of course, if you know your heredity may carry some dangers, be extra-alert for any sign of heart or artery trouble.

The time to start avoiding a heart attack is 30 years or more in advance.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss small children who are allergic to cow's milk, and what is the treatment? — L. Q.

Some children are allergic to cow's milk and the treatment is to remove it from the diet. Pasteurized goat's milk sometimes is substituted with success; a "milk" has sufficed for others until they were older and (usually) became able to tolerate cow's milk. Later, giving very small and increasing amounts of whole milk helps desensitize the child. Boiling the milk may also be helpful.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—French troops halted the German advance in Alsace; large numbers of German troops were thrown into the battle sector between Ypres and La Bassee; Berlin reported that 60,000 Russian troops had been captured in retreat from East Prussia.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—the Red Army reported that despite poor weather, they had captured 12 Finnish forts in the Karelian isthmus, and the Finns reported that nearly 3,000 Russians had been killed in a single day's battle; former British war secretary Hore-Belisha urged war against Russia.

Old Fair Formula Is Tired

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Five of the foremost bankers in the country last month resigned from the finance committee of the New York World's Fair, due to reopen for its second season this spring. The first year's attendance was only 27 million, as against an expected 40 million.

It is entirely possible that the whole idea of World's Fairs — on the traditional pattern — is outmoded. In the century since the first Fair, in London's Crystal Palace in 1851, the public has become glutted with exhibits and spectacles of all sorts. The old Fair formula is tired, and possibly passe. The familiar mixture of honky-tonk entertainment and strident commercialism is no longer so appealing to a populace. Television now offers much the same, with encrowds, no admission price, no lost children, and no aching feet.

Walt Disney, a leading contributor to Fairs, and no reason to turn up his nose at the public's dollar, agrees with this view, when he recently seceded off a proposed Los Angeles World's Fair for 1968-69. "People have too many other things to do," he said. "Fairs today are out-dated." Disneyland, he feels may be the prototype of the Fair of tomorrow.

I cannot pretend to be fair to Fairs, and have always hated them, since I saw the Chicago World's Fair when I was young. It was a wretched exploitation of the rubes, alternating between gouging and swindling, raucous sell - advertisements, with poor food at inflated prices and a gloating army of con artists stripping the suckers with methodical greed.

The two New York World's Fairs of my time have shown more dignity and somewhat less cupidity, but they have not altered the basic pattern. The technical, scientific and cultural achievements of the 20th century have, on the whole, been subordinated to civic and corporate boasting and the enshrinement of the mediocre.

Apart from the dubious, moral and esthetic qualities of these Fairs, they have probably outlived their time as a purely practical basis. Fairs were originally designed as gigantic trick shows, and the hicks have slowly been disappearing from the contemporary scene. We are still far from being a civilized people, but we are tremendously more sophisticated about exhibits and spectacles than the preceding generations were.

Some new and imaginative concept must be found, if Fairs are not to go the way of medicine - shows and minstrel-shows. It may not be too much to hope that in this concept the public will be edified and ennobled, rather than pondered and patronized at the same time.

Fighting Favreau Doing Some Positive Thinking Out Loud

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Perhaps out of sheer desperation, and perhaps belatedly realizing that offence is often the best defence, the Government has gone to the attack.

For two days, even while the scandal storm broke over its bewildered head just before Christmas, the Government, from Prime Minister Pearson on down the line, understandably has appeared embarrassed, even humiliated, as the Dorion investigation discovered such a varied and surprising number of dead political cats under the party's bed.

But now, suddenly, in a speech that is still the talk of Parliament Hill, Justice Minister Favreau, who has been something of a Parliamentary mouse, has become a terrible tiger.

Significant, too, this change of both pace and face, since Mr. Favreau is still ostensibly the Prime Minister's "deputy" in Quebec despite the political drenching he has undergone in the cloudburst of scandal that has pounded down around all but a few of the members of the Cabinet from French Canada.

A quiet man, a former Federal Civil Servant, researcher by most shy, the Justice Minister all these weeks personally has remained almost unbelievably wisely observing a discreet silence.

Then with all the shock effect of a shriek in an empty room, he shattered the silence with a hundred shouted threats and accusations.

A NEW REAL

The new Fighting Favreau sounded as real as Real Caouette.

He was positive, for almost the first time, belligerently so with these top-of-the-voice charges against the Opposition's General and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in particular.

Diefenbaker, he made quite plain to say, had left a Conservative Government comprising "near majority" in 1957 with "the classical pattern of paranoia" now were trying to cover up their own guilt with a rash of charges against this best-of-all-administrations.

Diefenbaker, he shouted, had:

• endangered the very existence of Confederation;

• left nothing undone to undermine national strength;

• striven to dissolve the French-English relationship;

• spoken atrocious Parisien French;

• left the economy bankrupt and national unity in ruins.

Odd it was that he could be so thumpingly positive about these things, when only a few months ago he was so casual, off-hand, so negative in telling the prime minister of the Mafia bribery and coercion charges involving certain people in high Conservative circles and Mr. Pearson forgot, temporarily, this mere mention of the name of scandal soot to break "BEND" OTTAWA

Then, just as oddly, the Justice Minister's Fighting-mood has been in the thick of a muddy pilicity of investigations, incredible stories of bribery, coercion, influence-peddling, old-style ward-healing, kick-backs, payoffs, deals and other asteries in scandal.

All of it had been centred in Quebec, mainly in Montreal.

So even more strangely, Mr. Favreau observed that Quebec was heading Canada in the bad art of "reform."

Since then what might have been going on in the line of political hankypanky, there would by want help in making their decisions. We believe that in this specific issue the voice of the church, and especially the church's youth, is of special significance." (Fg. 10) But again, notice, your quotation is not included.

Finally, Feb. 16, 1963, meeting of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada in the committee on Evangelism and Social Service did recommend that ministers point out to their people the seriousness and evils of capital punishment and the alternative to it. They also recommend that congregations "encourage the members of their congregation to write to the Minister of Justice and their (not 'our') local Members of Parliament and perhaps the Prime Minister, expressing their views on this matter." Again, there is no reference to "our."

In writing to "our" members of Parliament in this way, whatever their religion or our religion, we do not, as you have said, infringe on "the principle of the separation of a church and state." On the contrary, we express the best in both Church and State—the Church, as a living instrument of action in the world; the State, as the collective representative and servant of the people.

Capital Punishment Editorial Under Fire

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

For some weeks now you have made it quite clear to us that you are in favor of the continuation of capital punishment in this country, although your editorializing has not always been on the right page. All too frequently you have promoted your side of the story by your selection of articles slanted in your direction and these articles, although editorial in its intent, have not appeared on the editorial page. On Friday, Feb. 19, with the editorial, "What Does "Our" Mean?", you hit bottom.

What irresponsible journalism! You use a quotation as a jumping-off point for a tirade against a church and one of its boards, yet you do not have the literary good manners to acknowledge the source of your quotation. Even a junior high school pupil knows better than to use a quotation about a controversial issue without giving reference to his source.

In "Alternatives To Capital Punishment" issued by the Board of Evangelism and Social Service in 1960, the Committee does make it clear that it supports the United Church's official stand, that "We affirm our belief that capital punishment is contrary to the spirit and teaching of Christ." (Pg. 1, "Alternatives to Capital Punishment") Notice, however, that there is no reference to your quotation.

In the Feb. 15, 1965 edition of The United Church Observer, the official United Church newspaper, there is the following quotation on the editorial page: "The great majority of United Church ministers are, we assume, keen to see the abolition of capital punishment. Its retention by any nation is a symbol of backwardness in the whole field of penal reform. Now there is a chance for Christians to do something about this. Normally we do only like letter-writing campaigns and the other forms of pressure to which Members of Parliament are subjected. But this is a free vote. Some members apparently want help in making their decisions. We believe that in this specific issue the voice of the church, and especially the church's youth, is of special significance." (Fg. 10) But again, notice, your quotation is not included.

Finally, Feb. 16, 1963, meeting of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada in the committee on Evangelism and Social Service did recommend that ministers point out to their people the seriousness and evils of capital punishment and the alternative to it. GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Feb. 23rd, 1945

The story of Albert College, told through the magic of technicolor motion pictures, was unfolded before the Rotary Club here on Monday by the chairman of the Board of Governors in conjunction with the principal of the college.

From the opening scenes showing yoked oxen breaking land on the site of the school, way back in the 80's (when three Sidney township farmers mortgaged their properties to lay its financial foundation) until the proud Second Great War record of its students flashed before the eyes of the clubmen, the films revealed the highly informative story of the faculty, the staff, the student body, and the aims and objects of this coeducational institution. Architectural beauty of the school provided a dignified background to many phases of its work.

30 YEARS AGO

Feb. 23rd, 1935

Mr. Franklin Lang of the Bank of Montreal staff in Peterborough was home in spend the weekend.

Miss Grace Kennedy spent the weekend in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coppin of Oshawa, spent the weekend here with relatives.

Rev. Dr. James Semple; pastor of Bridge Street United Church, preached anniversary sermons on Sunday to his former congregation in Smith Falls.

Mr. Everett Bell, Coleman St., is spending a few days in Perth.

Mrs. Ida Goodmurphy, Cedar St. has returned home after spending six weeks with her mother and sisters in Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

Feb. 23rd, 1925

Danger of flood from the Moira River looked a possibility this afternoon until the rain slackened. Ice collar at Bridge Front St. are flooded. A breakup at this time is most unusual, generally it is a month later that the Moira goes on the war path. Colder weather may tie up the threat of an early breakup for some weeks.

The Belle Theatre was comfortably filled Sunday evening when a sacred concert was given under the auspices of the V.O.N. The proceeds amounted to $95. The kindness of Mr. J. McCarthy in placing the theatre at the disposal of the VON was much appreciated.

The following item from our file copy in 1855: Mr. Alex Lafaim has purchased to hold a dress carnival at the open air rink on the hospital lot next spring. The present skating rink is located at Victoria Ave. and Church St.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 23rd, 1915

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Cook will leave tomorrow to spend some time in the Old Country.

Mr. Charles M. Reid of the Bridle Section has returned home after a business trip to New York City.

Dr. John Green, who is well known here, is visiting relatives in the city. Dr. Green has been the surgeon on the S.S. Liner Empress of India and has had some exciting experiences while at sea in the course of war.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Murray of Montreal are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Scantlebury, College Hill.

17th century attitude toward the barbaric practice of capital punishment, which the best thinkers of the 20th century have wisely seen for what it is, fine; but at least do so by attacking the findings of psychology, sociology, and religion, not by vague, illogical editorial games with words like "our."

(Rev.) G. A. Southall,
Brimfield; Ont.

Editor's note:—The source of the quotation was given. We said, "the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada passed a resolution . . ." Of the three quotations by Rev. G. A. Southall, only one is of a statement by the board, and that in 1960. The quotation used in the editorial, with the word "our" used as quoted, was in a Canadian Press report last week—obviously not the same report as that referred to by the writer of the letter.

MODERN MILITIA MANOEUVRES are no pursuit for the unadventurous. While basic training may still be battened to the indoor barrack square, ruggedness is the prime quality needed in quantity when the Hasty Pees move outdoors. These two pictures of weekend winter near Chatterton give some idea of the conditions. Equipment at times must be painstakingly hauled by sled while armed patrol duty often keeps men close to snowbound earth.

ANTI-TANK 75 mm. gun is part of drill equipment used in training at Belleville home armory, here demonstrated last night with Make Taylor loading and Dave Coveney, flanked in rear by Bob Brett, Gerald Tapp and Wayne Hopkins. Projectile of highly-mobile field piece can smash through four-inch steel plate.

Four Minor Runs Made By Firemen

Fire Chief Ted Foote had four fire calls to report from yesterday.

A quantity of gasoline spilled in front of Joyce Real Estate on Front Street had to be washed down a sewer.

Overheated stovepipes at 68 Cedar Street required the normal treatment.

An overheated transformer in a fluorescent fixture at A. & W. Drive-in created a temporary commotion.

A tall chimney belching smoke at 105 Station Street called for a fireman to make a high climb. His investigation revealed there was nothing to be alarmed about.

'Operation Snowflake' Carried Out by Hasty Pees

If the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment ever seeks a subsidiary motto it might well turn to the oft-paroded post office slogan.

Neither rain, nor cold, nor dark of night stops the regiment from carrying on its reserve-training role.

Between times they practised winter warfare in surrounding hills and snowdrifts.

Drill, meantime, goes on as usual at Belleville headquarters each Monday night, with further winter exercises a possibility as armory routine prepares more young militiamen for participation.

Additional square-bashing for snow-breaking platoon drill in the Chatterton area.

The exercise lasted 24 hours from noon Saturday and saw the men cooking and sleeping in pitched tents in sub-zero temperatures.

Saturday they dropped tradition of Saturday night dances.

Only Four Days Left To Purchase New Markers

With only four more days after today to purchase new auto licence plates, more than 2,000 sets of markers are still to be sold at the Belleville office, according to licence issuer George Olsen.

Normally about 12,000 sets of auto and station wagons plates are sold in Belleville and as of this morning less than 10,000 had been sold.

"The picture isn't good and there are bound to be line-ups of motorists waiting to purchase their licences," said Mr. Olsen.

The deadline for 1964 plates is February 28th, but Saturday is the last date on which new licences may be purchased.

And it will be costly for motorists caught using 1964 plates after the Feb. 28th deadline.

This year there is an automatic fine of $50 for use of 1964 plates after the deadline.

Press Agentry, Pushy Mothers And Misbegotten Collegians Tribulations of Debutantes

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — "Being the ... ter glamor deb is the worst thing that can happen to you, said Brenda Frazier after her divorce in 1950 from former football hero Shipwreck Kelly.

Two years earlier she had suffered a nervous breakdown attributed to constant dieting to live up to what the public expected of the belle of the deb season, 1938.

"I won't let it happen to my child at all," Brenda vowed. And today daughter Victoria, 19, is often a debutante's guest but never a deb.

In turning thumbs down on a coming-out for his pretty stepdaughter, society's professional critic Cleveland Amory described as fraught with "press agentry, pushy mothers, and misbegotten collegians."

If making a bow is as bad as all that, the largest number of mothers in U.S. history is willing to have their daughters risk it.

In every one of the countries social strongholds, it's the same story. Instead of one or two old-guard cotillions which yearly present a handful of well-heeled, well-endowed and well-behaved ladies, there are now dozens presenting 50 to 100 at a time in the name of society and for the sake of charity.

More money among the upper middle classes and less-expensive mass debuts are among the reasons for the swelling deb ranks.

ENDURANCE TEST

In terms of endurance, one of the most sporting debuts is the Cherokee Ball in Atlanta which last: until dawn, followed by two breakfasts, making 19 hours of continuous partying.

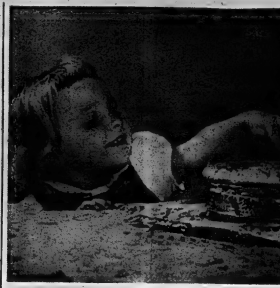
In the early days, daughters were presented in their own homes to family friends, a formality which indicated that the young lady was old enough to keep company with gentlemen —as long as she was chaperoned—until she caught one.

But a wealthy New Yorker, Archibald Gracie King, thought the young bloods of the town ought to see the kind of break they were getting. In 1870 he tossed a bash for his step-daughter in the Delmonico Hotel.

From then on the emphasis was on a public debut where the young belle could subtly survey the field while presenting herself in the most favorable circumstances.

Bowing socially costs money. The ball coming out in Dallas ranges from $20,000 to $75,000, including cotillion fees, private parties, and a glamorous wardrobe. In San Francisco, cotillion fees run from $650 to $1,000, but the extras are the major cost. In New York a deb often chooses to come out at two or three of the big charity benefits and then cinches her social status with a private party, too. That's very costly.

In Boston or Miami a girl with a mere $250 to her father's name and a borrowed white gown can swing a debut, too. Yet it would have been impossible in the pre-war heyday of spectacular splashes by millionaires' daughters.



LAMENTS CHANGE

An Atlanta mother who lamented that "debuts aren't what they used to be," probably remembering Barbara Hutton's glittering bow to society in 1930, Silver birches, eucalyptus and Rudy Vallee were shipped from California for the occasion. Four orchestras played until dawn and the hull of a boat rose out of the hull of a boat rose out of the floor with a beautiful girl tied to the prow.

Some dollared daddies are still dropping big bundles on debuts. Charlotte Ford's in 1959 with a middle ages theme and 1,200 guests set back papa Henry II more than $100,000. Nor did he get by cheaply on Anne's two years later.

This year the safari-loving parents of Fernanda Munn Kilroy spent a bundle dressing the St. Regis Hotel roof with zebra printed fabric and decorating it with exotic flowers and jungle birds. New York Society reporters dubbed it the Race of the year.

One mother on the sidelines of a recent deb ball said, "I don't have my daughter miss a debut for anything. What's a big wedding anymore, the way people get divorces. The coming out is a girl's really big, beautiful moment."

Custard pie is irresistible to Jennifer — Mary Moore's two-and-a-half-year-old granddaughter. This tempting old-fashioned dessert is rich and velvet smooth and Mary Moore gives you every detail to create the perfect product for your loved ones too.

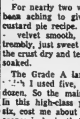
PERFECT CUSTARD PIE RECIPE

For nearly two weeks I have been aching to give you this custard pie recipe. It is perfect velvet smooth, a little bit crumbly, just sweet enough, and the crust dry and tender and unsoaked.

The Grade A large eggs of [illegible] I used five, cost 49c per dozen. So the main ingredient in this high-class pie to serve six, cost me about 17c. A very economical pie that deserves a high rating for a guest dinner.

Custard Filling: 5 large eggs, 2½ cups whole milk (or 2 cups milk and ½ cup 18% cream), ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ⅛ teaspoon salt, nutmeg.

Make crust by cutting shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle cold water over slowly, tossing with a fork until flour is dampened. Pack into a ball between palms and roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate that is 1¼" deep. Line pie plate and make a high fluted edge. Be patient fluting this edge for the custard fills it nearly to the brim.



To make filling beat 5 eggs of the milk nearly to scalding. Beat eggs in bowl with sugar, vanilla, salt and leftover ½ cup milk until sugar is dissolved. Add heated milk, stirring, to make sure sugar is dissolved.

Carry pastry-lined pie plate over to stove and when the mist of the filling into it through a strainer (to remove stringy portion of egg white). Transfer to shelf at lower one-third of oven. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 5 minutes (to bake bottom crust quickly), then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. As soon as edge of custard filling begins to set, add any remaining custard filling, sprinkle top delicately with nutmeg and raise pie to centre shelf of oven and bake 1 hour in all, or until filling is just set and top is delicately tinged with gold. If possible serve this pie lukewarm for then it is at its peak of perfection, but I must add it is excellent too, when it is cold.

Year's Ban Slapped on Woman Driver

OAKMERE, England (AP) — Britain's most celebrated woman driver has, for a year at least, reached the end of the road.

A magistrate slapped the year's ban on Miss Margaret Hunter, 65, Monday, after finding her guilty of colliding with a tree.

Miss Hunter blamed the accident on a mysterious "propelling force" that took control of her car.

On the witness stand, Miss Hunter said:

"I just felt something from behind.

"I'd like to know who is doing it and why. The police should find out."

Miss Hunter won international renown in 1963 when her driving instructor jumped from her car in a busy street yelling "this is suicide."

She failed a series of tests for a license but eventually got one by establishing residence in Ireland, where no test was then needed.

This licence the magistrate confiscated, despite Miss Hunter's demand that the clerk of the court should be arrested for theft.

PARKDALE L.M.P.F.

The February meeting of the Ladies' Missionary Prayer Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Johnstone.

Mrs. G. Stone opened the meeting by reading a poem written by a soldier during the war. The words were interminglied throughout with the Lord's Prayer.

The ladies brought used Christmas cards to be packaged and sent to a missionary office in Toronto, where they will be distributed to missionaries throughout the world.

Mrs. Stone, Mrs. B. Foster and Mrs. St. Peire were in charge of devotions in which all the ladies took part.

Mrs. Foster spoke briefly on the original reason for the ladies' group being formed. The main reasons, she said, were to teach the group something about missions and to give them a desire to learn more about them. Prayer was to be an important function of the group, for material as well as spiritual things needed by the missionaries. Mrs. Foster said that giving willingly of time and talents was most important.

The meeting was closed and a time of fellowship with refreshments followed.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD-W.M.S.

FOXBORO — The February meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Guild-W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. R. Skinner on Wednesday with a good attendance. Mrs. Lyons the W.M.S. president opened the meeting by reading a poem. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Chappelle assisted in the devotions.

Business was discussed during which time plans were made for the observance of the World's Day of Prayer. Jane Manthorpe gave a talk on the Scripture which was most interesting.

Mrs. Skinner served a dainty lunch and a social half hour followed.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for opening her home.

BAYSIDE SCHOOLS

SIDNEY TWP. — Mrs. Bessie Hennessy, Marshall Road, Belleville, presided at the recent meeting of the Bayside Home and School Club. This club has four schools in its membership in Sidney Township — Bayside S.A and Bayside S.B, Belcrest and Quinte View.

The teachers were unable to be present due to a lecture on the new mathematics. The principal of Bayside S-B, Mr. Ken Bird, had requested that parents bring six-quart baskets for his project to cash them in and buy sports equipment for his school.

The president welcomed the members and visitors. Mrs. James Palmer presided at the piano.

Mrs. Doreen Pelletier, secretary, read the minutes and Mrs. Jennie Michaud, treasurer, accounted for the month's expenditures and reported the bank balance. The president announced that Mrs. Campbell of Quinte View School and Mrs. Haggerty of Belcrest School, had used the projector since the last meeting, but felt that a proper screen would add to its effectiveness.

Mrs. Marion Ackerman reported that a 30"x50" screen with a carrying case was most suitable for school use, and Mrs. Jennie Michaud was authorized to purchase one as soon as possible. The president gave a report on courses and options and bus schedules for students entering Grade 9 next year.

The future Fun Fair was discussed. Mr. and Mrs. Garnet May are to lead a room in square dancing. There will be no bake table this year, but there will be a fish pond, serving tea room, games room, candy sale, hot popcorn and soft drinks. Members are to contribute donations to the executive members early in order to avoid last minute confusion at the Fun Fair. Mr. Myra requested that the Bayside Home and School have a table available for display purposes. Ann Landers

Girls' Hand-knit Socks Feel Like Rocks on Feet

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My problem is a crippling one and I need your help. My girl likes to knit. You'd think practice makes perfect but in Sylvia's case it's the opposite. Her knitting gets worse instead of better. Everything she knits has obvious mistakes in it.

Last year Sylvia began to knit socks for me. Well, Ann, those socks are murder on my feet. My gals the yarn knotted up and it feels like I have rocks in my shoes. . . .

If I show up wearing store socks she asks me how come I'm not wearing the ones she made for me. I hate to hurt her feelings, but right now my feet feel as if they have two dozen needles in them. Help me please. — BIG ERNIE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ERNIE — Those rocks aren't in your shoes, Brother, they're in your head.

Stop wearing Sylvia's mistakes and tell her why. Your feet need help now, and you are not going to lose Sylvia if you level with her. That's a promise.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You have printed letters from parents who are heartbroken over the death of a son or daughter. Well, Ann, death is not the only thief that can deprive parents of a child.

Six months ago our 23-year-old college graduate daughter was married. Carol gave up her religion to marry Steve. We accepted her decision and her father gave her away. We gave them a beautiful wedding. . . .

We have been our daughter and son-in-law only four times since the wedding although they live less than 15 minutes away. Every time the telephone rings or the door opens we pray it will be Carol and Steve. Of course, it isn't and we try hard to hide the disappointment from one another but neither of us does very well.

I don't know why I'm writing this letter because I'm not seeking advice. It must be that I needed to express myself. Thank you for being there. — REJECTED.

DEAR REJECTED — Have you invited Steve and Carol to your home? I hope you haven't been sitting around hoping they will drop in. Perhaps the problem is simply one of communication. Why not "call" out?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You announced with a "me-ow and I tweet-tweet" that you were closing the door on the cat and bird rhubarb. Will you please reopen the fight — for a professional ornithologist who was a little slow in getting his remarks together?

Sorry disillusion "Greeneyes" but it is not true that only hungry cats go after birds, that only the sick and injured birds get caught, that the alert birds stay well out of Tabby's reach.

Cats are predators by nature. The cat family is the only animal group that derives pleasure from the deep feeling of cruelty. Cats go after birds for the sheer heck of it — whether they are hungry or not.

By and large cat-lovers are very much like their pets: introverted, selfish and somewhat treacherous. So — bird watchers of the world, unite! We say death to all cats! — FOR THE BIRDS.

DEAR FOR — Your claim that cat-lovers are very much like their pets was particularly interesting to me because I believe this is true of dog lovers.

Repeatedly I have been struck by the physical resemblance between dog owners and their pets. It amuses me when someone says, "Bozo is just like a member of the family" because so often Bozo looks like a member of the family.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Clothes-line Poles Are Too High for Women

SASABE, Ariz. (AP)—Calisthenics and cunning have become a part of washday chores for a group of government employees' wives as they do battle with lofty clothes-line poles.

"Maybe it's the government's way of keeping us slim," one wife joked as she leaped to catch a line above her head.

The government decreed that serviceable high clothes line poles be installed with four new homes built in this Mexican border city for immigration and naturalization officials.

E. Lewis Jones, chief immigration officer, wrote superiors: "The women can't reach the clothes lines. Something should be done about it." Back came the reply: "Slacken the lines to a point where they can be reached."

But the contractor had not left enough footage to permit slackening.

Jones's five-foot-two wife, Jean, decided on the leaping method. When this becomes exhausting she stands on a bench to reach the line.

Mrs. Irving Leslie hangs a heavy rug on the line to make it sag a bit so she can reach it.

Jones still is seeking a permanent solution but suspects major changes will require voluminous paper work.

Future of Home and School Association to be Discussed

Mrs. Judith Sale, Director of Field Activities, Ontario Mental Health Association, Toronto, will be moderator at a panel discussion "To be or not to be" which will be held by the Belleville District Council Home and School Associations. Other prominent members of the community will as panelists including Mr. L.A. Kells, superintendent of Schools, Public Schools, Mr. H.R. Frink, Principal of Queen Victoria School, a community activities director, Mrs. D. W. Maddocks, a parent Mrs. William Thompson, a social worker with the Children's Aid of Belleville and an officer of Home and School, Mrs. E. Hall of Pickering, Provincial vice-president Area C.

The meeting to which everyone interested is invited will be held at the Harry J. Clarke School this Thursday, evening when a number of vital questions pertaining to the continuance of Home and School will be discussed.

It is felt by many members of the Associations that the Home and School is at the crossroads and some of the vital questions include: "Is it going to continue? Is there any purpose to Home and School? Our mode of life has changed drastically since Home and School was founded almost 70 years ago. Is Home and School kept up? How does Home and School help our children to get a better education — or does it hinder the cause of education, as it is conducted today? What could Home and School accomplish if properly run? What would you, as a parent, or as a teacher, or as a member of the community, like Home and School to be? In short, has Home and School any future, and what sort?"

All those interested in Home and School programming are urged to attend this meeting and voice their opinions, as there seems to be the understanding that some members believe that Home and School is a waste of time and should be abolished.

AIR CONDITIONED PICTURES

Dear Susanna: Next time you are hanging a picture, or cleaning behind those that are already there, insert a thumb tack a short distance into the bottom corner of the frame so that the air can circulate behind it.

By doing this, Mrs. Farmer has been troubled by light marks on the wall when I came to remove a picture or hang it in another spot.

On the subject of weekly floor cleaning. I only apply the wax where the traffic passes. The seldom used areas just get a coating occasionally. I not only save wax and the work of applying it, but I almost never have a problem with trying to remove built-in deposits of old discolored wax.

When my arborite kitchen table became dull, I applied a window cleaner with a wax base and polished it with a soft cloth. It brought the finish up beautifully. In fact, we are doing our kitchen over and just about everyone asks me how I can keep my table and counters so shiny with all the dust about during the day.

As I work part time, all your hints come in very handy. — Mrs. J. Clarke

So do I, and so do yours . . . VERY handy! — SUSANNA

Mother's Helper

WHEN you fold the laundry, you can save yourself time and steps if you pile it in the right sequence to begin with and dresser drawer order. It's easier to put away, and you won't have an extra sorting job which can be confusing—especially with children's clothes.

Eleven More Charged With Trespassing

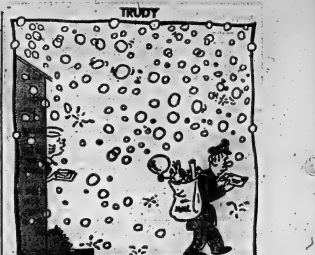
PICTON (STAFF) — Last week ten Toronto men were charged with petty trespassing in the Township of Hillier. Although they did not appear in Magistrate's Court in Picton last Wednesday they all paid fines. County Constable Earle Marvin who investigated the complaints and laid the charges said that the men had been warned by farmers not to hunt on their property and the hunters evidently took no heed. Provincial Police from the Picton Detachment have since been on alert and on Saturday 11 more Toronto men, mostly Greeks, were charged for the same offence. The men were hunting this time on the property of Norris Whitney M.P.P., Bert Bolton and James Goodwin all of Ameliasburgh Township. Police and local authorities are going to do all they can to curtail this practice of hunters wantonly abusing hunting privileges with little regard for personal property or hunting laws.

Flying Club Membership Now 180

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting of the Prince Edward Flying Club was held in the club's lounge on Sunday afternoon. Following a general business meeting the election of officers for 1965 took place.

President again for the coming year is Don DeMille of Picton; vice-president, Orm Reid, Bloomfield; secretary, Ray Rashotte, Belleville; treasurer, Walter Chafe, Belleville. Directors elected were: Gunar Harvel, Belleville; Stu McAnton, Stirling; Ray Irwin, Balaws; Howard Watt, and Alex Williams of Big Island.

Plans for the year include the annual fly-in camp out and Air Rally, which usually is held in mid-summer. Aircraft from Canada and the U.S. take part and the show has been held for the past two years. It is also planned to improve the club's facilities and include more conveniences for the club members this year.



The club now boasts 180 members, most of whom live outside the county. The Prince Edward Flying Club now has two satellite fields in operation. One located at Stirling and the other at Hanecroft. Both maintain full time instructors.

The instructor at the Stirling air field is Harold Wannamaker and at Hanecroft Charlie Twa. There are four full time and one part time employees now with the club. The 35-hour course is conducted according to practices laid down by the Department of Transport.

According to president Don DeMille both fields are doing very well. The club now boasts five aircraft used both for training and also as chartered commercial flights. Presently in use are two Aeroncas, two Piper Colts, and one Cessna 172. Annually the Flying club sponsors an open house when airplane rides are featured at reduced prices. This is conducted with the co-operation of Picton's Rotary Club who donate all the proceeds to their Crippled Children's Fund.

Successful Living

Husband Needs His Help From Skilled Counsellor

DEAR DORIS — My husband has just faced me with the news that he has loved a neighbor's wife for three years.

He is very depressed. Feels he can neither be happy with me by giving her up, nor by going to her and causing me more unhappiness. I can see that it is my move.

How much education would I need to get work as a bookkeeper? Can I possibly support my children?

I will never leave them behind, but that doesn't seem to be a problem. If a man doesn't love his wife, how can he love her children? — DESPAIRING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DESPAIRING — Many women are supporting their children. But from your long letter I'd say your husband needs straightening out by a skilled counsellor. With the history of a previous depression, it could happen that you'd make the sacrifice and he'd go to his new love, only to find out it was you he wanted after all. It's the distant field that looks greener.

As for loving your children, aren't they his too? Of course he cares about them; and will doubtless want to keep on seeing them.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My boy wants to raise pigeons. I dread the idea. We live in the city, but have a long back yard, and an attic.

What would this involve? — HOBBY-SEEKING MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — It will involve your boy — thoroughly — if he "gets the bug." You'll never have to wonder where he is, because he'll be in his loft — with the birds! The loft must be erected at a distance from the house determined by city by-laws; must be kept clean. Many Canadian cities have junior pigeon racing clubs with members from 12 to 18 years of age. Cost of the hobby depends on number of pigeons, food, distances the birds are taken for racing.

I'm sending you the address of the Canadian Racing Pigeon Union headquarters for details.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Dilemma was worried about flying to the Old Country with her baby. I will be very pleased if you will tell her about my last trip.

I went to a Travel Agency. They helped me with everything, enclosed the documents, and my trip was very easy. I travelled before but never knew I could be helped like that. — A TRAVELLER.

* * *

DEAR TRAVELLER — Glad to pass your message on. We also have a page of Travel Tips which will be mailed to anyone sending ten cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — A few weeks ago a lady who is afraid of childbirth wrote in. She signed her letter "Afraid."

I would like to write to her personally if possible as I am her age and shared her problem. I now have a six-month-old daughter. — MRS. E.M.

* * *

DEAR MRS. E.M. — Obviously you have a success story to share. Would "Afraid" please write in again, giving me her address? I won't tell anybody, but I do have other messages to pass on to her, and she may write to those helpful people herself.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Why are some people so race prejudiced?

My parents will let me and even encourage me to go out with men that are twice my age as long as they are of my race and yet on the other hand they won't even let me go to a mixed party with boys from school. Are they mental or what? (We come from a European country.)

I've tried to tell them what they are doing is wrong but they insist on saying that they are my parents and know what's best for me. Do you agree with them?

They are clinging on to the old customs and I'm too Canadianed to agree with them. What am I to do? — DESPERATE.

* * *

DEAR DESPERATE — The customs people learn as they grow up are the ones they cling to. When these differ from what is being done in their adopted country, everybody else is wrong! Here we encourage mingling; we welcome the contribution other cultures make to ours.

Canadian young people learn to mix by mixing. But when parents who have migrated here don't go out, and don't keep open minds, the young people are often caught in a quandry.

From where I sit, it would be far better for you to mix with teen-agers of other races than to keep company with older men. Perhaps you could find a family friend who might explain this to your well-meaning parents.

mad. The lower floors house rooms for dances, parties, and smaller meetings; the Muslim-owned Shabazz Restaurant; and shop spaces leased from the Muslims.

Under the direction of Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan, the firefighters kept the flames at the top of the building.

Fifteen - degree temperatures created sheets of ice from the firemen's hoses.

The roof collapsed and a fourth - floor wall crumbled, showering bricks on the firemen and injuring five of them.

Ziegfried Newmann, 27, struck in the head, was taken to hospital in serious condition.

With the building still smouldering six hours later, the police bomb squad took over the investigation.

A patrolman found kerosene-soaked rags in a building next door.

O'Hagan was asked if the fire was connected with the assassination of Malcolm X.

'SEEMS LOGICAL'

"I wouldn't be surprised," he replied. "It seems logical. I just put the fires out. We have our top investigators working on it. It's certainly suspicious."

The fire spread to three alarms quickly and brought more than 100 firemen to the scene. Residents reported their apartments filled.

"It was a big whoom!" said one man.

Black Muslims by the score had gathered for a meeting earlier at the Muhammad Temple of Islam, Mosque No. 7.

"Man, the place was packed," said a nearby resident.

Nobody was reported in the building when the fire erupted, but several people in a downstairs bar were evacuated.

PRESS SEARCH

Meanwhile, police pressed their search for several men in the slaying of Malcolm X, a black nationalist leader who broke with the Black Muslims more than a year ago.

One Negro, Talmade Hayer, 22, was being held on a charge of homicide under heavy police guard in Bellevue Hospital's prison ward.

He was wounded, police said, in an exchange of gunfire over the heads of several hundred horrified persons who gathered in Harlem's Audubon Ballroom Sunday afternoon to hear Malcolm speak.

But despite additional clues found Monday, the two to four other men believed involved in the assassination remained at large.

Police said they had turned up no additional information from persons who had seen the tall 39-year-old Malcolm X shot on the ballroom stage.

His missing car, a blue 1963 Oldsmobile, was found Monday night 20 blocks south of the murder scene. Police rushed to fingerprint the vehicle, and to question storekeepers and residents of the area.

Meanwhile, police in New York and Chicago sought to prevent reprisals, particularly in the rival, Chicago - based Black Muslims.

Chicago police tightened security over a six-block south side area amid reports that the leader of the Black Muslims, Elijah Muhammad, 67, was marked for death.

Malcolm's body is to go on public display at a Harlem funeral home this afternoon.

Chicago police verified suspicions voiced by New York police that six of Malcolm's followers had departed on separate missions to avenge their leader.

But at a Chicago press conference Monday, the soft-spoken Muhammad expressed no fear of reprisal, and denied that his group, which expelled Malcolm in 1963, had anything to do with the slaying.

PREDICT REVENGE

But both Malcolm's sister, Mrs. Ella Mae Collins, and one of his top lieutenants, Leon Ameer, both of Boston, predicted revenge.

Police are inclined to link the assassination to the feud between the Muslims and Malcolm, Muhammad's heir-apparent before his ouster.

Police say Hayer has refused to say anything about the shooting, including whether is is a member of the Muslims. On his hospital admission card there was a question mark after Hayer's religious designation.

HONORED for 15 years service to local Scouting was Bruce Thompson (right), presented with award by Wally Harpur, Ontario Scout executive.

Scout Leaders Thanked By Mayor for Work Done

The people who make the Scout ideal work in the Quinte district last night took time off to recall how it all began.

The two most distinguished guests among the 130 Boy Scout and Girl Guide leaders at a banquet marking Scout Week were even at the outset in the Masonic Temple.

However, Lord and Lady Baden-Powell were there in spirit—a fact which was not forgotten during the event.

It was pointed up notably by Wally Harpur, Ottawa, member of provincial field executive, who reminded the assembly it also was the 108th anniversary of Baden-Powell, the man who founded the international Scout movement.

While paying tribute to the local leaders' contribution "to the boyhood of Belleville" he also reminded them of the Baden-Powell ideal.

"First he had an idea, then he had an ideal," said Mr. Harpur. "And that ideal has blossomed forth into the Boy Scout movement which you and I are privileged to work at in our communities.

However, he said leaders had a responsibility to periodically reflect on the organization's ideals.

"Perhaps you as Scouters do this in the quiet of your own home or in the quiet before a campfire after your boys have gone to bed some evening.

"Never let your interest die because there will always be a job for you to do in Scouting."

The leaders also were congratulated by Mayor Jack Ellis for their community spirit.

Awards for ten years of service to local Scouting were presented to Edward Ingraham and Isobel Rainbird, both 2nd Belleville pack, and Jim Wilkie, assistant District Commissioner.

A 15-year medal was awarded Bruce Thompson of the local District Scout Council.

Door prize silver dollars were won by: G. McLean, B. Thompson, A. Murphy, B. Weaver and G. Bird.

MADOC — The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society was held in the Madoc Council chambers this past week, with an attendance of 30 members. President Cecil Woods thanked the directors and members for their co-operation and carrying out their respective duties on Fair Day. An expression of thanks was extended to the Kinsmen Club for supervising the night entertainment.

Gate receipts were down, probably due to the cold weather, and the International Plowing Match, held at the same time in Peterborough. The directors of different departments reported that horses, cattle, sheep, agricultural products, domestic science, needlework and school exhibits were above average, yet swine and poultry exhibits were down.

Preparations were started for the 1965 fair. Three field crops competitions, one of which is corn, will again be sponsored, also a commercial feature show for sheep.

Wolf Research Topic at Hunters' Meet

MADOC — John Shannon, a former resident of Madoc Village, and an official of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Madoc District Hunters' and Anglers' Club held in Blue's Hotel last Wednesday night.

The Holiday Room was filled to capacity to hear a most interesting and informative subject, "Wolf Research."

In his opening remarks, Mr. Shannon told of the complaints from farmers who were losing livestock, to learn if control of the wolf population would be more effective than the bounty system ($25.00 per wolf) which has been in existence for nearly 200 years.

Study has been going on in the Algonquin Park where for five years it has been revealed that there are 4 to 5 wolves in a pack and that they range and live in one sea and do not increase in numbers. Wolf poisoning was tried yet it was found that the wolf population increased.

The speake mentioned various methods of killing wolves, yet the bounty money was not the answer as wolves never cause a decline in the deer population, but control where control is needed.

Following his address, Mr. Shannon showed several kinds of wolf hides, played a record used in calling wolves, and demonstrated electronic devices placed in collars which are put on wolves which have been trapped and then released. This device enables the researchers to follow the movements and actions of the wolves from air-craft.

The speaker concluded his program by showing colored slides and movies of scenes in the James and Hudson Bay areas.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

You do not become a track and field champion— or even one of the sports better representatives by standing on the corner watching the track boys and girls go by.

The man behind most of Canada's track and field headliners in recent years says the secret to running stardom is work, work and more work.

In the opinion of Fred Foote, coach of Toronto's famed East York Track Club and mentor of such world names as Bill Crothers and Bruce Kidd, the only way for a young runner is to run—to run every day, year-round; to run on the flat, across the fields and uphill and downhill.

Foote has written a new book, "Run, Run, Run," which every track and field aspirant should read. And coaches themselves should benefit by doing likewise.

Runners come in all sizes—tall or short, lean or chunky. Some people simply can run faster than others, Foote writes, but no one knows his or her potential without trial and training.

It is Foote's feeling, too, that we are still not close to the fastest possible times for runners. "The sky's the limit," he states, predicting an 8.8 hundred-yards dash, and a 3.48 mile.

He also foresees the 43-seconds 440; the 1.42. 880; the 12.58 three miles and the 26.55 six mile jaunt. These are also in sight.

And what is more, Foote contends, the way to attain these goals is relatively simple: well-planned training, planned competition followed by intense competition. Such a program, he says, will bring the attainment of goals once thought impossible.

For many years it was necessary for Canadian athletes to train outside of Canada. But a great change has come about. Better facilities have been provided, coaching methods have been improved and Canadians are now on the threshold of world prominence.

And just as New Zealand, Australia, Great Britain and the European countries have distinctive schools of coaching, there is now emerging in Canada a style conducive to the peculiarities of our way of life, including our climate.

Foote writes: "unless you enjoy running, there's no point to it. Some individuals, especially older men, like to run to keep fit.

But for the young man there's nothing like running—interval running—for developing with a plan and purpose. The most important ingredient of any training program for the athlete is plenty of running —up to 100 miles a week if you're a distance man.

Foote says in modern athletics there seems to be no limit to a man's potential in speed and endurance. At one time a 54-second 440 was looked upon as being quite a respectable speed, but now it is considered acceptable only at the end of a mile or even three miles and not quite fast enough for the last lap in the 880.

Again, in 1948, a mile in 4.06 was considered a pretty hot race; now it is barely good enough for a casual training session. Once, marathon was once thought of as a three-hour race; now about 2.15 is considered essential and 2.20 attainable.

Foote's book, prefaced by a condensed history of track and field through the ages provides detailed fall, winter, spring and summer schedules for all distances. It carries tips on starting, turns, running style and diet.

Wilsons Upset Flyers

Trenton Wilsons scored an upset victory over the frontrunning RCAF Flyers in a fifth of Quinte men's basketball league game in Trenton last night.

Wilsons dumped the Flyers 74-69.

The win boosted the Wilsons into third place and left Cobourg alone in the four-team's group cellar spot.

And the loss for the RCAF gave the runners-up Belleville Lightfoots a helping hand. Flyers lead the Lightfoots by four points and both have played the same number of games.

In tonight's action, Belleville visits Cobourg. A win will leave the Lightfoots two points out of first and they clash with the Flyers at the air station in an eight o'clock game tomorrow (Wednesday) night. Cobourg and the Wilsons also play Wednesday, at Trenton High School.

Mikita Sights On Two NHL Records

ROGER CROZIER

STAN MIKITA

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks appears well on his way to becoming the sixth player in National Hockey League history to win two scoring championships in a row. He also has a good chance to set two NHL records. Statistics released today give Mikita 49 assists, nine short of the record for assists in one season. He also has 140 penalty minutes, highest in the league and six short of the record he set for a centre last season.

Mikita picked up three goals and three assists last week to boost his point total to 72, five more than team-mate Bobby Hull who has been the star of the last eight Hawk games because of knee injuries.

In the second half of the league schedule, Mikita is the highest scorer with 32 points in 22 games, followed by Ralph Backstrom of Montreal Canadiens whose 22 points in 20 games have boosted him to ninth in over-all scoring with 45 points.

HULL TOP IN GOALS

Hull has 14 points in the 15 games he has played and remains top goal scorer with 38. Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings is third in the scoring parade with 32 points, one more than Claude Provost of Montreal.

Chicago remains in first place after the week's play with 68 points, three more than Montreal although Canadiens have played two fewer games. Detroit and Toronto Maple Leafs are tied for third with 62 points although Red Wings have a game in hand.

New York Rangers are fifth, all but eliminated from playoff status. They are 20 points behind Detroit and Toronto and have 15 games left to play.

Boston Bruins were officially eliminated from the playoffs by losing 7-0 to Chicago Sunday, the sixth season in a row they have been out of the Stanley Cup running. Boston is last with 33 points.

Toronto is leading in the goal-tending division with 131 goals against in 55 games, followed by Detroit with 133 goals against in 54 games. Red Wing goalie Roger Crozier leads in shutouts with five.

Howe Has 'Little M's'

QUEBEC (CP) — "Detroit, goal," blared the announcer in French, "scored by number nine, Mark Howe."

The crowd roared.

"Assist," he continued, "by number eight, Marty Howe."

And the 10,000 Quebecers who had packed the city's Coliseum for the fourth night of the sixth International Peewee Hockey Tournament in the winter carnival capital ontdid themselves.

The Detroit Roostertails went on from there to edge a team from Sherbrooke, Que., 5-4. Sherbrooke residents remember Gordie Howe from the days he played exhibition games against a local farm team of his National Hockey League Detroit Red Wings.

Gordie wasn't in Quebec Monday night for his sons' team's win, but his blonde wife was. "It was a day off for Gordie, but they wouldn't let him come," said Mrs. Howe.

"I attend all of the Roostertail games," she said. "Gordie attends whenever he's in town."

Marty, the youngest Howe at nine—he also wears that number, which is his father's—was asked if he often scores on assists from his just-turned-11 brother.

"Yup," said the young centre.

He twice assisted teammate Peter Vogel on goals at other moments of the see-saw game with Sherbrooke, and Mike Chapman once.

Chicoutimi, Que. goalie Marcel Dufour stopped more than 40 shots in his half-hour on the ice only to let in an unassisted goal by Gord Williamson of Brampton after nine seconds of overtime to give a 3-2 win to the Ontarians.

Women's Curling Championship

Ontario, Quebec Meet for Lead

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—Fern Irwin of Toronto and Solange Larouche of Dolbeau, Que., will have a perfect record shattered when they meet in the third round of the Canadian women's curling championship today.

Both women, skipping rinks representing Ontario and Quebec, came up with victories in the opening two rounds of the 10-rink round - robin bonspiel Monday to grab an early three-way tie for first place with Prince Edward Island's Sybil MacMillan of Charlottetown.

Four other rinks skipped by Dorothy Thompson of Edmonton, Peggy Cassidy of Wiarton, Audrey Thorbourne of Liverpool, N.S., and Barbara MacVeigh of Delisle, Sask. were tied with 1-1 records.

British Columbia, skipped by Lesley Cmolik of Kelowna, and Brunswick's Joan Callaghan of Bathurst and Newfoundland, skipped by Bobbie Fortune of Goose Bay, Labrador, were all winless in two starts.

Mrs. Irwin's quartet produced two brilliant comebacks for the early wins. It defeated Manitoba 8-7 by stealing two in the final end of the first-round match and edged Alberta 12-7 after counting six stones in the ninth end of the second game.

TRAILS AFTER SIX

Trailing 6-2 after six ends of the regular 10 - end match against Manitoba, the Ontario foursome posted three in the seventh and another in the ninth before counting the game-winning pair without last rock.

The Ontario rink got off to a better start against Alberta, taking three in the first end but trailed 5-4 after eight ends. Mrs. Irwin then collected the six and Alberta conceded the match without completing the final end.

The Quebec rink subbed Sandra Kaichewan 15-6 in the opening round after counting three in the opening end and five in the third. It registered an easy 12-7 victory over Newfoundland.

Prince Edward Island defeated Newfoundland 14-5 in the first round.

The Charlottetown foursome counted on only four ends of the match against British Columbia but a fourth three-end were included as Mrs. MacMillan registered a 9-6 victory.

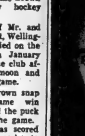
Wellington Boy, Brown Star

From Cupid To Bryant

Dan Cupid is given an assist in Leon Bryant's return to scoring form for the Brown University varsity hockey club.

Bryant, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bryant, Wellington, Ont., was married on the college campus on January 30th, returned to the club after a brief honeymoon and scored in his first game.

Bryant helped Brown snap Dartmouth's ten-game win string. He presented the puck to his bride after the game.



Since then he has scored three goals and four assists to raise his season's total to 6-22.

Recently he became the fifth player in Brown history to reach the 100-points mark in varsity play. He is currently third among the Brown all-time scoring leaders with 47 goals and 69 assists.

Leon is a graduate of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute where he starred in hockey, basketball and football.

An assistant captain on the Brown team this year, he was selected to the Ivy League all-star team as a sophomore and again last season.

He will be graduated from Brown next June with a degree in Arts and hopes to enter the field of advertising or coaching.

New System For Minor Playoffs

All Belleville Minor Hockey Association schedules have been closed out, most prior to their completion, and Playoffs are now under way, it was announced by President Ed Adamson tonight.

"A new playoff system, two-of-three series rather than the present, goals-to-counts affair, led to the decision to end the schedules before their completion," Adamson said.

Peewee and bantam playoffs started on the past weekend, Juvenile, midget and juvenile commence tonight and the tykes get under way on Friday.

Due to the misplacing or loss of some scoresheets, there has been a hiatus in some final standings and thus in playoff arrangements.

Playoff schedules have not been made available for most of the divisions. Coaches are being notified tomorrow as to who and when their clubs play.

Players are advised to watch the sports calendar in the future since dates will be published there as soon as they are made available.

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta legislature Monday gave the formality of first reading to a bill that will follow treaty Indians to vote in provincial elections. There are 22,000 treaty Indians in the province, of whom about half are believed over the maximum voting age of 19.

CFL Rule 'Repugnant' Says Yaremko

Hayman Wants Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — A cabinet minister chastised the Canadian Football League in the legislature Monday for adopting a residence rule that would limit the number of naturalized Canadians on CFL teams to three.

John Yaremko, provincial secretary and minister of citizenship, called on the league to rescind this "repugnant" rule and get on with the business of providing the public with better football games.

Mr. Yaremko made his comments in a ministerial statement before the orders of the day.

"This ruling is reprehensible to say the least," he declared. "It is repugnant to the very basic principle we are striving for in the development of our Canadian way of life—the principle of equality."

Mr. Yaremko said the effect of the CFL regulation would be to place naturalized Canadians on a lesser plane than native-born Canadians. For instance, Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson, born in Northern Ireland, would be a lesser Canadian than Premier Robarts, born in Alberta.

In Winnipeg, CFL commissioner G. Sydney Halter said "it is quite apparent that Mr. Yaremko has made no effort to ascertain the reason for the CFL's decision.

"The ruling, by its action, was merely limiting the number of players whose entire athletic training is established primarily, high school and college—was in the United States and Canada. We would be a proper balance between such players and players whose primary and high school football training was acquired in Canada.

"We are definitely within the league's rights and in my opinion violates no provision of the Canadian charter or any other act," Mr. Halter said.

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, said Monday he will ask for a meeting of league general managers to discuss the rule restricting to three the number of naturalized Canadians in each team.

"I'm going to suggest a meeting of the general managers after I get together with our legal counsel," Hayman said in an interview.

"The CFL should meet as quickly as possible to review this legislation and all its ramifications."

The next regular meeting of the CFL is scheduled for June, but Hayman said he thinks an earlier meeting should be held.

"The fans should know as early as possible what we intend to do. Also the coaches and the players should know. I can not guess what will happen when we do get together, but we must decide to rescind, review or add to this rule."

The Argos have five naturalized players on their squad. Published reports last week said they would play all five men as Canadians and let the courts rule on the legality of the new rule, approved at the annual meeting of the CFL earlier this month.

"I'm not in favor of that," said Hayman. "My thinking is to try to review this thing because of the non-acceptance of it by the media and the public."

Wolves Versus Villa

LONDON—(Reuters)—The near-capacity crowd is expected at Wolverhampton Wednesday night for the English Football Association Cup replay between Wolves and Aston Villa.

These two Midland clubs, though at the foot of the First-Division league table, played sizzling soccer when they tied 3-1 at Villa Park Saturday.

Aston Villa have won the cup seven times, the last in 1957.

If Wolves survive the replay, it will be the third successive round in which they have won after a replay. In the third round they beat Portsmouth after a goalless draw on their home and, in the fourth round, won at Rotherham after a home ground draw.

Crystal Palace, the Second-Division club that provided the shock result of the fifth round by toppling First-Division Nottingham Forest, has a unique record.

PLAYED IN 1872

The southeast London club is the only surviving team which competed in the first Football Association Cup competition in 1872. Crystal Palace is full of fight and hopes to reach the semi-final stage for the first time in its long history.

Chelsea, the Cup favorite, which eliminated Tottenham Hotspur in the big London "Derby" match Saturday, has not been beaten by any side in any competition since Dec. 19.

Cassius, Liston May 25

BOSTON (AP) — The postponed world heavyweight title fight between champion Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston was rescheduled Monday for Tuesday, May 25.

The decision came almost one year to the day after Liston lost the title to Clay at Miami, yielding in his corner because of injury.

The rematch originally had been set for last Nov. 16 at Boston Garden but had to be postponed when Clay underwent an emergency operation for a hernia condition.

The winner must post a $50,000 guarantee to sign for defence of his championship within six months against one of the four contenders.

The fight must be held within one year.

Kings Win Brawl Game

PICTON (Staff) — Leading 4-1 prior to the loss through injury of goalie Larry Holmes, Picton Merchants dropped a wild 6-5 decision to the Trenton Aggie Kings here last night in their first game of their OHA Eastern Junior "C" group semi-finals.

Second game in the three-of-five set will also be played here on Thursday night.

In the other half of the semi-finals, Gananoque Islanders topped Napanee League 5-3 in Napanee to tie their series at a game each. Their next game is also Thursday, in Gananoque.

Picton took a 2-1 lead in the first frame and were in front 4-1 late in the second period when one of the O'Donnell brothers, of Trenton, allegedly speared Merchant goalie Larry Holmes.

Holmes was taken to the Picton hospital for a groin injury and juvenile goalie Ray Marshall replaced him in the Picton nets.

When play resumed, Jack O'Donnell and Paul Jones engaged in a brawl. Both were given majors for fighting and Jones, of Picton, also had a game misconduct tacked on. This was followed by another fight, between Rick O'Donnell and Picton's Billy Hicks. Minor and major penalties were dished out when this one was settled.

At the start of the third period, with each side playing two men short, Trenton pumped four quick goals past Marshall. Ross Quigley, Good Stevenson, Dave Johnson and Tom Glover were the marksmen, giving Trenton a 6-4 lead.

Picton tied it on Bart Frederick's goal but Tommy Glover fired the winner for Trenton, assisted by Johnson. The Merchants lifted the goalie for an extra attacker in the final minute by to no avail.

Picton outshot Trenton by a wide margin over the first two heats but Trenton, turning on the pressure in the third, held a 47-45 margin overall.

There were 14 minor, four major, one misconduct and one game misconduct assessed in all.

Ron Riley and Harold Haddock scored for Picton in the first heat with Rick O'Donnell getting Trenton's lone. Riley and Ernie Sharp netted Picton's goals in the second—then came the explosion.

BMHA Coach Suspended By Officials

One suspension was revoked and another given after the second meeting in less than a week to deal with misconduct on the part of Belleville Minor Hockey Association team coaches.

B.M.H.A. president Ed Adamson announced this morning that Stan MacDonald, coach of the Canadiens of the peewee division, has been indefinitely suspended for an incident in which he used abusive language" in a game at Memorial Arena last Saturday morning.

And a suspension, of one game, imposed on Wayne Garrison of the midget-division Leafs, has been withdrawn.

Garrison's name was listed on the score sheet for a misconduct penalty last week. Adamson said that since the suspension was given, it has been learned that "Garrison was not even at the rink that night so his name must have been listed in error."

Adamson also said that the B.M.H.A. has not been able to learn the name of the player who was involved. A coach and three other players were also given suspensions over that incident.

And also at last night's meeting, it was decided to permit some of the divisions to continue league play this week, rather than commence playoffs.

So, at this point, all players are advised to check with their coaches and convenors concerning play. Some divisions are having playoffs and some regular scheduled games.

Eye Hurt Said Not Serious

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Doctors said Monday that Peterborough Petes' star forward Andre Lacroix, who suffered an eye injury in a game with Toronto Marlboros Association Junior A game in Toronto Sunday, is improving and that there will be no permanent damage to the eye.

However, they said the speedy centre, who currently leads the series scoring race with 117 points, would remain in hospital for at least a week with a bruise slightly above his eye resulting in blurred vision.

Lacroix was hit by Jack Chipchase's high stock midway through the second period of the game, won by Toronto 5-2.

Fire Causes $25,000 Loss

Boucher Home, Byng Trophy Destroyed

CORNWALL (CP) — A fire that swept through a farm home owned by former National Hockey League great Frank Boucher Sunday destroyed the original Lady Byng Trophy along with other trophies and antiques.

The fire was at Kemptville, some 25 miles south of Ottawa.

Boucher's son Earl and the latter's five children occupied the home but escaped injury. Boucher Sr. lives at Regina where he is commissioner of junior hockey in Saskatchewan.

He was "very upset" when told of the fire by telephone, his wife said a reporter. Along with the Lady Byng, awarded the player best combining good conduct with a high standard of play, Boucher lost seven miniatures of that trophy presented him over the years.

Earl's wife said the fire may have been caused by mice chewing through electrical wires. She estimated the loss at about $25,000.

Frank Boucher, now 63, joined Ottawa Senators in 1921 and the following year was sold to Vancouver. In 1926 he joined New York Rangers and played 12 straight seasons with them, including two Stanley Cup series. He later became a coach and manager. He was elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame in April, 1958.

Frank had intended to leave the original Byng Trophy to the Hall of Fame. He was also concerned about losing a large painting of himself and Bill and Bun Cook, two other former NHL stars.

Vasquez finished fifth on Tibaldo and Ussery was 11th in the field of 12 aboard Valiant Man.

'So Solly, No See Giants'

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Bunning hasn't felt better since June 21. Jim Bouton, Ralph Houk and CBS are one big happy family. Now, if Ford Frick could see eye to eye with Masonari Murakami . . .

Bunning, a right-hander who pitched a perfect game for Philadelphia Phillies eight months ago, signed 1965 contract Monday that catapulted him into the super-star salary bracket at $50,000 to $60,000.

Bouton, the right-handed star of the network-owned New York Yankees pitching staff who waged a brief but bitter salary feud with general manager Houk last winter, also agreed to 1965 terms—at a solid pay boost to an estimated $29,000.

But Murakami, the Japanese southpaw who finished last season with San Francisco Giants, insisted he has no pun for either the U.S. dollar or the National League.

BREAKS WITH JAPANESE

Commissioner Ford Frick has broken off relations with the Japanese leagues as a result of he Murakami contract dispute between the Giants and Japan's Nankai Hawks. Monday, the 20-year-old pitcher told reporters in Tokyo he intends to stay home.

The Giants claim they purchased his contract from Nankai for $10,000 and have his signature on a 1963 agreement. The Hawks contend they loaned Murakami to the National League club for one year.

Bunning, who retired 27 New York Mets in order last June 21, recording the first perfect National League game in 84 years, said he was "very pleased" with his new contract.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Until Bobby Hull suffered his knee injury when he was checked in a Toronto game, I felt the New York club could slow him up and keep him from setting a new National Hockey League record of more than 50 goals in one season was if he got tired.

Actually, I can't see him getting tired because he's such a strong powerful individual. He was 26 years old Jan. 3. Yet he is in his seventh season in the NHL, a polished veteran.

Some hockey followers think he will rival coach Coach Billy Reay is giving him so much ice time in addition to staying out longer on a shift than most players, he also kills penalties and works on the power play.

I dont think they realize that Bobby is out there because he wants to be there. It isn't because he is trying to set the record. He's such a terrific competitor, he wants to be in the thick of the action. And he's smart enough to stay within his own physical limits. When he needs a rest, he gets off.

It appeared Bobby might have damaged his scoring capabilities as a result of the stiff finger, a souvenir of his auto accident in Detroit last summer.

The first finger on his shooting hand, his right hand, definitely is locked in position. They designed a special glove for him. They put a little extra padding on the inside in the area of the stiff finger to give him extra protection.

I imagine the finger is pretty tender. Such a locked finger should be a handicap.

"Yes, I can see that finger must really be hurting," said Ron Murphy, Bobby's former teammate. Bobby had just scored the three-goal hat trick.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS recently presented two exceptionally fine special programs in succession Monday night.

The first was a 90 - minute color production of Cinderella, with Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein music, old-fashioned romance and charm.

The second gave a stimulating hour interview on the state of the world with Walter Lippmann.

Lippmann, a news analyst and columnist for many years, was drawn out by intelligent questioning by Eric Severeid.

Cinderella, a new production of the team of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, wrote more than eight years ago, introduced two new young stars, Lesley Ann Warren, a talented youngster with a ballerina's delicate beauty in the title role, and Stuart Damon, a stalwart, handsome with a voice to match, as the prince.

The magic of the childhood classic was imperfectly preserved. Celeste Holm was a glittery fairy godmother.

The regal king and queen roles were played by Walter Pidgeon and Ginger Rogers. The cruel stepmother and her haughty daughters were suitably unattractive.

There were tuneful songs with the typical Hammerstein touches—warm, optimistic philosophy in the lyrics. The highlight, of course, was the ball.

To Broadcast Citizenship Court Here

Twenty-six people from 12 different countries will receive their Canadian citizenship papers at Hastings County Courthouse Wednesday.

Applicants will take their oaths before Judge J. C. Anderson, and for the first time, CJBQ radio will broadcast the proceedings, at 2 o'clock.

A landed immigrant in Canada must wait a period of five years before making application for citizenship, and a further six-month waiting period lapses before papers are returned. The remainder of last year's 57 applicants for citizenship will be heard in June of this year.

1964 saw the smallest number of applicants for citizenship in Hastings County in 10 years, according to courthouse officials. The usual number is twice the 57 applications made in 1964.

The new Canadians represent West Germany, Rumania, Switzerland, China, Italy, Northern Ireland, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Pakistan, Holland, Greece and Denmark.

Following the citizenship court proceedings which are open to the public, the new Canadians will be entertained at the Belleville armouries by the two local chapters of the I.O.D.E.
